GREAT DRAG HUNT

Field of Twenty-Two in Watchung Hunt Club's Ride After Honnds.

The Thanksgiving Day drag hunt of the Watchung Hunt Club proved to be a great run and the best of the season. There was a field of twenty-two that met the hounds at the Baltusrol Golf Club and the hounds were thrown in in the vicinity of the club grouds. They quickly picked up the scent and from that time on to the finish the chase was a lively one. The riders crossed the Barclay, Roll, Kitt, Frits, and Noll farms, the first check being made at the Noll farm. In crossing the Kitt's farm, L. E. Waring came a cropper, but pluckily re-mounted and continued.

The hounds were taken a short distance down the road and thrown in on the Frawley farm. The run continued over the Miller farm, where Rufus C. Finch, master, went down. He was up in an instant and again hunting the hounds. Over the Parker farm and the grounds of the Cranford Golf Club, the Finck, Kidsel, Lippen, Pierson, Taylor, Wallen and Scudder farms the chase was continued and a check was made on H. A. Bourne's farm.

Going a mile down the road the hounds were again thrown in on the Smalley farm and the run then led over the French Scudder, Hatfield, Merriman, Meriner, Murray, Lambert and Terry farms, where another check was made. While crossing the Murray farm, Paul Harrison, of Montclair, riding the Ghost, fell at a ditch, but neither rider nor horse was injured, and continued.

Numerous fences encountered and the horses performed unusually well. An attractive sight was the coach and four driven by William Palmer Smith, Jr., who was accompanied by a number of friends. Others followed the riders in autos, while a number of grooms were out exercising horses. After the run breakfast was served at the clubhouse. The following participated in the run:

R. C. Finch, M. F. H.; J. J. O'Donohue, Paul Harrison, Jack O'Day, Lawrence Smith, C. W. Holland, Miss Helen Hyde, Frank Davis, of Virginia, H. L. Finch, Mr. and Mrs. Brown Rolston, Lewis E. Waring, Col. C. E. S. Bellows, Schuyler Casey, Edward R. Finch, Miss Gertrude Noe, C. F. Wildey, S. B. Harbinson, of Lexington, Ky., and Huntsman Henry Watkins.

THE WAY WITH MOTHERS, HER BOYS BACK AGAIN.

"Mother," Jules Eckert Goodman's remarkable play, which comes to the Plainfield theatre tonight, enjoyed a run of over 200 nights in New York, tells the story of a little woman who has brought up a family of six children, only to be gravely disappointed with the results.

Mother has not been able to save the eldest born from evil—for he robs his firm and forges his mother's name to a note—but she is determined to keep the laddie number two from doing likewise. So when an actress aspirant for the honor of marrying into the family arrives on the scene, Mother upsets the apple cart by talking about how little the family has, and painting a rosy picture of life in a cottage where you do your own washing, or words to that effect. Of course, this doesn't look a bit rosy to the actress lady. So she tells the whole family to go to a place south of China, and flounces out of the house to look for a more promising victim. In the end, Mother has her two boys back again and all ends well, as good plays should. That's the way with mothers.

HOW THE LOCAL Y. M. C. A. OBSERVED THANKSGIVING.

Open house was kept all day yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. In the morning all kinds of games in the boys and men's departments were enjoyed in addition to graphophone and piano player music. In the afternoon there were two performances of the motion pictures in the auditorium. In the gymnasium there was the regular class for boys followed by a basketball game between the Grace church choir five and a picked five from the grammar school class.

In the evening the game between the undefeated Ajax team and the P. H. S. Reserves was played and resulted in a victory for the former 46 to 13.

HOLDS HOLY CROSS

Borough Parish Team Plays Scoreless Game With P H S. Eleven.

The Plainfield High School football eleven ended its season yesterday morning with one of the best records in the history of the school, when it held the Holy Cross team to a 0 to 0 score before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football game on Parker Field. Both teams have good records and both were more or less confident of victory yesterday.

The field was in a muddy condition, preventing fast team work. Holy Cross started with a line of about equal weight to that of P. H. S., but in the second half the injury to Sinclair and Sharpe made it necessary to put in Mair and Logan, two heavier men. Captain Miller was also injured at the beginning of the second half and his place was taken by "Shake" Clarke, who had been playing end. Borner took Clarke's place at end. P. H. S. started with its strongest lineup which was not changed until the last half when several substitutes were given a chance.

Neither team could gain much ground as they proved to be evenly matched. Holy Cross had an opportunity to score, however, in the first few minutes of play after Coyle had made a brilliant 40 yard run around left end in a broken field with Tillotson as his only interference. This play brought the pigskin up to the P. H. S. 35 yard line. The gain came immediately after Nash had kicked off. Miller, who carried the ball, was dropped in his tracks after moving three yards, by Joe Widoson, who played a fine game.

Later the ball went to P. H. S. on an unsuccessful forward pass to Clarke at the 18 yard line, preventing a touchdown. Neither team had a chance to score after this point in the game. P. H. S. kept the ball moving during the remainder of this period and by a series of rushes and split plays they worked up to the opponent's 28 yard line before time was called at the end of the second half. In the second quarter the teams exchanged kicks continually. Holy Cross was penalized twice during the last period for offside plays.

Tillotson and Coyle starred in the Holy Cross back field and Lindzey and Ricketts played a great game for P. H. S., ably assisted by Widoson, Moy, White, Good and the rest of the team. The lineup:

P. H. S.		Holy Cross.
Carty	center	Blazier
Widoson	right guard	Bellows
Good	right tackle	Sharpe, Mair
VanZandt, McDowell	right end	Bechtel
Lindzey	quarterback	Tillotson
Nash	right half	Coyle
Ricketts	fullback	Wilson

Referee, Roy Phillips; umpire, Kenneth Phillips; field judge, W. Douglas; timers, Zook, Moran; head linesman, R. Manley; time of quarters, 10 minutes.

MISS ANNA MILTNER BECOMES MRS. BREECE.

Miss Anna M. E. Miltner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Miltner, of West Second street, and Howard Breece, of North avenue, were married last night at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's rectory by Father Hogan. The bridemaid was Miss Anna M. Finegan, and the best man Edmund P. Finegan, both of Elizabeth.

The bride was gowned in light blue silk with lace trimmings and wore a white beaver hat. The bridemaid wore dark blue cashimere de soie, and a black picture hat.

After a week spent at Washington, D. C., the couple will reside in their newly furnished home at Richmond and Second streets.

Bicycle Trip to Washington.

Franklin B. Newell, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Newell, of West Seventh street, and Irving Schenck, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Schenck, of Union street, both pupils at the Plainfield High School, left yesterday morning at 9 o'clock on their bicycles for Washington. They expect to reach the Capitol tonight and after visiting points of interest they will return home on their wheels. They expect to reach Plainfield Sunday night.

James W. DeGraff and Miss DeGraff and Miss Martin, of this city, are guests at the Hotel Wolcott, New York, for a few days.

MACHINISTS FLOCKED TO THEIR ANNUAL BALL

The fifth annual ball of Plainfield Lodge No. 167, International Association of Machinists held Wednesday night in Sebring's Auditorium, attracted probably one the largest gatherings ever in that hall. William Johnson, of Washington, D. C., the newly elected president of the International Association, made a short address advocating the abolishment of child labor and endorsing the establishment of an universal eight-hour working day. Newark Lodge sent a large delegation as did a number of other nearby cities.

President Louis Burger, of the local association, and Miss Martha Harmon, of Newark, led the grand march. John Vardon sang several well received solos. The committee in charge was composed of Frank McCabe, chairman; Charles Harrell, Louis Burger, Thomas Dumphy, Elmer Walker, Jeremiah Callahan and Henry Corey. Music was furnished by Suhr's Imperial orchestra.

WESTFIELD PATROLMEN ENJOYED ANNUAL BALL

The first annual ball of the Westfield Patrolmen's Association, which is affiliated with the Plainfield Association, was held in the Casino, Westfield, Wednesday night, and was a great success. The affair was largely attended by people from not only Westfield, but Plainfield and other nearby towns. The local police department was represented by Sergeant H. L. Overbaugh, Patrolmen Andrew Saffron, Charles Flynn and Arthur McGinley. The members of the Westfield Council and other officials of that town were guests at a buffet supper, served by Timbo.

The success of the affair was largely due to the assistance rendered by Chief Thomas O'Neill, who is popular with the police department and the citizens of Westfield. The ball committee comprised Edward Nelson, chairman; W. M. Stamets, C. A. Marchant and the entertainment committee, William McNeely, J. Rosecrans and C. A. Marchant. Owing to illness of his brother, Mayor J. A. Dennis could not attend. Music was furnished by Paroubek's orchestra of this city.

HUNTERS CAUGHT WHILE HUNTING ON HUNTER AVE.

Charles Musser, of South Second street, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning for riding his bike on a sidewalk. Centence was suspended. Fred Stettler, Frank Oakes, Joseph Kaubek and George Gloeckler, of Elizabeth, were arrested for hunting in the city limits. They were in the neighborhood of Hunter avenue, and did not know that they were violating the law. Judge DeMeza allowed them to go with a warning.

Fred Servert, of Terrill road, arraigned for drunkenness was given a suspended sentence on his promise to abstain from liquor.

THANKSGIVING DAY FIRE IN THE BOROUGH.

The borough fire department was called out on a still alarm at 12:10 yesterday noon for a fire at the home of C. S. Byrnes, of 254 Somerset street. A partition and part of a wall near a chimney had become ignited through overheating. The blaze was put out with one tank of chemicals. The damage will amount to $100 on the house and $25 on furniture, both covered by insurance. The house is of two-family construction and is owned by John Munday, of Springdale.

Announce Engagement.

The engagement of Miss Edna Eckert, the eldest daughter of Mrs. Orra E. Eckert, of West Fourth street, to Frank Rimmer, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rimmer, of Essex street, was announced at an informal Thanksgiving Eve party at Mrs. Eckert's home. The guests, about twenty-five in number, were seated in the dining room, when the favors which were minature turkeys, were distributed. At a given signal the souvenirs were opened and the bethrothal announcement was disclosed. Miss Eckert and Mr. Rimmer are both active in the religious and social life of Hope chapel and the West End. Mr. Rimmer is treasurer of the Hope chapel Sunday school. While no date has been set for the wedding, it is understood it will take place next fall.

For City Championship.

There will be a match game of pool at the pool parlor of A. B. Stites, 19 Somerset street, tonight at 8 o'clock, between Robert Naylor and James Taylor, for the championship of the city. The game will be 200 points.

WONDERS AT JAPAN

Dr. W. L Saunders Impressed by Remarkable Progress of the Flowery Kingdom.

Dr. William L. Saunders, as a member of the delegation of the American Society of Mining Engineers, which is visiting Japan, has become much impressed with the progress made in that country since he first saw it a quarter of a century ago. The political, industrial, commercial and generally educational development in so brief a period, to him, he writes is next to supernatural and presages wonders to be expected in the next decade or two.

The American Society's delegation went to Japan for theexpress purpose of studying engineering problems in that country and to confer with Japan's foremost engineers whose guests they were to be. No sooner had the Emperor and his ministry learned of their presence than an invitation was extended for the Americans to be the guests of the Government. Receptions, dinners and functions were arranged by the Government and all sorts of unusual courtesies and distinctions were shown the visitors.

It is the first time, Dr. Saunders writes, that a party of professional men have visited that country and as they happened to be Americans the visit is being made all the more pleasant for the Government is anxious to show its friendship for the United States. "This country and these people," Dr. Saunders writes, "are destined to play an important part in the world's history. They are fully alive to their opportunities."

Dr. Saunders, who is a former mayor of North Plainfield, is president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company of New York, and is vice-president of the American Society of Mining Engineers.

MISS SADIE RANDOLPH THANKSGIVING BRIDE

Miss Sadie Emmons Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner F. Randolph, of Clinton avenue, and David Howath, of Newark, were quietly married yesterday morning at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Dr. C. W. F. Attlee, of this city. The bridemaid was Miss Lillian Johnson, of Perth Amboy, and the best man, Elwood Johnson, of South Plainfield.

The home was attractively decorated with flowers and chrysanthemums. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. Following a trip the couple will reside at Newark, where the groom is engaged in business.

HE'S ABLE TO VOTE, HIS FRIENDS CELEBRATE

Ernest Conover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, attained his majority on Wednesday and that night he was given a surprise party at his home by a company of forty friends and relatives. Early in the evening Mr. Conover went with his father to a prayer meeting at the First Baptist church and upon his return at 9 o'clock he was greeted by friends. The surprise was complete. The evening was devoted to playing games, while there was an excellent program of vocal and instrumental music. Later refreshments were served.

The affair was arranged by Mr. Conover's parents and was replete. Mr. Conover received a number of handsome gifts, including a fine gold watch from his parents, and other articles of a useful character. It was late when the guests departed, leaving their best wishes with the host.

Tri-County Club Dance.

The Tri-County Club held a delightful rustic dance at Schwalb's Hall, Union Village, Thanksgiving Eve. The place was appropriately decorated and the dancers wore quaint country costumes. Music for the ocasion was furnished by the Misses Zaiser. The committee of arrangements was composed of Miss Elizabeth Armbruster, Mrs. O. W. Henderson, Mrs. Edward Carr, Mrs. H. G. Lucas and Mrs. Richard Rogers.

Darby-Herling.

Miss Rachel Etta Darby, of this city, and James J. Herling, of Springfield, were married last night at the residence of the bride on Fillmore avenue. Rev. L. L. Crom officiated. The couple will reside at Springfield.

Announce Engagement.

Announce was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Lucy Otterson, of Evergreen avenue, to Thomas Rowe VanBoskerck, of West Seventh street.

PYTHIANS TO GATHER IN PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

Pythians from all parts of Union, Somerset, Middlesex and Hunterdon counties will gather here tonight for the open meeting of District No. 20. A special train will leave Flemington at 6:40, bringing large delegations from the upper counties and all roads in this vicinity will find a common centre in Plainfield. The Flemington concert band, forty strong, will accompany the up-country members, who will be met by others, and they will have a short parade through the business section before going to Sebring's Auditorium, where the meeting will be held.

Prior to the open meeting there will be a business session in Perseverance Lodge rooms in the Babcock building. Here the dignitaries of the order will be received. Following the opening meeting refreshments will be served and the remainder of the time devoted to sociability.

GRACE M. E. CHOIR GIVES NOVEL AFFAIR

The choir of Grace M. E. church, which enjoys the distinction of arranging and conducting some novel social affairs, opened a two nights' entertainment and bazaar in the church last night that will greatly enhance their reputation. The undertaking more than meets expectation and afforded an evening of delight to the capacity crowd that attended the initial presentation.

The entertainment part of the program comprised three numbers, the first of which was a "kinder symphony." The twenty-two members of the choir appeared with all manner of toy instruments and presented a medley of musical numbers that produced billows of applause. Miss Alice Carroll, as the leader of the orchestra, presided at the piano, while additional accompaniment was furnished by Dyckman Winckler, violin, and Charles A. Nichols, drum.

The second number represented a school room with seventeen pupils. The effect was very pretty. Miss Florence Hoagland assumed the center and sang a catchy little song, "I Can't Do That Sum," the class furnishing a slate pencil rapping accompaniment and joining in the chorus. The children participating were the following: Madeline Walker, Helen Nelson, Clifford Nelson, John Hoagland, Florence Hoagland, Ruth Conover, Walter Conover, Ruth Nichols, Ruth Gould, Albert Monck, Bessie Monck, Madeline Bamberger, Grace Ellis, Marion Ellis, Edna Mantz, Grace Bolan and Helen Bolan The final number on the program was a tableau, "Toyland." A large number of children were assembled in the background, holding toys, while Mrs. E. D. Young, soprano soloist of Grace church choir, sang, "Toyland." The effect was novel and pleasing. Something of a sensation was created in this number by the appearance of Miss Mary Nichols, as a big doll. The young lady, who is the eighteen-months'-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Nichols, sat in a little perambulator with such an absolute appearance of sang froid that every one marveled.

The entertainment was preceded and followed by a sale of fancy articles, ice cream, hot chocolate and other things. There was also a grab-bag in charge of Miss Mary Hoagland, which afforded great amusement. The other features were in charge of the following: Fancy articles, Mrs. W. J. Conroy; cake, Mrs. Joseph Darby; hot chocolate, Mrs. J. Rusell Harden; ice cream, Mrs. Charles Lippincott.

The affair was planned by Miss Alice Carroll and she was assisted by the entire choir, the proceeds going to its fund. It will be repeated tonight with a change of program. The "kinder symphony" will be retained, but new numbers will be substituted for the school scene and the tableau. One will be a musical number "Three Little Maids From Japan," and another a monologue entitled "Charity Higgins' Vocal Organs," by Miss Florence Nichols and eight girls. It promises to be very amusing.

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight and Saturday. Max., 40; Min., 25.

Harvest Home a Success.

The fourth annual harvest home and fair of the Shiloh Baptist church closed last night and the women of the church under whose auspices it was held, realized $150.25, and Rev. E. W. Roberts, the pastor, is grateful for the success. Wednesday night there was an old-folks concert and chicken supper given by Tribe No. 10, of the church. Mrs. William Connent was chairman of the supper committee, and Elmer Wilson, director of the concert.

FORGET THE LORD

We're too Worldly, Says Herbert Booth at Union Thanksgiving Service.

"We are living in a material age and men have learned in their short lives all sorts of devices for material benefit. They are busy and bending every energy in an effort to get rich and I want to tell you that the sin of the age is forgetting God. There is no greater evidence of this anywhere than within a radius of fifty miles of New York." Such were the words spoken by Herbert Booth, of England, at the Union Thanksgiving services of the churches held at the First Presbyterian church, yesterday morning, and he held the close attention of a congregation that completely filled every seat in the edifice throughout his masterly talk.

Mr. Booth took two texts as a basis for his remarks, the first from II Cor. 9:15: "Thanks be unto God for His wonderful gift," to which he coupled a sentence from Isaiah, 9:6; "And His name shall be called wonderful." Continuing, Mr. Booth said in part:

"We should praise God for His wonderful gift to us, for the nation to which we belong, and the countless material and spiritual blessings. I know enough of America to know that she stands for a new hope and new life. While I am naturally loyal to my country, I seek more to be loyal to God, for it is from God that every blessing comes. I find the people today pre-occupied with almost everything except God, and this leads us to the question as to whose earth is this, whose moon, sun, gold silver, oil that comes out of the earth. It is God's. Who gave us the matchless lense of the eye and the matchless brain. It is God, and to Him we owe everything. Do I hear someone say that they will not believe in Him unless they are shown beyond a doubt that He is God and all supreme. According to that belief we might as well have a William E. Gladstone for God."

Mr. Booth then gave a graphic description of the Nativity at Bethlehem, Christ's wonderful knowledge as shown in his talk with the Scribes and Pharisees, and the wonderful miracles He performed; together with the pathetic and impressive scenes at Calvary, declaring that it all showed the marvelous and wonderful character that Christ was.

"Who was it that stood by you in your saddest hour, when you buried one dearer than life to you, it was Jesus and it was His wonderful love that sustained you. The world is not at peace yet because it is not right with God. He drives the evil one out of the individual heart and in its place there dwells that perfect peace in the heart of those whose minds are staid on Him, but there is still the great evil forces at work in the world.

"God's Son must be honored and God shall one day reign supreme over all when sin is driven from existence. May we be found in that happy throng of the redeemed ones when Christ comes again as he said he would, and I ask that you pray God to bless your city and that you may see that vision that shall make you one of Christ's followers forever."

Several local pastors assisted in the service. The opening prayer was made by Rev. Royal A. Stout, of the Netherwood Reformed church. Rev. Evart C. Conover, of the Temple Baptist church, conducted the responsive reading. Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, read the Scripture lesson and Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, offered prayer. During the opening exercises the quartet choir sang an anthem, with solo part by Miss Stadler, soprano, and Mrs. C. Kendall Mason, contralto, sang the offertory. Herbert Harold, organist of the church, was in charge of the music. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, pronounced the benediction. The offertory was for the charities of the city.

A Dinner Party.

An interesting event on Wednesday was an informal dinner party given at the home of Mrs. David J. Yerkes on Grove street. The honored guests were Mrs. Frank Bigelow, who is 84 years of age, Mrs. Susan Wilson, sister of Mrs. Yerkes, who is aged 83 years, while Mrs. Yerkes is 85 years of age. Following the dinner there was a social hour which was greatly enjoyed by the aged women, who have been in such close touch with one another for many years.

Rev. Dr. Strong to Preach.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of Kingston, N. Y., will on Sunday begin a service of two months at the First Baptist church, preaching morning and evening. He will also have charge of the mid-week prayer meetings during December and January.

EXPOSITION OPENS

Public Welfare Exhibition of Local Charity Societies Attracts Marked Attention.

An idea of the number of people visiting the Public Welfare Exposition at French's mill, on Somerset street yesterday, may be gained when it is known that between the hours of 5:30 and 7:30, when the attendants were least busy of any time during the day since the doors opened at 2 o'clock, more than 200 people fitted their eyes to a microscope under which was shown in a drop contains hundreds of tuberculosis germs. These people were of all classes, nationalities, age and conditions, just the kind of people the Charity Organization and the Anti-Tuberculosis societies are most anxious to reach. To make possible the former condition, all attending are requested to register, Miss Margaret Holly, one of the executive secretaries of the Charity Organization Society, being in charge of the registration bureau and general information. To the latter end the exhibition was gotten up at no little expense of time and money. The result is that the comparisons made between the right and the wrong way of keeping the kitchens, living rooms, bedrooms, caring for the baby and innumerable other duties involved in home management; the benefit of playgrounds, how to train the children, what has been done by the Charity Organized Aid Society to relieve unsanitary and unhealthful conditions found in Plainfield homes, and the methods and achievements of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society are graphically, impressively shown.

The majority of these illustrations and arrangements for demonstrating, are original with the members of the local societies and were built or made by them and are in charge of one who will answer any question regarding them. Charles Powlison, who was chairman of the Child Welfare Exhibit in New York last year, was among the visitors yesterday. In some respects the Plainfield show, he said, is an improvement on the one of which he was chairman. No the last interesting of these exhibits is that of the city's poor farm.

New features will be added today, it being impossible to get them ready by the opening hour yesterday. These will include a dental exhibit and a collection of appropriate verses by former City Judge William N. Runyon. Tickets will be given away free all day for the motion picture show to be given in the Y. M. C. A. this evening in connection with the exhibit. There will be two performances, one at 7:15 and the last at 8:45.

After Mayor Moy had inspected the various exhibits and was about to leave yesterday, he was asked if he would object to allowing the exhibit to keep open Sunday. He gave his hearty approval to the exhibition, lauded and complimented those managing it and said he hoped that they would keep the doors open every day and all day. Now the show will be open Sunday, the management believing that many could attend on that day who could not on any other.

PLAINFIELD BUZZARDS MADE FEAST ON TURKEY.

The Buzzards' Club, of this city, held one of its most enjoyable affairs Wednesday evening, when a turkey dinner was given at Frowery's Inn, Scotch Plains. The affair was given by six members of the club in honor of their respective birthday anniversaries, namely W. J. Hartpence, Le Roy Lee, F. C. Denton, Howard Peck, James Niles and P. A. Galbraith.

The banquet room was attractively decorated with the national colors. Proprietor Frowery and his assistants prepared and served a fine dinner. Speeches and good humor were features until the early hours of the morning, when the Plainfielders returned home. Twenty-three members of the club were present.

GESANG AND TURN VEREIN CONDUCTS SOCIAL AFFAIR.

The Gesang and Turn Verein conducted an enjoyable social and dance for its members and friends in Saengerbund Hall Wednesday night. Heinmeyer's orchestra provided the music and a large number of terpsichorean devotees enjoyed themselves. Below stairs bowling was the pastime all evening and crack pin hitters rolled up high scores for turkeys and chickens. A consignment of each was awarded.

The committee in charge of the evening's festivities was composed of Harvey L. Schmeyer, John Wirth, August Renz and August Kunts.

MAYOR GAYNOR'S IDEAS FOR CONDUCTING A PAPER.

Mayor William J. Gaynor, who has attacked various opposing newspapers since he entered politics, recently told how he would run a newspaper.

According to the Mayor, himself once a reporter, a newspaper should show that a gentleman controls it. It should be true and possess fair motives. It should not write an editorial until sure of its facts. It should confine expressions of opinions to the editorial column. It should remember that the finest kind of narrative does not contain an adjective. It should have headlines noted for accuracy and striped of verbiage.

It should have all articles signed, to make the writer careful to libel no one; should give all the political news without regard to party; should not permit its proprietor to hide behind a corporation of his own making; should not give testimony in divorce trials nor in sensational criminal cases; should not accept misleading, fraudulent advertising; should not permit advertisers to control its news or editorial policy; should write every article as short as consistent with facts; should not cartoon a decent, well-bred official as a ruffian or loafer; should have a policy based on the good of the majority of the community.

"I would rather," the Mayor added, "have the good will and aid of a newspaper with a circulation of 30,000, that is taken home and read in the family, than to have that of one with a circulation of 1,000,000 that is only looked at and thrown into the gutter."

WATERWAYS BOARD FOR NEW JERSEY IS URGED.

The creation of a permanent waterways commission or board of engineers and the adoption of a comprehensive plan for the development of all harbors, navigable streams and canals that are now threatened with abandonment was urged in a report submitted to Governor Wilson by the New Jersey Ship Canal Commission. It was the sense of the commissioners that the important waterways should be controlled by the State and modernized to meet present requirements.

The report was prepared by W. M. Jacobus and was concurred in by a number of the members of the commission who met at the State house Tuesday afternoon and who assured them of his hearty co-operation in any movement looking toward the improvement of the State's waterways.

Included in the report was an account of the proceedings of the Atlantic Waterways Association which met at Richmond, Va., last October. The New Jersey delegates at that time supported New London as the place for holding the next convention, but it was the sense of the delegates that New Jersey should make a bid for the convention in 1913. To carry out this plan the report suggested that arrangements should be started early in order that the necessary expenses might be provided for.

WOMAN BADLY BURNED BY FLAMING KEROSENE.

Bernardsville, Dec. 1.—While working around the kitchen stove Wednesday, Mrs. Henry Mullen spilled kerosene on the hot plates. Instantly the oil ignited and communicated to Mrs. Mullen's garments. She was so badly burned that it is thought she may not recover.

With her dress afire the woman ran outdoors. The draft caused the flames to spread to every part of her body. Outdoors she began rolling on the ground in an effort to put out the flames, but was unsuccessful. Arthur McGuinness, who was passing, went to Mrs. Mullen's assistance and threw his raincoat over her, smothering the fire.

Mrs. Mullen's hair was almost completely burned off and she was seared about the arms, breast and face. Dr. Josiah Meigh attended the woman.

At the time of the accident Mrs. Mullen's daughter Nellie was in the house, her two sons being at school and her husband away to work.

An alarm was sent in to the Bernardsville Fire Department, but before the arrival of the firemen the flames in the kitchen had been extinguished by Thomas Holmes, Edward Ballentine and Mr. McGuinness. The damage was about $100.

MGR. KELLY'S ESTATE GOES TO EDUCATION.

By his will filed Tuesday Monsignor Charles J. Kelly, late rector of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, Hoboken, left his estate to be used for the education of poor boys who desire to enter the Catholic priesthood.

Bishop O'Connor, of the Newark Diocese, is named as executor. Monsignor Kelly died November 16. The will is dated November 1.

After Auto Speeders.

The Westfield police are paying particular attention to automobile speeders. There have been no arrests for violation of the speed ordinance for some time, and some of the chauffeurs have become reckless. In all cases a written warning is to be sent to the offenders and any subsequent violation will meet with punishment.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY

The union Thanksgiving service in the Seventh-Day Baptist church last night was attended by a large congregation. All the local pastors participated in the order of exercises and the sermon was delivered by Rev. W. A. Knox, of the Methodist church.

An exhibit of work in manual training and drawing has been placed in each class by grades of the local schools. Manual training is an innovation this year and the work shows rapid progress and excelleat results.

Dunellen tent, Knights of the Maccabees, will conduct another invitation dance in Junior Hall tonight. The committee in charge has spared no effort to make it as successful as the one conducted several weeks ago.

A. R. Nagule, of the Whittier School faculty, who is at Muhlenberg Hospital, continues to improve from his recent operation. His ultimate recovery is now assured.

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council will be held Monday night.

SOMERVILLE.

Miss Mary Griggs returned from Vassar College Wednesday and will spend her Thanksgiving holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Griggs, on Division street.

Rev. G. D. Van Peursenn, missionary pastor of the Second Reformed church, who is laboring in Arabia, has been engaged for another year by the consistory.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cornelison and children, of West Cliff street, left Tuesday for Illinois, where they will spend some time visiting relatives.

Mrs. Hardwicke and Mrs. Swinton will entertain General Frelinghuysen Chapter, D. A. R., at their home in Somerset street this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh N. Hartwell, of West Cliff street, have gone to New York, where they expect to remain until after the holidays.

Linden Rigby, who recently sold his farm west of Somerville, has gone to New Orleans for the winter.

Mrs. Hall is a guest of her daughter, Mrs. George Callard, at Readington.

Miss Ida Fleming and Miss Laura Couse are visiting at Halsey.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The residents observed Thanksgiving Day in general yesterday. No special attractions were on, but at many of the homes were found the annual family gatherings. Services were held in the morning at All Saints' Episcopal church.

The euchre and dance held on Thanksgiving Eve by the young people of St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, was a financial as well as social success. Euchre was played until 10 o'clock, after which dancing was enjoyed until 2 a. m.

The Buzzards Club of Plainfield held a turkey supper Wednesday night at "The Inn." Landlord Frowery attended to the menu in great shape and a fine spread was enjoyed.

The employes of Seely's Mill have been taking an enforced vacation for several days on account of a breakdown.

The pupils and teachers of the public schools are enjoying a holiday until Monday morning.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews is able to be out again after an illness of two weeks.

Mrs. George Harper was the guest over Thanksgiving of relatives in Brooklyn.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD

The Country Social Club held its first annual dance in Washington Hall, South Plainfield, on Thanksgiving Eve. The dance was a success both socially and financially and was largely attended. Plainfield, Brooklyn, New York, Elizabeth and New Market were well represented. It is expected that the receipts of the affair will reach the hundred dollar mark. Excellent music was provided.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snowden and children, of Plainfield, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Snowden, of Front street.

Miss Loretta Doyle, of New York, is spending a few days with her aunt, Miss Grennan, of Park avenue.

The Country Social Club will hold its semi-monthly meeting in Washington Hall this evening.

Miss Lillian McCaffrey, of Elizabeth, is visiting her sister, Mrs. P. F. Kaine.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Smith spent the holiday with out of town friends.

Martin Maguire, of Dukennan, Pa., is visiting friends here.

Preparatory services will be held tonight in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church and a meeting of the elders will be held afterward to receive new members. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Millard, of East Second street, were among the Plainfielders enjoying a family gathering yesterday. Among others present were Mrs. W. A. Millard, mother of Mr. Millard, who was able to attend and enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner after a marvelous restoration to health.

Tepper's
PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY

Another sale of Women's Clipped Beaver Hats, in navy, brown and grey; while they last at $1.98

Our Underwear stock includes every desirable style for every member of the family and in every desirable quality, while prices are the fairest possible.

Merely because we do not advertise our underwear department as freely as other departments isn't any reason at all to believe it is not worthy of special mention—because it is—fact is it's important enough to be advertised every day. You'd think so too if you knew how exacting we are with manufacturers to FORCE them to deliver to us the right weights, sizes that are ample and well fitting and qualities and prices that measure up to OUR standard of value-giving.

Our plan has been to make this season's underwear stock noticeably better and bigger than any season heretofore and it is—it is the largest and best underwear stock in all of Plainfield. We are ready to meet your every requirement in Fall and Winter underwear for any member of the family.

We're sole agents in Plainfield for Merode Hand Finished Underwear for women

Merode underwear for women and misses need no introduction from us as to their superior quality and superior fit. They are carefully made of best yarns and in sizes properly proportioned. A 36 size is 36—not 34 or 38. And Merode underwear costs the same as you pay for inferior makes.

Root's Underwear for men and boys

Men who know need not be told that Roots' underwear is recognized as the best. Those who have bought Roots' Underwear heretofore have learned of its superior quality and correctly proportioned sizes. We've, by far, the very largest stock of Roots' Underwear in all of Plainfield. Prices are exceedingly moderate.

Did You Ever Hear a Doll Talk?

We mean talk and say something. It's whispered that all the dolls in our Christmas doll display talk at night after the lights are out. We have never heard them, but their conversations have been reported. They run like this:

First Doll—"I've picked out my mama. She wears a blue coat and her hair hangs down in two long yellow braids."

Second Doll—"How nice! I've picked out the house I'm going to live in. It's big and square and stands on the corner. I shall be hung on the tip-top of the Christmas tree in the parlor on Christmas Eve."

Chorus of Dolls—"How we wish Christmas would come!"

Dear things! They're getting so anxious to be bought and paid for and carried home to be cuddled and loved by some little mother. We hope none of our dolls will be left behind, for we feel as if they were real children some how. HOW would you like your real child to have to spend a long Christmas Day in a big, closed up store? Ask your mama to buy your dolls first, for fear she forgets. We've got a wonderful display, and you'll be suited in price, we're sure, whether you buy a dressed doll or an undressed one.

VOLUNTEERS SKIN FOR BOY WHO WAS BURNED.

Mathew Frederickson, of Essex street, Milburn, volunteered to give up cuticle for the skin-grafting operation upon James Trengove, four years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Trengove, of Church street, that township, at the Overlook Hospital, Summit, Wednesday. Four inches of skin were removed from Mr. Frederickson's body last week and placed on the right side of the boy. Mr. Frederickson was kept at the hospital. The youngster, it is said, is recovering, but it has been deemed advisable to graft more skin upon him.

The boy was severely burned June 18, while playing with matches.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., December 1, 1911.

TIN HORN, GRAPE AND LEMON.

In the subjoined, taken carefully, with regard for all its beauties, from the Courier-News, the tinhorn is plainly limned. The grape (unripe) and the lemon (full grown) are faintly, but hauntingly, discerned:

"The story of Policeman Dobson's having been captured by other officers while disguised as a woman last Saturday night, has been given great publicity both at home and abroad. The Courier-News did not publish the story of Dobson's capture because we regarded it as a secret of the police department, since it was known only to the officers who captured him, and we considered the publication of such a story as inimical to the best interests of the police service.

"Dobson was sent out on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, disguised as a woman, to look for the man who had held up two women a few nights before, robbing one of them—the other had no money.

"Chief Kiely apprised those who should know about such matters of the fact that Dobson was out in disguise. It was not necessary that every member of the force should have known about it. That the Mayor should give expression to such sentiments as were attributed to him in the interview published in The Daily Press tends to make the entire city the butt of ridicule and is discouraging to the police officer who made an honest effort to apprehend a desperate character whose operations made it unsafe for women to leave their homes at night.

"Perhaps those who criticise Dobson will advocate equipping police officers with a tin horn or a bass drum when seeking criminals in the future.

MISS KERWIN BRIDE OF THOMAS P. DOYLE

Miss Julia Frances Kerwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kerwin, of Rock avenue, and Thomas P. Doyle, of East Fifth street, were married in St. John's church, Dunellen, yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Dunphy in the presence of 200 relatives and friends from New York, Jersey City, Newark, Elizabeth, Perth Amboy, Plainfield and other places.

Miss Kerwin wore a gown of white messaline satin over lace and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Kathryn Virginia Kerwin, as bridesmaid, who wore pink satin over lace and carried pink carnations. John Doyle, a brother of the groom, was best man.

The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Doyle left in the evening for a two weeks' trip to various points of interest and at its conclusion will make their home in New York. The groom is employed in the telegraph department of the New York Central at the Grand Central station. The young people were remembered with a large number of handsome gifts, principally silverware, cut glass and furniture.

PERSONAL.

Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, spent Thanksgiving Day with his brother, Rev. Dr. Albertus T. Broek and family, and his sister, Miss Broek, at Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Westcott, of the Sterling building, returned yesterday from a three weeks' cruise to the Panama Canal zone, taken for the benefit of Mr. Westcott's health.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor, of New York, spent Thanksgiving Day here with relatives. Mrs. Taylor was Miss Helen Smalley, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. N. B. Smalley, of the borough.

Miss Mabel Booth, of El Paso, Texas, spent yesterday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, of East Second street. Miss Booth is finishing her musical education in New York city.

Services at Mt. Olive Church.

Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughan, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, delivered a special sermon yesterday morning on "The Origin of Thanksgiving." Afterward the women of the church served a turkey dinner, the net proceeds being $48. Mrs. Rhoda Hancock and Mrs. Peter Gordon had charge of the dinner.

Thanksgiving Day Services.

The prescribed services for Thanksgiving Day were held in the Episcopal and Catholic churches of the city and borough yesterday morning.

Purchase the Kane Property.

Samuel Rubin, proprietor of the Red Cross pharmacy at West Third street and Lee place, and his brother, John Rubin, have purchased the residential property at Grant avenue and West Third street, formerly occupied by B. Frank Boos, and owned by Miss Kane. They plan to erect a handsome building for a drug store on the corner and turn the present dwelling on the lot around, facing Third street, making a two-family house.

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

M. Collens, 49, 5-44; H. F. Fox and Edward J. Patterson, 53, 9-44; C. B. Morgan and George S. Clay, 49, 4-45; G. F. Earl, and C. W. King, 55, 9-46; C. C. Burke and H. D. Hibbard 51, 4-47.

FOR BEST 'EXAM' TO PRINCETON UNIV. $50.

The Princeton Club, of Plainfield, offers an annual prize of $50 to the boy passing the best entrance examinations for admission to the freshman class at Princeton University, under certain conditions, and the club has just announced that Thomas R. Jewett, of Central avenue, is the winner of this year's prize. He entered Princeton this fall, and his examinations showed a very high average. Jewett prepared for college at John Leal's school.

Among the conditions exacted in the award of the prize are that boys to be eligible for the honor shall be a bona fide resident of the city or borough at the time of taking the examinations and for the academic year preceding, irrespective as to where he received his instruction, and the prize is awarded upon the sole basis of the examinations passed in June, 1911, and the student must pass in at least one-half of the total subjects to be eligible. In succeeding years the prize shall be awarded upon the basis of the entire entrance examinations passed for any one of the three regular freshman courses. The relative merits of the examinations for the prize are determined exclusively by the proper members of the Princeton faculty, but the officers of the Princeton Club, of Plainfield, reserve to themselves the decision of all questions as to the eligibility of candidates and interpretation of the conditions.

CLAY GETS VERDICT IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

A jury in the District Court this morning brought in a verdict of $449.13 in favor of George S. Clay, executor of the estate of C. L. Guion, against Elston M. French for commissions alleged to have been collected on the sale of Watchung avenue property other than specified in the original contract. The amount of the commissions sued for was $350 and there was an accumulation of $90.13 interest additional. Charles M. Dolliver and Robert Newton Crane represented Mr. Clay and Martin B. Stutsman defended Mr. French. The property in question was sold to the P. S. C. to be used as a waiting room on Watchung avenue, at Fourth street.

Clericus to Meet On Monday.

The monthly meeting of the Plainfield Clericus will be held at the home of Rev. A. S. Phelps, Bound Brook, Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Prof. A. W. Jenks, of the General Theological Seminary, will read a paper on "The Present Outlook of the Anglican Communion."

DUKE OF KILLICRANKIE PLEASES BIG AUDIENCE

College theatricals were enthusiastically received at the Hartridge Auditorium Wednesday night when "The Duke of Killicrankie" was presented by Cap and Bells, the dramatic club of Williams College. The amateur thespians played their roles with the skill of professionals and they were repeatedly called before the curtain in response to the rounds of applause.

The affair was indeed a society event and was attended by nearly five hundred people, the majority of whom were from the younger sex, many of them being college men and women, who had returned home for the Thanksgiving vacation. In the audience were to be seen many "old grads," a large delegation of whom wore the royal purple, the color of the "White Marble College of the Berkshires." Williams men, however, were not the only ones who were pleased with the performance for the appreciation of the work of the thespians was expressed by all who attended the affair.

Donald L. Greenleaf, of this city, who is a student at Williams, is the manager of the club and it was largely through his efforts that the complete success of the entertainment Wednesday night was made possible. Mr. Greenleaf received the hearty support of all the local Williams alumni.

William Hubbell, of the class of 1912, scored the hit of the evening in the role of Mr. Hendy Pitt-Welby, an English "chappie" of insignificant physique, who attempted to win the heart or rather the money of Mrs. Mulholland, a most charming lady, six feet four inches tall, with hair of an oxidized, rusted hue. The part of the beloved lady was taken in a clever manner by A. L. Swift, Jr., '13. Whether Pitt-Welby received the filthy lucre or not is left for the audience to conjecture.

Stanley M. Babson, the president of the club, played the leading part in the comedy, that of the Duke of Killicrankie, in what might be called a truly royal style. The main plot of the farce, which was weaved throughout the three acts, involved a love affair between the Duke and the Lady Henrietta Addison, who was in reality C. W. Brackett, '15. Except for the trivial fact that he was over six feet tall, Mr. Brackett appeared as a most beautiful specimen of the feminine sex. All of the other parts were capably filled.

After the play the floor was cleared for dancing, which was enjoyed until an early yesterday morning. The music was furnished by a five-piece orchestra, in which Joseph Denny played the piano and Fred and Will VanEpps the banjo and mandolin.

The cast was made up as follows: Duke of Killicrankie, S. M. Babson, '12; Mr. Henry Pitt-Welby, William Hubbell, '12; Mr. Ambrose Hicks, H. G. Hotchkiss, '13; Alexander Macbayne, R. MacLeod, '13; Butler, J. C. Goddard, Jr., '12; the Countess of Pangbourne, C. L. Parsons, '13; the Lady Henrietta Addison, C. W. Brackett, '15; Mrs. Mulholland, A. L. Swift, Jr., '13; Mrs. Macbayne N. H. MacLeish, '15.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE AT CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH.

A large congregation was present at the Thanksgiving service in the Crescent Avenue church yesterday morning. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, the pastor, assisted by Rev. C. L. Goodrich. Dr. Zelie preached an excellent sermon from the text found in Philippians 3:1. Special music was rendered by the choir.

The offering at the service, amounting to $70, was contributed to the Charity Organization Society.

Elks Enjoy Thanksgiving.

The Plainfield Elks held their annual Thanksgiving eve social session in the lodge rooms Wednesday night, when there was an unusually large attendance and the program and refreshments were unusually fine. The entertainment was furnished by Silvers and O'Connell, of New York, monologists; Fred VanEps, banjoist; solos and quartette selections by the Elks' quartette, composed of John V. Todd, Elmer D. Cutting, Harry N. Blimm and William G. Smith. William E. MacClymont was chairman of the session.

BORO HIGH SCHOOL WALLOPED BY ALUMNI

The North Plainfield High School basketball five went down to defeat in Debele's hall, yesterday afternoon, in a game with the alumni team. The final score was 35 to 14. The alumni five was made up almost of last year's team, including Stine, Bailey, Walker and Abrams. Overton and Dunning, two of the old alumni, were in the lineup.

The alumni made use of their weight which far exceeded that of the school team. "Hub" Stine, the all-round star of N. P. H. S. last year, and also winner of the Yale cup, captained the alumni team. He played in his old position of forward and scored frequently. "Wop" Bailey, also of last year's team, played a good game at forward.

Tone Overton, '08, played center for the alumni and did fine work. "Pres" Dunning was a star point getter for the high school, making six goals from field. Jake Abrams also played well at guard. He scored a couple of baskets and shot two fouls. Walker and Krewson, who played in the last half, helped the alumni to victory.

Dunning and Townley starred for N. P. H. S., Townley at guarding and Dunning for points. The lineup:

N. P. H. S.—Forwards, W. Taylor, C. Taylor; center, F. Dunning; guards, Burier, Townley.

Alumni—Forwards, Stine, Bailey, Walker, Krewson; center, Overton; guards, Abrams, P. Dunning.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Whatever else may be said of O. E. Wee's new production, the "Town Marshall," which comes to the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night, the charge of imitation of other plays cannot be made. "The Town Marshall" is a new rural comedy in four cats, by that noted playwright, Lem B. Parker, and is one of the season's successes. The play virtually breaks new ground in the dramatic field, and should prove a veritable surprise when the curtain rises. It is built upon a thoroughly modern theme, viz.: The influence of thought on the lives and well being of the men and women of our present day. That thought, intangible and evanscent as it is, is still a fore, a power, a theory that has for sometime past engaged the serious attention of our foremost psychologists, but its portrayal upon the stage has heretofore been neglected.

CAR CONDUCTOR AVERTS CRASH AT CROSSING.

Presence of mind on the part of John O'Reilly, a trolley car conductor, saved eight persons from serious injury shortly after 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when instead of allowing his car to speed directly in the path of a fastly moving freight engine at Second street and Port avenue, Elizabeth, he let go of the derail switch and sent the car off the track. That the eight passengers who were in the car at the time would undoubtedly have been injured is evident from the fact that the car, which was moving rapidly, would run directly in the path of the locomotive.

John O'Toole, publicity agent of the Public Service Railway Company, speaking of the near accident, said this was an instance when the purpose of the derail was accomplished.

WILSON PROMISES NO MORE MASONS BY MAIL.

Darius Wilson, of Foxboro, Mass., publisher of The Masonic World and known throughout the country through his advertisements offering to organize Masonic lodges and initiate members, pleaded nolo contendere in the Federal Court Wednesday to a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The charge had to do with Wilson's offer of initiation through the mail. Assistant United States District Attorney Garland explained that Wilson is eighty years of age and in poor health and that he has signed an agreement not to attempt hereafter to organize Masonic lodges or initiate members.

Rahway Elks to Honor Dead.

Rahway Lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 1075, is making preparations for its annual memorial service in memory of deceased members, which will be held Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in the High School Auditorium. An exceedingly interesting program has been arranged for the occasion. The Mendelssohn Quartet, of Newark, will be one of the attractions. Dr. F. W. Crowther, of Perth Amboy, will deliver the eulogy and the Rev. Dr. Frank Moore will pronounce the benediction.

REPUBLICAN EXPENSES IN UNION COUNTY.

The Republican county committee has filed a statement with the county clerk showing that $8,296.02 was spent to elect its entire ticket except coroner at the last election. The receipts of the committee amouned to $4,127,90, so that a balance of $831.88, is left.

The chief contributors to the campaign fund were: Hamilton F. Kean, $500; William H. Wright, who was elected sheriff, $400; Prosecutor C. Addison Swift, $300; County Clerk James C. Calvert, $250; Surrogate George T. Parrot, $200; former Sheriff Robert J. Kirkland, $150; George C. Otto, George L. Babcock and William F. Groves, who were elected to the Assembly, $125 each, and Carlton B. Pierce, who was elected State Senator, $150.

BRADFORD WILLIAMS, EVANGELIST, IS DEAD.

Rev. Bradford Williams died Wednesday in Toledo, O. Mr. Williams had long been active in evangelistic and revival work in the interest of Young Men's Christian Associations throughout the country.

Elizabeth Elks' Memorial Services.

The annual memorial service of Elizabeth Lodge, No. 289, B. P. O. E., will be held in the Proctor East Jersey Street Theatre Sunday night. The program will include musical and vocal selections. Senator George Silzer, of New Brunswick, will be the main speaker. The committee comprises Past Exalted Ruler Abe J. David, chairman; George Schmidt, Jr., and Dennis F. Collins.

Twenty Candidates Indicted.

Twenty candidates for office in the present election who have failed to file with the county clerk at Mt. Holly a statement of their election expenses as required by law have been indicted. No bench warrants will be issued but the candidates will be required to be present to plead on December 7.

"THAT BEAUTIFUL ISLE."

Where, O where, is that beautiful isle—
That "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere,"
It's got 'em all guessing
Since Wilson's confessing
That really, the isle isn't there.

Where, O where, are the old party bosses
Whose tactics were not not "on the square?"
Who're now telling stories
Of new-coming glories,
When really the strength isn't there.

Where, O where, are the Smiths and Nugents,
With Ramifications so rare?
Who threatened the party
That's now hale and hearty,
And really appears to be "there."

Where, O where, are the foes of Progression,
In which all the people may share?
They're losing their way
In the light of today—
There's really no room for them there.

Where, O where, is some beautiful isle—
Some land for the bosses to snare?
Since all out of kelter,
They're seeking a shelter—
Some Beautiful Isle—somewhere!

FOR A CHILD'S PARTY.

The following invitation was sent out the other day to friends of a five-year-old, girl whose family are in a country resort, and a full attendance was the response:

Beth Stewart's mamma sends greeting hearty,
And bids you to a morning party
Next Saturday at 10 o'clock.
Please wear your very plainest gown.
For fol de rols are for the town,
And play is best in oldest gown.

HOOKS ON A WASH DRESS.

When using hooks and eyes to fasten a wash dress, try sewing the hooks on the under flap and the eyes on the upper, instead of the usual way. You will find that with this method the lap of your gown that shows most can be ironed flat and will have no unsightly humps where the hooks are underneath.

SAILING THE AIR.

How It Feels to Soar Aloft In a Balloon or Aeroplane.

ALL SENSE OF HEIGHT LOST.

Consequently There Is No Feeling of Dizziness or Giddiness, and After Rising a Few Hundred Feet There Is No Sensation of Speed.

Comparatively few persons can look down from a great height without a creepy sensation running through the nerves and chasing down the spine, and one would naturally think these unpleasant symptoms would be intensified if one were to rise several hundreds of feet in the air in a flying machine. But that idea is a mistake, according to Mr. Charles C. Turner in an article in the Pall Mall Magazine, in which he tells how beginners are taught the use of the aeroplane and describes the sensations of flight. He says:

"The manner in which a course of flight lessons begins depends chiefly on the weather. If it is fine and calm a pupil is at once taken out for passenger flights, sitting behind the teacher or beside him, according to the type of machine, and having nothing to think about except the novelty of his experiences and the new aspect in which he sees familiar things.

"His first flight is a great event in the career of the pupil, and when it is over he is anxious for the next. His estimate of the difficulties that lie before him is more modest, and he is ready to besiege his instructor with questions. He climbed into the passenger's seat and gripped the stanchions with both hands. He need not have gripped them quite so hard, for he soon found that the motion of the machine was not in the least disturbing.

"To start it a mechanic stood behind the main planes and gave the propeller a turn, and suddenly the engine was giving out a tremendous roar and making the machine vibrate. Other mechanics were holding on to the tail booms to prevent the aeroplane from shooting forward before the pilot was ready.

"But almost immediately the passenger observed the pilot hold up one hand as a signal, and on the instant the machine plunged forward over the ground like a swift motorcar. Before he had time to observe and note his feelings the sensations had changed. The machine was traveling forward with perfect smoothness, the noise of the engine had curiously softened down, the ground no longer raced beneath the machine, and he realized that he was flying and that already he was twenty, forty, fifty feet above the ground.

"Flying has been compared to many things, but in truth no comparison is good. Perhaps I may correct one or two common but false notions concerning it.

"There is no sense of traveling at a great height. There is not the slightest danger of giddiness. To me this gave no surprise, for, as every balloonist knows, it matters not whether he looks down from 20 or 2,000 feet—the sensation of height is absent.

"To take my own case, I cannot look down a 100 foot cliff for many seconds before feeling unsafe, but I can look down from a balloon that is two miles above ground and can gaze at the scene below for half an hour without a qualm. It is the experience of every aeronaut.

"It is impossible also with reasonable accuracy without the aid of an aneroid to estimate one's height. You see trees far below you, and if you are high enough they appear to be mere bushes, but you cannot tell whether you are 400 feet up or 700.

"Again, the sense of speed is almost entirely lost when you have attained a height of 300 or 400 feet. The ground passes below you very slowly, while if you get up to 800 or 1,000 feet it is only by steadily watching the ground that you perceive that you are moving. Yet all the while there is that steady gale of wind upon the face that informs you of your speed.

"In descending a pupil notices that the speed of the ground rapidly accelerates. The chances are that he cannot distinguish the moment when the landing wheels again come into contact with the earth. The machine moves forward over the ground until its momentum is exhausted, and he and the pilot then descend from their seats."

The Doctor's Sin of Omission.

Dorsey in his "Primitive Superstitions" tells of an Indian who had been badly hurt by a grizzly bear. The medicine man prescribed a mixture of rattlesnakes' heads, wornout moccasins and chewing tobacco, seasoned with petroleum and red pepper, of which the patient was ordered to take a pint every half hour. "He was a brave man, but he died with the utmost expedition," and at the tribal inquest it was agreed that the remedy was faultless, but that death was due to the doctor's omitting to dance and yell.

Which Is Yours?

The remuneration received for services rendered has many names. The laborer calls it "pay," the skilled mechanic "wages," the city clerk "salary," the banker "income," a lawyer "fees" and a burglar "swag."—London Answers.

DEEP SEA FISH.

If They Come Too Near the Surface They Will Explode.

Ordinarily one would think that a fish in the sea could go where it wished in the water—that is, that it could go as far down or come as close to the surface as it desired. As there are definite natural laws that prohibit this, of course it is not possible.

Take a deep sea fish. It is under enormous pressure at its proper depth. Let it stray too high, however, and on the pressure lessening the fish gets larger and consequently lighter per unit volume and in consequence is propelled upward at an enormously increasing rate by the buoyancy of the water until at last it has to be expelled from the surface of the sea with great force. In the meantime the fish has suffered an internal explosion, as it were, and its eyes have popped out of its head, and its insides have expanded and made holes in the body. This is why there are no perfect specimens of deep sea fish in any museum. The difficulty could be partly overcome by hauling the fish up gradually, but a heavy weight would have to be attached to the line to overcome the buoyancy of the fish.

On the other hand, take a shallow water fish. It dares not stray too far down, for the increasing pressure would tend to make it heavier if it was at all compressible, but as it is not much so it would remain practically the same volume and would find no difficulty in propelling itself to almost any depth. The increasing pressure, however, would make it harder for the fish to move its organs, and its eyes would be pressed into its head.

For all these reasons there are well defined strata of water in which certain fish are found and no others. This is one method of determining the depth of a former sea where fossils of fish are found on the land. The depth of the sea at that place can be told within certain limits by the fossils.—New York Tribune.

MISTAKEN SCIENTISTS.

Newcomb Said the Aeroplane Could Never Be a Success.

Sir Humphry Davy's dogmatic pronouncement against gaslighting is not the only instance of a clever scientist being hopelessly wrong. The early history of submarine cabling furnishes two striking examples. Consulted on the scientific side of the project, Faraday asserted that the first cables were made too small. Then he said that "the larger the wire the more electricity would be required to charge it," and in this quite incorrect opinion he was supported by other eminent scientists. As a result of this dictum the current was increased until the operation "electrocuted" the wire and the cable broke down. It was Lord Kelvin who by sending messages through heavy cables with incredibly weak electric currents proved that Faraday was mistaken.

Airy submitted the project to mathematics and arrived at the conclusion that a cable could not be submerged to the necessary depth and that if it could no recognizable signal could ever travel from Ireland to Nova Scotia.

In aviation the late Dr. Newcomb, one of the most distinguished mathematicians the world has ever produced, declared that he had mathematically investigated all the conditions operating against the heavier than air machine and was convinced that the aeroplane would never be any more than a scientific toy, and the possibility of an aeroplane motor being reliable in the reduced atmospheric pressure above 3,000 feet was by several experts said to be out of the question.—Harper's Weekly.

Sour on the Eights.

"Eight cent postage stamps are hoodoos," said a postal official. "None of the small offices handle them if they can help it. It's this way: They are just a wee shade different in color from the ones, and it is no infrequent thing for a stamp clerk in a hurry to hand out a lot of eights when ones are asked and paid for. It always costs him 7 cents a stamp when he does it. The clerk here the other day during the rush hour, when the offices are closing, was called upon for a dollar's worth of ones. He handed out a hundred eights instead. Cost him $7. Then he got rid of all the rest of the eights, and now he won't have anything to do with eights—even says 'eaten' instead of 'ate.'"—New York Herald.

Proper Chills.

"I've had cold chills running over me all day," the thin man complained.

"You ought to be glad of that," said his heartless friend.

"I don't think I understand you. Why should I be glad?"

"Oh, well, you know, it is quite an ordinary thing to have cold chills. There's no cause for alarm. Just think what an extraordinary thing it would be if you should have hot chills running over you."

The Modern Way.

The prodigal had returned.

"Father," he said, "are you going to kill the fatted calf?"

"No," responded the old man, looking the youth over carefully—"no; I'll let you live. But I'll put you to work and train some of that fat off you."—Toledo Blade.

BASEBALL ETHICS.

When the Pitcher Has the Right to "Bean" the Batter.

In "The Right and Wrong of Baseball," in the American Magazine, Hugh S. Fullerton gives an interesting account of what is considered sportsmanship and what cheating in the national game. He writes:

"The best batters are those who 'crowd the plate'—that is, who stand as near the plate as the rules or the umpire will permit and lean over the corner of the rubber to make it difficult for the pitcher to pitch across that corner without taking a chance of hitting the batter.

"The players recognize the fact that the lines of the batter's position are obliterated within a few minutes after a game starts and that the umpires practically are helpless to enforce the rules or to tell while watching the course of a pitched ball whether or not the batter steps over the line. So it has become part of the unwritten law of the game that the pitcher may 'bean' (that is, pitch at the 'bean' or head) any batter who 'crowds' in order to drive him back from the plate. It is ethical under the players' code to hit and to injure any player who persists in encroaching upon the forbidden ground, and the batters themselves recognize this danger and accept it as part of the game."

THRIVED ON MISFORTUNE.

A German Peddler Who Insulted the Kaiser and Got Rich.

A German hawker, Hans Bauermeister, retired from business, having amassed a little fortune. According to a Paris contemporary, misfortune was the foundation of his success. The hawker's specialty was the sale of portraits of the imperial family.

His mode of haranguing his audience was something like this: "Buy a portrait of William I., whose motto was, 'I have no time to be wearied.'" "Who'll buy this Frederick II., whose prayer was, 'Teach me to suffer without complaining?'" "Do not fail to complete your collection and buy this portrait of our great emperor, William II., whose favorite phrase is, 'Augusta, you pack your trunks.'"

This last always brought down the audience, and in time the police, in another sense. Bauermeister was sentenced to sixty days for lese majesty. He did his time and on release restarted his business. He sold his portraits with the old formula until he came to that of the kaiser, and then he said, "I have learned to my cost that it is not lawful to repeat what he says so often." The people were just as well pleased, and the portraits sold splendidly.

Verdi Was Right.

When Verdi was putting the last touches to "Il Trovatore" he was visited in his study by a privileged friend, who was one of the ablest living musicians and critics. He was permitted to examine the score and run over the "Anvil Chorus" on the pianoforte. "What do you think of that?" asked Verdi. "Trash!" responded the connoisseur. Verdi rubbed his hands and chuckled. "Now look at this," he said. "Rubbish!" said the other, rolling a cigarette. The composer rose and embraced him with a burst of joy. "What do you mean?" asked the critic. "My dear friend," cried Verdi, "I have been making a popular opera. In it I resolved to please everybody except the purists, the great judges, the classicists like you. Had I pleased you I should have pleased no one else. What you say assures me of success. In three months 'Il Trovatore' will be sung and roared and whistled and barrel organed all over Italy." And so it proved.

One Helped the Other.

A lady was continually accusing her servant of extravagance without any real cause. The servant always bore this accusation patiently.

One day the servant informed her mistress that the coal had all been consumed. This was followed by the usual remarks on the part of the mistress, who finished up by saying:

"You evidently eat them."

The next day the candles were all gone.

"Candles gone!" said the mistress. "Why, I bought half a pound only a fortnight ago."

"Oh, well," rejoined the servant, who could stand this sort of thing no longer, "I can tell you where the candles have gone. I ate them to grease my throat so that I could swallow the coal more conveniently!"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Royal Fish.

Sturgeon are abundant in Russia, where the fisheries are of great value. The flesh is eaten when fresh, but is chiefly smoked or salted. More than 10,000 fish are sometimes caught at a single fishing station. The eggs are removed in quantity from the ovaries and separately prepared as caviar. The annual value of the Russian sturgeon fisheries, including the production of isinglass, or fish gelatin, is estimated at $5,000,000.

A Personal View of Seward.

THE SECOND GRAVEDIGGER.

He Saw His Chance and Made a Big Hit In "Hamlet."

A company playing "Hamlet" was forced to find an actor to play the second gravedigger on account of the illness of the second comedian of the company. The only actor available was a variety performer who had no reverence for Shakespeare and no respect for the traditions of the classic drama. The second gravedigger was a comedy part, and he knew that he could "get away with it."

When the first gravedigger threw off the waistcoat, revealing another underneath, the audience tittered. The removal of the second waistcoat brought a loud laugh, and the third produced a roar. The first gravedigger was delighted. He had never played to such an appreciative audience, and visions of good notices in the papers and a possible increase in salary began to loom up before his eyes. As he threw off the fourth waistcoat he turned partially around, and the cause of the unusual hit was disclosed to him.

The second gravedigger, being accustomed to build laughs on lines and business of other actors, saw his opportunity and seized it. As fast as the first gravedigger would throw the waistcoats on the ground the variety comedian would pick them up and put them on. The new business was much funnier to the audience than the old, with which it was thoroughly familiar.

Not content with having stolen the laughs from the regular comedian in this scene, the new man went further. When the first gravedigger said to him, "Go, get thee to Yaughan; fetch me a stoup of liquor" (to which there is no reply in the text), the assistant sexton replied:

"Yaughan told me to tell you that you couldn't have any more liquor from him till you paid for the last you got."—Emmett C. King in Bookman.

OLD PERSIAN RUGS.

Why They Retain Their Sheen In Spite of Their Great Age.

If you have ever seen a Persian rug fifty years old or older which had been used only in its native country you have doubtless observed that, though made of wool, it had the sheen of velvet. This was due partly to the excellence of the dyes and the workmanship, but partly also to the fact that it had never known the touch of a shoe, but had been walked over in stockinged feet. If a man should enter your drawing room and stand on the sofa and upholstered chairs it would appear no more outrageous to you than it does to a Persian to walk with shoes upon his rug.

It seems impossible that such a beautiful thing as a Persian rug should be produced on the rudest of looms, consisting, as they do, merely of crooked, irregular beams of wood roughly fastened together. The rude construction of the loom explains why it is that every genuine Persian rug of any length is more or less crooked. This is because after part of it is woven it must be removed from the loom and lowered, and on so crude an affair it is impossible to get the warp of the second part exactly straight with that of the first part.

Until quite recently each province had its own style of rug, each village its own pattern, and yet each rug had an individuality of its own, and no two rugs were identical in design. The weaver copied designs and effects from trees and flowers or from common objects in everyday use. Sometimes a verse from the Koran or a stanza of a poem in the graceful, intricate Arabic character formed part of the pattern.—New York Sun.

"Yiddish."

"Yiddish," properly speaking, is not a language. It is a mixture of poor German, worse Hebrew and in Russia has some Russian words added. It has, however, a considerable literature, including a large number of newspapers and other periodicals, and is used colloquially by Russian, Polish and Hungarian Jews. In the United States it is spoken by more or less recent immigrants only, their children absolutely refusing to use it, and their attempts to make them do so is the chief cause of the disagreement between them which the parents so bitterly complain of.—American Israelite.

A Soldier's Reply.

A soldier of Marshal Saxe's army, being discovered in a theft, was condemned to be hanged. What he had stolen might be worth 5 shillings. The marshal, meeting him as he was being led to execution, said to him, "What a miserable fool you were to risk your life for 5 shillings!"

"General," replied the soldier, "I have risked it every day for my pay, fivepence." This repartee saved his life.

The Best He Could Do.

"Now, gentlemen," said the stage manager at rehearsal, "I want you all to wear your heavy overcoats in this scene, as it is supposed to be an extremely chilly night."

"I have no overcoat, sir," replied one of the actors. Then a bright thought struck him. "But I could put on my heavy underwear."—Boston Transcript.

THE PARTHENON.

It Was the Most Beautiful Edifice Ever Erected by Man.

The Parthenon on the Acropolis at Athens, the most beautiful edifice ever erected by the hand of man, was wrecked by a Venetian bomb on Sept. 26, 1687.

When the sun rose on the morning of that evil day the "finest building on the finest site in the world" stood arrayed in all its glory, just as it did when Pericles received it from the hands of its divine architects and builders, just as it did when Plato and Socrates gazed with wonder upon its simple majesty, and when that day's sun went down the glorious temple was a wreck, its majesty dismantled, its beauty marred forever.

This wonderful building, even in its ruins, has charmed the world for going on three centuries, and while those ruins endure they will continue their hold upon the artistic sense of mankind.

The master artists of the nations have been trying for more than 200 years to make something that would look like the Parthenon, but so far their efforts have been in vain, and the dismantled pile on the Acropolis still wears the crown of architectural excellence.

This famous building, made of the finest Pentelic marble, is 228 feet in length by 101 feet in width, with a height at the apex of the pediment of sixty-five feet. Its cost was $8,250,000, reckoned in present day values. The renowned frieze of the Parthenon ran along the top of the wall forty feet from the ground. It was three and a half feet in height and 520 feet in length and represented the great Panathenic procession, which was held every five years in honor of Athena, the protecting goddess of the city.

For 2,000 years this glorious temple stood there on the Acropolis as perfect as it was when Phidias completed it nearly 500 years before the birth of Christ, and it would have been standing just as complete today but for that rascally Venetian shell. In the year mentioned above Athens, still in the possession of the Turks, was besieged by the Venetians, and a bomb from one of their guns falling through the roof of the Parthenon, in which the Turks had stored a lot of powder, left it the ruin it has ever since remained.—Rev. T. B. Gregory in New York American.

A Way They Have In Germany.

"One day while I was in a big beer garden in Bavaria," said a returned traveler, "a handsome young officer in a magnificent new uniform came in and seated himself at a nearby table. There was brought to him a big radish, several slices of rye bread and a tall mug of beer. Then I saw that handsome young officer draw from the tail pocket of that magnificent uniform something wrapped in paper. This he unrolled, a sweet smile playing about his blond mustache as he did so, and at last a piece of sausage seven or eight inches long was revealed. My astonishment at this sight was carefully concealed. I doubt if any officer of our infantry would dare attempt such a movement on the subsistence department."—Indianapolis News.

The Cleanliness of Animals.

Man seems to be the only animal whose food soils him, making necessary much washing and shieldlike bibs and napkins. Moles living in the earth and eating slimy worms are yet as clean as seals or fishes, whose lives are one perpetual wash. The squirrels in these resiny woods keep themselves clean in some mysterious way; not a hair is sticky, though they handle the gummy cones and glide about apparently without care. The birds, too, are clean, though they seem to make a good deal of fuss washing and cleaning their feathers.—From "My First Summer In the Sierras," by John Muir.

Old Wedgwood.

Modern Wedgwood is of greatly inferior quality, and it seems improbable that the success attained by Josiah Wedgwood will ever be reached again. Of all his creations in jasper his reproduction of the famous Portland, or Barberini, vase (the original of which is in the British museum) is the most important. About 1790 Wedgwood at great expense attempted to make fifty replicas of his vase, but it is believed that not more than thirty-five were actually finished. Of these original pieces only about fifteen have been identified.—Argonaut.

Ancient Sausages.

Antiquaries are baffled in their attempts to ascertain when sausages first became an article of human consumption. We know at least that among the ancient Greeks sausages, called "allantes" and "chordai," were a common article of diet, and every schoolboy knows, or ought to know, that sausages, black puddings and sausage sellers appear in the comedies of Aristophanes.—London Telegraph.

Sad Feelings.

"Jaggsby takes even his pleasures sadly."

"He does?"

"Yes, and to such an extent that when he goes on a spree he never sees green serpents, pink monkeys or purple elephants like other fellows. He sees nothing but black snakes."—Baltimore American.

"Is this dress apt to be easily spotted?" she inquired.

"At least four blocks off, I should judge," answered the gentlemanly clerk.—Washington Herald.

ONE WAY TO SAVE MONEY.

Contract a Good Sized Debt, Then Work Hard Till Its Paid.

Perhaps you think you can't save. You have debts. Well, the way to cure a debt is by contracting another one. You meet your debts, do you not? Well, contract a debt to the bank. Just agree with yourself that you owe the bank $1,000 and must pay this debt in small installments—a dollar or two or five out of each week's wages. Then pay that debt. The bank, unlike your other creditors, pays you for the use of your money and will return it to you in time with interest. For you are a partner with it. It is your bank and its business is to make money for you.

When you start a bank account you become a capitalist, a banker, an investor in securities and a substantial citizen, interested in the development of your town and country. You acquire standing, respect, peace of mind. Your point of view is changed. You no longer "see red." Your fellow men appear to you as they really are—coworkers and friends—not oppressors or schemers against your welfare. You have done your part, you have unified your interests with the right ones—caught step with the march of progress.

It is only those who resist this march that get hurt. Don't get under the car—get in it. Going in debt to the bank means going in debt to yourself, to your family, to the general good. This should be the most sacred of your obligations and should come first. It is the "preferred creditor," and you'll find that all your other creditors will be willing to stand back while you pay it. For it insures the payment of every other obligation. A man who is saving is trusted and helped. His credit is good. He can "do things." People place confidence in him.—Chicago Tribune.

DAVID GARRICK.

The Great Actor's Art and His Wife's Ruffled Feelings.

Mrs. Garrick's admiration of her husband's dramatic talents was intense, and on his great nights she would hang over her box next the stage in rapturous delight. The one flaw in her idol, she claimed, was a taste for low life, for which she blamed him greatly, insisting that he loved better to play Scrub to a low lived audience than one of his superior characters before an audience of taste.

On one particular occasion she was in her box in the theater when Garrick's impersonation of Richard III. was applauded to the echo. In that day a farce followed the tragedy of the evening, and as Mrs. Garrick rose to leave before it her husband came to the box to say he had some business in the greenroom which would detain him, so most unwillingly the lady was obliged to acquiesce and remain through the closing entertainment. This proved to be a comical series of blundering adventures which had befallen a countryman who had left his farm to see London and on his return gave his neighbors an account of the wonders he had met.

This characterization was received with such peals of applause that Mrs. Garrick, ever zealous of her husband's fame, began to think it rivaled those lately lavished on Richard III. Her feelings were nearly worked up to fever heat when she was attracted by the frantic efforts of her little spaniel dog to overleap the balcony that separated him from the stage, when she immediately became aware of the truth that the actor was Garrick and exclaimed, "Strange that a dog should know his master when the woman who loved him best in the world could not pierce his disguise."

His Biggest Failure.

John Jacob Astor was asked one day what was the largest amount of money he had ever made in one transaction. This he declined to answer, but said that he would tell the largest sum that he failed to make. With De Witt Clinton and Gouverneur Morris, he said, he had planned to buy Louisiana from France and to sell it to the United States government, retaining the public domain and charging 2½ per cent commission. They changed their minds and Mr. Astor said that he lost $30,000,000 by failing to go into the deal.

Fancy Prices In 1849.

A tourist lately on the Pacific slope picked up a menu used in 1849, when California was the mecca of gold miners. The items and prices in that wild country ran as follows: "Bean soup, $1; hash, low grade, 75 cents; hash, 18 carat, $1; beef, plain, $1; beef, with one potato, $1.15; baked beans, plain, 75 cents; baked beans, greased, $1; two potatoes, 50 cents; two potatoes, peeled, 75 cents; rice pudding, 75 cents.

The Privilege of Wealth.

"That man is getting to be a regular customer here."

"Yes, and he must be a multimillionaire."

"Why so, Mayme?"

"He ain't afraid to ask to see something cheaper if he feels so inclined."—Pittsburg Post.

Quick Conclusion.

"I see that one convict fatally assaulted another."

"They must have some bad men in that penitentiary."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TAKING THE CURE.

Graphic Pen Picture of Carlsbad and Its Dyspeptics.

MUD BATHS AND VILE WATER

The Victims Drink Often and Drink Deep and Absorb With the Evil Brew Large Doses of Misery—An Unpleasant and Costly Road to Health.

A city shaped like a cup, a cup containing hot water. The sides of the city are clothed with pines, and in the hollow lie the waters where the dyspeptics of the world foregather to drink and to be healed. They desire to be freed from excess of fat, from yellow skins, from pains that catch one in the small of the back and from the stiff joints that follow hard upon the pleasures of the too abundant board.

In Carlsbad you drink often and drink deep. Drinking is your main occupation. Your drinking glass is strapped over your shoulders as you wander, sipping from spring to spring as assiduously as any one bee, but you do not get honey.

Your misery begins at 6. At 6 o'clock they call you, and you are expected to be shaved and decent before you face the world of waters and of miserable sinners at 7 o'clock. If you had not been a miserable sinner, too, you would not be here, but you have done those things you ought not to have done and you have left undone those things you ought to have done, and your penalty is Carlsbad.

So you take your place at the end of a queue 300 dyspeptics long and wish you were dead. You very nearly are, for no "morning tea" sustains you; they forbid that; it is strictly against the law. You take your turn at the "Sprudel" spring uncomforted by the cook. Everything contributes to your misery. A German close behind you is treading on your heels and breathing loudly down your neck, and a gentleman in a curious top hat is conducting an orchestra with intent to make you merry. He fails. You hate him. And every moment you draw nearer to the "Sprudel" spring. It leaps from the bowels of the earth toward the roof of the colonnade shrouded in its own steam, and a girl in waterproof overalls catches you a glassful by means of a long pole.

Then you retire to a corner with the evil brew and try to drink it. It tastes of dead rats—hot ones, long dead. Your character may be divined by your method of dealing with it. It may be faced as one faces a pet beverage, "with an air," or it may be dallied with in sips—or thrown away. It may beat you altogether, but this is rare. The hardened dyspeptic who does his yearly "cure" has a trick with a little glass pipe. He is imitated by the wise. After the first fell glass you hurry to the little glass pipe stall and buy a little glass pipe for your very own, and half an hour later you brace yourself together for the second dose. If you have sinned deeply you may be ordered even three, but probably you will be let off with two goes of "Sprudel" and one of something lighter.

An hour afterward you may have an inadequate meal of sour milk, one egg and a browny roll that would baffle a dentist. During the morning you will be required to undergo a bath, possibly of mud, reeking with curative properties and very expensive—as expensive as the lunch you would like to have afterward if they would let you. Even as it stands your mockery of a meal, fruit, rice and a bit of a boiled bird climbs up to a total hitherto unassociated with such elementary insufficiencies. At 4 o'clock you drink more water. At 10 the long day closes with a final gulp, and the dinner intervening is beneath the dignity of words—of any words.

Sixty thousand of the sorrowful subject themselves to these penalties yearly every summer.

But in spite of the 60,000 you will probably be a lonely soul in Carlsbad. Its dietetic system does not make for sociability or mirth. But as the days go by the pink hues of health begin to return to your cheek, your color ceases to be drab and your temper becomes less vile. You find you can tolerate your fellow man with some degree of courtesy even when he breathes down your neck and clears his throat in the region of your ear. There is less of Hamlet about you and more of Puck, for your days are ordered now more in conformity with nature's plan and your reward is an equability that is foreign to the life of broken laws in the place from whence you came. For two or three weeks this quickening process will develop and continue until in the exuberance of health you return to your land.

When you are not here Carlsbad puts its shutters up and goes away to cure itself of the tedium of having cured you, and by the time it has finished with you its coffers are quite comfortably stocked against a holiday, for you were not a "cureguest" for nothing. Still you were cured, and a cure is always cheap. But on the whole perhaps it would have been cheaper if you had kept the law.—London Mail.

Interesting Spots.

"I suppose," says the lady next door, "that you saw many really wonderful places while you were abroad."

"Yes, indeed," replies the returned traveler. "I think the most shivery of them all, however, was the catacorners in Rome. I have the nightmare about it yet."—Judge.

Y.M.C.A. AJAXS DEFEAT THE P.H.S. RESERVES

The Y. M. C. A. Ajax team defeated the P. H. S. Reserves in a lively basketball game at the association gymnasium, last night, the final score being 46 to 1 . The Ajax five outplayed the reserves in every department and scored at will. The P. H. S. defeat was largely due to poor team work and lack of practice. They had many chances for goals, but could not find the basket either from the field or foul. McNamee and Dunning did the best work for their teams, the former scoring sixteen and the loatter twelve points in the first half, which ended with a score of 30 to 9 for the home five. In the second half, Ajax threw goals at will and it was a runaway match. The lineup:

Ajax.		P. H. S. Reserves.

MACHINISTS WINNERS IN A SOCCER GAME

An interesting game of soccer football was played yesterday afternoon on Clinton Oval between teams representing the machinists and the building trades. The contest resulted in a score of 4 to 2 in favor of the machinists. The game was well played throughout, the first half ending with a score of 2 to 1 in favor of the machinists. In the second half some very spectacular plays were made by both teams.

It was decided by the teams to give the receipts of the game toward the support of the tuberculosis ward at Muhlenberg Hospital. The managers of the team wish to thank the Plainfield Association Football club for the use of its rooms and hospitality shown them. The lineup:

DRESDEN CHINA.

Its Three Periods and the Marks the Pieces Bear.

Dresden china began its reign at the fair of Leipzig, 1721, where it was offered for public sale for the first time. It has had three periods—King's, Marcoline and modern.

The factory marks traced on the bottom of each piece vary according to the period—the oldest (King's) being the monogram A. R. and the wand of Aesculapius. The familiar crossed swords, with the dot or circle between the handles, were first used in 1721, and the star took the place of the dot in the Marcoline period. The modern mark is the simple crossed swords, sometimes accompanied by letters and numbers.

Although the methods of work are still jealously guarded in all factories, the essentials are an open secret; and the following rough outline may satisfy the lazily curious: The ingredients of porcelain are kaolin feldspar, sand and selenite. These are ground fine and mixed in limewater. The paste is then molded into forms and fired in an oven of moderate heat. When taken out it is in an opaque state and is then dipped in the glaze, which is feldspar ground fine, with a little alkali. It is now subjected to a firing of great heat, which results in the beautiful polished surface so familiar the world over.

This second firing is attended with risk, for if the piece is allowed to remain beyond the exact proper moment the whole melts together and is ruined.

SEASICKNESS.

It Is Not Beneficial, and In Rare Cases It Causes Death.

In the light of modern intelligence the once popular idea that seasickness was of real benefit to the sufferer and that it never terminated fatally has been exploded. Not only is this malady to be guarded against by every means possible, but it is even to be dreaded by those who are not over robust as leading to possible fatal results.

The old fashioned notion that a good dose of seasickness was beneficial was due wholly to the fact that upon recovery the victim of mal de mer is usually so delighted that he is apt to imagine that he never felt better in his life, while feeling normal again is merely so great a contrast to the exceedingly wretched condition which this disorder brings about that exaggeration of one's feelings is the most natural thing in the world. Seasickness is far from pleasant. It is not beneficial, and in rare cases it terminates fatally.

There is one consolation, however, that with the growth of the size of ships and the increase of speed travelers are to a certain extent insured against it or if attacked are certain that their sufferings will be short.—Marine Journal.

The Art of Poisoning.

Professional poisoners arose early in our era. It is recorded that Agrippina (A. D. 26) refused to eat apples at the table of her father-in-law, Tiberius, through fear of poison. The notorious Locusta flourished in that epoch. It is charged that she supplied with appropriate directions the poison by which Agrippina rid herself of Claudius. She also furnished the poison that was administered to Britannicus by order of Nero. This crime was committed in quite a conventional manner. The Romans were accustomed to drink hot water at table, but the same temperature did not appeal to all. A slave offered hot water to Britannicus. "Too hot," he remarked. The slave added cold water. Britannicus drank, gasped once or twice and died. The cold water was poisoned either with a cyanide or with prussic acid.

Queer Newspaper Names.

The Italians are naturally an imaginative race, and the titles which they give to their newspapers, especially in the provinces, fully confirm the fact. Here are some instances of the curiosities:

At Aqui, in Piedmont, there is Il Bollente (the boiling one); at Gerace, the Circus of Nero; at Messina, the Lightning; at Lucca, the Second Lightning; at Monbercelli, the Inflexible; at Catania, the New Marionettes.

Humorous publications rejoice in even stranger titles. We have the Contropelo (shave against the grain) at Naples, the Two of Spades at Turin, the Slap in the Face at Bologna, the Pif Paf at Palermo, the Brush at Cattanissetta and the Mosquito at Savigliano.

Dark Stars.

Scattered through space are innumerable stars that give forth very little light or heat. Either they were never at any period of their history bright and glowing like the myriad stars that make the midnight sky so beautiful or in the course of countless ages the heat they once possessed has radiated away from them into the depth of space, and now they are, as their name describes them, "dark stars."

Worse Still.

They tell me Simpkins' wife is a perfect tyrant. The poor fellow actually goes around, they say, without a nickel in his pockets."

"Worse than that—she's cut off his supply of pockets."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WILD SILKWORMS.

They Weave Their Thread In Skeins Inside Their Huge Nests.

The world is indebted to the Chinese for the discovery of the virtues of the silkworm. Its product was unknown in Rome until the time of Julius Caesar, and so costly was the material that even the Emperor Aurelian refused a dress of this lustrous fabric to his empress. Now it is nurtured in almost every country, and its products are within the reach of all.

Besides the several domesticated species, there is a wild silkworm found in Central America which weaves a baglike structure two feet in depth that hangs from the trees. At a distance the nest resembles a huge matted cobweb. The insect makes no cocoon, but weaves the silk in layers and skeins around the inside of the nest. From Tegucigalpa there were sent to England some years ago about six pounds of this silk. There it was made into handkerchiefs not easily detected from common silk of equal strength and delicate texture.

There is a curious silk producing spider in Central America, the arana de seda, which may be seen hurrying along with a load of fine silk on its back, from which trail numerous delicate filaments.—Harper's Weekly.

THE LOST ATLANTIS.

Fate of the Continental Island as Told by the Ancients.

"The Lost Atlantis" is a favorite subject of song and story, and even now strange tales are told by sailors who claim to have seen a great white city rearing its domes and minarets up through the green of the sea.

Atlantis was a continental island between Europe and America. Solon as long ago as 600 B. C. learned the story in Egypt, and it is from him and later from Plato that the tale has been handed down to modern peoples.

Atlantis was reigned over by three kings of marvelous power, and the inhabitants were a warlike people far advanced in civilization. The three kings finally became so puffed with power that they united forces and planned a descent on Europe, the purpose of which was to destroy and enslave. The Athenians met the invaders and after a fearful battle gained a decisive victory.

Two days later mighty earthquakes shook the earth, and tremendous inundations came. When peace succeeded elemental turmoil the sea stretched where once had been Atlantis.

A Quicker Process.

A story is told of a certain famous inventor who is fortunate enough to be able to employ a large staff of engineers and mathematicians to aid him in the solution of knotty problems. Some time ago the inventor desired to find the cubic capacity of a certain vessel of unsymmetrical proportions and asked his mathematicians to solve the problem. As the story goes, the mathematicians spent weeks of time, filled whole books with their calculations and finally presented what they said was a close approximation to the true result. Thereupon the famous inventor placed the vessel on a platform scale, filled it to the brim with water, obtained its weight when full and when empty, and in a few minutes he had a result as good as the mathematicians—for that particular vessel.—Engineering News.

He Liked Turtle.

Charles Kean in forcing a tavern companion to take mustard with his beef showed a more generous disposition than a city magnate who figures in the "Memoirs of Grantley Berkeley." Although a hearty feeder, Berkeley did not like fat and when served with turtle soup always left the green fat on the side of his plate. This is considered by many to be the best part of the dish, and at a city dinner Berkeley attended his neighbor observed him with horror deliberately rejecting the unctuous green fragments. "At length his feelings got the better of the alderman, and after demolishing his third helping of turtle he swept all the fat from my plate on to his, grunting contemptuously, 'I see they're wasted on you.'" — London Chronicle.

His Geography.

Ample explanation of the many attempts to construct a universal language lies enfolded in the reply of a small boy, given by Mrs. Hugh Fraser in "A Diplomatist's Wife In Many Lands."

The irregular French verbs—what a terror those were to children! My own little boy when he was seven years old was asked by his teacher a question in geography.

"What separates England from France?"

"The irregular verbs," he replied, with mournful conviction.

BANK OF ENGLAND NOTES.

Always Fresh and Clean, as They Are Issued Only Once.

There is as great a difference between the systems of issuing and redeeming the notes of the Bank of England and of the banks of the United States as there is in the appearance of the notes themselves.

The English note is somewhat longer and much broader than ours, is of rough white paper, with ragged edges, and is printed on one side only, with a few words and with no pictures or designs, while ours are completely covered on both sides with vignette and lathe work.

Our notes are issued again and again until they become so worn that they are no longer serviceable. A Bank of England note is never issued more than once. Every note that comes in is canceled at once, and then it is stored away with other canceled notes to be preserved for a certain period, when it is destroyed by burning.

It takes many clerks to keep the record of notes issued and paid, and so accurately is this work done that the date when any note was issued, the person receiving it, the time when it was paid into the bank and by whom, can be ascertained from the books. If the time was within five years the note itself can be produced.

Many are the stories of attempts to counterfeit these notes, which have always been failures. As the average time between the issue and the payment of the notes is only five or six days the fact that a counterfeit is in circulation is known almost at once, and the system of English bankers and merchants of keeping the numbers of the notes received and paid gives the clew whereby the offender is quickly apprehended.—Exchange.

A TIP ON CHECKS.

Advice by a Woman Who Always Fills Out the Stub First.

The west side woman was paying with a check for some articles she had bought at a department store, and she was carefully filling in the stub of her check book first. "Oh, don't stop for that," urged her shopping companion, who was in a hurry. "You can do that when you get home."

Unmoved, the west side woman finished the stub with special care, then wrote the check, gave it to the salesman and said to her impatient friend: "Before I was married I took care of some of my father's accounts. The first time he ever asked me to fill out a set of blank checks for him so he could sign them he told me: 'One rule you must always observe—write the stub first. Make a vow to yourself, like unto the vow of Jephthah, that you will never write a check until the stub is filled. If for any reason you should fail later to write the check it would be a simple matter to cancel the stub, but if you write a check and leave the stub blank you open the door to a hundred chances of mistake. No one's memory can be trusted on that subject. Never try to trust yours. Let the law of "the stub first" be to you as the law of the Medes and the Persians.' I have always found it perfectly easy to follow that rule, and that is one reason I have a bank account today. My husband is never afraid I will make him any trouble with it."—New York Press.

A Safe Proceeding.

Lord Lyons, English minister at Washington during the war between the states and afterward ambassador to France, was a diplomatist to the core. He was exceedingly tactful in action and had the rare art of keeping his own counsel. When Sir Edward Blount called upon him one day at the embassy in Paris he found that a well known journalist had preceded him. The visitor was laying down the law in a loud tone, and when, after his departure, Sir Edward was received he took the liberty of saying:

"May I be allowed to ask if it is quite wise to discuss state secrets in such a loud tone? I heard every word that was said, my lord, as I sat in the anteroom."

"Ah!" said Lord Lyons. "But even then you could not hear what I said, for I said nothing."

Ancient Stone Workers.

Egyptian stone workers 4,000 years ago had a surprising knowledge of what are considered modern tools. These pyramid builders operated with solid and tubular drills and straight and circular saws. In handling the tubular drills, which were of superior quality, the skill of the artisan was so remarkable that the cutting marks in granite show no indication of wear of the tool, while a cut of a tenth of an inch was made in the hardest rock at each revolution. A hole through both hard and soft material was bored perfectly smooth and uniform.

Her Account.

"I should like to open an account at this bank, if you please."

"We shall be glad to accommodate you, madam. What amount do you wish to deposit?"

"Oh, but I mean a charge account, such as I have at the big dry goods stores."—Chicago Tribune.

Explained.

"Now they claim that the human body contains sulphur."

"In what amount?"

"Oh, in varying quantities."

"Well, that may account for some girls making better matches than others."—London Opinion.

The necessity of circumstances proves friends and detects enemies.—Epictetus.

The Out of Date Doubloon.

Should the reader find a pirate's buried treasure he will have to dispose of his Spanish gold at its bullion value, for since Aug. 1, 1908, when the common crier made proclamation from the steps of the Royal Exchange of London that after that date the doubloon would cease to be legal tender in the West Indies, including British Guiana, the doubloon has not been the precious thing it was. In 1730 and for about a century after it was worth $8, "more or less." It has ceased to be coined in its native country, Spain, and since 1908 it has been unpopular in the West Indies, where for a long time it figured in a mixed circulation embracing British, United States and Spanish coins. In the interest of romance, however, the name at least must survive. It signifies nothing more than that the coin was double the value of a pistole, but the doubloon was never such a mouth filling mockery as "pieces of eight," which suggest great riches, but mean only Spanish silver dollars, pieces equivalent to 8 reals.

England's Great Wall.

Directly across the north of England, between points near Carlisle and Newcastle, ran Hadrian's wall, the northern boundary of the Roman empire. It is generally supposed to have been erected by the Emperor Hadrian between 117 and 138 A. D. The wall was of stone and was eight feet thick and twelve feet high. It was guarded by eighteen military stations, garrisoned by cohorts of Roman soldiers, and at intervals of a mile were forts built to contain eighty men each. Between every two forts were four watchtowers. South of the stone wall was a series of earthen ramparts, and between the two ran the great military road, still in use as a highway. Of this vast work comparatively few portions remain, a matter of wonder, perhaps, when one sees the solidity of the sections of the wall which still stand, but easily explained by the fine stone walls in the immediate vicinity.—Travel.

How to Avoid Divorce.

My advice to husbands who wish to avoid divorce is this: Don't quote mother. Call up your wife while at business and ask how she is and tell her that you called her up just to hear her voice. Take her a box of candy, one of the new books that she is interested in, a flower, even if it is faded and you have picked it up off the street; a pretty pin or handkerchief, and don't ever lay your head on your pillow at night without having done something to gain and obtain a firmer hold on your wife's love. Kiss her every day. At least once a month meet her downtown and take her to dinner and the theater. Don't ever stop courting, for as soon as you do some other man will begin. Make your wife your companion. Take her out with you, and when you have to have a big time take your wife along and the divorce evil will be lessened.—Leslie's Weekly.

Loans Without Interest.

In the city of Barcelona, Spain, there is a peculiar pawnbroking establishment bearing the dainty name of "Our Lady of Hope," where loans are made without interest to necessitous persons on the deposit of any articles in pledge. Two-thirds of the value of the deposit is at once advanced, and the loan is made for six months and a day, but if at the expiration of that period the depositor should declare himself unable to redeem it, after another period of six months the pledges are sold, but if they yield more than the amount advanced the difference is given to the original owner. This institution is very popular. Thousands are every year suitors for the favor thus afforded by "Our Lady of Hope."—Richard Ford, "Gatherings From Spain."

Another Miss.

A young recruit was just commencing his first course of musketry. The instructor, getting very angry with him, told him exactly what to do, and each time he missed the target. At last the instructor lost his temper and told him to take a spare round behind the butts and shoot himself with it. Presently the instructor was startled by hearing a report from a rifle behind the butts; without a moment's hesitation he rushed round to see what had occurred, when the recruit looked up from examining his rifle and said quite coolly, "It's all right; don't get alarmed; it's another miss."—London Telegraph.

Very Much So.

"Miss Gwendolyn is a very superficial sort of girl, with her head filled with fine clothes and making herself pretty. I don't suppose she gives a moment to self reflection."

"Doesn't she? Just watch her when a mirror is anywhere in sight!"—Baltimore American.

Rackets.

An Italian woman was asked in court if she had any musical instruments in her home.

"No, signor," she replied, "nothing but rackets."

"What?" queried the lawyer.

"Rackets—the things they put in graphophones."

The Diplomat.

Condescending Chappie—I weally can't wemember your name, but I've an idea I've met you here before.
Nervous Host—Oh, yes, very likely. It's my house.—London Sketch.

Self Help.

"What is your theory about self help?"

"Why, to help yourself if there is anything in sight."—Exchange.

Merchants

Avoid the narrow lanes and choose the broad busy thoroughfares as store locations. It costs more but it is necessary for trade success.

In the use of the TELEPHONE the "party line" corresponds to the narrow lane and the "direct line" to the wide avenue, with the exception that only one person at a time can use it. If your business is such that more than one person is likely to want you at the same time, stay where you are but have the TELEPHONE COMPANY build additional avenues.

This Boiler saves coal

The square fire pot cuts down coal bills one-quarter, because its effective radiating area is 25 per cent. more than in boilers of like dimensions.

The square corners prevent ashes from clogging and choking, thus relieving you of much disagreeable labor. A cutting bar smashes all clinkers. The is easily controlled—moderate or intense heat, as you like, in a few minutes.

Note in this sectional view how all interior surfaces tend upward toward the front connection.

This means quick water circulation and lively steaming.

OUR EARLY CURRENCY.

The First American Coins and the Series Struck at Boston.

The very earliest coinage that can properly be said to be "strictly American" was ordered by the original Virginia company in the year 1612, only five years after the founding of Jamestown. These coins were minted at Somers islands, now known as the Bermudas. For a period of more than a quarter of a century after this, however, tobacco and beaver skins were reckoned as lawful currency.

In 1645 the assembly of Virginia met and declared that it "had maturely weighed and considered how advantageous a quoine (coin) would be to this colony and how much better it would be than a sole dependency upon tobacco and pelts." After this they provided for the coinage of copper coins of the denominations of twopence, threepence, sixpence and ninepence, but this resolution was never carried into effect.

The first coinage in America proper was the series of coins "struck" at Boston under the order of the general court of Massachusetts passed May 27, 1652, the coins being three, six and twelve pence denominations, "in forme flatt and stamped on one side with the letters 'N. E.' and on the other the value of the piece."

A MOUNTAIN RESCUE.

Presence of Mind That Stopped a Slide to Death.

On entering central Asia after a trip across India Major R. L. Kennion witnessed a rescue which was due to the quickness of decision and prompt action of a native. The story is given in "Sport and Life In the Farther Himalayas." The party had started to climb over the pass called Mintaka by moonlight. The cold was intense and the way slippery and uncertain.

No one having crossed the pass that year, the guide took a wrong line and led us across an ice slope that was concealed by snow. The first I knew of it was seeing his dim figure begin to slide downward, first slowly, then more rapidly. We were not roped, and as his pace increased it seemed that nothing on earth could save him.

Near the end of my line, however, carrying a load, was a man of Hunza, whose quickness to grasp the situation was only equaled by his resource. Dropping his load, he sprang out on to a projecting point of rock near which the man would pass, and as he slid by with the point of his native made ice ax he gaffed him in his loose clothing as you might a salmon. It was most cleverly and promptly done.

"Fixing" the Ball Grounds.

Hugh S. Fullerton, the baseball expert, tells in the American Magazine of the queer ethics of the national game. He writes:

"'Fixing' the grounds so as to give the home team the advantage and handicap the visiting players is the commonest form of trickery, yet in professional ball it is not considered wrong, any more than a commander of a defensive army would consider it wrong to prepare breastworks to meet an enemy. The extent to which the fixing of grounds is carried is amazing. There probably is not a major or minor league grounds in the country on which the home players have not the advantage, and visiting teams are forced to be on the alert from the moment they enter a field to discover, if possible, what they are up against."

Athens the Seat of Learning.

It may be said unhesitatingly that the country which has produced the greatest men in literature and philosophy, art and architecture is Greece. In the little state of Attica—not much larger than Greater New York—true civilization and all that goes along with it were born. All that has been done since the "age of Pericles" has been simply the carrying out of the ideas, principles and methods laid down by the men who won Marathon and Salamis, Platea and Mycale. Galton, a high authority, does not hesitate to say that Athens and the little state of which it was the capital produced more first class intellects than have since been produced by all the world put together.—New York American.

Rise and Fall.

A boy was driving along a road in Ireland a donkey and cart which belonged to his widowed mother when he was accosted by a snobbish young man, who, wishing to impress his cleverness upon a young lady who accompanied him, said, "Watch me take a rise out of this boy."

He shouted to the boy, "I say, do you think your mother would sell me that donkey?"

The boy took a good look at him and answered, "Do you think your mother could keep two?"

The smart young man didn't laugh, but the young lady did.

'Twas Ever Thus.

"Pa, what does it mean when you say that prices fluctuate?"

"It means, my son, that they go up and down. When it's something you've got to buy the price goes up, and when it's something you've got to sell the price goes down."—Judge.

Her Dearest Friend.

Maude—I'm a little uneasy in my mind. Ned asked me to marry him, and I told him I might some day. Now, would you call that a promise?
Marie—No; I should call it a threat.

An indulgent ... is an unsealed letter. Every one can read it.—Chamfort.

"I have at last found my metier. Give me more things to do."

"Very well. When will you take me to see your Japanese house?"

For a second Daunt hesitated. The little native house in the Street-of-the-

DAUNT UNROLLED THE KAKEMONO.

Misty-Valley was a sentimental place to him. There he had worked out the models of his first glider; there he had talked with his princess of dreams, his "Lady of the Many-Colored Fires." The glimpse of Phil had reminded him that it now had a tenant. When he showed it to Barbara it should not be with Phil in possession.

She noted the hesitation and, somewhat puzzled and wondering if to oriental ethics the suggestion was a gaucherie, waved the matter lightly aside. "You are just going to say 'one of these days.' Please don't. When I was little that always meant never. I withdraw the motion, but what is this coming?"

A boy was ascending the platform. He bowed and laid a box of thin, unpainted wood at Daunt's feet. It contained a kakemono, or wall painting, rolled and tied with a red and white cord of twisted rice paper. Daunt read the accompanying card.

"'Miss Happy-For-a-Thousand-Years,'" he said, "'presents her compliments to the illustrious strangers.' She is the star. The gift is a pretty custom, isn't it, even if it is advertisement? Here comes the lady herself to present her thanks for our distinguished patronage."

She bowed low before them, smiling, her small piquant face powdered white as mistletoe berries above her carmine painted lips. Daunt unrolled the kakemono, revealing a delicately painted cluster of butterflies. He chatted with her in the vernacular, and she replied with much drawing in of breath and flute-like laughter.

"She says," he translated, "that this is a picture of her honorable ancestors." A little smile, a genuflection, a breath of perfume, and the powdered face and gorgeous kimono were gone. The orchestra chirruped, the curtain parted, and another figure began.

Miss Happy-For-a-Thousand-Years! As the party walked back to the waiting ricksha Barbara wondered what lay beneath that smiling surface. She had heard of the strenuous training that at five years began to teach the gauzy, fragile, child butterfly to paint its wings, to flirt and sing and dance its dazzling moth flame way. For the geisha nothing was too gorgeous, too transcendent. Her lovers might be statesmen and princes. But in return she must be always gay, always laughing, always young, all things to all men, to the end of the butterfly chapter—butterfly hair, butterfly gown and butterfly heart!

Barbara wondered.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE DEVIL PIPES TO HIS OWN.

DR. BERSONIN, huge and white flanneled, with Phil by his side, strolled away through the swarming crowd.

Not a word, not a glance of the younger man that evening, had escaped him. He had been studying him with all the minute attention of that great, overweening brain that, from an origin of which he never spoke, had made him one of the foremost experimenters in Europe. The swift gleam in Phil's eye as he watched the geishas, the eager drinking in of the girlish daintiness, the colors and perfumes to which he stretched himself like a cat—the watchful, impassive eyes took note of everything. All Bersonin's talk had held an evil lure. It had touched on the extravagant and sensual vagaries of luxury, the sybaritic pleasures of the social gourmet, subjects appealing to the imagination of the youth whom he was examining like a slide under the microscope. They had stopped once at a chaya for tea, but Phil had called for the hot native sake, and as its musty, sherry-like fumes crept into his blood he talked with increasing recklessness. Beneath their veiled contemptuousness Bersonin's feline eyes began to harbor a stealthy satisfaction. He had guessed why Phil had suggested coming to Mukojima. The latter's restlessness, his anxious surveillance of the passers-by, might have enlightened a less observant spectator.

Phil's new passion had, in fact, a strong hold on him. That long ago picture of Haru, barefooted in the surf, frequent recollection had stamped on his brain, and the sight of her fresh beauty today had fanned the coal to a flame. Those stolen kisses in the bamboo lane had roused a lurking devil that counted nothing but his own desires. For this hour, while the sake ran in his pulses, the flame overshadowed even Bersonin.

"Well, my boy," said the latter at length quizzically, "when you find her just give me the hint, and I'll go."

Phil flushed, then laughed softly. "So you are a mind reader, too?" he said.

"It's written all over you," said Bersonin. "Why didn't you tell me? We could have postponed our dinner and left you free for the chase. It is a chase, eh?"

"Yes," said Phil. "I—I haven't had much luck with her yet. I just happened to know she was to be here tonight. She's a pretty little devil," he added, "the prettiest I've seen in Japan."

"The Japanese type is the rage in Paris now," said the other. "Take her there, dress her in jewels and drive her through the Bois some afternoon and you'll be the most talked of man in France next morning."

The red deepened in Phil's cheek. The prospect drew him. He looked at Bersonin. Paris and jewels!

He drank more sake at the next tea house. It had begun to show in a shaking of the hand, a louder voice. Suddenly Phil sprang to his feet. "There she is!" he exclaimed.

Bersonin looked. "Lovely!" he said. "I congratulate you. I'll walk back to the motorcar—the sights amuse me. You can come along when you please. Dinner will wait. And, anyway, what's dinner to a pretty woman?"

Phil plunged into the crowd, and the expert spoke quickly to the servant, who was staring after him. "Better keep him in sight," he said. "You can come when he does."

Bersonin was sauntering on, when a turmoil behind him made him turn. A woman's cry and an angry oath in English rang out, startlingly clear above the low murmur of the multitude. He caught a glimpse of a Japanese form leaping like a tiger; of Phil lying in the dust of the road; of a girl vanishing swiftly into the shadows.

As the expert hurried forward Phil stumbled to his feet. Lights were dancing before his eyes, and his neck felt as if he had been garroted. With his first breath he turned on Ishida, incoherent with rage and curses. The big man caught his arm.

"The honorable sir make mistake," said the Japanese smoothly. "Man have done that who have ranned away."

"He lies!" said Phil fiercely. "There was no one else near me but the girl. He did it himself. He tried to jujutsu me!"

The fingers of the Japanese were clenched, but his face was impassive as he added: "I think he have been snik thief."

"That's no doubt the way it was, Phil," said Bersonin. "Why on earth would Ishida touch you? That's an old thieves' trick. The fellow tried to get your watch, I suppose. But we must move on. The police will be here presently, and we don't want our names in the papers."

"ONLY A MISTAKE."

They went rapidly through the close ranks that had been watching with the decorous, inquisitive silence s typically oriental.

"I suppose you're right," said Phil sulkily. "I—I beg your pardon, Ishida."

The Japanese bowed gravely.

"Only a mistake," he said, "which honorable sir make."

• • • • • • •

The three storied front of the cherry moon tea house when Daunt's party arrived was glowing with tiers of large round lanterns of oiled paper bearing a conventionalized moon and cherry blossoms. At the door sat rows of little velvet lined sandals. Here shoes were discarded, and servants drew on the guests' feet loose slippers of cotton cloth, soft and yielding. One other guest was awaiting the party at the entrance. This was Captain Viscount Sakai of the general staff, spruce, fine featured and in immaculate European evening dress. He had a clear olive complexion and, save for the narrow, Japanese eye, might have been a Spaniard.

The small second story shokudo in which they dined was floored in soft tatame edged with black and laid in close fitting geometrical pattern. Save for a plain alcove at one end, holding a dwarf pine and a single nanten branch with clusters of bright red berries, it was empty. There was no drapery. The walls were sliding screens of gold leaf on which were finely drawn etchings of pine trees covered with snow, the effect suggested rather than finished. It was brilliant with electric light.

Tiny square tables of black lacquer were disposed along three sides of the room, one for each guest. They were but four inches high, and on the floor behind each lay a thin, flat zabuton or cushion of brocade. The bowing geishas in wonderful rainbow kimonos who awaited them might have stepped from the temple stage at Mukojima. These pointed to the tables with inviting smiles:

"Plee shee down!" they said in unison.

"I never could 'shee down' gracefully when any one is looking!" complained Patricia as she tucked her small feet under her on the kneeling cushion.

"Banzai!" commented Voynich, setting his monocle. "You have practiced before a mirror!" He collapsed beside her with a groan. "I shall be reincarnated an accordion!"

"Count," said Patricia plaintively, "no bouquets, please. I know when you are stringing me."

He looked blank, and the Japanese officer hastily produced a lavender notebook and a gold pencil. "That is a new one," he said. "I must—what is it? Ah, yes! I must nail it. Excuse me. I write it in my swear album."

"The viscount is learning American slang," Patricia informed Barbara. "One of these days you must tell him some of the very latest."

He looked across with gravely twinkling eyes. "I shall be—ah—tickle to die!" he said. "It is my specialty. Nex' year I become professor in slang literature at the Imperial university."

The meal began merrily. Barbara sat on Daunt's left, with one of the attaches next her. Baroness Stroloff was on Daunt's other hand. Barbara remembered it afterward as a meal of elfish daintiness—of warm, pungent, winelike liquor in blue porcelain bottles, of food of strange look and cloying taste, highly colored and seasoned, in a hundred tiny red and black lacquer dishes that carried her back to her doll days, with covers patterned in gold, served by prostrating geishas whose kimonos were woven with violet Fujis, winged dragons and marvelous exotic blossoms.

Daunt pointed to a disk which had just been set before her. "You must try the hasu-no-renkon," he said. "That's cooked lotus root. It's nearly as good as it looks."

"How do you ever remember the names?"

"Oh, it's quite easy to talk Japanese," he replied recklessly. "There are only fifty syllables in the language, and any way you string them together it means something or other. It doesn't matter whether it's the right thing or not if you just bow and smile. There are seventeen ways of drawing in your breath which are a lot more important than what you say."

"What disgraceful nonsense! What is that pink thing?"

"Raw bonito, the refuge of dyspeptics. Voynich there eats nothing else at home, they say. The variegated compound is kuchitori. It's made of sugared chestnuts, leeks and pickled fish. May I compliment you on the way you handle your chopsticks? At my first Japanese dinner I bit one in two. Isn't Baroness Stroloff stunning, by the way?"

The latter was deep in discussion with Patricia, moving her hands in quick, vivacious gestures which clusters of opals made into flashes of blue fire. "But you must send to Hakodate for your furs," she was saying. "I will give you the address of my man there. You should get them now, not wait till fall, when the tourists have bought all the best."

"I'm dying for an ermine stole."

"Oh, my dear, not ermine! Get sables. One can be so insulting in sables!"

Barbara laughed with the rest. "What a nice lot you are," she said, "all knowing each other, all friendly! I thought diplomatists were always poring over international law books and drawing up musty treaties."

"It's not all cakes and ale," he asserted. "I worked till 3 this morning on a cipher telegram."

"After the melodrama?"

"Ah, it was opera!" he protested. "It has left me memories of only flowers and scents and music!"

"You had most of the music, if I remember rightly."

"How unkind! I could no more help it than fly."

"On the glider?"

He laughed again. "Don't forget what is to happen one day with that same machine."

"What is that?"

"I am to swoop down and carry you off. It was your own suggestion, you know."

"But it was to be at the imperial review. That doesn't happen again for a year."

"I won't wait that long!"

She turned her head; her eyes sparkled in the caught light. Her fingers were fluttering a square of red paper that had been rolled about her chopsticks. On it was a line of tiny characters. "What is that writing?"

"That is a love poem," he answered. "You know a Japanese poem has only thirty-one syllables. You find them everywhere and on everything, from a screen to a fire shovel. I've seen them printed on toothpicks. Your huckster composes them as he brings the fish from market, and your amah writes them at night by a firefly lantern."

"Can you read it?"

He translated: "I thought my love's long hair drooped down from the gate of the sky, but it was only the shadow of evening."

"How delicately pretty!" she exclaimed. "It's written in kana, the sound alphabet, isn't it?"

"Yes. How much you have learned already."

"Haru has begun teaching me. Let me show you my proficiency." She took his pencil and wrote:

ドント

"There! Who would guess that was Japanese for 'Daunt.' And what an impression you must have made on Haru for her to select your name as my first lesson!"

TURKEY.

Gobble, gobble, gobble, gobble. Some of you will gobble up a whole turkey tomorrow, and then you will not be thanks giving.

GOBBLE.

You will go out and gobble up some Real Estate from the advise of some inexperienced person or firm and then you will let me give you the exact situation as to your property. Then you will want to be sea-sick and can't.

SITUATION.

Do you know that Real Estate is the safest investment one can make by 100%? Did it ever occur to you that from the time you are born until the time the undertaker is through with you, you are compelled to have something to do with Real Estate? If you are at home that is Real Estate. No matter where you go, you are on or in someone's Real Estate. What you eat comes from the farm or Real Estate. In other words the demand for Real Estate is greater than for any other one thing.

LOOSE MONEY.

There is no reason to loose money in buying Real Estate if you know how. But the reason you do loose is because you either take your own advise or the advise of a lawyer or Banker. Would you ask a plumber about a watch?

You don't know that about one-third or more of houses are a detriment to the lot. In other words, a lot would very often be worth more without a house than it is with it. Buy from one who has had a life-time's experience.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

SPAIN'S NATIONAL ANTHEM.

"La Marcha Realle" Was Composed by Frederick the Great.

Frederick the Great was the composer of the Spanish national anthem. Frederick's ambitions were varied. He performed on the flute. He desired to be thought a poet. He quoted Latin, but his quotations would have made Cicero stare and gasp. During that remarkable friendship which existed between him and Voltaire the author of the "Henriade" exclaimed with derision, "See the dirty linen I have to wash," holding up Frederick's manuscript, which had been sent him to revise. In the field the great warrior carried about his own poems in his pocket and a bottle of poison, so that he should not be taken alive. Menzel's picture depicts the king with his flute, and Bach dedicated to him one of his compositions.

The story of the composition of the Spanish national anthem is full of interest. A little while after the conclusion of the Seven Years' war Frederick at a court reception to the surprise of every one produced a march which he had composed. The Spanish ambassador, both a musician and courtier, asked for a copy to send to his royal master, Charles III. That monarch admired the piece, and it was often heard at the Escurial. After a time it was laid aside and almost forgotten. In 1869, after the deposition of Isabella, Marshal Serrano instituted a competition among composers for a national anthem. Some 500 compositions were sent in, but none of them was so inspiring as Frederick's march, which had been exhumed from the archives. This was chosen and is today known as "La Marcha Realle."—London Globe.

SCHOLARS IN CHINA.

They Rule the Country Where All Foreigners Are Called Boors.

The scholars rule China today. Dress is of more moment there than in any other country, yet the scholar, although poor and meanly dressed, is received with honor by the highest in the land.

"The superior man" of the classics is the equivalent of the "good man" with us. This man, his character and his conduct, are the constant theme of approbation. His virtue, his honor, his social relations, his manners in public and private, are carefully defined. His dignity is among his highest qualities and must be maintained at any cost.

In contradiction to the popular idea of dignity, however, the superior man will play battledore and shuttlecock with his feet and fly kites, while the boys, like old men, stand sedately by and look on. This he does as a method of instruction and to show the children how the superior man can relax when his high purpose is to entertain and educate the young.

To the Chinese the foreigner is a boor and a barbarian. It seems a hopeless task to teach him politeness. The Chinese wonders why the foreigner leaves his own country at all. Is it too small for him to make his living, or has he come to observe the superior people? If so he is to be commended. But, alas, what a boor he is! —National Geographic Magazine.

An Oversight.

Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, the famous theatrical manager, was present at a supper in London a short time ago where Signor Grasso was an honored and much feted guest. When the banquet was over and every one was departing, Grasso was so confused and carried away by the attentions and embraces which had been showered upon him that he thoughtlessly directed his taxi driver to drive him to the stage door of the theater at which he was playing.

"What on earth does he want to go back to the theater for at this time of the night?" asked one of those who were waving him adieu.

"Ah," said Sir Herbert Tree, "I expect he has forgotten to kiss the fireman!"

Fireproof Wood.

Though there are a number of different kinds of wood, ebony, ironwood, etc., of such close, hard fiber that even the fiercest fire has difficulty in "getting hold" of it, there is only one sort, so far as now known, that is practically fireproof. This is a small scraggy tree, a native of South America, called the shopala, with thick, tough, stringy bark full of a sort of fire resisting sap. This curious shrub grows largely on the great, grassy savannas, which are swept by fire almost every year during the heat of the summer. There it thrives splendidly, for the annual scourge kills off only its bigger and hardier competitors and leaves the ground free for the growth of this vegetable asbestos.

The Ship of State.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier once took a fall out of Sir Charles Tupper, for years leader of the Opposition, and Sir John Macdonald. Bantering them on their self praise for their own political services to Canada, he admitted that they had sailed the ship of state fairly successfully, adding: "Sir John was at the helm and supplied the brains, while Sir Charles supplied the wind. His blowing filled the sails."

Not Long.

Binks (who ordered a pancake half an hour previously)—Er—I—say, will that pancake be long?

Waitress—No, sir; it'll be round.

Then he waited patiently another half hour.

We never desire earnestly what we desire in reason.—La Rochefoucauld.

GET A VICTROLA FOR CHRISTMAS.

You should have a Victrola in the house—and whether you buy one for your own pleasure and that of your friends and visitors or whether you buy one for Xmas giving to some one in the family—we advise an immediate purchase.

You know we can sell you a splendid Victrola now for as little as $50, and if you wish you can select and have charged with your machine $10 worth of records and you will not have to pay any more in the first payment than you would have had to pay in the purchase of the machine alone heretofore.

First payments on Victrolas are very easy to make and the subsequent payments are light indeed.

We would like you to come in and hear the Victrola and know how wonderfully it reproduces the human voice and all instrumental music.

We carry an unusually large stock of records for both Victor and Edison Machines.

HARD METALS.

They Come From Titanium and Are as Firm as the Diamond.

The diamond has ever been regarded as possessing one quality that placed it beyond rivalry—namely, that of hardness. There are several gems that compete with it in beauty, and at least one—the ruby—when of rare size outranks it in costliness, but none in the whole list equals it in hardness. The hardest steel cannot equal the diamond in that respect.

But there are at least two products of chemical experiment that have proved, according to French chemists, to be as hard as diamonds. These are produced from the rare metal titanium. One experimenter, it is claimed, succeeded in preparing titanium in the electric furnace. In the pure form it is much harder than steel or quartz, and when combined with silicon or carbon so as to form a silicide or boride of titanium it matches the diamond itself in hardness.

Titanium resembles tin in its chemical properties, and it is the characteristic element in the beautiful red and brown crystals of rutile. These, in the shape of needles, are sometimes found penetrating large white quartz crystals, forming gems that the French call "love's arrows."—New York Press.

KEPT ABOVE GROUND.

Ingenious Way Major Hook Evaded the Terms of a Will.

Among ingenious ways of evading a will the plan followed by Major Hook and recorded in "Ancient, Curious and Famous Wills" may be commended:

A county newspaper some years ago recorded the death of a Major Hook and spoke of him as "a singular character." "He died," says the report, "on Monday sennight at his house, Ham street, Ham common. He was an officer in the East India Company's service and reached the age of seventy-five. His house was remarkable for its dingy and dilapidated condition."

His wife had become entitled to a life annuity, bequeathed to her in these ambiguous terms: "And the same shall be paid to her as long as she is above ground." When, therefore, the good lady died her husband very naturally objected to forfeit his income by putting her below ground and ingeniously devised a mode of keeping her in a room which he allotted "to her sole and separate use," placing a glass case over her remains. For thirty years he thus prolonged his enjoyment, if not of his wife's society, at least of her income.

Da Vinci's Writings.

Although Leonardo da Vinci was a voluminous writer, he never published a single line during his lifetime. After the master's death in France his manuscripts were taken back to Italy. His heirs proved unworthy, and the precious writings were gradually dispersed. Loose pages were often detached and were either given away as relics or stolen. No attempt was made to publish any of his treatises, except that on painting, for more than 300 years after his death. This was partly owing to the great difficulty of deciphering his handwriting. Da Vinci was left handed and always wrote in oriental fashion, from right to left. Besides this, his orthography is peculiar to himself. He abbreviates some words and joins others together and employs neither stops nor accents.—London Chronicle.

The Flag at Trenton.

The flag "that Washington had with him when he crossed the Delaware to attack Trenton" was not the "stars and stripes." Washington crossed the Delaware in December, 1776, and the stars and stripes did not have an existence until the June of 1777, when it was voted into being by the congress. The flag that waved over General Washington on his way to and from Trenton consisted of thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, as at present, with a blue canton emblazoned with the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, as in the British flag. The first time the present stars and stripes were flung to the breeze was on the day of the battle of Oriskany at Fort Stanwix, Aug. 6, 1777.—New York American.

Bad Shots.

A certain Yankee was touring through Devonshire, and, calling at an inn, he ordered some of the famous cider. Not finding it to be what he had expected, he inquired how it was made.

"Oh," said the publican, "we stood a barrel of water at one end of a room and threw apples at it."

This caused a general laugh, but the Yankee was equal to the occasion.

"Waal," he said, "I guess you didn't hit is very often."—London Ideas.

Ways of the Oyster.

Oysters after they have been brought away from the sea know by instinct the exact hour when the tide is rising and approaching their beds and so of their own accord open their shells to receive the food from the sea as if they were still at home.—London Telegraph.

It Reminded Him.

"I have seen in my journeys several tribes," said the traveler, "who voluntarily undergo all sorts of self inflicted lacerations."

"That's nothing," answered Mr. Tutt. "I know a lot of people who insist on shaving themselves."

Great Little Sight.

"Where are you going so fast?"

"My wife has just telephoned me that the baby is asleep, and I am going home to see what it looks like."—Toledo Blade.

What There is to See at the Philanthropic Societies Four Days' Show in the French Building.

Plainfield is having a tag day or rather four of them, without the slightest suggestion of the objectionable street begging features or hold-ups by children that have brought tag days into disrepute in other towns and hurt rather than helped the various worthy causes for which they have been devised. According to the improved methods of this city thousands of men, women and children are tagging themselves voluntarily, with a sense of satisfaction in having done something worth while, to show that they have been to the exposition of the Charity Organization Society and the Anti-Tuberculosis League at French's carriage factory on Somerset street.

It doesn't cost a cent to get in and nobody is asked to contribute a cent. But if anybody can come away from that graphic portrayal of the town's miseries, and of its methods of relief, without at least thinking that he would like to do something to help he is an abnormal person. Hence the rush for the tray of tags which read "I have seen the Welfare Exhibit. Have you?" For this week, at least, that shield-shaped bit of pasteboard is Plainfield's badge of good citizenship. There is one day left in which to qualify, for the exhibit will be open until tomorrow evening. And in connection with it is the free moving picture show at the Y. M. C. A. showing what poverty and disease mean right here in New Jersey's Queen City.

The most satisfactory way of seeing the exhibit is to enter by the north door and then see all the demonstrations in a logical sequence, beginning the walk-around at the display of an outdoor sleeping camp for tuberculosis patients. It ought to be said, right here that the show was visited yesterday by several experts from the Russell Sage Foundation and other big institutions in New York and their verdict was that the social service workers of Plainfield had put together an exhibit which for completeness and effective arrangement had never been excelled. Another comment of these out-of-town experts was that the wide spread interest of Plainfield in its own philanthropic endeavor was something remarkable.

But to return to the walk-around. Beyond the tuberculosis camp with its Klondike beds is the tell-tale light, flashing every thirty seconds to indicate that just as frequently there is a death from consumption. A little figuring shows that at that rate enough people die from that one disease each year to populate nearly one hundred cities of the size of Plainfield. Under the flash light a graphophone reels off some very dismal stories of the same white plague. There is also a chart showing the number of deaths from tuberculosis right here in Plainfield for each year since 1908. Then there is a picture of a musket and of a tuberculosis germ, very large by comparison. In the four years of the Civil War that musket killed 205,070 men. But the death toll of that germ in four years was 600,000.

Next is the "illusion room," an exhibit which, by an ingenious contrivance of changing lights, shows first, a clean, well lighted and ventilated room in which a patient would have a chance for his life, and immediately after that a dark, noisome hole, living in which means sure death. To help drive the lesson home Dr. Harold D. Corbusier is in this department with a micriscope through which any visitor may see the actual germs. Nearby is an arrangement of dolls to show the health class of the C. O. S. which Dr. Edward S. Krans has every Friday afternoon at the Society's rooms in the Babcock building.

There is a chart showing that in the first year of its existence, 1881, the Muhlenberg Hospital had only eleven operations on its records. This year the total has been 680. The C. O. S. has sent 227 cases to the hospital for free treatment since last January.

One exhibit that has come in for a large amount of comment and which has aroused much indignation because of the state of affairs that it demonstrates is a group picture of several helpless old men and women under which is the legend "We are waiting for the Catherine Webster Home." As everybody in Plainfield knows the money for that home was bequeathed long ago and the need for it is very urgent but there is a legal tangle somewhere so the wishes

RUIN AND REDEMPTION HERBERT BOOTH'S TOPIC

"Ruin and Redemption at the Gates of Hell," was the thought of Herbert Booth's sermon last night at the Park Avenue Baptist church, where the evangelist has been conducting revival services all week. There will not be any service tonight. Tomorrow Mr. Booth will speak at both church services, 11 o'clock in the morning and 7:45 o'clock in the evening. At 3:30 in the afternoon he will address a men's mass meeting in the church. Monday night his lecture on, "The Early Christians," will be illustrated with more than a hundred stereopticon views. This will conclude his engagement in Plainfield.

The views used in the lecture were secured by organizing 800 Christian people who were specially costumed and posed in groups surrounded by appropriate scenery painted for the photographs. From the photographs taken the slides were reproduced. They are exquisitely colored by the first slide colorist of Europe.

BERNSTEIN FINED FOR CLUBBING A SQUIRREL

Mistaking a semi-tame squirrel for a muskrat and beating it with a club, afterward leaving it to suffer and die, cost Nathan Bernstein $17.50 in the borough court, last night. The amount represents a fine of $10 and payment of legal expenses as imposed by Recorder Charles Dolliver after the defendant had been given a hearing on a cruelty to animals charge preferred by Mrs. Van Hoesen, special agent of the S. P. C. A. Two hours were required to examine witnesses and allow the lawyers of both sides to present their arguments. City Judge William G. DeMeza conducted the prosecution and Francis J. Blatz represented the defendant.

The act which resulted in Bernstein's apprehension took place in the rear of his residence at 39 Craig place, the yard running back to Green brook. The large trees on the north bank of the stream are infested with squirrels, many of which will eat out of a person's hand. The defendant's only excuse on direct testimony for clubbing the little animal was the story of believing it to be a muskrat. On cross examination he made the remark that he never liked a squirrel, anyway.

"What is the cause of your dislike?" inquired Judge DeMeza.

"Because one them frightened my little girl" was the reply.

The muskrat story was not regarded seriously as several witnesses declared Bernstein had plenty of opportunity to see what sort of an animal he was beating. Those appearing for the prosecution were Dr. C. R. Boston, Harold Underhill, Otto Heinhold, Mrs. Van Hoesen and Chief Marshal Weiss, while Charles Lee, Jr., offered unimportant testimony for the defendant.

YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION BAND OF TRINITY MEETS.

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, a praise and thanksgiving service of unusual interest was held at the church yesterday afternoon. The members of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the church were invited to join in the service and a number attended. The Young Women's Mission Band held a short business meeting at first, of which Mrs. Corra Ryno, as president, was in charge. At this time the envelopes containing the contributions for the support of Dr. Paul W. Harrison, the church missionary in Arabia, were received.

Following the business session there was an interesting program consisting of papers on praise and thanksgiving. Mrs. F. E. Woodruff was in charge of the program and papers were read by Miss Cora Gano, Mrs. A. B. Cole, Mrs. Corra Ryno, Miss Helen Smith and Mrs. Daniel Rapalje. Afterward there was a social hour, during which tea was served under the direction of Miss Helen Smith, assisted by other members of the mission band.

Lodges' Quoit Contest.

Following the election at Columbia lodge, A. O. U. W., last night, which was marked by considerable enthusiasm, there being a large attendance, Workmen Stead and Batterson, of Raritan lodge, New Brunswick, took seven straight games, the series, from all comers in quoit pitching Coumbia could produce. Those teaming against the visitors were V. W. Nash, Sr., Peter Doeringer, D. J. VanWinkle, J. Leslie Lambert, and Warren Townley. This signal victory by the visitors places Raritan Lodge in the lead in the tournament.

STATE VALUATIONS

Over $2,000,000,000. Worth of Property Taxed in New Jersey Now.

AN INCREASE OF $120,000,000.

Union County's Value $144,344,797 and Somerset County's $30,294,704 This Year.

The ratables in each county of the State, which have just been announced, show the valuation in Union county to be $144,344,797.36, an increase of $8,961,307.51 over 1919, and in Somerset county $30,294,704.00, an increase of $925,389.00 over 1910.

The amount of property in New Jersey listed and taxed for local purposes for the year 1911 is $2,166,735,535.16, according to the annual report of the State Board of Equalization of Taxes which was submitted to Governor Wilson today. This is an increase of $120,837,321.31 over the ratables of 1910.

These totals include second-class railroad property, which is a part of the local ratables under chapter 91 of the laws of 1905, but do not include the main stem, rolling stock, etc., of railroads, which are assessed by the State Board at the average tax rate of the State. The average tax rate of the State this year is $1.896 per $100 of valuation, as against $1.856 for 1910.

The taxes to be raised locally this year on the foregoing valuations, as apportioned to various purposes, is as follows:

State school tax, $5,523,663.05, as against $5,265,658.10 for 1910.

County taxes, $9,188,316.10, as against $8,428,918.15 for 1910.

Local budgets, $26,394,120.25, as against $24,115,347.86 for 1910.

The ratables this year are divided as follows:

Real estate, exclusive of second class railroad property	$1,790,446,829
Second class railroad property	99,978,394
Personal estate	280,634,359
Deductions for debt.	6,385,098

Of the great increase in ratables this year, $114,000,000 is on real estate. The heaviest increase in ratables is reported from Essex county, the increase being $36,000,000, in round numbers. Hudson county shows an increase of about $27,000,000; Union county nearly $9,000,000; Bergen county, about $7,000,000; Atlantic county, $8,500,000, of which $5,000,000 is in Atlantic City; Middlesex, more than $3,000,000; Monmouth county, over $4,000,000; Passaic county, over $6,000,000.

The board earnestly renews the recommendation made in its last annual report, with respect to the method of choosing assessors and the enlargement of the assessing districts. The board would have each county, rather than municipality, an assessment unit. It insists that assessors should be appointed rather than elected. It urges that the Legislature pass laws that will tend more to prevent errors in assessment, so that so much time will not be required in correcting errors.

Radical reforms are urged in the methods of taxing personal property. The board declares that either legislation should be passed to insure greater equality and uniformity, or an entirely new scheme should be devised for subjecting personal property to its fair share of the tax burden. The present law for the taxation of bank stock is criticised, and the board recommends that the New York method be adopted here, which has for its basis the book value of the bank shares. The rate is one per cent. and no deductions of any kind are allowed, not even for real estate, which is taxed separately at local rates. The board does not endorse this double taxation feature, but believes that in other respects a similar plan would work out satisfactorily in this State, since it would insure more revenue for the taxing districts, and certainty, equality and uniformity to the banks.

Stereopticon Service.

There will be a special stereoptican service at the Salvation Army this evening at 8 o'clock. Among the pictures will be "The Great Supper," "The Story of Daniel," "Let the Lower Light Be Burning," etc. In the past these Saturday evening stereopticon services have been beneficial and a goodly number have attended. Admission will be free and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

Special Music.

The quartet choir of the first M. E. church will give a special musical service on Sunday evening, at which time they will sing Maunder's oratorio, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace."

MAGUIRE HONORED

Royal Geographical Society of London Confer Title on Local Pastor.

DISCOVERED SOURCE OF RIVER.

From Which $3,000,000 Worth of Mahogany, Rubber and Copper Were Shipped Last Year.

Rev. Gabriel Reed Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, received official notification, yesterday, to the effect that the title of F. R. G. S. had been conferred upon him by the Royal Geographical Society, of London. The honor is one that is only achieved through personal efffort in adding to the world's knowledge of territory unknown or but little explored.

The achievement by Mr. Maguire which the English society reognized was the discovery of the source of the Lubusi river in Mount Koramsa, Central Africa, fifteen years ago. He followed it from its rise to the Chloloanga river and thence to the ocean, mapping a new territory previously unknown to white men. It abounds in mahogany, rubber, copper and palm kernels. Exports amounting to $3,000,000 were shipped from the district last year. The discovery has been under consideration by the officers of the society and word of its action was forwarded to this section by its secretary, Colonel Sir Charles F. Close.

The Royal Geographical Society was organized in 1830 for the advancement of geographical science and received its royal charter from Queen Victoria in 1859. Its work is world- wide and no discovery or exploration of note has failed to receive recognition from it. The title of F. R. G. S., however, has been conferred only after exhaustive inquiry and deliberation.

The officers of the society at the present time are the following: President, Admiral Sir Lewis Beaumount, K. C. B., K. C. N. G.; vice presidents, Rt. Honorable Lord Curzon, G. C. S. I., G. C. I. E., and Rt. Honorable Sir J. West Ridgeway, G. C. B., G. C. N. G., K. C. S. I., L. L. D., and treasurer, Lord Belhaven, K. C. L., F. R. G. S.

MRS. MARIE PAUL IS FINED $250

Judge E. S. Atwater in the court of Special Sessions at Elizabeth on Wednesday imposed a fine of $250 on Mrs. Marie Paul, of West Fourth street, for an illegal operation performed in this city several months ago. The woman is a professional midwife and more than 60 years old. Her attorney, Frank Blatz, produced letters signed by a dozen physicians of Jersey City, where the woman formerly lived, a letter signed by Mayor G. W. V. Moy, and a petition, to which were affixed seventy-five signatures, asking that mercy be shown Mrs. Paul.

Nellie A. Taylor, the colored woman arrested in a raid on a "speak easy" on Cottage place, some time ago, was sent to the State prison at Trenton for a term of not less than one year nor more than three years. Her companion in the raid and the proprietor of the house, Tony Mango was sentenced to serve not less than a year and a half nor more than three in State Prison.

Robert Newton Crane, counsel for William Richter, arraigned for sentence on a serious charge made by a twelve-year-old boy, asked for a new trial on the ground that some of the evidence put before the jury was illegal and that one of the most important witnesses for the defendant was in Asbury Park and not in Fanwood on October 7, 1910, when the crime is alleged to have been committed. The court reserved decision.

Funeral of Mrs. J. A. Lloyd.

The funeral of Mrs. John A. Lloyd was held at the late home on West Front street at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, there being a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

PYTHIANS GATHER

Grand Lodge Officers Speak at a District Meeting of Fraternal Order.

PARADE THROUGH STREETS.

Bound Brook, Somerville, Neshanic, Three Bridges, Flemington and Plainfield Lodges Represented at Session.

Pythianism locally experienced a red-letter night last night when hundreds of knights gathered here in an open meeting of District No. 20, of the order. In addition to Plainfield the district includes Bound Brook, Somerville, Neshanic, Three Bridges, Flemington and country surrounding these towns. All of them sent large delegations, a special train having been obtained for the purpose. The Flemington members were accompanied by the concert band of that place, and after their arrival in this city a short march was made through the business section.

The Grand Lodge officers present, all of whom made speeches, were Grand Chancellor Harry Keeler, of Newark; Grand Vice Chancellor William D. Quick, of Somerville; Supreme Representative P. Frank Shanley, of Jersey City; District Deputy William Edgar, of Neshanic; Members of the Grand Tribunal Judge L. H. Schenck, of Neshanic, and Prosecutor Fred A. Pope, of Somerville, and Past Grand Chancellor John Ulrich. Mayor-elect Robert Clark, Jr., of the borough, also occupied a seat on the platform and extended a welcome to the visitors.

The meeting was held in Sebring's Auditorium following a business meeting in Perseverance lodge's rooms in the Babcock building. Samuel J. Robinson called the knights to order and placed Grand Chancellor Harry Keeler in charge of the meeting. In a brief address he expressed his gratification at the apparenty enthusiastic response to the call for the meeting and the personal pleasure afforded him in being present. All of the speakers introduced talked on the tenets of the order which 47 years ago was founded in Washington by Justus H. Rathbone. It now has a membership of more than 700,000 and is a world power among fraternal organizations.

Aside from the speeches the band played several selections and a quartet sang between speeches. Those comprising the committee in charge were S. J. Robinson, Donald McInnis, G. W. Clark, Thomas Osment, John Bicknell, Thomas Caleen and E. Compton.

The quartet was composed of John W. Daub, R. S. McAfee, Morris Warrick and James Fanton. They are known as the Monroe Avenue church quartet.

CHOIR ENTERTAINMENT NETS $100 FOR FUND.

Another large attendance marked the second presentation of the bazaar and entertainment at Grace M. E. church, last night. The various booths and attractions were accorded a generous patronage and practically everything was sold. As a result of the undertaking, the church choir will net about $100 for its fund.

The "kinder symphony" was repeated last night, and two new numbers made up a pleasing program. The first was a song number, "Three Little Maids from Japan," presented by the Misses Edna Mantz, Madeline Walker and Helen Nelson. They wore appropriate costumes and sang several pretty selections. The concluding number was entitled "Charity Higgins' Vocal Organs," and provided much amusement. The musical scale was represented by eight girls' faces peeping through a curtain. At the touch of a baton held by Miss Florence Nichols each "note" was sounded, producing several songs, among them "Home, Sweet Home" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Those appearing in the number were the Misses Evelyn Nelson, Elizabeth Hoagland, Florence Hoagland, Edna Mantz, Constance Swackhamer, Elizabeth Voorhees and Mildred Harden.

Special Services at Grace Church.

During the Advent season which begins tomorrow, there will be special preachers at Grace church, at the 4:30 service in the afternoon. The first preacher will be the Rev. Louis Shreve Osborne, rector of Trinity church, Newark, instead of Rev. Philemon S. Sturger, as previously announced. The service will be preceded by a half hour's organ recital by S. Frederick Smith, organist of the church.

Percy Sandford, formerly of this city, spent Thanksgiving Day with his brother, Fred Sandford, of Sycamore avenue.

PLANNING TO FORM CRICKET CLUB HERE

Dr. Boyce W. Knight, of 1229 East Second street, himself a cricket player, has started a movement to organize a cricket club in this city, and already he has been successful in securing the interest of a number of people, including Robert Meggy, Robert Meggy, Jr., of Fanwood; Stephen Britton and Jack Britton, of this city, and R. B. Keating, of New York.

The plan is to form an organization during the winter and have everything in readiness for playing the game next spring. It is argued that if Bound Brook can support a cricket club, Plainfield should be able to accomplish as much. It is estimated that there are at least forty or fifty residents of this city and vicinity who are either cricket players or interested to the extent of forming a club. Those who are interested are requested to communicate with Dr. Knight and a little later arrangements will be made for holding a meeting and perfecting an organization.

B.R. WALDRON RESIGNS FROM BORO COUNCIL

Barzilla R. Waldron, of Codington avenue, who has been a member of the Borough Council for the past five years, tendered his resignation at the regular monthly meeting of that body, last night. It was accepted after considerable discussion during which a motion to lay the matter over for a week or two was lost. A successor will be appointed by Mayor Smalley at a special session of the Council next Friday night.

When Mr. Waldron's resignation was read by the clerk, it carried the explantion that business interests at Califon, where he has a large creamery, prevented his giving the office the time it demanded. Mr. Woolston made a motion that was seconded by Mr. Stahl that the matter be laid over. The reason for this, he said, was because he had been informed that Mr. Waldron had remarked that if he could arrange certain matters at Califon he might be enabled to remain in the Council. "Who told you that?" inquired Mr. Milne.

Mr. Woolston replied that Judge Isaac P. Runyon had, whereupon Councilman Smalley retorted: "Mr. Runyon must have his 'dates' mixed. That isn't what Mr. Waldron said; it's what Mr. Runyon wanted him to do."

Mr. Woolston's motion went by the board and another one by Mr. Milne immediately afterward that the resignation be accepted was carried. Messrs. Milne, Smalley and Van Arsdale voting aye and Messrs. Woolston and Stahl no.

Mayor Smalley expressed regret that Mr. Waldron could not see his way clear to remain in the Council as he had faithfully discharged the duties incumbent upon him. The executive further stated that as the retiring councilman had been elected by the people it devolved upon him sor who would best carry out Mr. Waldron's ideas. He would announce Wadron's ideas. He would announce his choice, he said, at the adjourned session December 8.

"THE TOWN MARSHAL" AT THEATRE TONIGHT.

Whatever else may be said of O. E. Wee's new production "The Town Marshal," which comes to the Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight, the charge of imitation of other plays cannot be made. "The Town Marshal" is a new rural comedy in four acts, by that noted playwright, Lem B. Parker, and is one of the season's successes. The play virtually breaks new ground in the dramatic field, and should prove a veritable surprise when the curtain rises. It is built upon a thoroughly modern theme, viz: The influence of thought on the lives and well being of the men and women of our present day.

That thought, intangible and evanscent as it is, is still a force, a power, a theory that has for sometime past engaged the serious attention of our foremost psychologists, but its portrayal upon the stage has heretofore been neglected.

Thanksgiving Tribute.

The Sunday school of the Crescent Avenue church Sunday school tomorrow will make an offering of money, toys, books and clothing as its Thanksgiving tribute for Sunday school work in the Northwest, where Rev. Mr. McCombs is partly supported by its contributions. Mr. McCombs has written such warm reports of the grateful appreciation of his charges for these small gifts that it is hoped every member of the school will increase his efforts to make this work a success. All gifts must reach the church before noon on Monday.

FUNERAL BY COURT

Vice Chancellor to Supervise Burial of the DeFestetics' Child.

INTERMENT TO BE IN THIS CITY

No Monument Without Permission of Court Who Orders That All Disputes Be Brought to Him for Settlement.

Vice Chancellor Howell, sitting in the Chancery Court in Newark yesterday, decided that the court would bury the body of Dwight De Festetics, for the custody of which the child's parents, Guyla De Festetics, of this city, and his wife, Mrs. Elsie H. De Festetics, of New York, have been fighting in the court. The body has been in a receiving vault for nearly a year.

By the court's decision the funeral arrangements will be made by a master to be appointed, who will have absolute charge of the interment. The parents will be permitted to be present, but the master will be directed to prevent any scene at the grave. No monument or mausoleum is to be erected without express permission of the court. The matter of a monument was one of the issues in the litigation.

De Festetics and his wife separated about twelve years ago. Since that time, the Count says, he has been living in Plainfield "in exile." Mrs. De Festetics is now living in New York, where she has a case pending against her husband. The refusal of the Count to go into the jurisdiction of the courts of New York State brought his wife's case to a halt temporarily.

Dwight De Festetics died here in June, 1910, at the age of 12, and the father, in whose custody the boy had been since the separation in 1906, had the body put in a receiving vault in the Hillside cemetery. Mrs. De Festetics obtained a temporary injunction preventing the burial as planned by the father.

The Vice Chancellor orders that the burial be in the Hillside Cemetery in a plot to be provided by the father, but subject as to location and suitableness to the approval of the master. If a religious service be desired at the grave it must be conducted under the supervision of the master. The parents are to have equal rights of access to the grave; disputes to be settled upon application to the court.

The decision further provides that the expenses shall be borne by the father, and that in the event of failure to make such provisions within fifteen days after service upon him of a copy of the decree further application may be made on behalf of the mother for relief.

It is the opinion of Vice Chancellor Howell that while "the cases in New Jersey afford but little light on the De Festetics case," they have settled three propositions:

"That there is no property right in a dead body; that after a body shall have been buried it is in the custody of the law; that the removal of a body once buried is subject to the jurisdiction of the court."

Robert Newton Crane and Charles Homann, of Perth Amboy, counsel for Mr. De Festetics, have appealed from the ruling of the vice chancellor in those parts which restrict the erection of a monuument and prevent any other body ever being buried in the same plot, which is stipulated as being a single grave to be selected subject as to location to the master superintending the burial.

JUNIOR MISSION BAND HOLD SUCCESFUL SALE.

The Junior Mission Band of the First Baptist church held a delightful entertainment and successful sale at the church, yesterday afternoon, the proceeds being for the mission work in Alaska, the band contributing to the support of the Baptist Orphanage at Wood Island, by sending clothing, etc., to the orphans.

The first part of the program was devoted to a display of a large number of postal cards by means of a projectoscope and a fine talk by Miss Linda Butler. The cards showed scenes in Mexico, where Miss Butler lived for several years. Afterward there was a musical program, there being piano, violin and 'cello selections by the Misses Charlotte and Elsie Verschuur and Gladys Lee. Mrs. J. A. Powlison gave an interesting talk to the Juniors, after which there was a sale of cake, candy and fancy articles, in charge of the members of the band, and a considerable sum was realized as profit.

Miriam S. Robson.

Miriam S. Robson, the 8-months'-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Robson, of 237 Somerset street, died this morning. The funeral will be held at the late residence Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Plainfield women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of gravel, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan Kidney Pills should be ued. Here's proof of their merit in a Plainfield woman's words:

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Yo umay continue to publish my endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills which I gave in August, 1905. I endured much misery from backache which was caused by my kidneys. Many nights I was unable to rest at all and when I arose in the morning, my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Whenever I caught the least cold, it settled on my kidneys and any strain in my mack always made the aches and pains worse. I was treated by physicians but their medicine did not help me and it was not until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store, that I had any hope of getting rid of my trouble. This preparation made me feel like a different person and I have never had any serious trouble since. I use Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile however, and they keep my kidneys in good working order."

M'ADAMS' RETIREMENT NOT YET ACTED UPON

The failure of Governor Wilson to act on the resignation of Robert H. McAdams from the Union County Board of Elections is a political mystery here, which no one seems to be able to solve. The resignation was sent to the Governor a month ago, when Mr. McAdams was a candidate for State Senator, and it was expected that it would be accepted before election. In view of this, the Union County Democratic Committee indorsed Councilman George H. Schlotterer, of Elizabeth, for the position.

Election passed and no action was taken by the Governor, and then the propriety of Mr. McAdams sitting on the board while it compiled the official returns arose. It was finally decided that Mr. McAdams was a member of the board until his resignation was formally accepted, and he sat with his colleagues, but took no part in the count of the Senatorial vote.

Mr. McAdams was defeated at the election, and soon afterward the Governor left on a vacation, leaving the resignation not acted upon. Mr. McAdams said today that he had heard nothing from the Governor in regard to the matter. It is now believed that the State executive will either take no action at all on the resignation or that he will decline to accept it and that Mr. McAdams will serve out his term, which does not expire until next year.

DROPS FROM PORCH TO ESCAPE FLAMES.

The home of Albert Segler, at 1462 Munn avenue, Lyons Farms, was totally destroyed by fire early Thursday morning. The damage is estimated at about $7,200.

Segler was alone in the house and was awakened by the smoke pouring into his room. Rushing out into the hall he found the stairs in flames. He made his escape by climbing out of a window of his room to a porch and then dropping to the ground. A bucket brigade, composed of Segler and several neighbors, was quickly organized, but was unable to combat the blaze successfully. An alarm was sent in to both the Newark and Elizabeth fire departments, but by the time help arrived the blaze had destroyed the residence.

One of the bucket brigade, in breaking the front door of the house in an effort to save some of the furniture, was badly cut about the hands by some falling glass. A spark from the Segler house started a small fire in an unoccupied house nearby.

Mr. Segler is unable to account for the blaze, which started on the lower floor of the house. His family was out of town over the holidays and he had gone to bed about an hour before he discovered the fire. The house was a two-story frame structure. None of the household effects was saved.

TO TEST LEGALITY OF ELISOR JURIES

Trenton, Dec. 2.—Following the decisions of the Supreme Court against former Sheriff Enoch L. Johnson and Frank Bowman in Atlantic county, Justice Swayze has refused to quash the fifteen indictments, with twenty-two counts, found by the elisor-drawn Grand Jury in Hudson county against County Collector Stephen M. Egan. In each county the question was raised by counsel for the defendants that the sheriff had been illegally disqualified and that it was not legal to select the juries through elisors.

In each county the case will have to go on trial, and so the legality of this method of taking the selection of Grand Juries out of the hands of the sheriffs will be fully tested. It is the general opinion around the State House that the question was threshed out by the Supreme Court justices before the rule to overrule the sheriff was made in either county, and that, therefore, on any question effecting the legality of the naming of elisors, and consequently elisor-drawn Grand Juries, the decision will be against the defendants. Of course, the guilt of the defendants, or the question of whether there was any basis for the indictments, be quite another matter for the court to decide.

GOURLEY AND McBRIDE JOIN AGAINST WILSON.

Passaic county Democrats, headed by former State Chairman William B. Gourley, have started a movement to oppose the nomination of Governor Woodrow Wilson for the Presidency. It is said that although Mayor McBride, of Paterson, has not announced himself on the question, he will join Gourley, who is outspoken in his opposition to Governor Wilson.

Congressman William Hughes, of Paterson, is a strong Wilson man, and former State Senator John Hinchcliffe is also for Wilson, so the line-up is Hughes and Hinchliffe against Gourley and McBride. It is said that Mayor McBride will be a candidate for one of the delegates to the Democratic national convention from his district. Congressman Hughes will also be a candidate for convention honor. If he runs, Mayor McBride will do so as an unpledged delegate, while Congressman Hughes will run as an avowed Wilson candidate.

A majority of the county committee are for Wilson, though some of the members of the committee admit that there is some anti-Wilson sentiment in the county. A member of the committee states that, notwithstanding some show of opposition, the convention delegates from the Sixth District will be pledged to Governor Wilson.

Clarence Hand, of Fairview avenue, with a party of friends, witnessed the Cornell-Penn football game at Philadelphia, yesterday.

CRITICISM OF VERDICT IN PATTERSON TRIAL.

Denver, Col., Dec. 2.—A storm of criticism has been aroused in Colorado by the findings of the jury in the case of Gertrude Gibson Patterson. She was acquitted late Wednesday, of the murder of her husband.

Thanksgiving services in the auditorium were converted into a meeting denunciatory of the Patterson case by Rev. H. Martyn Hatt, dean of the Episcopal cathedral. He stirred the audience when he declared:

"I am ashamed of the judge, I am ashamed of the jury and I would be ashamed of myself unless I cried out against this travesty on righteousness. I am ashamed of the people who applauded this verdict. I ask you to stand up and say that this thing shall stop. It is a disgrace to the country. I find there are more murders in Denver than in London, and I expect to be murdered myself some day."

Governor Shafroth, Prosecutor Benson and a score of other prominent men and clubwomen all issued statements denouncing the jury's action as unwarranted and based wholly on sentiment.

Mrs. Patterson will ask the courts to give her back her maiden name of Gibson. Judge Hilton, her attorney, said his client would not run away from the criticism leveled at her.

WANT SOME WOMEN IN SCHOOL BOARD.

Resolutions requesting Mayor-elect William N. Adams, of Summit, to name one or two women as members of the school board he is to appoint soon, have been forwarded to him by the Fortnightly Club. The resolutions were adopted by the club at its last meeting. Mrs. Horace R. MacNellie is president of the club.

For Medicinal Purposes Speer Wines.

Stand the highest among the profession they are just the wines required for the weakly and aged. The Speer N. J. Wine Co., at Passaic, N. J., made the first Port Wine, Burgundy and Claret in America over 40 years ago, and have the oldest and finest stock of these wines now on hand absolutely free from all deposits. It takes years for wines to deposit all their coarse unhealthy parts.

The new organ at Holy Cross church will be used for the first time at the services tomorrow morning and evening.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY

Another sale of Women's Clipped Beaver Hats, in navy, brown and grey; while they last at $1.98

Our Underwear stock includes every desirable style for every member of the family and in every desirable quality, while prices are the fairest possible.

Merely because we do not advertise our underwear department as freely as other departments isn't any reason at all to believe it is not worthy of special mention—because it is—fact is it's important enough to be advertised every day. You'd think so too if you knew how exacting we are with manufacturers to FORCE them to deliver to us the right weights, sizes that are ample and well fitting and qualities and prices that measure up to OUR standard of value-giving.

Our plan has been to make this season's underwear stock noticeably better and bigger than any season heretofore and it is—it is the largest and best underweak stock in all of Plainfield. We are ready to meet your every requirement in Fall and Winter underwear for any member of the family.

We're sole agents in Plainfield for Merode Hand Finished Underwear for women

Merode underwear for women and misses need no introduction from us as to their superior quality and superior fit. They are carefully made of best yarns and in sizes properly proportioned. A 36 size is 36—not 34 or 38. And Merode underwear costs the same as you pay for inferior makes.

Root's Underwear for men and boys

Men who know need not be told that Roots' underwear is recognized as the best. Those who have bought Roots' Underwear heretofore have learned of its superior quality and correctly proportioned sizes. We've, by far, the very largest stock of Roots' Underwear in all of Plainfield. Prices are exceedingly moderate.

Did You Ever Hear a Doll Talk?

We mean talk and say something. It's whispered that all the dolls in our Christmas doll display talk at night after the lights are out. We have never heard them, but their conversations have been reported. They run like this:

First Doll—"I've picked out my mama. She wears a blue coat and her hair hangs down in two long yellow braids."

Second Doll—"How nice! I've picked out the house I'm going to live in. It's big and square and stands on the corner. I shall be hung on the tip-top of the Christmas tree in the parlor on Christmas Eve."

Chorus of Dolls—"How we wish Christmas would come!"

Dear things! They're getting so anxious to be bought and paid for and carried home to be cuddled and loved by some little mother. We hope none of our dolls will be left behind, for we feel as if they were real children some how. HOW would you like your real child to have to spend a long Christmas Day in a big, closed up store? Ask your mama to buy your dolls first, for fear she forgets. We've got a wonderful display, and you'll be suited in price, we're sure, whether you buy a dressed doll or an undressed one.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

William H. Crane has begun his term as an actor-manager at the Garrick Theatre, New York, most auspiciously. His present vehicle, "The Senator Keeps House," by Martha Morton, is declared by the critics to be the most delightful and wholesome play of Washington life ever written. One reviewer writes that the play "is the best straignt comedy offering Broadway has seen in ten years." Mr. Crane's opening night was a gracious renewal of old friendships. His role, that of Senator Christopher Larkin, of the Northwest, is a typical Crane part, wholesome, whimsical and distinctly of the American type, which is so popular in the fiction and the drama. The actor-manager has surrounded himself with a good company including Mabel Bert, Harry Harwood, Lorraine Frost, and William Winter Jefferson, the son of the late Joseph Jefferson, with whom Mr. Crane appeared in "The Rivals."

Donald Brian, now star in "The Siren," was singing and dancing, rather ingloriously, in a piece called "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway" some four or five years ago. In a roundabout way it came to him that an open competition was to be held at the Astor Theatre, New York, for the role of "Prince Danilo" in "The Merry Widow." He mentioned the fact to his doctor and today the doctor confesses urging Mr. Brian with "all his might" to enter the competition at once, "so I could get him out of my office and let in some of the other patients from the waiting room." Mr. Brian followed medical advice. He sang one song, danced one number and was then called "out front" by the manager of "The Merry Widow." "What is your salary?" asked the manager. "Why, I have been getting $250," was the answer. "I'll toss a coin with you whether it will be $200 or $250." "Done!" said the actor; and by the flip of a coin Donald Brian lost $2,000 on his season's salary. But what he lost he more than gained. His success as "Prince Danilo" brought him fame and multiplied his market value as a star ten times over.

No American composer has received such lavish praise as has been bestowed upon Victor Herbert, by the New York critics, for his delightful comic opera "The Enchantress," in which beautiful Kitty Gordon is now appearing at the New York theatre. "After clouds, sunshine," says Acton Davies in The Evening Sun. "Whatever else you fail to hear in musical comedy this season, don't miss 'The Enchantress.' Its score is one long series of delightful numbers." "If people in large numbers," observes Adolph Klauber, dramatic critic of The Times, "do not go to see 'The Enchantress' it will be their loss. To begin with, Mr. Herbert has written in his most charming vein or veins, for he is a versatile musician, and he has scored some of his melodies so delightfully that no small amount of pleasure is derived from the orchestra." "'The Enchantress' is luring and lively," says Louis De Foo, the well known critic of The World, "and deserves the welcome that it received at the New York Theatre. It is the best musical piece in town. In generous measure, there are vivacious, lusty rhythms and swinging marches such as no other of our American composers can write.

RIOT FOLLOWS TEARING DOWN OF ITALIAN FLAG.

A riot occurred at Red Bank Thursday night, when Frederick Weberling tore down an Italian flag hanging in front of Alfonso Nicoletti's store on Monmouth street. Weberling was in front of the store when the flag brushed against his face. He yanked it down and drove his heel through the emblem. Nicoletti called on his Italian friends for help, and in a short time Italians and Americans were fighting.

The Americans finally drove the Italians off the streets. Nicoletti called on the police for help.

D. FOSTER UPDIKE'S Amusements!

TURKEY.

Gobble, gobble, gobble, gobble. Some of you will gobble up a whole turkey tomorrow, and then you will not be thanks giving.

GOBBLE.

You will go out and gobble up some Real Estate from the advise of some inexperienced person or firm and then you will let me give you the exact situation as to your property. Then you will want to be sea-sick and can't.

SITUATION.

Do you know that Real Estate is the safest investment one can make by 100%? Did it ever occur to you that from the time you are born until the time the undertaker is through with you, you are compelled to have something to do with Real Estate? If you are at home that is Real Estate. No matter where you go, you are on or in someone's Real Estate. What you eat comes from the farm or Real Estate. In other words the demand for Real Estate is greater than for any other one thing.

LOOSE MONEY.

There is no reason to loose money in buying Real Estate if you know how. But the reason you do loose is because you either take your own advise or the advise of a lawyer or Banker. Would you ask a plumber about a watch?

You don't know that about one-third or more of houses are a detriment to the lot. In other words, a lot would very often be worth more without a house than it is with it. Buy from one who has had a life-time's experience.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Nanking still resisted the rebel attack.

Stocks were dull and irregular in New York yesterday.

The British government, urged to intervene in Persia's behalf, declined.

Cardinal Farley definitely abandoned his intention of returning from Rome before Christmas.

Charles S. Francis, proprietor of "The Troy Times," and ex-Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, died at Troy, N. Y.

An Illinois Central passenger train was ditched near Paducah, Ky.; four persons were killed and a score or more injured.

Brooklyn civic workers decided to oppose Commissioner Waldo's plan to erect a borough police headquarters in Poplar street.

Dynamiters blew up a trolley car at Hill Top Station, near Birmingham, Ala.; the motorman and conductor were badly injured.

An elevator fell eight stores in the New York Life Insurance Building, New York, but of the ten occupants only two were seriously hurt.

By the will of Elijah M. Topliff, an attorney at Manchester, N. H., filed at Nashua, N. H., Dartmouth College will eventually receive about $200,000.

Governor Dix, at Albany, appointed delegates to the National Rivers and Harbors Congress at Washington and the National Irrigation Congress at Chicago.

Superintendent Van Tuyl, of the New York State Banking Department, closed the State Savings Bank, pending a complete examination of its affairs.

Russia ordered an advance on Teheran following the rejection of its demand for the dismissal of Morgan Shuster from the Persian government's councils.

Yuan Shih-kai was reported about to offer an autonomous form of government to the provinces and thus secure the $30,000,000 loan negotiated by Baron Cottu.

The report of the Tariff Board on the wool schedule will be in President Taft's hands by December 11; reports of dissension in the board were officially denied.

Herbert Montagu, a British army lieutenant, had his commission cancalled for joining the Turkish forces in Tripoli, has action being adjudged a breach of neutrality.

A Christian Scientist whose child died from diphtheria under a "healer's" care was arrested in New York on a charge of homicide because she did not call in a physician.

The members of the board of surveyors appointed to examine the wreck of the Maine were about to sail from Havana for home, when they received orders from Washington to remain.

The legality of the subway contracts was established by a decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in New York denying the petition of the Admiral Realty Company for an injunction.

The Osceola County (Fla.) Grand Jury failed to find an indictment against Egbert Gillette, a Shaker, charged with assisting Sadie Marchant "out of life" by administering chloroform at her own request.

Penn Cole and Frederick Mason, Cornell students, rescued the Misses Margaret and Josephine Mahoney, of Boston, from the burning home of their hostess, Mrs. A. M. Burke, at Merion, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Democratic Assembly district leaders in Brooklyn opposed to McCooey as head of the party there held a conference and found, they said, they could count on a majority in the county committee for his deposition.

Women employes of the Hotel Ansonia, New York, testified that Miss Graham had sought Mr. Stokes many times while she was living in his hotel, and had on one occasion made a scene by trying to drink something from a small bottle.

James B. McNamara pleaded guilty to having placed a bomb under the Los Angeles Times Building, causing the death of twenty-one persons; John J. McNamara pleaded guilty to having caused the explosion at the Llewellyn Iron Works; sentence was deferred; it was said the death penalty would not be imposed.

PASSING OF THE CHURN MAKES BUTTER HIGHER.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 2.—Creamery butter is selling here today at 45 cents, 8 to 10 cents higher than at this time last year, and local commission men say it will go several cents higher in the next few days.

In previous years, they say, the market at this season has been flooded with country butter sold by farmers' wives and daughters, laying in their "Christmas money," and this kept the prices down. This year there has been little country butter offered, and the reason assigned is the decreasing popularity of the churn with the average farmer's wife.

—Franklin Lowe, of Fairview avenue, has purchased a Marsh-Metz six horse power twin cylinder motocycle.

THE DAILY PRESS.
Plainfield, N. J., December 2, 1911.

SEVERAL CANDIDATES FOR JOB OF SEALER

Appointment of a county sealer of weights and measures will be made at the meeting of the Board of Freeholders in Elizabeth on Thursday, it is now understood. From various reliable sources it has been learned that John Farrell, of Rahway, is a prominent candidate. Freeholders who are supporting him appear confident he will be the choice of the majority. Former Assemblyman Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth, and Samuel Duckat, of Rahway, are likewise aspirants. Mr. Farrell is a former freeholder, and he was recently elected councilman-at-large in Rahway by a record-breaking majority.

The Democratic minority of the board will, in all likelihood, present the name of W. J. Bender, sealer of weights and measures in Elizabeth. He has been urged to permit the use of his name, and it has been reported there was some belief on the part of his friends that enough freeholders could be won over to the support of the Elizabeth candidate to give him the appointment. It is said, however, that Mr. Bender himself does not regard this as a probability.

The appointment of a county sealer of weights and measures is required by a law passed at the last session of the Legislature. The maximum salary is $1,500. The sealer of weights and measures will have jurisdiction over every part of the county except in municipalities where local sealers are employed. None of the sixteen cities, towns, and boroughs of Union has a sealer except Elizabeth. The present Rahway sealer is without the semblance of an equipment, so the new sealer will have a considerable range of country to look after.

As the law relating to the appointment was adopted owing to the prevalence of short weights and illegal measures, alleged to exist by those who made a thorough study of the situation, the new position is not likely to be a sinecure.

$10,000 LOSS BY FIRE IN FIREWORKS FACTORY.

The plant of the Essex Novelty Company, at Berkeley Heights, manufacturers of fireworks, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday, entailing a loss of $10,000. The factory was owned by Benedict Wolf, of Newark, who when he arrived on the scene at 10 o'clock, found nothing but smoldering ruins.

The blaze started on the first floor, where sparklers and caps were manufactured. Between fifteen and twenty girls were employed at the plant, and all these got out safely. Vito Daelo was on the second floor when the fire started. Finding egress cut off by way of the stairs, he jumped to the ground, but was not hurt.

The building was formerly a hotel, and twice during its construction was blown down.

LODGE ELECTS A. C. NASH AS ITS MASTER WORKMAN.

These were elected officers of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., last night: Master Workman, A. C. Nash; foreman, Frank Legge; overseer, J. Leslie Lambert; guide, John John Calder; recorder, R. H. Loughlin; financier, Frank Putnam; receiver, Henry Liefke; inside watchman, J. F. Sheppard; outside watchman, Martin Koller; trustee, three years, R. V. Kinney; representative to grand lodge, Peter Doerenger and R. V. Kinney; alternates, Frank Putnam and R. H. Loughlin; medical examiners, Drs. Carman, Buchanan and Adams.

The officers will be installed at the first meeting in January by one of the grand lodge officials, announcement of which will be made later.

A Family Reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Porter, of West Third street, had a family reunion at their home Thursday afternoon. A sumptuous dinner was served at 2 o'clock. Decorations of yellow chrysanthemums were in the parlor and white chrysanthemums in the dining room. Those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. John Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McVoy, Miss Annie L. Porter, and Albert Porter, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. George W. Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. David F. Shea, Mr. and Mrs. William Porter and John A. Porter, of New York.

—The police have a report of a dog being killed on West Second street sometime during the night by an automobile.

BUTTERICK PATTERNS — Woodhull & Martin Co. — BUTTERICK PATTERNS

HIGH PRICES AFFECT POOR DEPARTMENT

Considerable routine business engaged the attention of the North Plainfield councilmen at the last regular meeting for 1911 held last night. There will be an adjourned meeting next Friday night to dispose of several matters and that will probably be the last time the present Council will meet together.

Collector Brown's report showed that there is a balance of $16,336.46 on hand; this amount included $30 collected in fines by Recorder Dolliver in the police court during the month. The bond of $500 of William H. Pangborn as constable was found satisfactory and accepted.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Fred Becker asked for an additional $200 as the cost of food stuffs is so high that his appropriation had all been used up and there are at present a number of cases of need in the borough which ought to be given relief. Dr. Dundon also made a request for $200 additional to the Board of Health appropriation in order to meet expenses and start the new year without any debt incumbrance. Both of these requests were laid over until the meeting to be held next Friday.

A petition from a number of residents of Park place between Duer and Grove streets, was received requesting the installation of a light at a given point. Referred to the proper committee. The sum of $100 was appropriated to have the books of the collector and clerk audited. $40 was appropriated to purchase new uniforms for the firemen.

The sum of $50 was appropriated to repair the retaining wall on Washington avenue near the Park Club. It was estimated that this would be the expense for labor and the Park Club made the proposition to furnish all the material for doing the work.

The following building permits were granted: William Coban, addition to house on Dupont street; William Titus, dwelling on Stoney Brook place; Joseph Genisman, addition to dwelling on Harmony street; Mrs. Sophie Smith, shop on rear of lot on Grandview avenue; Lulu B. Speacer, barn on rear of lot on Lincoln place; T. J. Freeman, house on Brook avenue near Westervelt; W. G. Debele, store and dwelling on Somerset street, and Henry Bishop, dwelling on Pearl street and Watchung avenue.

In the Borough Court.

A man describing himself as Harvey Hawkes, a machinist, got mussy at a ball in Saengerbund Hall, last night, and refused to quiet down when warned by Special Officer Eric Sohl. He was finally placed under arrest but continued to kick up until landed in a cell across the street. Recorder Dolliver fined him $5 this morning.

CONTRACTOR'S ABSENCE PUZZLE TO FRIENDS

Business acquaintances and creditors of Simon Roth, a builder of East Sixth street, are puzzled regarding his absence from town. It has always been his custom to visit all the buildings he has under way and was around as usual on Wednesday morning. Since then he has not been about to inspect the erection of any of them and efforts to locate him have been futile.

It is known that Mr. Roth's financial condition has been a source of worriment to him for several months past, but as he had so much work under way and rapidly reaching completion it was thought that he would be relieved and his disappearance is a mystery.

Mrs. Roth when seen today by a Daily Press reporter said that she did know where her husband was, how long he would be gone, why he went away, nor when he would be back, but that she expected him to come back. He told her when he left home that he was going out on business and she thought that he meant here in the city. Since then she has not seen him, nor had any word as to his whereabouts.

Entertained at "500."

Mrs. William Tier entertained about forty friends at her home on East Front street last night with a "500" party. Those awarded honors are as follows: Mrs. Robert Gow, first women's; Mrs. Fred Sandford, second; Mrs. Margaret Wilson, third. Mrs. Elizabeth Woodard, first men's; U. G. Tingley, second and Robert Gow, third. Ten games were played and following the cards refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening devoted to sociability.

Funeral of Mrs. Penfield.

The funeral service of Mrs. Letitia Penfield was held at the late home on Park avenue at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors, who had known Mrs. Penfield throughout her residence here. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, officiated at the service. There was a large number of beautiful floral tributes. The burial was in the family plot in Hillside cemetery.

A Sermon For Men.

At the regular service in Hope chapel tomorrow night, Rev. F. L. Greene will give the third sermon in his series on "Men and the Church." The subject is: "Men and Brotherhood," and it will be discussed in a popular way, questions that are in the minds of all workingmen in regard to the place of the church and worship in the world. A men's chorus will lead the singing.

Job printing. Satisfaction assured.

Finds Airedale Puppy.

Hart S. Farlee, of Watchung avenue, today found his valuable Airedale puppy through an advertisement in The Daily Press. The dog was found by George H. Parker, of Parker Dog Haven, himself a breeder of Airedales, who saw the advertisement and communicated with Mr. Farlee. The dog had been in possession of a colored man, who claimed ownership, but this was quickly disproved.

Will Hold a Sale.

Under the auspices of Mt. St. Mary College and for the benefit of the building fund, a sale of fancy articles will be held at 53 Fairview avenue, one block from the Somerset street trolley, Monday afternoon, December 4. All friends of the college in the city and borough are invited to attend the sale and inspect the different articles.

Water Wagon Note.

James McCalese, colored, and John Walsh were two offenders given an opportunity to reform by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. They were arrested separately last night for drunkenness. On their promise to drink no more sentence was suspended.

Misses Hazel Godown and Mary Voehl are visiting friends in Bayonne.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Drake, of Rushmore avenue, are spending a few days at Asbury Park.

Mrs. Cahill, of West Second street, is at home from the hospital, recovering from a serious operation.

Mrs. George Bowers, of Mt. Bethel, in a carriage was run into by another vehicle driven by G. Saver, of Duer street, yesterday afternoon on Front street. The rear wheel of Mrs. Bowers vehicle was slightly damaged.

Dry Cleaning
like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.
Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.
You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

ALL FOR WELFARE

of the person who tried to do something for humanity have been frustrated.

A touch of the incongrous is in the exhibit showing the squalor of a Third street home where a very small girl and her aged grandmother were beaten daily and allowed to starve, almost, by the old woman's daughter. In the collection of rubbish removed from the place and now on exhibition, after being disinfected, are three copies of the Bible and a book entitled "Who Did It?" The book belonged to the woman who flogged her mother and her niece. On the fly leaf are written her initials and a line to the effect that it was a present from her Sunday school.

There is nothing in the show more suggestive of the service that has been rendered than a map of the city of Plainfield in which some painstaking worker has put fifteen thousand pins, by actual count. That means that since its organization in 1878, the C. O. S. has cared for that number of cases. The records of all of them are on file at the Babcock building.

What might be accomplished in the slums of the town if the C. O. S. could support a visiting housekeeper is indicated by a model kitchen and living room labelled "cheerful, comfortable, sanitary." Along side of that is the sort of room that is found in the slums. That is labelled "dirty, dark, dangerous to health." The label is not needed.

Statistics in the Diet Kitchen alcove show that in the last ten months there have been 431 births in Plainfield and 29 deaths of infants. Fifteen of those deaths, more than fifty per cent., were due to bad feeding.

To enumerate all the exhibits would be to give a list of every group of social service workers in the city. There is the public library demonstration, the exhibits of the King's Daughters, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Consumers' League, the Play Ground Association, the various State institutions, the Mothers' Congress, the Nursing Bureau, the city alms house, the home farm and the police department of Plainfield. Each one of these many exhibits is, in itself, a show worth going to see.

There were several hundred school children, armed with note books at the Exposition yesterday. They are all competitors for the prize offered for the best essay on what Plainfield is doing for its unfortunates.

WILL OPEN WHITE WAY.

Much interest is being taken in the program for the opening of Elizabeth's "White Way," which will take place next Friday night. It is planned to have Mayor Alfred A. Stein throw the switch that will turn on the thirty-eight new lights along the street.

Other features will be a concert by a band of sixteen pieces in automobiles and a luncheon to the public in the Board of Trade rooms.

STATE S.P.C.A. MAKES A MUCH NEEDED ORDER

Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, local agent for the S. P. C. A., this morning received a copy of the order recently passed by the State Society forbidding the leading of sick or disabled animals through cities, towns, or country to a place where they are to be made into fertilizer. Heretofore the practise has been to lead condemned animals to the fertilizer works, whether they had been condemned on account of an ailment to their limbs or not and the sight of the poor beasts being goaded on when every step was a pain is to become a thing of the past.

The law also prevents the leading of animals condemned for other reasons than lameness. This is to prevent the spread of the disease for which the animal has been ordered disposed of and in some instances had this law been in effect certain horse and cattle owners would have been saved considerable loss. Mrs. VanHoesen was instrumental in having this order made and in the future will see to its strict enforcement.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The following committee has been appointed to arrange and conduct the Christmas exercises at the Presbyterian church: Mrs. C. B. Mattis, Mrs. J. Newton Apgar, Mrs. George Caskey, A. F. Todd, T. W. Day and George Cameron.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in the Presbyterian church tomorrow morning. In the evening, Rev. Ernest R. Brown will preach a Thanksgiving sermon and the local patriotic orders will attend in a body.

The resignation of Rev. George H. Gardner as pastor of the First Baptist church, which was recently presented but not accepted, will be acted upon at a meeting of the congregation to be held next week.

It is understood that local investors have purchased a large tract of land on Columbia street and propose developing it in the spring. The tract comprises thirteen acres.

Howard Hanck, who was recently arrested by Day Officer Benson, has been pronounced insane by the county authorities and committed to the State asylum.

Thomas Coffey is recovering from an injury to his toe caused by a weight falling upon it while he was at work in the Levgar factory.

The Brotherhood of the Methodist church is completing arrangements for its oyster supper to be held on Friday night, December 15.

BARONESS ROGINAT BURIED.

Husband Was Member of Napoleon III's Council.

The funeral of Baroness Catherine Roginat, widow of Baron Roginat, who was a member of the Council of State under Napoleon III., who died Wednesday evening soon after she had dined with a friend, will be held this afternoon from the home of her brother, Thomas B. Russum, 946 East Jersey street, Elizabeth. The Rev. William Force Whitaker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will conduct the services.

Paralysis is believed to have caused the death of the baroness. She was a daughter of Thomas B. Russum and Hannah C. Bell, members of a well known Maryland family, and celebrated the sixty-fifth anniversary of her birth two days before her death.

produces a roaring good drink and a cup of it makes the king of breakfast drinks.

In buying coffee you sometimes get a nice looking coffee, the bean may be perfect as far as form goes and the coffee itself in the drink may be of a good flavor. Yet it may lack strength.

The poor woman who makes it gets blamed whereas the fellow who sold it is the real culprit. You will always find strength and flavor in our coffees and they are free from bitterness.

The demand increases simply and solely on account of pure quality. Shall we send you a pound to try?

OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union was held at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, New Jersey, on Thursday, November 2, 1911, at 2:30 p. m.

Members present—Director Cady and Freeholders Acken, Bourdon, Crane, Darby, Doane, Fay, Gruener, Hall, Hennessy, Jones Krouse, Meisel Perry Pierson, Randolph, Smith, Teller and Wilbur.

Absent—Freeholder Swain.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur the reading of the minutes of meeting of October 5, 1911, were dispensed with and they were approved as per printed copies on members' desks.

Communications.

A communication from the Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis at Elizabeth, N. J., inviting the Board of Freeholders to attend its annual meeting to be held in the Board room on Wednesday, November 15, at 8:15 p. m., was read and on motion by Freeholder Gruener the communication was received and ordered placed on file.

A communication from the Township Committee of Union Township advising the board of said committee having passed a resolution to lay a crosswalk on North Broad street at the intersection of Hillside avenue, Lyons Farms, and requesting that the board either lay such a walk or give the Township Committee permission to do so, was read and on motion by Freeholder Gruener this request was referred to the County Road Committee.

Resolved, That this committee shall present to the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union a petition of the following purport:

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your petitioners, the Township Committee of the Township of Union, in the county of Union, respectfully request that Chestnut street and Stuyvesant avenue, running from Westfield avenue, in the Borough of Roselle Park, to the Essex county line in the Township of Union, be paved at the expense of the county of Union, State of New Jersey, in accordance with the terms of the statute known as "The State Aid Road Act."

Yours respectfully,
D. H. BEACH, chairman;
H. B. KLINE, Jr.,
GOTTLIEM SCHNABEL.
GEORGE COMPTON,
Township Clerk.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this request was referred to the County Road Committee.

Roselle, N. J., Oct. 18, 1911.
Board of Chosen Freeholders, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Gentlemen—I am instructed by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Roselle to advise your honorable body that they have passed an ordinance accepting the following roads or public highways in the Borough of Roselle, known as Rivingston street, Frank street, Morris street, Linden avenue, Liberty street, Oak street, Tenth avenue, Grand street and Twelfth avenue and request that repairs be made to the bridges on these streets.

Yours very turly,
J. F. OSTRANDER,
Borough Clerk.

On motion by Freeholder Krouse this communication was received and ordered placed on file.

Westfield, N. J., Oct. 16, 1911.

Dear Sir—A meeting of the citizen taxpayers of the Borough of Mountainside was held Friday evening, the 6th, at the Borough Hall, to discuss a remedy for the present congested condition of the Springfield County Road from Springfield to Scotch Plains, particularly through the Borough of Mountainside. This road, I understand, is a three rod road (49½ feet) wide, and at various places throughout the borough is so narrow between ditches that the available road space is less than 23 feet. It is the main thoroughfare for traffic east and west through Union county between these points and is used almost entirely by non-residents of the State and by non-residents of the borough. There are several sharp turns which are dangerous, one of which has since been removed by the Board of Freeholders at the chapel at Mountainside, and on Sundays and holidays the number of automobiles passing both ways on the road is so great that it is dangerous for vehicles and pedestrians, and at certain places, owing to the narrowness of the road, dangerous to those driving automobiles themselves.

The sense of the meeting was that the road should be widened if possible to the width of four rods of 66 feet, the fences moved back, the road rebuilt or regarded to conform to the new width and made passable from ditch to ditch throughout its entire length, so as to render it safer.

A committee of five, consisting of Frederick C. Gordon, president of the Borough Council; James H. Miller, a large owner of property on the Springfield road; Elston Darby, a member of the Board of Freeholders from Mountainside; former Assessor Lewis T. Robbins, also a large property owner on the road, and myself, were appointed to take this matter up with the Board of Freeholders.

This committee held a meeting last Wednesday night, and after canvassing the matter thoroughly, it was believed that all the property owners within the Borough of Mountainside would be willing to donate so much of the land as might be necessary for such widening and that the road could be widened without the removal of mere than one or two buildings.

Before approaching property owners within the borough, or property owners without the borough whose lands might be affected by such widening, the committee considers it necessary to have some sort of sketch or map prepared, showing the present county road and the suggested widening, as the same would probably be made by the Board of Freeholders, indicating on which side of the road and how much of each side would be taken from the lands of the respective property owners.

With such a map in hand the committee could then go to the property owners and intelligently present the case to them, indicating just what land it would be necessary for them to give to effect the widening of the road.

The committee has asked me to communicate with you and to ask you to present to the Board of Freeholders the request that the County Engineer prepare such a sketch so that this committee may take this matter in hand at once. I will probably be present at the meeting of the board myself and go into the matter more in detail at such time as this letter may be presented to the board, if it should be necessary to do so.

ours very truly,
FRED'K S. TAGGART.
DR. EDWARD J. ROWE,
Summit, N. J.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this request was referred to the County Road Committee, County Engineer and the County Attorney.

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned property owners, owning property facing upon St. Mary's avenue in the city of Plainfield, county of Union and State of New Jersey, do hereby petition your honorable body to erect or cause to be erected a suitable bridge on said St. Mary's avenue, on the line of Cedar brook, in order that said St. Mary's avenue may be made passable for vehicles and foot passengers.

This petition, signed by fifteen property owners having a total frontage of 1,710 feet, was read, and on motion by Freeholder Smith was received and ordered placed on file.

Committee Reports.

Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—our Auditor respectfully reports:

On motion of Freeholder Gruener this report was received and ordered placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Washington Avenue Bridge, Plainfield, met at the bridge with the members from the Somerset County Board of Freeholders on Monday, October 30, 1911.

It was found that the bridge is completed, with the exception of the street pavement, sidewalks and curbs. These items of the work cannot be placed upon the bridge until next spring, as the heavy filling must first be allowed to settle.

It was decided to accept the bridge as far as completed, retaining from the moneys due the contractors the sum of $800 to cover the work still not completed.

The total of the original contract was $8,390.

The sum of $800 deducted from this sum leaves due the contractors the sum of $7,590. Of this sum Union county is obligated to pay one-half, or $3,795.

This county has paid the contractors to date the sum of $2,000, leaving still to pay at this time the sum of $1,795.

Your committee would, therefore, recommend that the sum of $1,795 be paid to the contractors when the bill has been properly audited by the committe. The contractors for this work are the Ferro-Concrete Company, at Harrisburg, Pa.

Signed by the committee,
W. A. BOURDON,
BURTON P. HALL.

November 2, 1911.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this report was received and ordered placed on file and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted unanimously.

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Filbert and Locust Street Culverts, Roselle Park, would respectfully report that they have received bids and awarded the contract to the lowest bidder, Mr. T. Foster Callahan, for the sum of four hundred and forty-nine dollars ($449).

Respectfully,
AARON D. CRANE,
W. A. BOURDON,
ELSTON DARBY.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this report was received and ordered placed on file.

To the Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Parker Road Bridge would report that the site has been examined, and would recommend the following repair work to the bridge:

Replace all rotten and worn-out planking in roadway and in sidewalk, also all bad floor beams; tighten up the railing and rods of the bridge; repaint the steel and iron work of the bridge, the whole work to cost not more than $225.

Respectfully submitted,
W. A. BOURDON,
AARON D. CRANE,
S. P. T. WILBUR.

On motion by Freeholder Smith this report was received and ordered placed on file and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted unanimously.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Casino Avenue Culvert, Cranford, would report that bids were received for the work, and the same awarded to Elmer L. Moore, being the lowest bidder, at $220.

Signed by the committee,
GEO. G. TELLER,
D. F. HENNESSY,
AARON D. CRANE.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this report was received and ordered placed on file.

RIVERSIDE AVENUE BRIDGE.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on above named bridge would report that the bids were received for the work and the contract awarded to Elmer L. Moore, he being the lowest bidder, at $382.

Respectfully sumbitted,
GEO. G. TELLER,
AARON D. CRANE,
D. F. HENNESSY.

November 2, 1911.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this report was received and ordered placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on "Bonnie Burn" Hospital beg to report that after eliminating a portion of the construction originally contemplated, and thereby cutting down the original figures, which were $115,153, have awarded the contract to Messrs. Metzger & Wills for the sum of $72,814, they being the lowest bidders.

J. HERVEY DOANE,
HENRY KROUSE,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
ADOLPH H. GRUENER
J. LOGAN FAY.

On motion by Freeholder Smith this report was received and ordered placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Bridge on Ackerman Avenue would report as follows: This roadway was laid out in the early seventies and the county at one time built a bridge over the ravine where the new bridge is now proposed. This old bridge was washed away some six or seven years ago, since which time the road has not been in use.

Your committee is of the opinion that inasmuch as this road is a public road, and that the county at one time had a bridge at this place, the county should now replace the bridge.

Before this is done, however, the roadway should be placed in good order, regraded and guttered, widened in places and made easily passable at both sides of the proposed bridge. This work should be done by the Borough of Mountainside previous to the erection of the bridge.

Respectfully submitted,
ELSTON DARBY,
M. H. ACKEN.

The Kingdom Of Slender Swords

By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

Copyright, 1910, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

Across the soft shoo-shoo of spotless, tabi clad feet, the flitting of bright hued kimonos, the gay badinage that flew about the low tables, Daunt felt her beauty thrill him from head to foot like a garment of mist and fire. As she dropped her hand to the cushion it had touched his, and for an instant their pulses had seemed to throb into one. The tiny lacquered cup she took up trembled in her fingers.

She started when the young army officer nearest her said: "Speaking of sailing, give me a steam yacht like the one that berthed yesterday at Yokohama. She belongs to a man named Ware, Austen Ware, a New Yorker, I understand. Perhaps you know him, Miss Fairfax."

"I have met him," she answered.

The young army officer looked up quickly. He was an enthusiastic yachtsman. "A beautiful vessel!" he said. "I noticed her today, but she was too far away to make out her name."

"It is the Barbara," said Voynich.

"Why," exclaimed Patricia, "that's"—She bit her tongue, caught by something in Barbara's face. "Good gracious!" she ended. "My—my foot's asleep!"

Barbara had felt her flush fading to paleness. She felt a quick relief that none there save Patricia and Daunt knew her first name. In the diversion caused by Patricia's helpless efforts to stand up she stole a glance at Daunt.

A shadow had fallen on his face. He did not look at her, but in his brain the yacht's name was ringing like a knell. She knew Phil's brother! Austen Ware's yacht had arrived in Yokohama on the same day as her ship. And it was named the Barbara. Yet tonight he had dreamed—what had he been dreaming? These thoughts mixed themselves weirdly with the gayety and nonsense that he forced himself to render.

Barbara felt this with an aching sense of resentment. What was he thinking of her? And why should she care so fiercely? The lightness and blitheness of the scene were somehow chilled.

CHAPTER XIV.

LIKE THE WHISPER OF A BAT'S WINGS.

THE street into which they trooped seemed an oriental opera bouffe—swaying, chatting people in loose, light colored kimonos, some carrying crested paper lanterns tied to the ends of short rods, a thousand lights and hues flashing and weaving. But for two of the party the colors had lost their warmth and the movement its fascination.

"I simply can't coop up yet in a ricksha!" pleaded Patricia as they donned their discarded shoes. "Why not walk a little?" The proposal met with a chorus of approval. They set out together, and presently Barbara found Daunt beside her. Her resentment did not cool as she laughed and talked mechanically, acutely aware that he was answering in monosyllables or with silence.

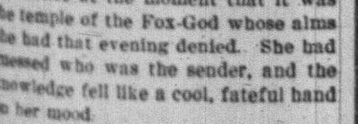
Daunt was crying out upon himself for a fool. What right had he to feel that hot sting in his heart? Yesterday morning he had not known that she existed. If an hour ago the skies had been golden sprinkled azure and Tokyo the capital of an empire of romance it was only because he was a boyish, silly dolt, sick with vanity and complacency. What had there been between them, after all, save a light camaraderie into which a man was an insufferable cad to read more? So he jogged on, achingly cognizant of the lapses in his conversation, quite unconscious that her own was growing more forced and strained.

The boy Ito, behind them, spoke his name. Daunt started with a stab of recollection and drew from his pocket a folded pink paper fastened with a blue seal.

"How stupid of me! My wits have gone woolgathering tonight. Here is a telegram for you. It came soon after we left the embassy, and Mrs. Dandridge, thinking it might be urgent, sent Ito after us to the tea house. He missed us, but saw me here on his way back."

Barbara broke the seal and held the message to the candlelight that shone from a low temple entrance. She did not notice at the moment that it was the temple of the Fox-God whose alms she had that evening denied. She had guessed who was the sender, and the knowledge fell like a cool, fateful hand on her mood.

And, alas, on Daunt's also, for as she turned the leaf his gaze, wandering through the temple doorway to the candle starred mirror above the tithe box, had unwittingly seen reflected there in the painfully exact chirography of a Japanese telegraph clerk the signature



On the other side of Tokyo that night Dr. Bersonin sat with Phil in his great laboratory. Dinner had been laid on a round table at one end of the room. This was now pushed into a corner. They sat in deep leather chairs with slim liqueur glasses of green creme de menthe on a stand between them, with a methyl lamp and cigars.

Phil had more than once refilled his glass from the straw braided long necked vessel at his elbow. He was restless and ill at ease.

During the dinner, served at 10, conversation had been desultory, full of lapses, broken only by the plaintive chirp of the hiwa from its corner. When the cigars and cordial had been brought by the silent footed Ishida, Bersonin had risen to draw the curtain closely over the window and to lock the door. When he came back he stood before the mantelpiece, his arm laid along it, looking down from his towering height on the other's unquiet hand playing with the chain of the spirit lamp. His face was very white. Phil drew a long, slow breath and looked up.

Bersonin spoke. His voice was cold and measured; the only sign of agitation was in the slow, spasmodic working of the great white fingers against the dark wood.

"I have brought you here tonight," he said, "to make you a proposition. I have need of help—of a kind that you can give me. It will require certain qualities which I think you possess—which we possess in common. I have chosen you because you have daring and because you are not troubled by what the coward calls conscience—that fool's name for fear!"

Phil touched his dry lips with his tongue. "I have as little of that as the next man," he replied. "I never found I needed much."

Bersonin continued:

"What I have to say I can say without misgiving, for if you told it before the fact there is possibly but one man in Japan who would think you sane, and if you told it after—well, for your own safety you will not tell it then. Your acceptance of my proposition will have a definite effect on your prospects, which, I believe, can scarcely be looked on as bright."

Phil uttered an oath. "You need not remind me of that," he said, with surly emphasis. "I've got about as much prospects as a coolie stevedore. Well, what of it?"

The cold voice went on, and now it had gathered a sneer:

RECOUNTS UNDER WAY IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY.

The first of the three recounts of the vote cast for aldermen in New Brunswick at the last election was started yesterday morning before the County Board of Elections at the courthouse. The vote cast in the three polls in the Fifth ward where Alderman William F. Miller, Jr., Republican, defeated the Democratic nominee, Harry C. F. Randolph, by four votes, will be recounted first.

The recount of the vote in the four polls of the Fourth ward, where Alderman William Goodwin, Democrat, was defeated by Henry Blaine by five votes, will be started on Monday and on Tuesday the third recount of the Second ward votes, where James Brown, the Democratic nominee, lost by only six votes to former Alderman George Collins, will be taken up. The Democrats need to win but one of the three to retain control of the city government.

There was a big array of legal talent at the opening of the recount. Acting City Attorney Frederick Weigel is looking after the interests of the three Democratic contestants, while for the Republicans are Alan H. Strong, Edward W. Hicks, Alfred S. March, Alderman Charles E. Tindell, former Prosecutor George Berdine and Walter Van Sickle. These attorneys are dividing their time so as to have two or three of them on hand throughout the recount.

The Republican city committee has named former Senator W. H. C. Jackson, Adrian Chamberlain, Robert Carson, James A. Morrison and Alderman J. J. Feaster to aid the counsel. The votes rejected will be submitted to James J. Bergen. It is held that sufficient votes to change the result were thrown out in the Fifth ward. Ballots having more than five freeholders voted for were thrown out as not good ballots, whereas the Democrats hold such ballots were good for all candidates voted for except the freeholders.

STOKES' AMBITIONS HURT BY DEFEAT OF LEAVITT.

Some of the State House politicians are expressing the opinion, largely because he is a close friend of former Governor Edward C. Stokes and cashier of the Mechanics' National Bank, of which Mr. Stokes is president, that the defeat of Senator Harry D. Leavitt, of Mercer, for the Senate leadership will mean a hot fight among the big Republican captains of the State over the State Senatorship also involved.

These politicians figure that the defeat of Senator Leavitt can be taken as notification to former Governor Stokes that he is to curb his aspirations in the State Republican ranks. There are some who argue that the activity of Mr. Stokes in the recent campaign, altogether on his own initiative, may have been one of the factors that caused the word to be sent down the line to elect Senator Edge as the Senate pilot.

The Man Who Waits for Life Insurance

until the Doctor frightens him into it stands a pretty poor chance with insurance companies. Your health must be good to secure a policy. Don't be like thousands who refused to take Life Insurance when they could get it, and who would give almost anything now to obtain a policy.

The Problem of the Christmas Gift

Because we live in an extravagant age and our friends are surfeited with the little luxuries which used to make acceptable gifts, the practical present is becoming more popular every year.

There could be no more practical and acceptable gift for wife, mother, sister or child than a 4% interest account in our Special Department. Send us $5.00 or more and we will mail to whomever you may designate, a pass book enclosed in an attractive Christmas envelope.

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

WOULD PREVENT CHILD VISITING ITS FATHER.

At the opening of the Court of Errors yesterday, a motion was made to stay the order of Vice-Chancellor Emery under which William B. Cragin, Jr., of Newark, and plaintiff, was given the right to have the custody of his young daughter Marguerite, for one day in each month.

The motion was that the stay be continued in force until the higher court had disposed of an appeal from the findings of the vice-chancellor. The court laid over the application for consideration in conference.

The girl, who is between four and five years old and delicate, has been living on the farm of her uncle, James M. Donald, first vice-president of the Hanover National Bank of New York. It was argued that while life on the farm agrees with the child the environment to which she would be subjected while in the custody of the father would have a contrary effect.

KISSLESS FIANCEE SUES.

Suit alleging breach of promise has been instituted in the Supreme Court of New York by Miss Ida Plohn, of Montvale, N. J., against Moses Kanter, a leather merchant, of the Bronx. She asks $25,000 damages. The case, which is now being heard, developed the defense that Miss Plohn did not reciprocate the affection bestowed on her by Kanter.

Counsel for Kanter said the Bergen county (N. J.) young woman and Kanter first met through a marriage broker. They became engaged, and Mr. Kanter went so far as to publish a notice of their engagement.

"But," continued Mr. Steckler, "as soon as they became engaged she treated him like a stranger, and even slapped him in the face on one occasion when he desired just one little kiss. Then she told him that she did not love him, and the marriage was called off."

Miss Plohn, on the stand, denied that she had failed to respond to her fiance's embraces. She loved him with all her ardent nature, she said. Yes, all of that, and, moreover, she had laid out $3.50 with a Western wholesale house for lingerie in anticipation of the coming nuptials. The case will be continued.

WIFE GETS DECREE

Mrs. George R. Chester is Granted a Divorce From Her Author-Husband.

COURT AWARDS ALIMONY.

Mother is Given Custody of Children—Second Wife Named as Correspondent Formerly Her Friend.

George Randolph Chester, formerly of this city, author of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," and himself the hero of a "Get-Hitched-Quick" marriage can go back to New York. Supreme Court Justice Guy in New York, signed a final decree of divorce Saturday for Elizabeth M. Chester, wife No. 1, who resides at 220 East Seventh street, this city. Exactly a month ago, Chester and Mrs. Chester No. 2 arrived on the Kronprinz Wilhelm to find that only an interlocutory decree had been granted to Mrs. Chester No. 1 by Justice Delany and that Chester's marriage in Paris to Lillian De Rimo, named as correspondent by his first wife, had been precipitate.

The news prevented Chester's crossing the river to New York. He was advised by friends to take the next steamer back to Europe and after consulting his lawyer, Gordon Gordon, he disappeared. Saturday's decree obviates all danger of any possible prosecution for bigamy.

The final decree, however, prohibits Chester from marrying again, a customary clause in divorce decrees, and gives Mrs. Chester custody of her children, Robert F. and George R., Jr. Chester may see his sons, at times agreeable to their mother, who will get $1,000 a year for herself and $2,400 a year for the support of the boys until they reach the age of twenty-five years.

Mrs. Chester told Referee Herman Heydt, who heard the case, that her husband had assigned his rights in the George M. Cohan dramatization of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" to her. She was married to him on July 25, 1895, at Davenport, Iowa.

Mrs. Chester obtained her decree by proving that her husband lived at the Gainsborough Studios, where Mrs. De Rimo, several years her junior, was known as his wife. At the time the interlocutory decree was granted a friend of Mrs. Chester said:

"If you remember in the Wallingford stories it is the wife who saves the man and reforms him. Well, Chester drew that character from his wife. He used to say to his friends that she had made his success possible. When they were married, he was an architect and things were not easy for them financially. He started writing stories and his wife copied them for him and advised him to send them to the papers. The stories were successful.

"Chester could be a prodigious worker at times and he and his wife began to syndicate his work. She managed it all, typewriting it and managing the business end. The syndicate business prospered so that he determined to come to New York. He left his wife at College Hill, a suburb of Cincinnati, to attend to selling the house and winding up the affairs at home.

"Mrs. Chester's most intimate friend was Mrs. De Rimo, a young widow. She is a beautiful woman, small and slight, with burning black eyes and a skin as white as chalk. She is capable of exerting a tremendous influence over a man.

"Mrs. Chester, on the other hand, is a woman of great charm, simplicity and directness. She is small, with soft brown eyes and brown hair, and a delicate face, with a childish expression. She is about thirty-five, and Mrs. De Rimo is a good ten years younger.

"After Chester arrived in New York, he went to live at the Hotel Van Cortlandt. Mrs. De Rimo came on from College Hill, for the ostensible purpose of going on the stage. She put up at the Van Cortlandt. Mrs. Chester came on also and lived at the hotel."

The testimony taken before Referee Heydt in the divorce case showed that Mrs. Chester left the hotel and went to the Albemarle, because, he said: "I couldn't stand him any longer." What preceded her removal was described by her friend. According to her, Mrs. Chester asked her husband:

"How have I failed you? In what way don't I suit you?" and Chester was quoted as replying:

"You are perfect in every respect, except one. This woman surpasses you in being it. I must have that. My nature demands it—my soul cries out for it." After that, her friend said, Mrs. Chester was very ill.

"It was terrible to watch her. She prayed all day and most of the night—for she only slept when she was utterly exhausted—that her husband be freed from this fascination. She prayed for his soul and his love."

UNITY CIRCLE TO GIVE DINNER-DANCE, DEC. 9

Unity Circle of the King's Daughters will give a dinner-dance at the Park Club on Saturday night, December 9. The girls will wear Spanish costumes and will serve the dinner, which has been arranged by Mrs. Johnson, of the Park Club. All the decorations have a Spanish effect and the Neapolitan quartette from Maresi's will entertain during dinner. A dance beginning at o'clock will follow the dinner, music for which will be furnished by the Van-Epps brothers orchestra.

The entertainment committee is composed of the Misses Alice Smith, chairman; Alverda Holland, Margaret Henderson, Katherine Brown and Sylvia Curtis. The decorating committee consists of the Misses Helen Hyde, chairman; Audrey Gernon, Eleanor DeGraff and Mayme Brown. The ticket and advertising committee chairman is Marguerite Ramsey.

The receipts of the entertainment will be used to meet the yetarly pledge of the Day Nursery.

These will be the patronesses: Mrs. F. H. Andrews, Mrs. F. L. Bleudiger, Mrs. Josiah Brown, Mrs. James DeGraff, Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. W. T. Gough, Mrs. R. S. Gernon, Mrs. C. W. Holland, Mrs. Louis Hyde, Mrs. F. Harrington, Mrs. F. W. Iradell, Mrs. F. W. Mansley, Mrs. Warren Marsh, Mrs. Walter McGee, Mrs. C. E. Rocap, Mrs. J. N. Ramsey, Mrs. E. M. Snyder, Miss Edith Smalley, Mrs. Clifford Wharton, Mrs. Yerkes, Mrs. J. S. Zelie, Mrs. Howard McWilliams, Mrs. Louis Timpson and Mrs. W. H. Barnard.

The members of the Circle are: Misses Alice Smith, president; Marion Snyder, vice-president; Alverda Holland, secretary; Eleanor DeGraff, treasurer; Louise Andrews, Dorothy Adams, Marguerite Bowlby, Gertrude Bowlby, Marguerite Blendinger, Katherine Brown, Sylvia Curtis, Mary Dickenson, Barbara Fleming, Mary French, Louise French, Gwendolyn Gough, Audrey Gernon, Dorothy Hoyt, Helen Hyde, Helen Harrington, Margaret Henderson, Frances Iradell, Naomi Markley, Marion Marsh, Vera Jeffries, Marion Rocap, Marguerite Ramsey, Jean Saunders, Jean Wharton, Anna Yerkes, Frances Zelie, Lilabell Barnard, Marjorie Brown, Beatrice Hedges, Ruth Timpson, Mrs. Harold Vanderhill, Mrs. George English.

A limited number of tickets for the dance may be had from the members of the Circle.

CHARITY EXPOSITION VISITED BY CROWDS

The high water mark in attendance at the Public Welfare Exhibition was reached Saturday but had it not been for the storm last night yesterday's attendance would have been the largest of any one day since the opening. On account of the inclement weather in the evening the number fell below that of Saturday night when in a single hour 485 were admitted. These people were for the most part adults and of the kind that the Charity Organization Society and Anti-Tuberculosis League were desirous of interesting. That the two organizations have succeeded in attaining their object was learned by the nature of the questions those in charge of the booths were called upon to answer. These questions were prompted by a desire to know what is the best thing to do under certain conditions which the one asking is either experiencing or knows somebody who is and not through any idle curiosity. In this respect the success attending the venture far exceeded the expectations of the management.

The diet kitchen and lectures regarding it by Dr. William H. Murray proved to be equally as interesting as the lectures on tuberculosis by W. S. Tyler and W. H. Wherry, Jr., and those given at the nursing bureau by nurses specially detailed for the purpose. These lectures, the management feels, has unquestionably stimulated the people to a renewed and deeper interest in the work being done by these organizations and will be beneficial in many ways in their own lives and homes.

It is planned to have some sort of an exhibition each year, but it is too early at this time, the promoters announce, to say whether this will be carried out on as extensive a scale. The exhibition will be open tomorrow specially for school children. Adults may also avail themselves of attending at the same time.

LODGE OF SORROW

Plainfield Elks Hold Annual Memorial Service For its Departed Members.

FREDERICK HUGHES ORATOR.

Rev. Dr. William H. Neilson Chaplain and Joseph Noonan Eulogist—Music a Feature of the Program.

The first Sunday in December of each year is designated by the Grand Lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks as the day on which all subordinate lodges shall hold services in memory of departed members. Accordingly Plainfield lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., observed the day by conducting a beautiful service in the Plainfield theatre last night. The prescribed ritual was used, including the opening and closing ceremonies by the lodge officers. Incidental music appropriate to the occasion, as provided, was a feature, as was the oration of Frederick Hughes, of White Plains, N. Y. Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, of East Ninth street, acted as chaplain.

The musical part of the ceremonies was under the direction of William E. MacClymont. Mrs. Viola Waterhouse, of New York, soprano, and Clifford Cairns, also of New York, baritone, were the soloists. The Elk' chorus composed of John V. Todd, George O. Stevens, William Tallamy, M. C. VanArsdale, Bertram Tallamy, John J. Campbell, Joseph Martin and William G. Smith, was accompanied by a well selected orchestra.

All of the lodge officers and those assisting at the service occupied seats on the stage, the front of which presented a wall of palms and ferns. Other parts of the stage and body of the house had been decorated with palms and ferns. The star studded with lights, each one representing a departed brother was suspended in the centre of the stage. The star was in the colors of the order—purple and white. At the calling of the roll, one of the most impressive parts of the ritual, a light corresponding to each man's name is put out as his name is spoken.

Mr. Hughes defined the function of memorial services after leading up to the point by telling that all over the length and breadth of the land similar meetings were being held. He told the legend of the Garden of Gods, which is that when the first snow of winter comes all of the figures in that great natural amphitheatre cross their arms upon their bosoms and bow their heads in meditation for those who have departed from their midst in the centuries gone. His description of the scene in the Rocky Mountains on these occasions was most impressive. He likened it to the gathering he was addressing as he touched on the vacancies which had occurred during the year in friendship's circle.

"Memory," Mr. Hughes said, "enriches the heart when it lights the pages all written over with love marks." After telling of the Elks belief in God and declaring that death is but a long sleep after which we will all be together again he said that it was the aim and desire of a true Elk to make the world better for his having lived. Touching on "Fidelity," which is the motto of the presiding officer's station, he told of the many ways in which it inspired members of the order to be steadfast, loyal, honest, upright, and manly. In closing he recited lines from Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," commending them to his audience as a comfort and solace in times of grief.

Following is the list of departed members of Plainfield lodge:

Daniel Detweiler, April 8, 1906; Herbert S. Taylor, April 16, 1906; Robert L. Thomae, July 24, 1906; Olin L. Jenkins, November 13, 1906; Herbert B. Brooks, January 8, 1907; Charles C. Burnett, February 23, 1907; Maze Edwards, July 4, 1909; Joseph W. Reinhart, January 27, 1911.

These are the officers of Plainfield lodge: Exalted ruler, Lewis A. Bellis; esteemed leading knight, Thomas Hanna; esteemed loyal knight, William G. Smith; esteemed lecturing knight, Alfred A. Prudhon; secretary, William R. Townsend; treasurer, Harry B. MacDonald; esquire, Fred G. Lynn; chaplain, Joseph P. Burd; inner guard, Elmer D. Cutting; tiler, Edward C. Searing; organist, James L. Pope; trustees, James F. Buckle, W. A. Coddington, Samuel P. T. Wilbur.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Brown, of East Sixth street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice, to William Francis Doane, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Doane, of East Seventh street. No date for the wedding has been fixed.

HE WANTED TO DIE

"Gumphs" Fries Tried Suicide But Only Bungled the Job.

USED DOUBLE-BARRELED GUN.

Damaged His Chin Before Deciding to Live—Placed Under Arrest by Borough Police—Hearing Tomorrow.

Albert Fries, of 44 Whitewood avenue, the borough, who will be recognized quicker when he is designated as "Gumph Freez," made a good honest try to commit suicide at his home last night. He meant business all right, because he says so himself and he has a much bandaged face and powder marked neck to back up his word. but whether the double barreled gun he selected refused to look him in the face or too many drinks of third rail liquor spoiled his aim, is not known. Suffice it to say he is at work today under police parole and will appear before Recorder Dolliver tomorrow morning. He wanted to mount the golden stairs before his turn came in the regular way.

"Gumph" ambled home early last night from somewhere in the direction of the city. Wherever it was someone had blowed him to ten or eight large hookers of "likker" and he had a feeling that the "white hope" proposition had been put directly to him. He kicked at everything in the house, including the front doorstep, the dog and his supper. He got so bad after awhile that his wife saved herself a trip to the hospital by seeking protection at a neighbor's residence. She told Chief Weiss over the telephone how perfectly awful "Gumph" was carrying on and Marshal Herrman was sent on the run to head off goodness knows what. The cop was for busting in the front door of the Friese home, but the wife begged so hard to be taken from the scene before anything happened Herrman obliged. They were half way down the street when two reports of a gun were heard close together, "bang, bang," just like that.

"Oh, I just know he has done something desperate," wailed Mrs. Fries.

"Maybe so," said the bluecoat, "but he can't hurt no one but himself and if he does it'll learn him that rum and powder don't mix."

The hysterical wife was hastily escorted to the police station and Herrman returned as soon as possible in search of "Gumph," dead or alive. He was nowhere about the house, but bloodstains on the floor indicated that some kind of deviltry had been going on. The belligerent or his body were nowhere to be seen and a searching party of neighbors and more cops had a long hunt for nothing.

Early this morning Chief Weiss hustled around to Debele & Stahl's place on Somerset street, where "Gumph" has been employed as driver and handy man, and awaited his coming. Sure enough, the lost one showed up but with only his two eyes peeping through openings in a wall of bandage's and his adam's apple decorated in a mottle blue from too close proximity to scattering powder.

"Where's the other fellow?" the police head asked with the subtle humor of his craft.

"There ain't no other fellow," said "Gumph," "I tried to kill myself."

"Aw go on," the chief retorted, "quit your kidding."

The badly damaged gentleman insisted however, that he had attempted suicide and he was placed under arrest. Recorder Dolliver was unable to hold court today and "Gumph" was released after giving his solemn promise that he would remain on earth to be on hand tomorrow. He did not go into details about his whereabouts through the night, but said a part of it had been spent in a doctor's office getting patched up.

BROKE A RECORD

Seventeen-Foot Motor Boat Built by Local Man Makes 25 Miles an Hour.

CROWD WITNESSES TRIAL RUN.

Wilbert Bentliff, Designer of the Hull and Motor, Realizes Results After Years of Practical Experiment.

Beating the world's record for small power craft by a startling margin, a seventeen foot motor boat, designed and built by Wilbert Bentliff, of East Fifth street, this city, developed the remarkable speed of twenty-five miles an hour on her maiden run Saturday afternoon. The little wonder, which bears the name of Reed Bird, raced up and down the straightaway course on the Raritan river between the Bound Brook bridge and the dam at Riverside Park, throwing the water cleft by her sharp bow completely over her whole length. She repeatedly covered a measured mile and a quarter in three minutes flat, most of the time bucking a stiff breeze. The demonstration drew a large crowd of interested spectators to both banks.

The boats tryout was conducted by Mr. Bentliff with the assistance of Harry Canfield and William Kennett, both experienced men in the game. The stop-watches in timing were held by "Archie" Davie and Alden E. Wagner. While the test was not conducted under official supervision a representative of a New York motor boat association and staff men of two motor boat publications were present. They declared without hesitation that the little craft will be capable of twenty-seven or twenty eight mile as soon as everything gets in smooth running order.

The result of Saturday's trial was very satisfactory to Mr. Bentliff and realized ambitions that he has had for years. The world's official record for small power boats is held by the "Azel," which he built himself five years ago. It is now owned by John Hayes, Hammond, the well known manufacturer, who recently rebuilt it. The "Azel" cleared up all kinds of medals and records all over the east, defeating the Delaware river and Lake George fleets under handicap. Three years ago the Plainfielder started on a still faster craft and after many changes in design and material, the "Reed Bird" resulted. As it sits in the water it looks more like a canoe than anything else as it is constructed on those lines. The hull is made of mahogany and cedar, covered with canvas, protected at vital points by nickel trimmings. In width she measures forty inches, but the space has been so carefully computed and arranged that three persons can be easily carried. The fittings everywhere are of nickel, copper and aluminum. The hull complete weighs 180 pounds. When exhibited at the New York motor boat show, the owner was offered $1,000 for it as it stood but refused.

It is in the motor, however, that Mr. Bentliff has embodied his speed ideas. The engine is an unordinary affair and is a marve lof construction and lightness. It weighs 175 pounds complete and is of the three cylinder, two cycle type. It is rated as developing fifteen horse power. Mr. Bentliff built it in his garage on Park avenue and proposes to engage in their manufacture on an extensive scale. He has been engaged in the study of speed motors for many years and experts declare he has designed an article of great commercial value.

MRS. BRAND IS DEAD; AGED SEVENTY-THREE.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brand, aged about seventy-three years, widow of James Brand, died on Saturday at her home, 17 Manning avenue, following a long illness. She was an old resident here, having spent the greater part of her life in the community. For four years she resided at Dunellen, removing to Metuchen where she lived for a time, going to North Plainfield about two months ago.

Mrs. Brand was a member of Grace church for many years. She is survived by a nephew, Alfred Noel, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Hewson, of this city. The funeral service will be held at Grace church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and the burial will be in M. E. cemetery.

Who Lost It?

Tony Parrello, of North avenue, found a part of a woman's automobile outfit yesterday afternoon and turned it over to the police. He thinks it must have dropped from a passing auto as it was lying in the roadway. The owner may get same by calling at police headquarters.

BOUND BROOK MAN CATCHES A BURGLAR

After a struggle with a burglar whom he surprised at work in his home early yesterday morning, Chas. McNabb, of Bound Brook, State Inspector of Cattle, made the man a prisoner and held him until the arrival of the police. The prisoner gave his name as Max Rosenthal and said his home was in Baltimore, but marks on his clothing and the contents of his pockets show that he is probably either a resident of Newark or Kearney. He was taken to the county jail at Somerville yesterday in default of $500 bail, under which he was held to await the action of the grand jury.

Mr. McNabb had been to New York and came home on the last train. When approaching his home which is also that of his brother, John McNabb, on Union avenue, he saw a light turned on a moment and then turned out. This was repeated a number of times and aroused his curiosity. Recalling the numerous burglaries which have occurred in that section during the past several months, he made no noise in ascending the steps of the porch and unlocking the door.

Once inside he struck a match intending to light the gas hall lamp. The flickering light of the match showed him a bundle a few feet inside the door and a man in the act of slinging it to his shoulder. The man dropped the bundle the same time that Mr. McNabb dropped the match and grappled with him, being quick enough to pinion his right arm to his side. Fighting with the left kicking and struggling fiercely the man appeared to be trying to get something from his pocket and Mr. McNabb was given additional strength with the thought it was a revolver. The noise the combatants made rocking about in the hall knocking over the hat rack, umbrella stand and several chairs, soon aroused the occupants of the house who in scanty attire came to see the cause. Among them was John McNabb and his two sons.

When the gas was lighted and they could assist, it was but the work of a moment to subdue the intruder. In the bundle was a quantity of silverware and other valuable articles striking the thief's fancy. His shoes were found on the lawn when the man was being led away by the police who were telephoned for. When searched a loaded revolver was found in the hip pocket he tried to reach when in the inspector's embrace.

CROWDS PACK CHURCH TO HEAR HERBERT BOOTH

Three important and most impressive meetings were conducted yesterday by Rev. Herbert Booth, the Scotch preacher from London, England. In the morning Mr. Booth faced a splendid congregation which filled the auditorium of the church. He said that he intended to deal with the most difficult subject that could possibly be handled in the pulpit, "The Christian and His Relationship to the World." Taking for his text Paul's words to the Ephesians, "The Wiles of the Devil," and Christ's triumphant exclamation, "Be of Good Cheer, I have Overcome the World."

Herbert Booth gave his hearers a fifty-minutes' talk that held them spellbound and sent them home with with plenty to think about. "If you want to the world belongs to the devil try and discover his designs," said Mr. Booth, and then he pointed out how suggestive it was that so many of the devil's doings might be classified under the letter "D." He spoke of the things that "Dethrone" and "Disarrange" and "Destroy" and "Demoralize." It was a telling discourse right down on great principle all the time.

In the afternoon Mr. Booth addressed a fine gathering of men and spoke on "Paul on the Witness Stand." In a graphic way he personified the Apostle giving his witness before the world.

The crowning occasion was at night when despite the storm a splendid crowd gathered again. Mr. Booth preached a most improvised sermon on "Almost Persuaded." His description of Paul before Agrippa will not be forgotten. Quite a number of converts came forward and knelt at the front seeking the new life.

Tonight Mr. Booth closes his mission by delivering his great Broscopic lecture on the early Christians of the Park Avenue Baptist church. He explained yesterday that the pictures to be used tonight cost over $12,000 to produce, being made from the posings of 800 living individuals.

Frank Davis, of Virginia, a well known steeplechase rider, has been the guest of Rufus C. Finch, of Park avenue.

ASK GOVERNMENT TO END TREATY

Local Hebrew Association Addresses Memorial to Congress on Russia's Violation of Pact With U. S.

Members of the Jewish Congregation, Synagogue of the Children of Isreael, Juhadah Halevi Camp 57, Order Sons of Zion; Plainfield Lodge, Order Brith Abraham, 657, and the Young Men's Hebrew Association at a meeting last night adopted resolutions calling upon the Congress and the President to abrogate the present treaty between the United States and Russia. Copies will be sent to the Congress and to President Taft, as well as to United States Senator James E. Martine and Congressman W. E. Tuttle. The resolutions follow:

"Whereas, it is and always has been the fundamental principle of this government that the rights of its citizens shall not be impaired at home or abroad because of race, color or religious belief;

"And whereas, under the treaty between the United States and Russia, entered into in 1832, Russia claims the right to and does discriminate between American citizens on the grounds of race and religious belief; and, as a consequence, American citizens who are Jews are excluded from Russia and are subject to the same class of restrictions as the Russian government imposes upon its own inhabitants who are Jews, all of which is contrary to the plain wording and meaning of said treaty;

"Therefore we, the undersigned American citizens, urgently request the President to terminate said treaty at the earliest possible time."

The memorial is signed by the following among others:

William Newcorn, Morris Abrams, Kalmen Rothberg, Jacob Sachar, Abe S. Newmark, Henry Heller, Benjamin W. Bernstein, Nathan Meyers, Samuel Rothberg, Samuel Rosenbaum, Elias Nadler, Morris Farbman, Jacob Steinberg, Samuel Taub, Julius Srager, Louis Steigman, Mendel Davidson, Isaac Srager, Samuel Kline, A. WEALTHY HUNGARIAN MEETS WITH ACCIDENT.

While hurrying to catch the 8:30 train this morning, Albin Trojan, who resides at Truell Inn, fell on Park avenue at the entrance to Depot Park and sustained a fracture of his right ankle. William A. Clark's chauffeur was returning to Truell Inn after taking Mr. Clark to the station and recognized in Mr. Trojan a guest of the resort. Upon learning that he was injured the chauffeur, Otto Guenther, placed Mr. Trojan in the car and drove rapidly to the Inn. Dr. Pittis was summoned and reduced the fracture.

Mr. Trojan formerly resided on East Front street. He is the agent in the United States for Hunyadi Janos Water.

FOOD AND SHELTER FOR POOR OF THE CITY.

The Plainfield Rescue Mission has leased five rooms on the second floor of 110 Park avenue, over Seidel's barber shop, where hot coffee and soup will be served to the needy. Three of the rooms will be furnished with beds for the accommodation of those who have on shelter. This is a new feature in the work of the Rescue Mission, in addition to that being carried on at the headquarters on Madison avenue. Tickets may be secured from John LeMatty, superintendent, at the rooms on Madison avenue each night after the service, beginning tomorrow night.

CHILDREN'S XMAS THEME FOR MOTHERS.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association will hold an important meeting at the Plainfield High School auditorium on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to which all interested in the society's work are cordially invited to attend. The subject for discussion will be "The Children's Christmas and How Best to Preserve the Christmas Spirit."

Mrs. Harold D. Corbusier, the president, will be in the chair and Mrs. Morris Benton will have charge of the program.

JERSEY MISSIONARIES FLED FROM CHINESE MOB.

Long Branch, Dec. 4.—In a letter to his mother, Mrs. H. B. Sherman, of this city, dated Shanghai, China, and received Saturday, the Rev. Arthur Mason Sherman, a missionary, tells of the uprising, the burning of their home at Hankow and the flight of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sherman and two children to Shanghai. Mr. Sherman, who was once stationed at Rahway as rector of an Episcopal church there, has been in China for twelve years.

In describing some of the cruelties he says: "In Hankow we had no fear except for such mobs. We had one or two anxious nights, and the ladies had a few necessary things packed ready to flee, at the ringing of the alarm bell, to the ships in the harbor which had steam up all the time. The concessions, however, were all patrolled by foreign volunteers and bluejackets from the gunboats, and in the native cities the rebel leaders succeeded in keeping the ruffians in check. Incendiary offenders were decapitated whenever discovered.

The foreigners at the iron works in Han Yang were soon obliged to lean on their Mausers. The members of the mob were about to break in and loot when they were discovered by revolutionary soldiers, and in a very little time their heads were nailed to the front door of the homes they were about to plunder. Rather a ghastly relic to most of the occupants upon their return, but it has been by such prompt and severe measures as this that order has been kept through the upheaval."

BERGEN TO APPOINT NEW BRUNSWICK COMMISSIONER.

The office of Sinking Fund Commissioner is vacant in New Brunswick because of the death of John N. Carpenter, who had held the office for many years. The character of the office is such that Democrats never disturbed Mr. Carpenter when they were in power. Mr. Carpenter was a Republican. His successor will likely be a Democrat. The appointment will be made by Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen. City Attorney Frederick Weigel, former City Treasurer J. Bayard Kirkpatrick and former City Treasurer James Neilson are mentioned as probable appointees.

LAMBERTVILLE TO LOSE ELECTED SCHOOL BOARD.

Notice has been received at Lambertville from the State Board of Education that the new law providing for a local board by appointment affects Lambertville, and accordingly the present elected board will go out of office on February 1.

William Lauer, Mayor-elect, will have the appointing power of the full board, three men to serve one year each, three two years and three three years.

BOGARDUS CANDIDATE FOR NATIONAL DELEGATE.

State Assessor Obadiah C. Bogardus, of Monmouth, will be a candidate at the primaries next May for election as a delegate to the Democratic national convention. Dr. Bogardus says he will be for Governor Wilson for President, and will have it so stated on the primary ticket.

RATS ATE UP HIS $2,565.

A life's savings of Jack Simpson, of Aitkin, Minn., amounting to $2,565, securely hidden from burglars, were reduced to pulp by hungry rats and mice, and in a letter received by President Taft Saturday he appealed for the redemption of the pulverized fragments by the Federal treasury.

His wealth, accumulated to buy a farm, Simpson explains, was placed in a box and deposited between the "upstairs floor and the ceiling." No human being disturbed it, but when he took it from its hiding place he found it reduced to dust by the ravages of rodents. The President has referred the matter to the Treasury Department for investigation.

SINCLAIR TO GET DIVORCE.

Upton Sinclair, the author and Socialist, will get his divorce from his wife, Meta F. Sinclair, if the court approves the recommendation made by Referee W. S. Kelley, who has been taking testimony in the case since October 23.

With the recommendation for an interlocutory decree went the referee's report of the testimony, containing details of life at Arden, the summer camp of the Sinclair colony, while Harry Kemp, the Kansas poet and co-respondent in the case, was a dweller there with other literary people.

Dangerous Place For Motorists.

The Bureau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America wishes to warn motorists traveling between New York and Peekskill of a dangerous point in the road just north of Crugers Station, about one-half way between Peekskill and Croton. A new railroad bridge is under construction, and unless great caution is used the automobilist is likely to find himself on the main line tracks of the New York Central instead of the Post road.

Miss Sophie Sherpeltz, of Union street, formerly of Mountain avenue, returned Saturday after a six months' visit with relatives in Germany.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY

The pupils of Mrs. Charles S. Day gave a delightful musicale in the First Baptist church Saturday night. There was a large attendance and the various numbers were accorded generous applause. A silver offering was received for the benefit of the Cheerful Workers.

The members of the Maccabees minstrel troupe are now holding regular rehearsals under the direction of Robert Lowrie. The performance will undoubtedly be one of the events of the season.

The picture show opened in the Linke building by J. G. Wolf on Thanksgiving Day is now running regularly and drawing large audiences.

The borough Board of Education will hold the regular monthly meeting at the Whittier School tomorrow night.

The New Market fire company will hold a meeting in the fire house tonight.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Peter Regando, the village shoemaker, lost $2.50 in about two minutes Saturday night. About 9 o'clock Regando stepped next door to the barber shop to exchange some small change for bills, leaving $2.50 in change in the money drawer. When he returned the till was empty. Regando has his suspicions as to the guilty party, but no arrest has as yet been made.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews occupied his pulpit yesterday morning at the Baptist church after a severe illness, which has detained him at home for two weeks. At the close of the morning sermon the regular monthly communion was held.

Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of "Deerhurst," is having his deer park rebuilt. The fence will be several feet higher, as it has been found that some of the old bucks could jump over the old fence. Several of them have escaped.

Miss Elsie Cook, of Plainfield, will give another of her interesting "Story Hours" Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 in the Public Library rooms. The public is invited.

Miss Joplin led the weekly prayer and praise meeting of the B. Y. P. U. held last night in the church parlors.

The public schools reopened this morning after the Thanksgiving vacation.

William Hoppock, of Newark, was the guest yesterday of friends in town.

Tomorrow---The First Display OF Our Christmas Holiday Goods

We've planned to make our store this year, "The Xmas Stor" of this city, and it will be, not only The Xmas Store, but the shopping center for Christmas gift buyers as well, particularly so when they learn of the many advantages of this display, whether it be in the nature of a pretty holiday novelty, articles of apparel for your own use or for some one you wish to remember with a real sensible gift,—you'll find choice refreshingly satisfying to a marked degree. Yes—and you'll find tags so in keeping with our usual moderate price markings that you'll be able to buy even more gifts than you planned.

Our months and months of careful buying and searching have culminated in gathering the most extensive and most complete stocks of Xmas Gift things we've assembled in years. This initial display will be fairly bewildering in its scope—counter after counter, row after row of show cases, racks, shelves—all are heavily laden with the best of Christmas stocks and which are on display in a manner to make your selections easier than you ever dreamed could be possible.

We want you to make this year's holiday shopping more pleasant than during any year of the past—YOU can help us—Shop Early. Scan this Xmas list carefully—it's worth your while.

GIFTS SUITABLE FOR WOMEN

We are showing a splendid stock of WOMEN'S WAISTS in white Lingerie, Chiffons and Silks.

Tomorrow We Open Toyland on Our Main Floor With A Display of Thousands Upon Thousands of Toys

Tomorrow is the day of days for the children of Plainfield and for miles and miles around—Toyland—the world of make-believe opens tomorrow exhibiting thousands and thousands of joy-creating and pleasure giving toys so dear to the heart of children. Every child in this whole town is invited to visit Toyland. Here you will find the very biggest display of toys and dolls you have ever seen. Santa Claus just simply dumped toys into our store by the carload. There are wee tiny undressed dolls to big queenly looking ones dressed in silks and satins—then there are horns, drums, doll carriages, wagons, pianos, games, steam engines that really run, electric toys and all of the many mechanical contrivances—why we could fill this whole page with just the names of the toys—so you can imagine how many thousands of toys are on display, and every toy is arranged so that it can be easily seen with the price marked in plain figures.

You really must bring the children here tomorrow—for, seeing the display of these Christmas toys is MORE to them than for you to see a once-in-a-life-time spectacle. Too, this opening of Toyland is of interest to you—for, haven't YOU got to get toys for some little child in your family? If you'll take our advice you'll select today—for right at this time is the very best time possible to make selections.

REMEMBER—TOYLAND OPENS TOMORROW ON OUR MAIN FLOOR—YOU AND THE CHILDREN ARE INVITED TO COME AND VIEW THE NEW CHRISTMAS TOYS IN ALL THE GLITTERING BEAUTY OF THEIR NEWNESS.

MYSTERY CLEARED IN FATAL AUTO MISHAP.

Paterson, Dec. 4.—Following close upon the identification of the woman who died in the General Hospital last Sunday from injuries received in an automobile accident at Lincoln Park a few days previous, as Mrs. Lydia G. Micheli, of Alameda, Cal., the name of her companion has been made known. He is Frank H. Wiggin, an operator on the Cotton Exchange, New York. After the accident Wiggin gave his name as Whitney and declared that the woman who was with him on the autmobile ride was his wife.

Mr. Wiggin said Saturday that Mrs. Micheli was a friend, and they were taking a drive when the accident happened. He defended his course and went on to say that had investigators come directly to him after the accident he "would have explained all." Mr. Wiggin, however, didn't explain how the investigators were going to learn his identity, in view of the fact that he gave a false name.

Mrs. Micheli's body is still in the undertaking establishment of Dufford & Vandervoord, and Charles S. Gall, registrar of vital statistics, says that he will not allow it to be buried until the death certificate is properly made out. It now bears the name of Mrs. William Whitney, that name having been given the hospital authorities when Mrs. Micheli was admitted there as a patient.

GOES TO COURT TO GET LAKE HOPATCONG BRIDGE.

In order to compel the Morris County Board of Freeholders to build a bridge between Racoon Island and the east shore at Lake Hopatcong, J. C. Megie has brought mandamus proceedings. The freeholders were requested to build the bridge last spring. A committee, of which Freeholder Frank C. Curie was chairman, was appointed to investigate. The committee reported that to build a steel and concrete bridge for the 450 feet required would cost $50,000. A summer hotel on the island accommodates 100 guests and there are thirty families living there in summer, only one or two of which are there the year round.

The committee said that, in its opinion, the necessity for the bridge does not justify the expense. The freeholders adopted the committee's view of the proposition and the matter was dropped. The residents of the island claim that the bridge will cost about $10,000 to build. The case will be argued by means of briefs before this term of the New Jersey Supreme Court. Vogt represents Mr. Megie and County Counsel George G. Runyon the freeholders.

UNION TO GET 'PHONE CENTRAL, CIVICS HEAR.

According to information received by the Connecticut Farms Improvement Association, Union Township, in the town hall that place Saturday night, the New York Telephone Co. will establish a "central" office in Union early next year. This news was received in a letter from John P. Dengler, of Vaux Hall road, that township, who, as former chairman of the committee on telephone matters, conferred with the officials of the company.

Mr. Dengler, in his letter, stated that the rate for local service, when the "central" is established, would be $4 for a direct wire and $2 for a party wire. He wrote that the company had not as yet decided upon other details, and had not informed him just where the office would be located.

Frank Eick, of East Third street, returned yesterday to Glen Falls, N. Y., after spending the Thanksgiving holidays at home.

NEW HOME FOR ELIZABETH SCRIBES.

On Wednesday night the Elizabeth Press Club will celebrate its moving into its new quarters with a banquet, which will be attended by practically all the city officials, and also by a number of prominent citizens in addition to the local scribes.

The club has been very successful since its organization, and has grown with great rapidity. The local newspaper men have succeeded in making their new home very attractive, and Wednesday night's celebration is but the first of many good times which will be held under the new roof.

TWELVE YOUNG WOMEN WILL LEARN SECRETS OF FARMING.

Twelve young ladies of New Brunswick are among those enrolled in a class of 130 who will enter the short courses in agriculture at the State School on Tuesday. The entering class is the largest in the history of the school. The courses will extend for three months. Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, president of Rutgers College, will make the opening address.

SEVERS THUMB; JOKES AS 'TIS STITCHED ON.

Atlantic City, Dec. 4.—Finding his left thumb hanging to his hand by shreds of skin, following the accidental discharge of a gun Saturday, Samuel Slaken, eighteen years old, gave a notable exhibition of nerve.

Slaken severed the thumb with his penknife. He wrapped the thumb up, put it in his pocket, stopped the flow of blood and then walked to the hospital. There he joked with the surgeons while they sewed the thumb in place.

$100,000 Fire in Roebling Plant.

Seven hundred employes were thrown out of work and $100,000 damage was done by a fire that destroyed the flat wire department of the John A. Roebling Sons' Company, at Hudson street and South Clinton avenue, Trenton Saturday. It is believed that the department will be established at Roebling, where a large part of the company's business is now carried on. The fire is supposed to have been started by a spark from a machine igniting some oil near by.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

The Home Building & Loan Association

Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years: If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent.	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. S.P.C.A GETS AFTER A WATCHUNG FARMER

Action will be started against Gerard Underhill, of Watchung, by the State Society of the S. P. C. A. for the unhuman manner in which he is alleged to have disposed of an old sick horse after allowing it to stand in an open, unprotected pasture, it is asserted, all day yesterday, last night and until 10 o'clock this morning, when a blow from a sledge hammer crushed the poor beast's head. A passing automobile party from New York noticed the horse yesterday and this morning when they were returning from over the mountains where they spent the day, Mrs. VanHoesen was notified upon their arrival in this city. She was unable to act, having no jurisdiction in Somerset county except by special permission. She was unable to get the Somerset county agent to take action and notified the head office in Newark.

Chief Weiss was deputized to investigate and engaged Dr. F. C. Herbert to accompany him to the place. Underhill was not at home when they arrived but members of his family admitted that the horse was sick, was in the field all night and had been killed by Mr. Underhill shortly before their arrival.

FIRST SNOW STORM DELAYS THE TRAFFIC.

The first real snow storm of the season arrived this morning and for a time it bid fair to tie up trolley cars and in other ways delay travel. Westbound trains on the New Jersey Central were late leaving Jersey City, owing to the trouble in clearing the switches in the yards. The Public Service Corporation had its snow ploughs out early and in this way kept the cars moving about on time. Before noon the snow had stopped and it cleared off with a lower temperature.

Special Advent Service.

Rev. Louis Shreve Osborne, rector of Trinity church, Newark, delivered the first of a series of sermons during Advent, at the 4:30 o'clock service at Grace church yesterday afternoon. There was present a large number of worshippers who enjoyed the service. The clergyman's theme was "The Incarnation," and his sermon was an impressive one. The service was preceded with a half hour's organ recital given by S. Frederick Smith, organist of the church.

Held an Informal Reception.

An informal reception was given Saturday night by Clarence Hand at his home on Fairview avenue, in honor of Frederick McClintock, a Cornell student, formerly of this city, now living at Oil City, Pa. The evening was spent in dancing and enjoying a program of vocal music, after which refreshments were served.

Rasores to Meet.

The Rasores will meet with Mrs. I. C. Pierson, of Watchung avenue, tomorrow morning at the usual hour.

EAST END RESIDENTS FORM AN ASSOCIATION

Plans for forming the Netherwood Improvement Association were discussed at a meeting at the home of Edwin L. Allen on East Seventh street on Saturday night. Those present were Robert A. Meeker, State supervisor of roads; Tax Collector William R. Townsend, F. W. Carlisle, Stanley E. Gunnison, S. L. Crossing, W. H. Beebe, C. R. Banks, A. C. Neidermery and Edwin L. Allen.

A nominating committee was selected and at the next meeting officers will be elected and a plan of action agreed upon. The association will be formed for the purpose of generally looking after that part of the city known as the Netherwood section, and securing desired improvements. Just what it is proposed to ask of the Common Council to do is not known for the present at least. The next meeting will probably be held at Truell Hall and all of the citizens of the Netherwood section will be invited. None of the old residents of the section were at the preliminary meeting.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

WESTFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Morrison, of Elm street, entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Farrington, of New York, on Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Ralph Vervoort, of Efferson place, is entertaining Miss Kate Van Alstyne, of Chatham, N. Y.

George L. Burd and family, of Mountain avenue, moved during the last week to Asbury Park.

Miss Virginia Gale, of South avenue, is entertaining her cousin, Miss Lois Beebe, of New York.

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Hayes have returned from a visit at Binghampton, N. Y.

Mrs. W. H. Trenchard, of Broad street, moved to Millburn Saturday.

In Guest's Honor.

Mrs. George O. Stevens, of West Sixth street, gave a reception and card party in honor of Miss Ethel Sleight, of Whitehall, N. Y., on Friday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. Five Hundred was played, three tables being in use. Among those present were the Misses Freda Gray, Elsie Knowlton, Caroline Durkin, Elizabeth Greenleaf, Fawn Thorn, Ruth Sadler, Miss Houston, Miss Filmer, Miss Helen Sadler and Miss Ethel Sleight. Miss Sleight spent Thanksgiving and the week-end as the guest of the Misses Elizabeth Greenleaf and Fawn Thorn, of West Sixth street.

Mrs. Frank E. Kinsman.

Word has been received here of the death of Mrs. Frank E. Kinsman, formerly of this city, which occurred at her home in North Leominster, Mass., on Thursday, following an operation for appendicitis. She was a prominent member of the Religious Society of Friends. She was married to Mr. Kinsman at Albany, N. Y., nine years ago. Beside her husband she is survived by these cousins, Miss Anna Angel, head of the Friends' Home; Miss Libby Angel and Mrs. George D. Hallock, of this city, and Thomas Young, of Fanwood.

Bernstein Takes Appeal.

An appeal from the decision of Recorder Dolliver in the case against Nathan Bernstein for beating a squirrel to death has been taken by his counsel, Francis J. Blatz, on the ground that there was lack of evidence to convict, and that the court had no jurisdiction. The fine imposed was $10 and costs which amounted to $7.50. Neighbors who witnessed Bernstein's act interested Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, local agent for the S. P. C. A., and she pressed the complaint.

PERFECT STEEL BALLS.

They Have Never Yet Been Made, Even In the Laboratory.

One of the needs of the day is a perfectly spherical steel ball, and yet it has never been made even in the laboratory, much less in the shop for commercial uses. When we consider the importance of ball bearings for automobiles, motorcycles and other machinery the imperfections in steel balls must appeal to all as of the greatest moment. Of course we make pretty good steel balls, which could not have been manufactured a few years ago. So far as the eye can discern, they are perfectly spherical, too, and ordinary measuring instruments will not be able to detect any difference in them, but nevertheless they are not perfectly spherical.

A steel ball for automobile bearings must be perfect within .0001 inch, and they are made even more perfect than this, but mathematical perfection in this respect seems to be almost as illusive as squaring the circle or discovering the perpetual motion machine.

When the steel ball was first used in the bearings of bicycles it was a very imperfect sphere. It was not called upon to bear any great load, and the velocity was not great. At the best the load on it was not more than 200 pounds, and at the rate of sixty miles an hour the revolutions were not more than 720 per minute. Compare that with the load and velocity of the modern ball bearings of automobiles. Frequently the load approximates a thousand pounds and the velocity is anywhere from 800 to 1,200 revolutions. The small steel balls must take the maximum load of the car and pass it on to others without binding or catching. A slight imperfection in any one ball would cause trouble. In fact, it is impossible to use balls with any appreciable variation in size from one another, and the more nearly round they are the better the results.

Steel balls are not only made more perfect in shape than ever before, but they are harder and tougher. As there is a tendency to flake, only special steels can be used in their manufacture, and these tough, hard steels are all the more difficult to work with to secure perfect roundness. The chrome steel, of which most balls for bearings are made, is one of the most difficult of steels to cut or shape, and the work of handling it has developed special tools, and machines made of even harder material.

While we have not yet made the perfectly spherical steel ball and perhaps may never succeed, the point of perfection reached is little short of wonderful. The approximately perfect steel ball is a matter of vital importance where machines and machinery are made and used. The application of the ball bearing system is extended to new lines of industrial use each year, and builders of all kinds of apparatus are taking advantage of the perfection reached by the manufacturers of these little spheres of tough steel.—Harper's Weekly.

Dancing In Washington's Days.

It was a dancing age. None was too old or too dignified to join in the pastime. We have it on the authority of General Greene that on one occasion Washington danced for three hours without once sitting down. Patrick Henry would close the doors of his office to betake himself to dancing or fiddling, and Jefferson dearly loved to "rosin" his bow for a merry jig. The story is told of him that once when away from home he received news of the burning of his father's house. "Did you save any of my books?" he asked of the slave who brought him the tidings. "No, massa," answered the negro, "but we saved the fiddle."—Maud Wilder Goodwin in "The Colonial Cavalier."

Ten Out of Five.

It was in an ideal seacoast town of Maine, to which they had fled for a lazy two weeks, that they found him, one of those "natives" with a large stock of undeveloped wit.

They were out gunning with the native as their guide. A flock of five birds flew over. Raising his gun, he took aim and fired. All five fell to the earth, and they were loud in their praises of his skill.

"That ain't nothin'!" said he contemptuously. "If I'd hed my other gun along I'd 'a' done better than that."—Metropolitan Magazine.

Arrows and Big Guns.

In the days of mailed knights and battleaxes there was safety at a distance of 400 yards. That was about as far as the best archers could shoot an arrow. Neade, a famous archer under Charles I., states that the ordinary range of the bow was between 320 and 400 yards, though it is on record that one man was shot a distance of 462 yards with the wind. Compared with this is the latest naval gun with a range of fifteen miles.

Hotter Than He Thought.

The boy whose business it was to answer the telephone rushed into the room of the senior partner.

"Just got a message saying that your house was on fire," he said.

"Dear me!" returned the senior partner in a bewildered sort of way. "I knew my wife was pretty hot about something when I left home this morning, but I didn't think it was so bad as to set the house on fire!"

Greatly Changed.

"Have you seen Miss Beanpole since she inherited a fortune?"

"Yes. She is greatly changed."

"How?"

"Well, she used to be frightfully skinny."

"And now she's divinely slender."—Toledo Blade.

THE HUMAN SKIN.

Changes In Its Hues That Have Come With the Ages.

COLOR A MATTER OF CLIMATE.

Man's Original Shade Is Believed to Have Been a Brownish Yellow—The Same Forces That Made Men White, Black and Yellow Still Operating.

Man's original color and the cause of the changes in that color to the various hues that mark the skins of the different races have long been a study among men of science.

The theory of Professor Lionel Lyde, an English scientist, is that, whatever the color of primitive man in the beginning, the conditions of life during the glacial period were such that uniformity of results must have been produced. Nearly every anthropologist is ready to admit now a common origin for all mankind. Where man originated is not known—very likely in southern Asia, possibly in Africa, certainly not in Europe, they say. His original color is supposed to have been a sort of brownish yellow not like any of the colors of mankind today, and scientists call him, for the sake of calling him something, a Condwana.

He lived in southern latitudes. This, they think, is certain. Then came migrations, and then, Professor Lyde believes, the variations of color began. Some turned white, some turned black, some brown and some yellow, all according to the climate in which they found themselves.

Climate influences worked directly and indirectly. In the tropics the skin and the intestines perform work which in temperate zones is thrown on the lungs. So when man found himself in cooler lands the increased activity of the lungs, together with the lessened light and heat, favored lightening of the skin. When he found himself in hotter climates the increased activity of the liver and the presence of great light favored a dark skin.

The old theories of race are pretty well discarded, for men of the same race, under differing conditions, would come to be outwardly very different. Thus even in Africa, which everybody thinks of as the land of blacks, black is not at all the universal color. In the Sudan, where there are great light and little humidity and no shade, the men are very black. Elsewhere in Africa, where there are forest, more humidity and less light, though about equal heat, the color is brown and even yellow.

As primitive man went on his way over the globe he adapted himself to the conditions he found. Professor Lyde thinks that it is light and not heat which is injurious. There are in the tropics dangerous X-like rays which must be stopped, and they were stopped by the darkening of the skin. Since lack of moisture also tends to give a tawny color, it is found that in rainy countries the people are fairer than in places where there are long and frequent droughts.

The race, then, that found a home in moderate and damp climates turned whiter and whiter. It is only in such climates that white skins can endure, and presumably, if the present white race was turned into a different part of the world for many hundreds of years, the whiteness of skin would gradually be lost. Perhaps, since the white man is spreading over the world to-day, it would be fair to say it will, in such cases, be lost, the whiteness being retained only in climates that have the conditions under which the race was first bleached.

Intensity of light and little humidity made black. Trade winds and little humidity gave the tinge of brown to the subtropical Mediterranean people. Then comes yellow, which Professor Lyde puts down as the result of "vast desiccating grass lands" in intemperate latitudes.

The yellow man is the product of the grass lands, with lack of humidity and seasonal extremes of temperature. The color a man exposed to such conditions would naturally take would be one which conserves heat nearly as well as white, but which also protects from light, for which combination yellow was the best, or red. The normal color of these folk of the grass lands would be changed by special local conditions, such as the presence of mountains or proximity to the sea. The mountaineers of Asia and the maritime Mongolians are lighter in color than their brothers of the inland plains.

To Professor Lyde, therefore, skin color is entirely a matter of climate. It is a well established phenomenon now because the different portions of the human race lived segregated for thousands of years in special areas, but the same forces that made men white and black and yellow are operating today, slowly, but surely. Men who change their dwelling places will still, after hundreds of generations, change also their skins as they did in the epoch of the first migrations.—New York Times.

Saving Money.

"My dear we can't go on in this way. You simply must find some way to cut down your household expenses."

"I've been cutting them down right along. Twice last week I refrained from ordering celery, and on Thursday I telephoned to my dressmaker, saving 10 cents car fare that would have been wasted if I had gone to try on my new gown, which wasn't ready. So you see I'm doing my best. But you can't expect me to do all the economizing. What are you doing to reduce your expenses?"

"Me? Great heavens! How can you ask such a thing? I saved $600 last week."

"Six hundred dollars! Why, George you haven't got $600 to save."

"I know it, but I saved it all the same. A friend of mine who claimed to have inside information concerning stocks gave me a pointer, and if I had borrowed $600 and done as he advised I'd have lost every cent of it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Classic Central New York.

Here in central New York we have our own peculiar problem. Some one with a devout admiration for the classics got in his work when the business of christening was going on in these parts. Authorities are in dispute as to who this person was. We shall not enter into that controversy, but merely call attention to the fact that in a county containing Apulia, Borodino, Camillus, Cicero, Delphi, Fabius, Manlius, Mycenae, Marcellus, Navarino, Pompey, Tully and Syracuse, to say nothing of Joshua and Jordan, there devolves upon the resident citizenship an obligation to use such pronunciation as shall honor the classic heroes and localities so carefully remembered by the pioneers. We have heard Apulia pronounced Apyoolye by the unthinking, and, on the other hand, that honored Scriptural name Joshua is now infrequently stretched into Joshaway, which overdoes it in the other direction.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

A Lawyer's Apology.

Many years ago there was an old judge on the bench in Berks county whose decisions, in consequence of numerous reversals, did not always command universal respect. One day in a case in which he was sitting one of the lawyers lost patience at his inability to see things in a certain light and in the heat of the moment remarked that the intellect of the court was so dark a flash of lightning could not penetrate it. For this contempt the judge showed a disposition to be very severe with the offender, and it was only after much persuasion by friends of the latter that he yielded and decided to accept a public apology. The following day the lawyer accordingly appeared before his honor and made amends by saying:

"I regret very much that I said the intellect of the court was so dark lightning could not penetrate it. I guess it could. It is a very penetrating thing."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Carved Cherry Stone.

Dr. Peter Oliver, who lived in England during the early part of the eighteenth century, tells of seeing a carved cherry stone which would be a wonder even in this age of fine tools and fine workmanship. The stone was one from a common cherry, and upon it were carved the heads of 124 popes, kings, queens, emperors, saints, etc. Small as they must necessarily have been, it is announced on the authority of Professor Oliver that with a good glass the heads of the popes and kings could readily be distinguished from those of the queens and saints by their miters and crowns. The gentleman who brought this little wonder to England purchased it in Prussia, allowing the original owner £5,000 for his treasure. Think of it—$25,000 for a cherry seed!

Jewels on an Idol.

The jewels of an Indian idol must be worth stealing if many of those remarkably hideous images possess such valuable head ornaments as one made for the idol Parthasathy, in the Triplicane temple at Madras. The ornament is worth some 50,000 rupees and is made of sovereign gold studded with diamonds, emeralds and rubies, the largest emerald being valued at 1,000 rupees and the biggest ruby and diamond at 300 rupees apiece.

The Money Power.

Braggs—It is positively absurd to talk about a "money power" in this country. There is no such thing. Waggs—I'd just like to discuss that with you. Have you got a minute to spare? Braggs—Not a minute. I've got a note due at the bank, and they're bothering me to death about it.—Life.

The Value of a Secret.

"I'm sure," said an interviewer, "the public would be interested to know the secret of your success."

"Well, young man," replied the captain of industry, "the secret of my success has been my ability to keep it a secret."

Obstinacy.

There is something in obstinacy which differs from every other passion. Whenever it fails it never recovers, but either breaks like iron or crumbles away like a decayed arch.

Went Too Far.

An unsuccessful lover was asked by what means he had lost the object of his affections.

"Alas," he said, "I flattered her till she got too proud to speak to me."

Cheerfulness keeps up a kind of sunshine in the soul and fills it with a steady and perpetual serenity.

The Kingdom Of Slender Swords

By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

"You are twenty-three, educated, good looking, with the best of life before you, but dependent on the niggardly charity of a rich brother for the very bread you eat. Even here, on this skirt of the world where pleasures are cheap, it is only by dint of debt that you keep your head above water. Now your sedate relative has come to sit in judgment on your past year. What does he care for your private tastes? What will he do when he hears of the geisha suppers and the bar chits at the club and the roulette table at the bungalow? Increase that generous stipend of yours? I fancy not."

"I HAVE CHOSEN YOU."

Phil lit a cigar with a hand that shook. The doctor's contemptuous words had roused a tingling anger that raced with the alcohol in his blood. He, with the tastes of a gentleman, as poor as a temple rat, while his brother sailed around the globe in his steam yacht! He saw his allowance cut off—saw himself driven to the cheap expedients of the bund beach comber, cringing for a yen from men who had won his hundreds at the Roost or perhaps sitting on an underclerk's stool in some settlement counting house, shabby genteel, adding figures from 8 in the morning to 5 at night. No more laughing Japanese faces and tinted fingers, no more stolen kisses in bamboo lanes, no more Haru!

He struck the stand with his fist. "And if—I agree," he said thickly, "what then?"

Bersonin leaned forward. "I have talked of money. I will show you a quick way to gain it—not by years, but by days—wealth such as you have never dreamed, enough to make your brother poor beside you. Not only money, but power and place and honors. Is the stake big enough to play for?"

"SING, DICK!" HE CRIED LOUDLY—"SING, SING!"

Phil stared at him, fascinated.

"What do you—want me to do?" He almost gasped the words.

The expert looked him in the eye a full moment in silence, his fingers crawling and twitching. Then with a quick, leopard-like movement he went to the wall safe, opened it and took out what seemed a square metal box. In its top was set an indicator, like the range finder of a camera. Its very touch seemed to melt his icy control. His paleness flushed; his hand trembled as he set it upon the desk.

"Wait!" he said. "Wait!"

He looked swiftly about the room. His eye rested on the bamboo cage, and a quick gleam shot across his face. He opened the wire door, and the little bird hopped to his finger. He moved a metal pen rack to the very center of the desk and perched the tiny creature on it. It burst into song, warbling full throated, packed with melody. Bersonin set the metal case a little distance away and adjusted it with minutest care.

"Sing, Dick," he cried loudly—"sing, sing!"

The song stopped. There had come a thrill in the air, a puff of icy wind on Phil's face, a thin chiming like a fairy cymbal. Phil sprang up with a cry. The fluffy ball, with its metal perch, had utterly disappeared; only in the center of the desk was a pinch of reddish brown powder like the dust of an emery wheel, laid in feathery whorls.

He stared transfixed. "What does it mean?" he asked hoarsely.

TURKEY.

Gobble, gobble, gobble, gobble. Some of you will gobble up a whole turkey tomorrow, and then you will not be thanks giving.

GOBBLE.

You will go out and gobble up some Real Estate from the advise of some inexperienced person or firm and then you will let me give you the exact situation as to your property. Then you will want to be sea-sick and can't.

SITUATION.

Do you know that Real Estate is the safest investment one can make by 100%? Did it ever occur to you that from the time you are born until the time the undertaker is through with you, you are compelled to have something to do with Real Estate? If you are at home that is Real Estate. No matter where you go, you are on or in someone's Real Estate. What you eat comes from the farm or Real Estate. In other words the demand for Real Estate is greater than for any other one thing.

LOOSE MONEY.

There is no reason to loose money in buying Real Estate if you know how. But the reason you do loose is because you either take your own advise or the advise of a lawyer or Banker. Would you ask a plumber about a watch?

You don't know that about one-third or more of houses are a detriment to the lot. In other words, a lot would very often be worth more without a house than it is with it. Buy from one who has had a life-time's experience.

The doctor's voice leaped now with an evil exultation. "It means that I, Bersonin, have found what physicists have dreamed of for fifty years. I have solved the secret of the love and hatred of atoms. That box is the harness of a force beside which the engines of modern war are children's toys."

He grasped Phil's arm with a force that made him wince. The amber eyes glittered.

"At first I planned to sell it to the highest bidder among the powers. I was a fool to think of that. The nation that buys it to guard the secret for itself must wall me in a fortress. That would be the reward of Bersonin—the great Bersonin, who had wrested from nature the most subtle of her secrets! But I am too clever for that. It must be I—I alone—who holds the key! It shall bring me many things, but the first of these is money. I must have funds—unlimited funds. The money I despise, except as a stepping stone, but the money you love and must have. Well, I offer it to you!"

Phil's heart was beating hard. The tension of the room had increased; a hundred suffocating atmospheres seemed pressing on it. "How—how"— he stammered.

Bersonin took a paper from his pocket, unfolded it and laid it on the stand. It was a chart of Yokohama harbor. A red square was drawn in the margin, and from this a fine, needlelike ray pointed out across the anchorage. With his pencil the doctor wrote two words on the red square—"The Roost."

Phil shrank trembling into his chair. He seemed to see the other looking at him over clinking glasses at the club, while voices spoke from the next room. "What if one of those Dreadnoughts should go down in this friendly harbor!" It came from his lips in a thin whisper, almost without his volition, the answer to the question that had haunted him that day.

A gleam like the fire of unholy altars came in Bersonin's eyes.

"Not one—two! A bolt from a blue sky that will echo over Europe! And what then? A fury of popular passion in one country; suspicion and alarm in all. Rumors of war, fanned by the yellow press. The bottom dropping out of the market. It means millions at a single coup, for, in spite of diplomatic quibbles, the market is like a cork. The Paris bourse is soaring. Wall street will make a new record tomorrow. In London consols are at 92. My agents are awaiting my word. I have many, for that is safer. I shall spread selling orders over five countries—British bonds in Vienna and New York and steel and American railroads in London. I risk all and you nothing. Yet if you join hands with me in this we shall share alike, you and I. And with the winnings we get now we shall get more. Trust me to know the way. Money shall be dirt to you. The pleasure cities of every continent shall be your playgrounds. You shall have your pretty little Japanese peri and fifty more besides."

Phil's face had flushed and paled by turns. He looked at the expert with a shivering fascination: "But there are—there will be—men aboard those ships." He shuddered and wrenched his gaze away.

Bersonin put out his great hand and laid it on the other's shoulder—its weight seemed to be pressing him down into the chair.

"Well," he said in a low, intense voice, "what if there are?"

There was a long silence. Then slowly Phil lifted a face as white as paper. A look slinking and devilish lay in it now.

The doctor bent down and began to speak in a low tone. The sound passed around the room, sibilant, like the sound of a bat's wings in the dark.

It was an hour before midnight when Phil opened the gate of the expert's house and passed down the moonlighted street. He walked stumblingly, cowering at the tree shadows, peering nervously over his shoulder like one who feels the presence of a ghastly familiar.

In the great room he had left Bersonin stood by the fireplace. The nervous strain and exaltation were still on him. He poured out a glass of the liqueur which he had not yet tasted and drank it off. The hot pungent mint sent a glow along his nerves. Behind him Ishida was methodically removing the dinner service. The doctor crossed the room and stood before the bamboo cage. He drew back the spring door and, whistling, held out his finger.

"Here, Dick!" he called. "Here, boy!"

There was no response.

He started back. His face turned a gray green. He drew back and stealthily turned his head.

But the Japanese did not seem to have noticed the silence. With the tray in his hands, he was looking fixedly at the feathery sprays of reddish yellow dust on the polished top of the desk.

Woman's Club Planning a Home.

The Woman's Club, of Westfield, is planning to erect a clubhouse in the spring. The club has an active building committee, which has already a list of several suitable sites for such a home in the vicinity of Broad street and Mountain avenue. An entertainment for the benefit of the building fund will be held in Washington High School auditorium on the evening of December 27, when Mrs. Christobel Kidder will give the reading entitled "The Piper," by Josephine Preston Peabody.

The Problem of the Christmas Gift

Because we live in an extravagant age and our friends are surfeited with the little luxuries which used to make acceptable gifts, the practical present is becoming more popular every year.

There could be no more practical and acceptable gift for wife, mother, sister or child than a 4% interest account in our Special Department. Send us $5.00 or more and we will mail to whomever you may designate, a pass book enclosed in an attractive Christmas envelope.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB RIDERS GO 18 MILES

Old Essex B, Peter Hauck's Jr.'s great hunter, winner of many prizes at steeplechase events, again hunted with the Watchung Hunt Club on Saturday, setting a fast pace for the large field in following the hounds. Mr. Hauck's trainer, Mr. Sullivan, was up, and throughout the eighteen mile run the famous hunter went through like a breeze, taking all of the fences in grand style.

J. J. O'Donohue was the only cropper. His horse ran a distance of three miles before being caught. The rider was not injured to any extent. The hounds were met at Two Bridges and they were thrown in on the Lee farm. The chase was continued over the Walker, Wall, Rosell and Benson farms, where the first check was made; then over the Schilling, Terry, Hatch, Still farms, checking on the Talcott farm. The run home was over the French, Smalley, Rogers, Scudder, Henry, Harlie, Hatfield, Sikon, Terry, Mair and Zingleback farms to the horse show grounds, the finish. The going was heavy, but the fencing was great. In addition to five grooms who were out exercising horses, the following rode in the hunt:

Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H.; J. J. O'Donohue, C. W. Holland, Lawrence Smith, H. L. Finch, Frank Davis, Col. C. E. S. Bellows, Miss Gertrude Noe, C. F. Wildey, Trainer Sulivan and Huntsman Henry Watkins.

ORATORIO RENDERED AT 1ST M.E. CHURCH

An edifying musical service was held at the First M. E. church last night, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster, when the quartet choir sang J. H. Maunder's oratorio, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace," the words of wrich were selected from the Bible by Rev. W. J. Bettinson. The oratorio, unusually tuneful and deeply religious, was rendered impressively. As a preliminary to the oratorio, Aleck MacGowan, tenor, sang as an offertory, "Open the Gates," by Knapp. Mr. MacGowan has a genuine tenor voice of unusual sweetness and range and he has never been heard to better advantage.

During the fore part of the service the quartet also sang the anthem, "Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace," by Williams.

The oratorio is divided into three parts, penitence, pardon and peace, and it offers exceptional oportunities for four voices. Mrs. June Bilby, soprano, sang in her usual good voice, her rendition of the difficult lines being exceptional. Raymond A. McGee, basso, was given a number of selections and his work was of a high order. Athough she had a minor part, Mrs. Austin Norris, contralto, sang in a pleasing manner. All of the solo parts and the choruses were well rendered and reflected credit on the singers and the director, Mr. Braider. Considering the weather the service was largely attended.

Netherwood Church Appointments.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Netherwood Reformed church will hold its monthly business meeting and social at the parsonage tonight. On Wednesday night the midweek prayer meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George D. Merkel, 1245 George street, and on Thursday night the Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Claud Gonod, on George street. On Friday night, Rev. Dr. Easton will give the second of his series of lectures, the subject being, "The Old Century and the New."

FINE NEW PIPE ORGAN AT HOLY CROSS CHURCH

The new organ at the Church of the Holy Cross was used yesterday for the first time and its fine tones were thoroughly enjoyed by the two large congregations. The instrument was installed by the W. W. Kimball Co., of Chicago, and as a solo instrument is particularly sweet toned, having great volume, the stops are fine voiced so that a great many superb effects can be obtained. It has three manuals—sweet, great and choir; also a pedal organ. It is tubular pneumatic action, has 25 speaking stops (of full compass) and ten couplers. There are eight adjustable combination pistons, giving a large amount of variety in the changing of registers. The pedal board is concaved and radiating.

The full specification is 1,554 pipes and it has a three and a half horse power motor.

ONE-LEGGED LAD OF 13 LEADS ORANGE "KEY MEN."

The "key-man," who has been operating in Orange, has turned out to be a clique of lads, led by a one-legged youngster of thirteen. They have been entering places which could be opened by a key the leader had.

Three of the lads were seen trying to get into Roth & Co.'s, 276 Main street, Orange, at 8:45 o'clock Friday night by Policeman Alberts.

The one-legged fellow could not get away and was taken to the police station. Detective Sergeant John Drabell Saturday located four other boys who made admissions, and Judge Bray held them for the Juvenile Court.

The news stand of Frederick Miller, in Cone street, was entered Friday night by the youths for the third time, but nothing was taken.

AFTER TILT OVER SHOES, GIRL COMMITS SUICIDE.

Following a quarrel with her sister over a pair of hoes, Mabel Foster, sixteen years old, daughter of John Foster, a carpenter, of 837 Spruce street, Camden, committed suicide Saturday afternoon by taking carbolic acid.

The girl was found unconscious in an alley in the vicinity of Sixth and Clinton streets, and died just after being admitted to Cooper Hospital. A bottle containing some of the acid was found by her side.

When she left the house the child was angry because she was unable to obtain a pair of shoes belonging to another member of the family. Several times she had been treated at the hospital for hysteria.

Aged Clerk Asks Less Pay.

Washington, D. C. Dec. 4.—After serving the Government continuously for sixty-three years Thomas Harrison, now a clerk at the Naval Observatory, will be demoted at his own reuqest. The change will take effect December 6, the sixty-third anniversary of his entrance into the Government's employ.

Navy Department officials were loath to asquiesce in the request of the old employe, and only last summer refused, but further pleas on the part of Mr. Harrison, who is 83 years old, to relieve him of some of the responsibilities, led the department to acede to his request. He will be reduced from an $1,800 clerkship to one at $1,400.

Catch Suicide in the Act.

Shortly after breakfast, Friday morning Howard Mead, a forty-year-old unmarried farmer living near Elmer, N. J., strolled ou to the barn and took a big dose of Paris green. Some of the members of his family saw him do it, and called Dr. Black, of Elmer, in time to save him. Mead was resting easily later in the day, but he declined to say why he was tired of life, and none of his relatives could explain his act.

Boy Faces Murder Charge.

West Chester, Pa., Dec. 4.—Accused of striking on the head with a stone 13-year-old John W. Adams in a scuffle, Daniel Hennessey, a 14-year-old neighbor, was arrested Saturday and held under $1,000 bail to answer for murder. The Adams lad, assaulted several days ago, has since died.

Court Union, No. 3277, Independent Order Foresters, will elect officers at its meeting tomorrow night. A full attendance of members is desired.

COUNCIL'S ROUTINE

Many Minor Matters Disposed of at a Meeting of the City Fathers.

Y. M. C. A. MUST PAY TAXES.

Outgoing Council to Hold Two More Sessions—One Thursday, December 14, and Other on Thursday, Dec. 21.

The State Board of Health in a communication to the Common Council at the December meeting last night, gave its approval of the plans for the proposed sanitary sewer extension on Lenox and Cameron avenues and Laramie road. The contract for the work has been given to Charles A. Peterson, of this city, and the Council, according to law, was obliged to secure the approval of the State Board of Health of the plans.

Chairman Herbert Buxton, of the finance committee, stated that in the matter of the tax appeal of the Young Men's Christian Association, the State Board of Taxation had decided in favor of the city. H. C. Runyon represented the city. The association took an appeal from the local and county tax boards on the assessment levied.

Mr. Buxton offered resolutions authorizing City Treasurer W. F. Arnold to pay to the proper authorities $142,519.24, the city's share of the State school and county tax, and the following sums were authorized distributed to the different funds mentioned and charged up to the contingent fund:

County and State school tax, $10,-793.85; city taxes, $9,394.65; fire fund, 1910, $270.66; poor fund, 1910, $72.01; library, $67.14; city school, $482.39; sewer bonds, $46.12; sewer interest, $73.15, making a total of $21,199.98.

Acting upon the petition of Alexander Riley, proprietor of the Hotel Kensington, his liquor license was transferred by the Council to John H. Kitchen, who has just purchased the business from Mr. Riley, and Mr. Kitchen is now in charge.

Residents of Manson place petitioned the Council to put that thoroughfare to proper grade and otherwise improve the street. The matter was referred to the street committee and later Mr. Gloak, chairman, reported that the asked-for improvements are now underway.

Copies of the tax appeals made by the Columbus Club, W. G. Hockridge and Henry Drouet, were presented and placed on file, according to law. W. A. Coddington, representing S. A. Cruikshank, objected to a notice ordering his client to lay a sidewalk on Ravine road, and Mr. Coddington also objected to a similar notice served on him affecting property owned by himself on Ravine road. His objections were based on the contention that the thoroughfare is not macadamized and no other improvements have been made. The communications were referred to the street committee.

John P. Day, of New York, an auctioneer, was granted an auctioneer's license, in response to a request and the same will be issued to him upon payment of the fee. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts for the past month to be $178.60 and expenditures, $63.10, leaving a balance of $115.50. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of 28 permits during the past month and Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported that 19 sewer permits were issued.

The New York Telephone Company, in a communication, called the attention of the Council to the fact that several poles in the city erected by the company are used to support municipal wires, and requested that the city assume the care of the poles. This was referred to the fire committee as the wires referred to are those used in connection with the fire alarm system.

Two electric lights were ordered placed on Webster place, one on W. Sixth street, between Clinton and Monroe avenues, and two on West Fourth street, between Monroe and Clinton avenues, in response to petitions. This action was taken following resolutions by Mr. Clay, chairman of the light committee.

Public notice was given requesting that all persons having bills against the city to present the same by December 21, when the Council will meet for that purpose.

Among the bills presented last night was one for $150 from W. S. Angleman, attorney, for services rendered to the poor department. Mr. Buxton said that he had no definite knowledge concerning the bill and it was held up for the present.

When Council adjourned it did so to meet again on Thursday, December 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Y. Wilmont, of West Sixth street, are entertaining relatives from Carthage, N. Y.

PLAINFIELD CLERICUS LISTENS TO PROF. JENKS

Rev. C. H. Mallery, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, and Rev. John G. Currier, assistant rector at Grace church, where the local members who attended the regular meeting of the Plainfield Clericus held at the residence of Rev. A. S. Phelps, of Bound Brook, yesterday. Owing to the weather there was a small attendance. Mr. Phelps was the host at a delightful repast served to the visiting clergymen.

The feature of the meeting was a paper by Prof. A. W. Jenks, of the General Theological Seminary, on "The Present Outlook for the Anglican Communion." The speaker said that while there seemed to be a great deal of irreligion in the world, in his opinion if the Church was faithful there would be a strong re-action which would be of lasting benefit to the cause of Christ and his Church.

The next meeting of the clericus will be held at the home of Rev. Clarence S. Wood, at Roselle, on January 8, when Prof. Dickinson Miller, late of Columbia University, will read a paper on "Religion and Science."

BOOTH GIVES LECTURE ON EARLY CHRISTIANS

The mission meetings conducted for the past week at the Park Avenue Baptist church came to a close last night when the evangelist, Herbert Booth, of London, England, delivered his lecture, "The Early Christians," to a congregation that comfortably filled the edifice. The address was illustrated by more than a hundred handsomely colored bioscopic views which cost $12,000 to produce as they required the services of 800 people specially costumed and posed in prepared scenic surroundings.

Judging from the favorable comments expressed by those present it was evident that their expectations had been fully realized. The lecture is correctly named for the speaker deals entirely with the struggles of the early martyrs to the Christian religion, particularly Peter and Paul. The slides are faithful reproductions of the described scenes through which these disciples passed in the promulgation of the Gospel and the hardships they were obliged to endure.

ANNUAL INSPECTION OF TRINITY COMMANDERY

The annual inspection of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., took place last night, at which time there were present the grand commandery officers and large delegations from Damascus Commandery, of Newark; Temple Commandery, of New Brunswick; DeMolay Commandery, of Washington, and DeWitt Clinton Commandery, of Brooklyn. There was also present members from Somerville and Bound Brook.

The grand commandery officers present included Rt. Eminent Grand Commander John P. Contrell, of Newark; Past Grand Commander Josiah Davidson, of Washington; Grand Generalissimo Otto O. Stillman, of New Brunswick, who was the inspecting officer; Grand Recorder J. M. Wright, of Newark; Grand Senior Warden William Hayes, of Trenton.

Trinity Commandery went through its ritualistic work in a way calling forth commendation of all the grand commandery officers, and in the speeches which followed the sir knights of Trinity were praised for their high standard of efficiency. After the work all adjourned to the banquet hall, where Thomas Timbo furnished an excellent turkey supper.

Mr. Smith's New Position.

Herbert B. Smith, formerly of West Fifth street, who left last April to become assistant advertising manager of the Times-Republican, Marshalltown, Iowa, has severed his connection with the publication in order to accept an excellent position with the Marshall Oil Company, one of the largest concerns out of the trust. The former Plainfielder represents the company in Iowa and adjacent States, traveling out from the branch headquarters at Aberdeen, S. D. Mr. Smith was a member of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra before leaving for the west and frequently rendered 'cello numbers at local entertainments.

Governor Likely to Appoint Local Man as F. H. Andrews' Successor.

THREE SEEKING POSITION.

Brodhead, Reville or Shattle Likely to Be Named—McLoughlin and Crane Would Like to Get Place.

Indications are that Governor Wilson will have to use considerable diplomacy in choosing a member of the Union County Board of Taxation to succeed F. H. Andrews, of this city, whose term will expire next April.

There are already several candidates in the field and they are all men who are considered entitled to recognition at the hands of the State executive.

The position, the duties of which will occupy but part of the time of the incumbent, pays $1,500 a year. The appointment will probably be the first that the Governor will be called upon to make in this county, and will be the first time a Democrat has had an opportunity to land a "courthouse job" in a good many years.

Among those who are considered candidates for the position at this time are Assemblyman Calvin E. Broadhead, of this city, and Hugh J. McLoughlin, of Elizabeth; J. Williams Crane, treasurer of the Union county Democratic committee; Patrick J. Reville, of this city, and Frank J. Shattle, of this city, vice-chairman of the Union county Democratic committee.

It is a difficult matter even to attempt to pick a winner from among these men. Mr. Broadhead and Mr. McLoughlin are both very close to Governor Wilson and have frequently been praised by him for their work during the last session of the Legislature. Mr. Crane is a man well advanced in years and has labored incessantly for his party during most of his life.

Mr. Reville has also been a hard worker for Democracy and has a host of supporters in the northern part of the county. The same can be said of Mr. Shattle.

The present members of the tax board besides Mr. Andrews are C. C. Pollard, of Elizabeth, who is president of the board and a Republican and Mulford M. Scudder, of Westfield, a Democrat. Mr. Pollard's term does not expire until April, 1913, and Mr. Scudder's in April, 1914. Those considered "on the inside" are of the opinion the Governor will not appoint another Elizabeth man on the board, and point out that inasmuch as Mr. Andrews is from Plainfield and three of the candidates now considered in the field are from this city, a Plainfield man is liable to land the job.

FRIES IN PENITENT MOOD ESCAPES WITH A $3 FINE.

Albert Fries, the borough man who chipped off a portion of his chin and powdermarked his neck by the discharge of a shot-gun at his home Sunday night, appeared before Recorder Dolliver this morning to explain the inside facts of the case. He admitted that he had imbibed a little too much liquor, which accounted for his chasing his wife outdoors and brandishing the weapon until it went off. He solemnly declared that he had not contemplated suicide and no one was ever more surprised than he when the broadside caught him above the collar line.

Fries was very penitent for his actions and asked for the leniency of the court. Recorder Dolliver took into consideration that he had a badly damaged face to punish him for a long time to come and imposed a fine of $3.

Pearson—Saunders.

Miss Ida B. Saunders, daughter of E. L. Saunders, of Marshall street, Newark, and Oscar P. Pearson, of this city, were quietly married Sunday night at the home of the bride's father. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. P. Dougherty, of Newark. Miss Katherine Guttman, of Newark, was the maid of honor and Elliott Smith, of this city, the best man. The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar F. Pearson, of 1018 East Front street, this city. Both the bride and groom are well known here. They will reside in Plainfield after a trip.

Rev. Gilbert Lovell Returning.

Friends in this city of Rev. Gilbert Lovell, missionary of the Crescent Avenue church in China, have learned that he has been heard from in Shanghai, saying that he would sail for home on his furlough on November 28. He will be accompanied by his family. Mr. Lovell has been in the mission fields of China for seven years.

EPISCOPAL PARISHES SELECTED VESTRYMEN

The annual parish meetings were held last night at Grace, St. Stephen's and the Church of the Holy Cross, and the reports received at all indicate that they are in prosperous conditions, financially and otherwise. At each a vestry was chosen as were also delegates to the diocesan convention to be held in Mt. Holly next May.

These were again chosen at the Grace church meeting: Wardens, Howard Fleming and W. T. Gough; vestrymen, George S. Clay, W. D. Pelletier and O. G. Waring, each for three years; delegates to the diocesan convention, Howard Fleming, G. M. Holstein, G. S. Clay; alternates, J. P. Nolting, E. F. Feickert and R. A. Claybrook.

At the Church of the Holy Cross the following were selected: Wardens, senior, Dr. J. A. Carman; junior, H. E. Langford; vestrymen, J. A. VanMater, J. Brognard Betts, F. L. Sill, J. W. Hegeman, C. E. Murray; delegates to the diocesan convention, J. A. VanMater, J. Brognard Betts and H. E. Langford; alternates, F. L. Sill, J. W. Hegeman and F. L. Herbert. Delegates to the convocation, D. C. Anderson and W. S. O'Brien.

These were elected at the meeting of St. Stephen's church: Vestrymen, William Lockwood, Charles Banks and Christie Hamilton. These were elected delegates to the diocesan convention, F. W. Carlyise, Adam C. Hill and John C. Haywood.

STANDARD OIL TANK SUBJECT OF MEETING

Although the Common Council evidently does not consider it wise to act this year on the application of the Standard Oil Company for permission to erect large storage tanks here, the fire and buildings committee will make a special study of the proposition and gain all possible information on the subject so that it may be handled in an intelligent manner next year.

With this end in view, Duncan W. Taylor, chairman of the fire and building committee, has arranged for a conference of the Common Council to be held Friday night when Superintendent McKeon, the head of the department of combustibles in New York, will be present and give an informal talk on combustibles and tell how the New York department provides for the safety of life and property in allowing the erection of storage tanks for gasolene, kerosene and other combustible liquids.

The Common Council will take no action on Friday night, the meeting being arranged simply for the purpose of securing such information as is needed to guide the members in their action in the future. The members are anxious to safe-guard every interest and for that reason will not act hastily on the application of the Standard Oil Company, and, beside, Mayor Moy has stated that in the present form of the petition he would veto it.

REFUSES TO SET ASIDE A WRIT OF CERTIORARI.

An application was made to Judge Parker, of the Supreme Court, at Jersey City, on Saturday by Lindabury, Depue and Faulks, representing the Board of Education of Bernards Township, and G. W. Porter, representing the American Concrete Steel Company, to set aside the writ of certiorari recently obtained by Counsellor W. S. Angleman, of this city, removing proceedings relative to the $31,000 award for a new high school building at Bernardsville.

The application was opposed by Mr. Angleman, and Judge Parker refused to set aside the writ. In order that further testimony might be taken, a rule to show cause was granted returnable on Saturday of this week, when the application will be renewed. Further testimony will be taken by Lindabury, Depue and Faulks and by Mr. Porter at Newark tomorrow to be used on the new argument.

Plum for McLean.

At the caucus of the Republican members of the Assembly today at Trenton, Donald McLean, of Elizabeth, was chosen for journal clerk of the House to succeed George Johnston, of Scotch Plains. Mr. McLean was formerly private secretary to former U. S. Senator John Kean. The position pays $1,000 a year.

In the Borough Court.

Luther Kenney and Charles Harris, colored, arrested Saturday for drunkenness, had sentence suspended. Michael Moynihan, apprehended last night for not having proper lights on his auto, appeared too late for trial today and will be given a hearing tomorrow.

AGREE ON TOLLES

Selected to Succeed Himself as President at Common Council Caucus.

REVILLE FAVORED ENDRESS.

Democratic Members-elect Attend Meeting and Reville Shakes Hands With Buxton Whom He Defeated.

Councilman Ralph I. Tolles, who is now completing his fifteenth consecutive year as a city father, five of which he has been chief officer of that body, is the choice of the Common Council for its presidency for 1912. This selection was made at a caucus following the regular meeting of the Common Council last night. All of the members of the 1912 body were present, including Patrick J. Reville and Fred Endress, the two Democratic members. The former will succeed Herbert Buxton in the Fourth ward, and Mr. Endress will succeed F. L. Montgomery, at large.

After Mr. Tolles was named as the choice for the presidency next year, Mr. Reville nominated his colleague, Mr. Endress. Mr. Tolles supported Mr. Endress. Other matters to be decided later in completing the organization will be that of a successor to City Clerk J. T. MacMurray and George B. Wean as city stenographer. These will be taken up at a future meeting of the 1912 body, and there appears to be no question that both will be chosen again.

Councilmen Reville and Endress reached the city building while the Council was in session, and upon the suggestion of Mr. Mygatt they were invited to take seats within the inclosure. The members-elect accepted the invitation and as they did so took occasion to shake hands with the other members. There was a little ripple of laughter when Mr. Reville walked to Mr. Buxton's desk and extended his hand to the Fourth ward member who was defeated last month. There was a cordial handshake on the part of the two men.

LOCAL SISTERS OF MERCY BEGIN A TWO WEEKS' SALE.

A sale of fancy articles, embroidery and paintings, under the auspices of the Sisters of Mercy, opened at the residence at 53 Fairview yesterday afternoon. It will be continued for the next two weeks, during the hours between 11 and 12 in the morning, 3 to 6 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 at night.

The initial attendance was good considering the weather, and many of the articles were sold. All are suitable for Christmas presents. Everything displayed is the work of the sisters and duplicates may be had upon application. The proceeds from the sale will be added to the Mount St. Mary's College fund.

50 VOTES COST $155 IN THE TINIEST BOROUGH.

Residents of Millstone are aroused over the cost to that borough of holding the recent fall election under the Geran law. Millstone is the smallest borough in New Jersey, and it has a registry list of only fifty voters. The report of the cost of holding the last general election shows an expenditure of $155, or more than $3 for each voter. Owing to the cost of the election Borough Clerk M. M. Davis has decided to make no charge for his services, which, at the regular rate, would bring the cost up to $4 for each voter.

In the City Court.

William Kneuss, of West Front street, was arrested yesterday on his wife's complaint and this morning he told Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court that the trouble was all her fault. She did not appear against him. Sentence was suspended. Eugene Dwyers, of Philadelphia, was also given another chance. He was arrested by Patrolmen Sweeney and Dobson on Second place for peddling without a license.

Men's Club Meeting.

William C. Smallwood, executive secretary of the New Jersey Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis, will speak before the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church on Tuesday night, December 12, in the church parlors. His subject will be "The Management of Tuberculosis Camps." All men of the congregation are invited to attend.

"Spring Maid" Coming.

Proctor & Sanderson, of The Plainfield theatre, have booked "The Spring Maid" for an early production in this city. This is one of the big successes, having had a long run in New York city.

Job printing. Satisfaction assured.

BORO HEALTH BOARD PRESIDENT TO RETIRE

Joseph O. Osgood, who has been president of the North Plainfield Board of Health for a number of years, announced at the regular monthly meeting, last night, that his connection with the organization would terminate this month. His term expires with the close of the year and although Mayor-elect Clark declared his intention of re-appointing him, Mr. Osgood preferred to retire. A pressure of business matters and the fact that he is also a member of the sewage commission, which requires considerable of his spare time, were assigned as his reasons for quitting the board. Mr. Osgood's announcement was received by his colleagues with genuine regret.

Mayor-elect Clark stated this morning that he had hoped the personnel of the board would remain the same but Mr. Osgood was set in his determination. His successor will be named on January 1.

In connection with the routine business of the board, it was reported that at the present time not a single case of infectious disease exists in the borough, something unusual for this time of the year.

The Board voted an increase in the salary of Inspector J. L. Olliff, the duties of the position having almost doubled within the past few years.

SONS OF ST. GEORGE TO BE FORMED HERE

Steps have been taken here to form a society of the Sons of St. George, and Samuel Lion, of 36 Lincoln avenue, Newark, is in Plainfield today calling on people who have become interested in the movement. It is the belief that a strong organization may be formed here and Past Grand President W. H. Hill, of Vailsburg, is now in touch with a number of prospective members.

English born people or those whose ancestors are English are eligible for membership. The society is beneficial, $100 being paid upon the death of a member and $50 upon the death of a member's wife. The social features are made prominent. Those who are members of the society recognize that while American organizations have become stronger, the English people in this county have failed to take advantage of the opportunities offered. It is proposed to effect an organization here this month. Those interested are requested to communicate with W. H. Hill, 15 Fleetwood avenue, Vailsburg.

TWO PLAINFIELDERS ARE 'S.O.' DIRECTORS

The re-organization of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey as well as New York, took place yesterday, when John D. Rockefeller retired as the head of the great corporation, and there was general changes made in the directorate of the organizations. Among the directors of the Standard Oil Company, of New Jersey, chosen yesterday, is O. T. Waring, who was re-elected. This directorate which comprised fourteen members was reduced to nine. J. D. Archbold was elected president and A. C. Bedford and W. T. Teagle vice-presidents.

At the special meeting of the Standard Oil Company, of New York, among the directors chosen was Henry A. McGee, of North Plainfield. Mr. McGee has been connected with the company for many years, but this is the first time that he has held a directorship. Mr. McGee's brother, Walter M. McGee, of the borough, is also identified with the New York company.

King's Daughters' Semi-Annual.

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union of the King's Daughters will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson will have charge of the devotional exercises, and Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis, soprano, will sing. Dr. W. H. Murray will report on the work being done by the Nursing Bureau. Tea will be served by the Daughters of the Cross. Those attending the meeting are requested to bring a glass of jelly for the Day Nursery.

Polish Society Elects.

These were elected officers of the John III. Sobriesky Society last night: President, Walter Laino; vice-president, Michael Somlak; financial secretary, John Migdal; recording secretary, Stanley Stroke; trustees, Joseph Stroke and Peter Shubert. They will be duly installed at the annual meeting held the first of January.

JAIL MCNAMARAS

James B. Gets Life Sentence and John J. Fifteen Years For Dynamite Plots.

IN THE SAN QUENTIN PRISON

Local Labor Organizations Had Contributed to Defense Fund, Being Led By Gompers to Believe Them Innocent.

James B. McNamara received a life sentence and his brother, John J. McNamara, a fifteen years sentence in San Quentin prison today when arraigned before Judge Walter Bordwell in the California Supreme Court at Los Angeles. The men pleaded guilty to having dynamited the Los Angeles Times building, the explosion causing the death of twenty-one workmen.

The men were not apprehended for the crime until more than a year later and after their arrest the charge aroused labor men all over the county to such an extent that a defense fund of nearly $200,000 was raised by the American Federation of Labor.

To this fund the labor locals of Plainfield contributed, each man being assessed so much per week, according to his earnings. Each compositor was assesed 25 cents; tinners subscribed $1.00 each, moulders half of that sum and the others in proportion until, according to the figures of an official of one of these locals, the sum raised here and forwarded to the American Federation of Labor headquarters to be added to the fund was in the neighborhood of $500.

Now that the McNamara brothers have pleaded guilty and have been sentenced there will be no use for this fund to defend them and at the subsequent meetings of the different local labor organizations steps may be taken to have the money subscribed returned to the local treasury or disposed of in some way. Cooler heads in these labor organizations are counseling caution and calm thought before taking any action in regard to making a demand for the return of the money. Others are advocating not only demanding the money but withdrawing from the American Federation. This is particularly true of the more skilled branches of labor and those requiring considerable education to perform.

MISSIONARY WORK.

Trinity Reformed Women's Society Holds Meeting.

Reports of the Women's Home Missionary Society meeting, Classis of Newark, held at Trinity Reformed church, and the Women's Missionary meeting held in the Collegiate church, New York, recently, were received at the December meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, yesterday afternoon. In the absence of Mrs. Edward T. VanWinkle, president of the society, Mrs. Frank Templin was the chair.

It was announced that Mrs. Daniel Rapalje had been appointed chairman of the church committee on "The Forward Movement," organized in the interest of missions generally in all the churches. Letters were read from Rev. and Mrs. William Gruys, the church missionaries at Hudsonville, Mich., expressing their appreciation for the box of good things sent to them by the society, according to the annual custom.

MORE WANT TREATY WITH RUSSIA ENDED.

Plainfielders interested in the movement to have President Taft and Congress abrogate the treaty between the United States and Russia, have succeeded in securing the following signatures to the resolutions adopted in addition to those published exclusively in this paper yesterday, which will be forwarded to Washington:

Adolph Tepper, M. Tepper, Morris I. Wright, Schwed Brothers, Louis Goldstein, Abram Hesselzone, Abraham Goldstein, Jacob Wolf, I. Cashdan, Leo Slonim, Marcus Silbert, Jacob Marcus, I. Brandt, B. Marrill, Adolph Brandt, I. Fertig, Hyman Moledesky, Louis Moledezky, J. W. Moledezky, Gustave Lavere, G. Tunison.

Lecture on Poultry.

The Union County Poultry Association has arranged to have Prof. Frederick H. Stoneburn lecture at its next regular meeting, December 12. Prof. Stoneburn is one of the best informed poultry investigators in the country, having charge of the extensive poultry investigations in the Connecticut Agricultural College. The association has leased a hall in the Young Men's Christian Association building in Elizabeth so as to be sure and have ample room for not only the members but anyone who is interested in poultry.

You can supply yourself with every good thing that you may need if you will only come here and post yourself on the magnificent line of Holiday Goods that are here for your inspection.

WILSON PETITION IN BERGEN.

Hackensack, Dec. 5.—Bergen county Democrats have started an effort to secure 1,000 signatures to a petition, requesting that the name of Governor Wilson be printed on the primary ballot next May as a Presidential candidate.

The petition has been passed upon by the State department at Trenton as being in the proper form. One clause reads: "We indorse the Hon. Woodrow Wilson, now Governor of the State of New Jersey, as candidate for the office of President of the United States, and we request that you print upon the official primary ballot to be used at the primary election to be held on the fourth Tuesday in May, 1912, the name of the said Woodrow Wilson as a candidate of the said party for the office of President of the United States."

For King's Daughters.

The Immanuel Circle of The King's Daughters of the Temple Baptist church will hold a social and entertainment at the church Thursday night. A silver offering will be received.

THE FIRST DISPLAY
OF
Our Christmas Holiday Goods

We've planned to make our store this year, "The Xmas Stor" of this city, and it will be, not only The Xmas Store, but the shopping center for Christmas gift buyers as well, particularly so when they learn of the many advantages of this display, whether it be in the nature of a pretty holiday novelty, articles of apparel for your own use or for some one you wish to remember with a real sensible gift,—you'll find choice refreshingly satisfying to a marked degree. Yes—and you'll find tags so in keeping with our usual moderate price markings that you'll be able to buy even more gifts than you planned.

Our months and months of careful buying and searching have culminated in gathering the most extensive and most complete stocks of Xmas Gift things we've assembled in years. This initial display will be fairly bewildering in its scope—counter after counter, row after row of show cases, racks, shelves—all are heavily laden with the best of Christmas stocks and which are on display in a manner to make your selections easier than you ever dreamed could be possible.

We want you to make this year's holiday shopping more pleasant than during any year of the past—YOU can help us—Shop Early. Scan this Xmas list carefully—it's worth your while.

We Have Opened Toyland on Our Main Floor With A Display of Thousands Upon Thousands of Toys

This is the day of days for the children of Plainfield and for miles and miles around—Toyland—the world of make-believe is now open, exhibiting thousands and thousands of joy-creating and pleasure giving toys so dear to the heart of children. Every child in this whole town is invited to visit Toyland. Here you will find the very biggest display of toys and dolls you have ever seen. Santa Claus just simply dumped toys into our store by the carload. There are wee tiny undressed dolls to big queenly looking ones dressed in silks and satins—then there are horns, drums, doll carriages, wagons, pianos, games, steam engines that really run, electric toys and all of the many mechanical contrivances—why we could fill this whole page with just the names of the toys—so you can imagine how many thousands of toys are on display, and every toy is arranged so that it can be easily seen with the price marked in plain figures.

You really must bring the children here—for, seeing the display of these Christmas toys is MORE to them than for you to see a once-in-a-life-time spectacle. Too, this opening of Toyland is of interest to you—for, haven't YOU got to get toys for some little child in your family? If you'll take our advice you'll select today—for right at this time is the very best time possible to make selections.

REMEMBER—TOYLAND IS NOW OPEN ON OUR MAIN FLOOR—YOU AND THE CHILDREN ARE INVITED TO COME AND VIEW THE NEW CHRISTMAS TOYS IN ALL THE GLITTERING BEAUTY OF THEIR NEWNESS.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were dull and irregular in New York yesterday.

A bomb thrown in a mosque at Istib, Turkey, killed twelve and injured twenty persons.

The United States Supreme Court upheld the indictments in the Alaska coal land fraud cases.

The National Council of Persia telegraphed to the American Congress an appeal for aid against Russia.

Gifford Pinchot appeared before the New York Legislative Committee on Conservation and Utilization of Water Supply.

The Italians reported a victory at Benghazi and another at Derna, with combined losses of 100 as against $1,200 enemey losses.

Benjamin J. Duveen, fourth member of the art firm indicted for smuggling, was fined $15,000 by Judge Holt in the United States Court.

Samuel Gompers declared William J. Burn would go to any length to malign organized labor and that his statements could not be more false.

Walter Drew, chief counsel to the National Erectors' Association, said labor leaders were rushing to tell everything they knew to get immunity.

The Union National Bank of Columbus, Ohio, suspended business; the last statement of the bank's condition showed resources aggregating $3,600,300.

The United States Supreme Court took under consideration the appeal of the indicted Chicago packers for an interpretation of the criminal clause of the Sherman law.

Several persons, including convicts, were injured and four buildings dynamited before fire which broke out in the State penitentiary at Huntsville, Tex., was extinguished.

The prosecution rested in the case of the show-girls who shot W. E. D. Stokes, and counsel for the defence said he might ask for an adjournment because of the illness of Mr. Stokes.

John D. Rockefeller ended his official life of forty-one years in the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey; his brother and Henry M. Flagler also resigned and John D. Archbold became president.

Suit against the National Cash Register Company, of Dayton, Ohio, was filed in the United States Circuit Court at Cincinnati; the company was charged with being in a conspiracy in restraint of competition.

The New York Democratic League issued a call to the voters throughout the State urging the selection of the best men available for the next State convention, in order to wrest control from a "stupid and unscrupulous boss."

James B. McNamara wrote out his confession for District Attorney Fredericks; the State discovered that another McNamara juror had been tampered with; it was announced that the Federal investigation would be pushed with vigor.

Commissioner Edwards, of New York, after a tour of inspection of Brooklyn and Manhattan, said the snow removal contractors had the clearing of the streets well in hand and that he expected no trouble, despite the talk of a strike.

An ex-Minister of Finance of Honduras published a statement accusing the United States of attempting to force the Honduran government last December to sign the Morgan loan agreement under a threat of encouraging the Bonilla revolution.

Congress—Senate: Senators Gardner and Hoke Smith sworn in; Senator Curtis named as President pro tempore until December 12. House: Representative Littleton repudiated Bryan and defended his attitude in the Steel Trust inquiry; estimates for 1912 show a saving of more than $21,000,000; many radical bills, two affceting the Sherman law, introduced; the opening session was attended more largely than in years; H. B. Martin, of the Anti-Trust League, presented a memorial asking the expulsion of Mr. Littleton.

AGITATE A FIRE DISTRICT.

Whitehouse, Dec. 5.—Leading residents of this section agitating the question of having a fire district set off from Readington Township to include the towns of Whitehouse, Whitehouse Station and East Whitehouse, had a meeting in Hoffman's hall Saturday night. John E. Seals, John Stone, Samuel D. Skillman, Frederick R. Shampanore and Grant Davis were appointed a committee to outline the boundaries of a fire district and to petition the Township Committee to set aside such a district. It is probable that before the township officials take any action they will hold an election, at which the taxpayers of the proposed district will be given a chance to vote on the subject.

Eugene Hoffman was chairman of the meeting and Grant Davis secretary.

Mrs. M. E. Hogeboom, of Boston, Mass., is the guest of the Misses Helen and Ruth Sadler, of the New Madison apartments.

The Home Building & Loan Association

Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years: If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent.	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. Plainfield, N. J., December 5, 1911.

"THE THREE R'S."

Members of the State Board of Education have reported what they consider "shocking conditions" at the State Normal Schools. The commissioners learned that "many of the pupils cannot spell simple words, read or write the English language, have little knowledge of primary history or geography and cannot do simple problems in arithmetic."

To find the cause of this "shocking condition," some of the State school commissioners should pay a visit to a high school and examine the pupils in the rudiments of education. Many sound thinking people have long since been aware of the fact that pupils are rushed through to higher branches before they have mastered the fundamentals and that the school youth is being fed on fads and fancies when woefully in need of the "Three R's."

JOIN THE BRIGADE.

Several times as many are destroyed every year by the ravages of tuberculosis as were killed all during the Civil War, the bloodiest strife in history. Plainfield leads New Jersey in giving battle to this Great White Plague. There are approximately 1,000 fighters in the ranks each of which contributes a single dollar to the work being carried on by the Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society. If you are not already enlisted send your name to William S. Tyler, for not until 5,000 are enrolled will the Plainfield White Plague brigade be able to do its most effective work.

THAT VACANCY.

If Newton B. Smalley desires to end his excellent and unusually lengthy career as chief executive of North Plainfield with credit to himself and to the community he has given painstaking, conscientious and self-sacrificing services, he will not appoint a successor to Councilman Barzilla Waldron. That duty he should transmit to his successor, Robert Clark, Jr., who takes office on January 1, and who should be allowed to assume the reins of borough government without any embarrassments.

OUT WITH GOMPERS.

Organized labor is justly demanding the full penalty for those murderers and traitors, the McNamaras, but the fact should not be lost sight of that the most dangerous demagogue, Samuel Gompers, is still allowed to fill the office and draw the pay as head of the American Federation of Labor. Organized labor should kick him out of its ranks and that without delay.

POPULAR FALLACIES, DR. HUTCHINSON'S TOPIC

"Popular Fallacies," was the subject of an instructive lecture given before the Monday Afternoon Club, yesterday by Dr. Woods Hutchinson, of New York. He spoke more especially on the topic of diet, telling of those things which in his own opinion are and are not of nutritive value.

Dr. Hutchinson said that he did not think that there was the food value in mushrooms that most people suppose, and he thought that breakfast foods have little or no value outside of being a "filler" perhaps. He favored a diet of pork, ham, bacon, etc., as being of special nutritive value. He did not consider eggs to be important in one's diet as believed by some people.

Among other things mentioned by the doctor as being of little value were corn bread, soda biscuit, fresh bread. He had no objection to coffee if used in moderation and concluded by saying that it is the stomach that dissolves food and the intestines that digest, which is contrary to popular opinion. He urged common sense in the preparation of foods, adding that the foods that taste well to one and are prepared attractively are generally beneficial.

Classis to Meet in Newark.

AIDED STATE CONVICT ZELLER; GETS FREEDOM

Jersey City, Dec. 5.—Because he had been of assistance to the State in convicting former Sheriff John Zeller, August Metzinger was released by Justice Swayze Saturday on his own recognizance on a postponed sentence.

Metzinger is the Guttenberg shed policeman who confessed that he had been paid $520 as a clerk of the County Board of Elections but had never done any work. He owed his appointment to Zeller, to whom, he said, he owed money.

Metzinger testified that the money paid to him as election clerk went to Zeller.

SECOND DEATH ADDED TO AUTO RACE MISHAP.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 5.—From injuries he received November 20, while riding as mechanician in the racing car in which Driver Jay McNay was killed H. F. Maxwell, of Jacksonville, Fla., died at a local hospital Sunday.

Shortly before his death Maxwell told attendants he knew McNay was dead, though efforts had been made to keep him ignorant of that fact.

LOYALTY ASSURED TO SOVEREIGNS OF INDIA.

Bomby, Dec. 5.—Native princelings flocked before King George and Queen Mary yesterday, assuring the white monarchs of loyalty. All were received in full state.

The little princes were permitted to kiss the royal hand and were given a few gracious words. The big men, however, stopped for a brief chat and received presents of plum puddings, hams, canaries or picture frames.

ORTMAN-FREDERICKS.

New Providence, Dec. 5.—Miss Mabel Fredericks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Benbrook, of Meyersville, was married to Harry Ortman Saturday evening, at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ortman, of Long Hill, Chatham Township. Rev. Martin Rosenbaum, pastor of the Meyersville Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. Miss Helen High, of New Providence, was bridemaid, and Herbert Ortman, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Ortman went to their newly furnished home in Meyersville.

More than one hundred guests were present. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Alfred Ortman. The bride was gowned in white satin with pearl trimmings. She carried a bouquet of white roses and orchids. The bridesmaid wore pink satin and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The house was decorated with holly and ground pine and red berries.

Funeral of Miriam S. Robson.

The funeral service of Miriam Scholes Robson, the eight-months'old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Robson, was held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the parents, 237 Somerset street. The parents of the child are identified with the Plymouth Brethren in this city, and there were three speakers from that religious body, including Paul Loizeaux. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Funeral of Mrs. Brand.

The funeral service of Mrs. Elizabeth Brand, widow of James Brand, a resident of this city for many years, was held at 10 o'clock this morning at Grace church. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of the church, officiated. The burial was in the M. E. cemetery.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

JERSEY DEATH RATE IS LOWEST IN EAST

New Jersey last year had the lowest annual death rate, 15.5 per 1,000, of the eleven Atlantic seaboard States in the United States Census Bureau's registration area, acording to an advance summary of Census Bulletin 112, issued from Washington, D. C. There are twenty-one States which have records enabling this enumeration. The ten with a lower death rate than New Jersey are all west of the Alleghany Mountains.

The average mortality for the twenty-one States was 14.7. North Carolina had the top figure, 18.2, but this did not include rural districts, so that the showing is not fair to that State. Other figures of Eastern States are: New Hampshire, 17.3; Rhode Island, 17.1; Maine, 17.1; New York, 16.1; Massachusetts, 16.1; Maryland, 16; Vermont, 16; Pennsylvania, 15.6; Connecticut, 15.6. New Jersey's rate the year before was 14.7.

Of the States with a lower death rate than New Jersey, Washington appears as the most healthful with 10. The others are: Montana, 10.6; Utah, 10.8; Minnesota, 10.9; Wisconsin, 12; California, 13.5; Indiana, 13.5; Ohio, 13.7; Colorado, 13.8; Michigan, 14.1.

The registration of deaths is not always as complete in one State as in another. For the older registrations States, and especially for such as Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the figures may be taken as substantially complete. States are included in the registration area when it is believed that the actual registration covers 90 per cent. of all deaths. With varying degrees of accuracy in the returns comparisons can only be made with caution.

SWARM OF BEES FOUND UNDER BEDROOM FLOOR

The members of the family of F. C. Blenham, whose home is located on Ravine road, have been alike annoyed and puzzled for several months by the persistent buzz of bees somewhere in a bedroom located on the first floor. It is part of an L in the structure, with no cellar beneath, and it was not easy to ascertain if the noise came from beneath. Sometimes the hum seemed to be located in a side wall, but if an attempt was made to reach the source the noise would stop. It was certain, however, that bees were at the bottom of the sounds as occasionally numbers of them could be seen on the weatherboards on that side of the house.

The family finally engaged an apiarist to unravel the mystery. He visited the house yesterday and after a search born of experience he tore up a few boards in the bedroom floor. In a spot directly beneath a dresser a large sized swarm of bees was located, together with twenty-five pounds of honey and enough comb to take care of fifty pounds more. The past summer has been a poor one for bees, the expert said, or there would have been at least double the amount of the sweet stuff in the find. The swarm was left intact add at an opportune time will be housed somewhere else.

The apiarist discovered that the insects gained ingress to the combs by means of several small openings in the weather boards. He was at a loss to explain how they originally located the entrance.

J. W. HEGEMAN HEADS P. E. MEN'S SOCIETY.

J. Wesley Hegeman, of Grace church, this city, has been elected president of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, of the Elizabeth district, the meeting being held at Elizabeth this week. The other officers chosen are as follows: Vice presidents, J. A. Dixon, of New Brunswick; L. S. Wilson, of Trenton; David Noble, of South Amboy; Frank Dean Gifford, of Elizabeth; secretary, J. D. Yeomans, of New Brunswick; treasurer, F. S. Deto, of Elizabeth; chaplain, Rev. Dr. Fenton, of Metuchen.

L. T. L. to Meet.

The Willard Loyal Temperance Legion will meet in the W. C. T. U. rooms tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at which time Robert Love will address the children and also take a group picture of the organization. Every member is urged to be present.

FIND PUPILS LACKING IN THE RUDIMENTS

John P. Murray and Melvin A. Rice, members of the State Board of Education, have reported what they term as "shocking conditions" at the State Normal Schools at Montclair and Trenton. In these training schools for teachers, the Commissioners say in a report to the Board, many of the pupils cannot spell simple words, read or write the English language properly, have little knowledge of primary history or geography and cannot do simple problems in arithmetic.

That these future teachers should be lacking to such an extent in fundamentals greatly surprised the Commissioners. They declare that parents are being deceived and that children in the public schools of the State are not receiving the necessary training in fundamentals.

Some time ago Commissioners Murray and Rice visited the normal school at Montclair and were surprised that the teachers under Dr. Chapin, the principal, were giving instructions in fundamentals instead of methods in teaching. Dr. Chapin soon convinced the Commissioners that pupils must be taught to read, write and spell the English language before they become proficient teachers.

The Commissioners investigated conditions at the normal school here. They prepared easy tests in spelling, history and geography, but these were objected to by Dr. James M. Green, the principal, who ,the report says, feared the future teachers would fail. "Believe" was one of the words in the spelling test. "Who is the Vice President of the United States?" was one of the history questions, and "Where is the Yellowstone Park?" one of those asked in geography. Because of Dr. Green's objection, these tests were not given, but the principal agreed to a simple one in arithmetic. In this, the report concludes, a majority of the pupils failed.

WANT LAW AMENDED AS TO REGISTRATION.

Trenton, Dec. 5.—Trenton commercial travelers are opposed to the personal registration feature of the Geran election law and the local branch of the United Commercial Travelers' Association took official action Saturday night to work for the amendment of the measure in this particular. Resolutions were adopted declaring for a change in the law eliminating the requirement of personal registration where a voter is compelled to be absent from the city on registration days.

A legislative committee was appointed to present the views of the organization to Governor Wilson and to bring the matter before the Legislature. The committee is composed of William S. Kulp, J. B. Agnew, Colby M. Barcalow and James D. Brady, together with J. A. Beatty, president of the Trenton Council.

NO LIBERTY FOR GIRL BRIDES.

Trenton, Dec. 5.—To preserve discipline, Margaret Doriety and Mary Catholic, girls from the State Home for Girls, who were indentured to homes in Paterson, and who married in that city, but stay in the State Home for some time, because they entered into matrimony as State wards without permission. The Doriety girl was married to Jacob Sutton and Mary Catholic to George Ackerman.

The law gives the institution authority over the girls until they have reached twenty-one. Mrs. Mansell, the matron of the State Home, said yesterday that had the girls asked for permission to marry it would have been given without hesitation, as both were considered good girls. As the institution has taken this step as an example in discipline, the young husbands who have subjected themselves in marrying these State wards to a fine of $1,000 each and three months each in jail will not be prosecuted. It is understood that the girl brides will be allowed to join their husbands shortly.

Basketball.

The freshmen and junior basketball teams of the North Plainfield High School will meet at Debele's Hal tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Hazel DeLany, of East Front street, left yesterday for Winnipeg, Manitoba, where she will spend six months with relatives.

A teaspoonful of borax dissolved in the last water in which clothes are rinsed will whiten them. Use powdered borax or that broken into small pieces so it will dissovle easily.

THEY AIM TO PREVENT THE SPREAD OF DISEASE

A resolution framed by the Plainfield Board of Health and intended for adoption by the Board of Education was passed on first reading at the meeting last night. The purpose of the resolution is to give the Board of Health and the regularly appointed medical examiners of the public schools control over the return of pupils absent from classes on account of any contagious or infectious disease. The discussion preceding the vote on the first reading was favorable to the proposition and it is expected that the plan will be adopted as an amendment to the by-laws of the School Board without a dissenting voice.

Heretofore the return of pupils after a period of absence on account of contagious or infectious illness of themselves or some member of the family has been governed entirely by the attending physician whether he was one of the medical examiners or not. The resolution requires that the pupil before admission to classes secure a certificate from the medical examiners appointed and from the Board to Health to the effect that proper fumigation and other safeguards have been taken to prevent the communication of the disease.

A part of the Public Welfare Exhibition will be placed in the different city schools during the winter and there will be lectures to the pupils on the subject with the illustrations thus secured. This permission was granted by the Board on a request by Superintendent Maxson. The use of the auditorium was granted the Stevens College Glee Club for the concert to be given here during the winter.

In the routine part of the session, $1,500 of bills due were passed and a balance of $9,326.52 was reported. The collector received $5,475.61 during the month. There were 758 medical inspections made. The committee on bonds for new building reported progress.

Morality Sketch at Proctor's.

"The Pursuit of Hapiness," a morality sketch being presented at Proctor's, is by far the best offered here in a long time. The cast is the author, and inconscicuous creature; Everyone, a youth seeking happiness; Wine, sweet and sparkling; Nicotine, soothing and pleasing; Pleasure, all that could be desired, and Pain, a hateful thing. The Takezawas Japs, equilibrists, perform wonderful tricks. Gilson and DeMott offere a brilliant comedy skit, "Names Don't Count;" Newell and DeForest, present a smart singing and dancing act, their burlesque on the Apache dance being clever, and Rose Sharon & Co., in "An Up-to-Date Invention," a sketch with a funny plot, complete a strong bill.

John Uhler has returned to Easton after spending Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Uhler, of Denmark road.

FOOD OF THE MEXICANS.

Frijoles and Tortillas the Main Diet of the Poor.

People at home in the "stares" may think the food of the Mexicans meager. It is comprised chiefly of frijoles and tortillas, supplemented by the fruit of the cactus when in season.

Tortillas are thin little cakes made of corn boiled with lime, and these serve as the chief food. Every house has a metate, a sort of stone trough, which rests on the ground, and on this the corn is crushed to a paste and then patted into thin round cakes and tossed on a clay griddle to cook. Don't think as you ride down the street that in every house a child is being spanked—it is only the patting sound made by the women as they deftly shape the tortillas in their hands.

The lime in which the corn is softened is said to account for the very strong white teeth of the natives. Frijoles are, of course, beans and after being boiled a long time with onions, chili and other savory bits are put into boiling lard for their final flavor. Knives and forks are not needed where a tortilla can be folded in the middle and used as a scoop for the beans. These two articles of food form almost the entire diet of the poor.

All food is very hot, from the chili put in it, and one doesn't realize the peculiar flavor that cinnamon will give to many dishes until he has eaten it in everything, from coffee to ice cream. While pulque, the fermented juice of the maguey, our century plant, is the national drink, if a peon is very drunk it is probably due to mescal or tequila, two stronger drinks made from the same maguey.

Cooking is generally done over a few pieces of charcoal on the ground. Often have I seen women cook an entire meal over as little charcoal as one hand can grasp.—Los Angeles Times.

LURE OF DANGER.

Tragic Recklessness of a Trio of Fire Fighting Heroes.

Former Chief Croker of New York in the World's Work says that, although the whole fire service is founded on the principle of obedience, it is almost impossible to drag a man from danger when his battle blood is up.

"In 1905," he says, "I lost three good men in a big warehouse fire in Thirtieth street through recklessness inspired by this spirit. The building had been pretty well-gutted, and one of the walls was getting shaky. Directly under this wall were three men from an engine company hugging a 'lead' of hose, their helmets down over their eyes and playing their water on the flames, which almost singed their faces. I saw their danger—it would have been obvious to any one but these three fight maddened heroes—and shouted: "Get back there, men! Get back from that wall!"

"They paid as much attention to me as if they had been stone deaf. I ran over and shoved one after the other back into the street out of danger.

"'When you're told to get back, get back,' I said. 'You obey orders.'

"Then I turned my back and hurried to another point of the fire. The wall fell before I had gone ten yards. I looked around for the three men. They were nowhere in sight! The moment my back was turned they had rushed back to play their stream in that place of peril, and when the wall fell it buried them beneath the bricks—dead."

Lost Time.

The late Sylvanus Miller, civil engineer, who was engaged in a railroad enterprise in Central America, was seeking local support for a road and attempted to give the matter point. He asked a native:

"How long does it take you to carry your goods to market by muleback?"

"Three days," was the reply.

"There's the point," said Miller. "With our road in operation you could take your goods to market and be back home in one day."

"Very good, senor," answered the native. "But what would we do with the other two days?"—Boston Record.

The Last Luxury.

Ten-year-old Arthur had been telling impressively of the number of servants employed in his home. He continued, "And our house is fixed so that if you want a drink or a window raised or to go upstairs or anything all you have to do is to pull a chain."

"But what do you want with so many servants in that sort of a house?" asked one of his hearers.

"Oh," replied Arthur, "we have the servants to pull the chains."—Judge.

Drops and Minims.

Drops vary in size according to the conditions under which they are produced. Some are large and some are small, some long and some short. The drop of the druggist is called a minim, of which 480 go to make a fluid ounce and 76,800 to make a gallon. An actual experiment in filling a one ounce measure will probably show that 400 drops make a fluid ounce. The average drop is 20 per cent larger than the minim.

Too Big a Pill.

The man in bed had never been sick before. The doctor, wishing to ascertain his temperature, pointed the thermometer at him and commanded, "Open your mouth, Jim."

"Wait a minute doc," objected the patient. "I don't b'lieve I can swaller that."—Judge.

Ill habits gather by unseen degrees, as brooks make rivers, rivers run to seas.—Dryden.

D. FOSTER UPDIKE'S

Amusements!

TURKEY.

Gobble, gobble, gobble, gobble. Some of you will gobble up a whole turkey tomorrow, and then you will not be thanks giving.

GOBBLE.

You will go out and gobble up some Real Estate from the advise of some inexperienced person or firm and then you will let me give you the exact situation as to your property. Then you will want to be sea-sick and can't.

SITUATION.

Do you know that Real Estate is the safest investment one can make by 100%? Did it ever occur to you that from the time you are born until the time the undertaker is through with you, you are compelled to have something to do with Real Estate? If you are at home that is Real Estate. No matter where you go, you are on or in someone's Real Estate. What you eat comes from the farm or Real Estate. In other words the demand for Real Estate is greater than for any other one thing.

LOOSE MONEY.

There is no reason to loose money in buying Real Estate if you know how. But the reason you do loose is because you either take your own advise or the advise of a lawyer or Banker. Would you ask a plumber about a watch?

You don't know that about one-third or more of houses are a detriment to the lot. In other words, a lot would very often be worth more without a house than it is with it. Buy from one who has had a life-time's experience.

CHAPTER XV.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN.

BARBARA pushed open the bamboo gate of the temple garden, then paused. The recluse with whom she had talked yesterday sat a little way inside, while before him, in an attitude of deepest attention, stood the diminutive figure on the huge clogs whose morning acquaintance she had made from her window. Thorn was looking at him earnestly with his great myopic eye through a heavy glass mounted with a handle like a lorgnette.

Barbara's foot grated on a pebble, and he rose with a startled quickness. The child ducked with a jerky suddenness that sent his round, battered hat rolling at Barbara's feet. She picked it up and set it on the shaven head.

"I BEG YOUR PARDON."

"Oh!" she said humbly. "I beg your pardon, Ishikichi! I put the rim right in your eye!"

"Don't menshum it," he returned solemnly. "I got another." He stalked to the gate, faced about, bobbed over again and disappeared.

Barbara looked after him smilingly. "Is Ishikichi in straitened circumstances, or is his bent political economy?"

"His father has been ill for a long time," Thorn replied. "He keeps a shop, and in some way the child has heard that they will have to give it up. It troubles him, for he can't imagine existence without it."

"What a pity! I would be so glad to do—do you think I could give them something?"

He shook his head. "After you have been here awhile you will find that simple charity in Japan is not apt to be a welcome thing."

"I am beginning to understand already," she said as they walked along the stepping stones, "that these gentle mannered people do not lack the sterner qualities. Yet how they grace them! The iron hand is here, but it has the velvet glove. Courtesy and kindness seem almost a religion with them."

"More," he answered. "This is the only country I have seen in the world whose people when I walk the street do not seem to notice that I am disfigured."

She made no pretense of misunderstanding. "Believe me," she said gently, "it is no disfigurement. But I understand. My father lived all his life in the dread of blindness."

A faint sound came from him. She was aware without lifting her eyes to his that he was staring at her strangely.

"All his life. Then your father is not living?"

"He died before I was born."

She glanced at him as she spoke, for his tone had been muffled and indistinct. There was a deep furrow in his forehead which she had not seen before.

"Do you look like him?"

"No; he was dark. I am like my mother."

Thorn was looking away from her.

"My mother died, too, when I was a little girl," she added, "so I know really very little about him."

She had forgotten to look for the Flower of Dream.

"Will you tell me that little?" he asked. "I think I should like to hear."

"I very seldom talk about him," she said, looking dreamily out across the distance, "but not because I don't like to. You see, knowing so little, I used to dream out the rest, so that he came to seem quite real. Does that sound very childish and fanciful?"

"Tell me the dreams," he answered. "Mine are always more true than facts."

"He was born," she began, "in the Mediterranean"—

She turned her head. The stone on which Thorn's foot rested had crashed into the water. He staggered slightly in regaining his balance, and his face had the pale, startled look it wore when he had first seen her from the roadside. He drew back, and again his hand went up across his face.

"Yes," he said. "Go on."

"In the Mediterranean—just where I don't know, but on an island—and his mother was Romaic. I have never seen Greece, but I like to know that some of it is in my blood. His father was American, of a family that had a tradition of gypsy descent. Perhaps he was born with the 'thumb print' on the palm that they call the Romany mark. As a child I used to wonder what it looked like."

She smiled up at him, but his face was turned away. He had taken his hand from his brow and slipped it into his loose sleeve and stood rigidly erect.

"I often used to try to imagine his mother. I am sure she had a dark and beautiful face, with large brown eyes like a wild deer's, that used to bend above his cradle. Perhaps each night she crossed her fingers over him and said"—

"En to onoma tou Patros," he repeated, "kai tou Ouiou kai tou Agiou Pneumatos!"

"Yes," she said, surprised. "In the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. You know it?"

"It is the old Greek orthodox fashion," he said in a low voice.

"I should not wonder," she continued, "if she made three little wounds on him as a baby, as I have read Greek mothers do, to place him under the protection of the Trinity. She must have loved him—her first boy baby! And I think the most of what he was came to him from her."

Thorn moved his position suddenly, and Barbara saw his shoulders rise in a deep taken breath.

"Love of right and hatred of wrong," he said, "admiration for the beautiful and the true, faith in man and woman, sensitiveness to artistic things—ah, it is most often the mother who makes men what they are. Not our strength or power of calculation, but her heart and power to love! In the twilight of every home one sees the mother souls glowing like fireflies. I never had a picture of my mother. I would rather have her portrait than a fortune."

THREE SETS OF COUNSEL FILE STEEL "APPEARANCE."

Trenton, Dec. 5.—Fifty-three of the sixty defendants in the government dissolution suit against the United States Steel Corporation put in formal appearance through counsel here yesterday an hour before the United States Court opened. This was the day fixed for the technical appearance in answer to the subpoenas, issued after the filing of the government's petition. The physical appearance of the defendants is not required.

Three sets of counsel filed the appearances with the clerk of the court, all of them by mail. When the clerk's office was opened at 10 o'clock only John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr. and Edmund C. Converse of the individual defendants had failed to file appearances. The four firms who had not put in appearance then were the Carnegie Company of New Jersey, the American Sheet Steel Company, the American Steel Hoop Company and the National Steel Company.

Under the rules of the court, defendants have until 4 o'clock in the afternoon to file appearances. Failure to do so by that time is punishable as contempt of court.

WILSON IS STRONGEST, SO VARDAMAN THINKS.

Mobile, Dec. 5.—Senator-elect James K. Vardaman, of Mississippi, passed through Mobile yesterday on his way to Brewton, Ala., and while here said that he was just finishing a tour of seventeen States, and that from his observations, in all probability Theodore Roosevelt would be nominated by the Republicans, as the Republican leaders are of the opinion that Taft cannot possibly be re-elected the second time.

Mr. Vardaman said that he sincerely hoped that President Taft would be nominated again, because he is about the weakest man that the Republican could get. "I believe, on the whole, the Democrats can elect a President in a walk. From what I have seen on my tour I think that among the Progressive Democrats Woodrow Wilson is the strongest. There will be a very strong effort to force Harmon to the front at once, and Champ Clark has a great many friends. Personally, I prefer Clark, but at this time Wilson and Harmon are in the lead. Harmon has the support of the old Cleveland wing," said Senator Vardaman.

JERSEY P. O. EMPLOYES NOT IN SECRET ORDERS.

Somerville, Dec. 5.—Denials that they are affiliated with any secret organizations have been made to Postmaster John G. Gaston, of this place, by the local postoffice employes.

The question as to their affiliations with such organizations was put to the employes by Postmaster Gaston following the receipt by him from First Assistant Postmaster-General C. P. Grandfield of an order setting forth that all secret bodies within the service of the Postoffice Department are prohibited.

In explaining his order Mr. Grandfield stated that it was not issued broadcast, but only to such offices where the reports of postoffice inspectors showed secret organizations within the department to be either already flourishing or else in process of formation.

Union Praise Meeting.

A union praise meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Crescent Avenue church will be held in the chapel of the church Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. An address will be given by Miss Mary Ogden White, of Summit, on some phase of mission work of vital interest to both societies. Thank offerings may be brought to the meeting, or sent to either treasurer. Tea will be served at 5 o'clock.

Milk slightly turned may be made sweet enough for use by the addition of a dash of common baking soda.

SIXTEEN DEER AND ONE DOE SHOT IN WARREN CO.

Washington, N. J., Dec. 5.—Harry E. Cudney, game commissioner, reports that sixteen buck deer and one doe were shot in Warren county during the open season, the five Wednesdays during November. The doe was shot by a man not known to the authorities.

The buck deer were brought down by John Stile, of Bangor, Pa.; Herman Lanterman, of Blairstown; William Coss, of Hainesburg; W. H. Steele, of Paterson; W. B. Gilbert, of Columbia; Walter Van Campen, of Belvidere; William Little, of Franklin Furnace; Frank Ball, of Blairstown; Daniel O'Brien and John O'Brien, of Dunfield; Lewis Chamberlain, of Beaver Lake; J. Frank Baxter, of Stillwater; William Warner, of Blairstown, and John Smith and Reed Titman, of Vail.

In addition one was shot by a Lafayette man last Wednesday. The commissioner has not learned his name.

Six deer were also shot by Kispaugh, Snover, Beetle, Darrow, Garris and Van Sickle, but it is a question whether they were shot in Warren or Sussex counties.

The commissioner is investigating the case of a buck which was shot out of season, near Dunfield.

INDEPENDENCE SHOWN BY ELECTION FIGURES.

Trenton, Dec. 5.—An analysis of the vote cast at the election November 7 shows some interesting facts. For example, while on the Assembly vote the Democrats carried the State by a plurality of 3,013, in the seventeen counties in which sheriffs were elected the Democratic plurality on the sheriff vote was 22,785.

The aggregate Republican vote for sheriff was 127,989, while the Democrats polled 150,683 for their seventeen shrievalty candidates, the result being that the Republican candidates were successful only in Atlantic and Union counties. The Democratic vote for the sheriffs was more than 20,000 in excess of the Republican vote for Assembly in the same seventeen counties.

The total vote of the Socialists at the election on the Assembly ticket was 15,762, while the Prohibitinists polled 7,141. The Socialist vote in this State is steadily climbing. In 1901 the party polled 3,119 votes. The next year it jumped to 4,835 votes and in 1903 to 4,972 votes. In 1908 the Socialist vote was 4,770, but in 1909 it went up to 6,245. Last year the party polled 10,460 votes, these figures all referring to the Assembly balloting.

The Prohibition party, which formerly ranked third, had been pushed to fourth place by the Socialists. In 1901 the Prohibition ballots numbered 5,593 and the next year 6,017 Prohibition votes were polled. By 1908 the vote had gone up to 10,437, but in 1909 it fell back to 4,998. The Prohibition vote last year was 5,386.

This year the Socialist-Labor party polled 1,142 votes, compared to 1,606 last year.

LIABILITY ACT TEST LOST BY EMPLOYERS

In an opinion which covers a hundred typewritten pages, Judge William P. Martin, of the Essex County Court of Common Pleas, in Newark, yesterday declared constitutional the New Jersey Employers' Liability law, which was passed at the last session of the Legislature. He discussed every phase of it and gave it complete approval in deciding a test case.

As a result of the decision, which will be first appealed to the higher State courts, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Sexton will receive from the Newark District Telegraph Company $7.27 each week for three hundred weeks, the amount representing 45 per cent. of the weekly pay of her husband, Floyd Sexton.

Sexton was killed by a shock of electricity while at work on top of a pole at Green and Mulberry streets, Newark, about five o'clock on the afternoon of July 4, about four hours after the law became operative. He was receiving $16 a week. He left two young children.

There had been no agreement or contract between Sexton and his employers as to which section of the new law would govern his employment in case of accident. This was made part of the defence by the company when Mrs. Sexton began her action through Senator Harry V. Osborne.

The defence argued that the accident had happened on a holiday and so soon after the law became operative that there had been no opportunity for the company to decide which section it would consider its employes under. Judge Martin disposed of this by declaring in his voluminous opinion that as the act was passed in May, sixty-three days before it became operative, there had been plenty of time for the company to determine what it proposed to do under the new law.

The defence also contended that the death of Sexton was really a case of suicide, as he was a sufferer from tuberculosis and was despondent over his failing health and went to the top of the pole with the thought that it made little difference whether he was killed or not. This the Court eliminated with the declaration that there had not been the slightest evidence to support such a contention.

As there had been no working agreement between Sexton and his employes, the dispute was taken into the Court of Common Pleas, as is provided by the law. Motions were made to dismiss the action upon various grounds, but they were not entertained, and in his decision Judge Martin goes deeply into every one of the contentions presented by counsel for the company, setting them aside one after another and declaring that the law is sound and violates none of the rights of the company.

The Court also holds that no constitutional provision is violated by abolishing the old common law defences of contributory negligence, negligence of fellow servant and assumption of risks of employment, and that the police power of the State is sufficiently broad to authorize the act. He declares that the common and statutory laws are replete with instances in which liability without fault or negligence is imposed, and that the statute in question does not violate the constitutional prohibition against impairing the obligation of contract. He points out that the law does not deny the right of trial by jury and that the legislation is remedial and should be sustained, if possible, and so construed as to carry out the legislative purpose.

Roeblings to Rebuild.

Trenton, Dec. 5.—The John A. Roebling's Sons Company, whose flat iron department building was destroyed by fire Saturday, entailing a loss of fully $150,000, has decided to rebuild on the site of the burned structure. Work will be begun at once for the erection of a more modern and more commodious building than the one destroyed. The Roeblings say the fire was caused by a careless workman, who after lighting his pipe when about to quit work threw the burning match on the floor.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF MAN HIT BY TRAIN.

Hackensack, Dec. 5.—An investigation is to be made of reports that James Boyce, sixty-five years old, injured by a gravel train on the New Jersey and New York division of the Erie at Ridgefield Park, Saturday, was left uncared for until all chance of saving his life was gone. Boyce died from loss of blood and shock in the hospital here. Persons hurrying to trains didn't interfere and the train crew on the West Shore Railroad, it is said, refused to delay their train to give aid.

Prosecutor Wright said that while the matter had not been brought to his attention officially, he would make an investigation.

It is believed the crew of the gravel train did not know that Boyce had been hit. His leg was cut off. A number of commuters hurrying to their trains saw him dying there. Finally W. S. Mallery gave rough first aid to the injured and secured help to carry the man to the railroad station.

An effort to have the man sent to the North Hudson Hospital at Weehawken failed because the West Shore train crew feared it would delay their train too long. Finally an Erie train brought the man here. At the hospital it was said that immediate treatment might have saved the man's life.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets, with preaching by Rev. N. H. Nyrap, of Brooklyn.

AU REVOIR DINNER

Friends Honor William Jeffery on Eve of His Departure For England.

GIVEN AT THE HOTEL WALDORF.

A. E. Force As Toastmaster—Many Prominent Local Men Speak—An Excellent Dinner.

An "Au Revoir" dinner was given William Jeffery at the Waldorf Hotel last night by sixty of his friends whose gathering together to extend their best wishes for a safe journey to the guest had been caused by the announcement of his intended visit to his old home, Penzance, England. Among the diners were a number from out of town who have been closely associated with Mr. Jeffery in the work of the Circles on the Square. Those from this city represented all lines of business. A. E. Force acted as toastmaster.

Following the dinner, which was excellent and fully in keeping with the reputation established by those served in the past by Henry Windham, Mr. Jeffery was called upon to tell something of his plans while abroad. "These," he said, "are not entirely along the lines of pleasure-seeking, although I do intend to be benefited by the change and incidental rest. I have several reasons for going abroad at this time and one of them is to obtain a better knowledge of the housing problem as it has been solved in the greatly congested cities of England where it is also true that we can learn something about conservation of all kinds of material."

Mr. Jeffery gave a short sketch of his life since landing at Castle Garden with fifteen cents and a boundless ambition and this remark gave several of the following speakers a chance to comment on the immigration laws of that time and the present day. Mr. Jeffery has letters of introduction from a number of influential residents which he expects will be of great assistance to him in getting about and being admitted to places that usually are closed against tourists.

Herman Schwed was the last speaker and he presented Mr. Jeffery with engrossed resolutions passed by those arranging the affair. All of the guests signed the resolutions. Other speakers were former City Judge William R. Codington, J. Henry Crane, George M. Christian, A. S. Herr, J. V. E. VanDerhoef, E. M. Laing, M. C. VanArsdale, Hyman Adelberg, S. S. Swackhamer and Paul S. Burns.

During the affair Frank Schaffer, of Berkeley Heights, whose talents as a musician have often enlivened the meetings of the Circles on the Square, sang several selections, accompanying himself on the banjo. Mr. Windham presented the guest of honor with a box of cigars, specially packed for sea travel.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The Woman's Association of the Congregational church will help people to shop early if they attend the bazar and entertainment tomorrow afternoon and evening in the church parlors at Madison avenue and Seventh street. The attractive booths will offer a varied assortment of children's things, including toys, games and clothing. There will be a book-stall, and dinner cards. Candy, groceries, soaps and perfumes, pies, cakes, ice cream and lemonade will also be found.

A delightful time has been planned for the children at 3:45, when Rev. R. F. Y. Pierce will entertain with stories and sketches. In the evening a varied program is planned for 8:30. Should Thursday be stormy the sale will continue on Friday, but the afternoon entertainment cannot be repeated.

Church Women's Meeting.

The women of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet tomorrow for an all day sewing session. The last box which is being prepared for Mrs. Steel's Home for Orphan Children in Chatanooga, Tenn., will be packed. At 3 o'clock the missionary society will hold a meeting, the subjects being "Brahma and his Doctrines," by Mrs. W. H. Freeman; "Wherein is Brahmaism Deficient," Mrs. J. W. Johnson; "The Problem of the Race Qestion in America," Mrs. W. W. Clarke; and "Current Events," Mrs. F. L. Groff.

Royal Council to Celebrate.

Royal Council, Sr. O. U. A. M., of this city, has planned for a big time tonight, when there will be a visitation of the State officers and a roll call of members. The initiatory team of the Milstone Council, said to be the best in the State, will attend and do the work.

FIRST CHARITY STAMPS USED DURING CIVIL WAR

Red Cross Christmas Seals, which are now on sale, date back in their origin to "charity stamps," first used for the soldiers' relief funds in Boston in 1862, during the Civil War. After the war, this method of raising money was discontinued in this country for a generation, although it found vogue in Portugal, Switzerland, Austria, France, Spain, Denmark, Norway, Russia, Sweden and other European countries. There are now several hundred different types of charity stamps used in all parts of the world, as many as forty being used in Austria for children's hospitals alone.

Stamps or seals were first used to get money for the anti-tuberculosis crusade in Norway and Sweden in 1904. After being used in these countries for three years, as a direct result of the interest of Jacob Riis in this movement, the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Association, headed by Miss Emily P. Bissell, and the Red Cross Society of Delaware, combined in issuing a Tuberculosis Stamp. So successful was this campaign that nearly $3,000 was realized, and the next year, in 1908, the American Red Cross was induced to issue a National Red Cross Tuberculosis Stamp. From this sale, $135,000 was realized, that amount being almost doubled in 1909. Last year, for the first time, the sale was organized on a comprehensive basis, taking in all parts of the United States, and $310,000 worth were sold. In 1911, the slogan for the campaign is, "A Million for Tuberculosis from Red Cross Seals."

NAVY CHAPLAIN TO TELL OF FLEET'S GREAT TRIP.

Chaplain George E. T. Stevenson, of the United States Navy, will deliver a stereopticon lecture on "The Y. M. C. A. as Seen on the Cruise of the Atlantic Fleet Around the World," in Y. M. C. A. Hall on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Chaplain Stevenson accompanied the fleet on its recent trip around the world serving as chaplain of the Virginia. His lectures based upon facts and impressions received during this memorable journey have been given before many churches and associations. His address throws many interesting side-lights on the world-wide work of the Association. The lecture will be free to all men.

In the evening Chaplain Stevenson will speak in the First M. E. church on "Missions as Seen on the Cruise of the Atlantic Fleet Around the World."

MRS. SADIE E. CARSON DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Sadie E. Carson, aged forty-one years, wife of James Carson, and daughter of Mrs. Susan A. Bryan, of Chatham street, died this morning at the latter's home, following an illness of four months. For a time she lived with her brother, Frank Jones, at High Bridge and more recently had been staying with her aunt, Mrs. Mary Skillman, of Midway avenue.

Mrs. Carson was a charter member of the Netherwood Reformed church and active in the work there. Beside a husband she is survived by a daughter and two boys. The funeral will be held at 33 Chatham street, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

For Feeble-Minded.

All members and friends of the W. C. T. U. are requested to remember the Xmas box to be packed and sent to the Home for Feeble-minded Children at Vineland. Clothing, pictures and picture books (no reading matter) and toys will be acceptable and may be sent to the room Thursday, December 14, where they will be packed and shipped by Mrs. George Staats.

To Hold Parish Supper.

Under the auspices of Grace church a parish supper will be held in the parish house at 7 o'clock tonight. Following the supper five minute reports will be presented from all departments of the parish.

—Among the specialties at Neuman Bros.' are to be found the famous White Label canned goods. The firm always carry a large stock of these fine goods.

S. P. C. A AGENT ACTS IN HORSE CASE

The condition of a horse found wandering about by Patrolman Saunders last night has been called to the attention of Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, local agent for the S. P. C. A., by the police and following an investigation she is making, action may be started against the owner who is thought to be "Count" VanNess, of East Front street. Not knowing what to do with the poor beast which has been foundered, and is badly kunckled in front, spavined behind, appallingly thin, blind in one eye and so stiffened that it staggered at every step, the policeman called police headquarters for instructions. Captain Frederickson, in charge, ordered the animal put in the Central Livery stable on East Second street.

The animal was looked over by the S. P. C. A. agent this morning and in order to prove her analysis she called in two reputable veterinaries who said the most humane thing to do was to put it to death in the quickest possible way. They are the ones who identified the poor brute as the property of the "Count."

WESTFIELD CASINO DESTROYED BY FIRE

The Westfield Casino, located on Elm street, just north of Broad, in that town, was totally destroyed by fire at noon today. The flames were discovered shortly after 12 o'clock and a few minutes later they were issuing from all parts of the structure. The loss is placed at $25,000 partially covered by insurance.

The building was a frame affair and was originally the home of the Westfield Club. With the disbandment of the organization some years ago the place became the property of Mrs. H. C. Sergeant. It was leased this season to H. F. Lowenthal, of Paterson, who conducted a moving picture show in the old auditorium and sub-let the basement for bowling and pool parlors. Amos Stites, of this city, operated the pool part of the business. There was one apartment in the rear of the building occupied by James Barclay and family.

As far as could be learned, the fire originated in the boiler room. Mr. Lowenthal and his wife were in the office, located in the front of the building, when they heard the alarm. They had barely time to grab up a few articles and get out. At one stage of the fire the Baptist church parsonage adjoining blazed up at several exposed places but was quickly put out.

The new automobile apparatus responded to the alarm for its first run and demonstrated its efficiency. The engine worked satisfactorily in every respect but the flames had made too much headway before its arrival to save any part of the Casino

As a result of the fire the main lnie trolley schedule in this city was put out of kilter.

COURT UNION, FORESTERS, HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION.

Court Union, No. 3277, Independent Order Foresters at its regular meeting last night, received one application for membership and the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Court Deputy, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson; chief ranger, George E. Volk; vice-chief ranger, R. S. McAfee; recording secretary, C. W. Griffin; financial secretary, E. F. Champlin; treasurer, H. E. Hicks; orator, H. H. Pennoyer; organist, L. N. Leland; senior woodward, F. A. Dayton; junior woodward, Frederick Schomp; senior beadle, Joseph Plum; junior beadle, A. M. Vanderbeek; trustees, F. A. Dayton and Dr. Marcus L. Clawson; finance committee, L. N. Leland and T. E. Currin, Jr.; court physician, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson; druggists, Dudley S. Miller and E. F. Champlain. The installation will take place January 2.

Chamber of Commerce Meeting.

The Chamber of Commerce will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night, beginning the second year of the organization. A report will be presented which it is believed will be of interest. The methods for the election of officers and a board of directors for the coming year will also be explained.

C. E. Business Meeting.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church held its monthly business meeting last night, when three new members were elected. It was reported that the society's profits from the recent concert given by the Rutgers Glee and Musical Clubs were $31.50.

DISCUSSED WATER

Plainfield Protective Association Takes up the Municipal Problem.

COUNCILMEN MAKE ADDRESSES.

Committee Appointed at Close of Session To Investigate and Report—To Hear City's Engineer.

The proposition of securing a municipal water supply or making new terms with the present company, which has been engaging the attention of the city Council for a long period of time, was taken up by the Plainfield Protective Association last night at a meeting in the Babcock building. It was the first time the organization had gotten together in so many moons that only a few of the members responded. Councilmen F. E. Mygatt and F. L. Holt, of the special water commission, and several interested citizens were also present. Nothing was accomplished after nearly three hours of talking with the exception of a motion to appoint a committee to investigate probable sources of supply and the tentative arrangement for a meeting in the future when the association will be addressed by J. H. Fuertes, the engineer engaged by the city to aid the commission.

R. Henry Depew occupied the chair and after outlining the purpose of the session, gave the privilege of the floor to the councilmen. Mr. Mygatt spoke first, repeating in brief the majority report of the commission's findings to the city Council. He explained the findings relative to a new plant and pumping station, condemnation of the Plainfield-Union Water Company's plant and distributing system and the offers that were turned down by the corporation. One of these was for a ten-year lease with the privilege of buying the entire holding at the expiration. In conclusion Mr. Mygatt said that within the past few weeks new propositions had been made by both sides, but he did not feel at liberty to tell of them, believing that they should be related to the Council at first. He said he would like very much to have Mr. Fuertes address the association and a date will be fixed for the near future.

Mr. Holt folowed with a resume of the commission's minority report, he having dissented from the views of Mr. Mygatt and Mr. Clay, the third member. He had advocated the building of a plant at a new location and acquiring the present distributing system by condemnation proceedings. The facts as he outlined them have already been published.

The real breezy talk of the evening was contributed by Champlain L. Riley. He declared without mincing matters that there had been too much dilly-dallying in the proceedings; that while the city's agents have been acquainting themselves with the legal points of condemnation and cost of plants, the water company is grabbing up every available source of supply, thus daily tightening its hold on the people. Action is what is needed, Mr. Riley said, and the quicker something definite is decided upon the better it will be. He made no suggestions, however, as to what he believed should be the best course to pursue.

Former Councilman W. S. Tyler was also present and explained from a legal standpoint what constituted possesion of surface and percolating waters. This was of value in connection with the disputed point of the Plainfield-Union Company pumping water from this city to places throughout the county.

When the motion was made to appoint a committee from the association to investigate conditions Mr. Depew coincided but said he would name the members after he had considered who would be able to devote the necessary time to it. These and the date for the next meeting will be announced as soon as possible.

MISS DUFFORD BRIDE OF WESLEY J. MOREN

Miss Delia C. Dufford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dufford, of West Front street, and Wesley James Moren, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Moren, formerly of Hartford, Conn., but now of Elizabeth, were quietly married last night by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor-emeritus of Trinity Reformed church. The ceremony was performed at Dr. Schenck's home, the couple being accompanied by members of the bride's family.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Moren returned to the home of the bride's parents, where an informal reception was held. Later the couple left for Elizabeth, where they will reside. Mr. Moren is manager for a large manufacturing concern at Elizabeth. The bride has been an active member of Trinity Reformed church and a teacher in the primary department of the Sunday school for sometime. Until recently, she held a position in this city with the Singer company.

BOARD TO PREVENT DANGEROUS PRACTICE

The dangerous practice of jumping on freight and passenger cars being shunted about the switches near the Dunellen depot, as indulged in by schoolboys, was taken up by the Dunellen Board of Education at its regular meeting last night. The matter has become a grave proposition as there have been numerous narrow escapes from serious injury and the warning of citizens have fallen upon unheeding ears. There is always more or less drilling going on at the two main crossings to the Whittier School as the local passenger trains are made up in the yards. The boys invariably catch on a step and jump off after riding a block or so.

The matter was called to the attention of the school authorities by the railroad officails who have been trying to stop the practice. It was decided to place the matter in the hands of the marshals and the truant officers with instructions to arrest all offenders. The teachers will also be asked to report the names of any pupils they see clambering on the cars.

The remainder of the boards' business for the evening was devoted to routine matters. A large number of bills were ordered paid and the clerk was empowered to borrow $200 in anticipation of taxes.

MAYOR TELLS WHY HE'LL FILL VACANCY

Responding to a suggestion made by this paper yesterday, Mayor Smalley has sent a communication explaining why he can not see his way to accept the view that he should not make any appointment to fill a vacancy in the Council of North Plainfield. "I believe in being frank, open and straightforward in handling the public's business," he stated to a reporter for this paper, "and that is why I always like to answer any thing of this sort, especially when I know it is made with the best of intentions." The mayor's letter follows:

Editor, The Daily Press:

Replying to your editorial of yesterday, I would not be able to carry out your very generous opinion of my ability if I failed to appoint a sucessor to Mr. Waldron.

I have no desire or intention to hamper the incoming mayor, but I owe a duty to the people of North Plainfield that I shall carry out to the last hour of my term and therefore you will find serving in that position after Friday night a man fully capable of protecting the land owners rights and assist those in authority to complete the sewer plans desired by all.

N. B. SMALLEY.

The suggestion made by this paper yesterday follows:

"If Newton B. Smaley desires to end his excellent and unusually lengthy career as chief executive of North Plainfield with credit to himself and to the community he has given painstaking, conscientious and self-sacrificing services, he will not appoint a successor to Councilman Barzilla Waldron. That duty he should transmit to his successor, Robert Clark, Jr., who takes office on January 1, and who should be allowed to assume the reins of borough government without any embarrassments."

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE IS FREE TO THE PUBLIC.

The third of a series of free lectures under the direction of the Board of Education will be given at the Washington School Auditorium tomorrow night. The subject of the lecture will be "3,000 Miles Across Labrador by Canoe and Dog Sledge," by Clifford H. Easton. The lecture will be illustrated with one hundred lantern slides which are varied and interesting.

The journey was a sequel to the famous Leonidas Hubbard expedition and was marked by many dangers and narrow escapes from death being pursued only under the greatest difficulties. Mr. Gaston's rugged personality adds much to his subject. All persons over sixteen years of age are invited to attend.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.
John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

PARK VAUDEVILLE

Some Clever Stunts by Amateurs Roundly Applauded by Big Audience.

GOODLY SUM IS REALIZED.

Songs, Monologues, Dances and Banjo Selections Among the Features of a Well Balanced Program.

Under the auspices of tennis committee of the Park Club and for the purpose of raising funds with which to liquidate the indebtedness on the tennis clubhouse which was completed late in the summer, a pretentious vaudeville show was given at the club last night by local talent. The affair was a marked success, the club's auditorium being taxed to its capacity with patrons, and a large sum will be realized as profit.

The program comprised twelve vaudeville numbers, and all agreed that it was the best show of the kind ever given at the club. Every number was a good one, but there were several particularly good. Bud Rolston, who appeared in Scotch songs and monologues, impersonating Harry Lauder, was so clever that those who have seen the latter declared that the famous Scotchman had nothing on him. He was recalled several times.

Kenneth S. Clarke, whose clever pianologue work is well known entertained the audience with some of his latest songs, including one called "The Bungalow," which was sung for the first time. Every song of a popular character called forth hearty applause.

The Dunellen Quartet comprising Ray McGee, Roy Titsworth, Charles P. Titsworth and Aleck MacGowan, brought down the house with the singing of some popular songs. They appeared in amusing character costumes.

Another feature number was the appearance of "The Famous Imperial Dutch Dancers," announced as "imported at great cost from Hoboken." The dancers were Mrs. J. Van Deventer, Miss Helen Ray Hooley, Miss Elizabeth McGee, Brown Rolston, H. L. McGee and W. D. Flanders. Their impersonation of the Dutch dances in costume was clever.

"Gazoo and Gazette," Rolston Brothers, in camp meeting songs of the Ante-Bellum slave days, convulsed the audience with laughter. Brown Rolston impersonated an old "Southern Mammy" and his every action was true to the part, while his brother as a Southern darkey was typical.

Ray McGee, who was presented as "The Jolly Tar fresh from his triumph in the Fanwood Winter Garden," made his entrance in a home-made boat, and entertained the audience with some of his best songs.

Edward H. Hobbie, who was announced as "Plainfield's favorite burnt cork comedian," gave an original monologue in which he passed out a number of local hits on prominent members of the club. He had the darkey dialect down to perfection, winning rounds of applause. "Netherwood's Foremost Entertainers." Charles and Roy Titsworth also delighted the audience with popular songs and some rapid-fire talk.

Other favorites on the program were Fred and Will VanEpps, who gave a number of banjo selections. They are always a popular attraction and they sustained their reputation last night. Later in the evening they apeared as "Rubin & Bunion, the Warrenville two-piece string orchestra." The eleventh number on the program was announced as "Moving Pictures, original, never having been shown before." This consisted of Brown Rolston appearing with a wheelbarrow and moving several pictures off the stage. The concluding number was a topical song by the company, with Ray McGee in the solo part. This song was filled with local hits.

After the show, dancing was continued until an early hour this morning. Muller's Orchestra furnished the music for dancing. Among those who contributed largely to the success of the show were Mrs. H. L. McGee and Clifford A. Braider, accompanists, and the following comprising the tennis committee of the club: William Barlow, Jr., A. D. Beers, E. M. Daniel, 2d, H. L. McGee, F. L. Sill, Mrs. H. L. McGee, Mrs. William Barlow, Jr., and Miss Helen Ray Hooley.

ALL OUT OF SORTS

Has Any Plainfield Person Never Felt That Way?

Feel all out of sorts?
Tired, Blue, Irritable, Nervous?
Back feel lame and achy?
That's the story of sick kidneys—
Bad blood circulating about;
Uric acid poisoning the body.
Just one way to feel right again,
Help the sluggish kidneys;
Do it with Doan's Kidney Pills.

Doan's have cured many Plainfield people.

Here's one case.

C. L. Treat, painter and paperhanger, 411 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble and for years could not find anything that would give me relief. My back ached constantly and there was a pain across my kidneys. My kidneys were in bad shape and I became all run down, in fact, was almost a physical wreck. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply and they made a different man out of me. I got this remedy at Randolph's Drug Store and my experience was so satisfactory that I cannot make my endorsement of it too strong. I simply would not be without a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills on hand."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New ork, sole agents for the United States.

EDGE DENIES STOKES FIGURED IN ELECTION.

Additional assurances were given yesterday by Senator Edge, who was last week chosen Republican leader in the upper chamber of the Legislature for the coming session, that he did not consider his election as an anti-Stokes move by the majority of the State Republican leaders. He asserts that the interpretation should not be made that in choosing him over Senator Leavitt former Governor Stokes suffered a "defeat" in his possible candidacy for United States Senator.

Senator Edge said: "I have been a personal friend and warm admirer of Governor Stokes for years. Just how any version of the contest could be construed as a Stokes defeat or Stokes victory is more than I can fathom.

"As a matter of fact, I don't see why any influence outside of the wishes of the Senators themselves would to any appreciable extent enter into the matter. I considered it purely a family affair, the ambition to be leader being a natural one for any Senator who felt ready and willing to assume the added responsibilities of the post.

"The idea that six of the Republican Senators joined together for the purpose of injuring or aiding the possible Senatorial candidacy of former Governor Stokes or any other man is preposterous. That is a matter that, under the law, will be settled by the people and not by the organization of either the Senate or the House.

"The result of the caucus was naturally gratifying to me, and I trust that the work of the majority in both branches during the coming session will merit the approval and commendation of the Republicans of the State."

TRENTONIANS AND COMMISSION RULE.

Outside of the politicians, both retired and in active machine service, the commission form of municipal government seems to be approved by the people of Trenton. This does not mean that all are satisfied with every thing that has been done since last August, when the new rule provided by the Walsh act became effective. It does mean, however, that the rank and file of the citizens generally feel that no mistake was made in voting for the change.

These conclusions are based on interviews had yesterday with Trenton people in all walks of life. Business, professional and laboring men were stopped on the street and asked for their views on the commission plan, and others were visited in their places of employment and questioned on the same point. In no case was the stand of the interviewed on the change known in advance to the interviewer.

After a dozen or so of such interviews, all showing approval of the commission form, each man seen was asked to direct the newspaper representative to an opponent of the plan. Without exception, the interviewer was given the name of some prominent politician, sometimes a Democrat, sometimes a Republican. It was the universal belief by all who expressed their views that the opposition to commission government was confined to the ranks of the politicians.

LEADERS DIFFER WITH STOKES ON ROOSEVELT.

At the State house at Trenton yesterday, former Governor Stokes' indorsement of Theodore Roosevelt was freely discussed. There seemed to be a general belief that if Mr. Stokes counted on New Jersey going for Roosevelt he counted wrong. But the leading Republicans at the capitol declined to talk for publication on the subject.

Vivian M. Lewis, who was Republican candidate for Governor last year, said he had not yet got into proper form what he wanted to say on the subject, but added that, he would probably give his views before the day was over.

County Chairman Alfred N. Dalrymple, of Newark, didn't want to tell where he stood, but his fealty to Taft may be fairly premised in view of the fact that he was appointed port collector in Newark by the President.

"I think that Governor Stokes is incorrect in his judgment as to the prevalence of Roosevelt sentiment in New Jersey," said former Governor Franklin Murphy.

"I believe the sentiment of New Jersey is distinctly for Taft, and I think the sentiment will increase rather than diminish from now on. I believe that Colonel Roosevelt should be taken at his word when he says he is not to be a candidate for the Presidency."

AMERICAN LEAGUE TO HOLD OPEN MEETINGS.

Chicago, Dec. 5—American League meetings hereafter will be open to the press and the public. President B. B. Johnson so announced Sunday night, following an expression by President Charles W. Murphy, of the Chicago National League team, that the latter would oppose secret sessions in that league hereafter.

President Johnson added, however, that this year's meeting would not come under the new order, since it would be held under the terms of the old constitution.

ITALIAN LABORER FINDS $5,000 PEARL NECKLACE.

Found beside the Lackawanna Railroad tracks by a laborer, carried around in his wife's pocket for several days and finally traced to her through a telephone message hedged in by secrecy, the $5,000 pearl necklace lost by Mrs. Henry V. Vaughan, of 48 Reynolds terrace, Orange, was recovered by the police of that city Monday night.

The finder was Salvatore Stopiniello, of 137 South Jefferson street, Orange, employed by the railroad company. It is believed that neither he nor his wife realized the value of the find. A reward of $1,000 had been offered for the recovery of the pearls, and Mrs. Vaughan said yesterday that an investigation would be made to ascertain to whom the money should go or among whom it should be divided.

All but five of the seventy-seven pearls in the string were recovered. The missing five are believed to be somewhere along the tracks near the Cone street station buried under the snow.

"Dat notta wor' mooch. Getta him in do fiva-tenna cent store," was Mrs. Stopiniello's comment, as she handed the bauble to the detective.

ABANDONS MONTH-OLD CHILD IN THE SNOW.

The barking of a bulldog about 9 o'clock Monday night drew William Greengrass' attention to a month-old baby that had been left lying in the snow to the rear of a new house at 519 Van Houten avenue, Passaic.

The baby was wrapped in several heavy blankets and was dressed in a knitted cap and jacket and clothing the quality of which indicated that the parents might be fairly well to do. In addition to the clothes on the child there was a second bundle found within several feet of it, in which was a complete change of clothing, a box containing milk, sugar, a flask of milk and an extra nipple for the bottle.

The child had evidently been lying there but a short time when found. It was taken to the General Hospital.

Gets $250 for Broken Knee Cap.

A jury in the Union County Circuit Court, awarded a verdict of $250 to Mrs. Kate E. Clark, of Mountainside against Chauncey D. Smith, of Westfield, yesterday for injuries sustained Christmas Day, 1910, in a collision between a carriage in which she was riding, and an automobile driven by Mr. Smith. Her knee cap was broken and she sustained slight body bruises. She sued for $5,000. Judge Vail presided at the trial.

Grade Crossing Permitted.

The Board of Public Utility Commissioners yesterday approved a petition of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad for permission to cdoss Montpelier avenue, Atlantic City, at grade.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's Lutheran church will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. George Richter, 168 North avenue, Dunellen.

Our Christmas Holiday Goods

We've planned to make our store this year, "The Xmas Stor" of this city, and it will be, not only The Xmas Store, but the shopping center for Christmas gift buyers as well, particularly so when they learn of the many advantages of this display, whether it be in the nature of a pretty holiday novelty, articles of apparel for your own use or for some one you wish to remember with a real sensible gift,—you'll find choice refreshingly satisfying to a marked degree. Yes—and you'll find tags so in keeping with our usual moderate price markings that you'll be able to buy even more gifts than you planned.

Our months and months of careful buying and searching have culminated in gathering the most extensive and most complete stocks of Xmas Gift things we've assembled in years. This initial display will be fairly bewildering in its scope—counter after counter, row after row of show cases, racks, shelves—all are heavily laden with the best of Christmas stocks and which are on display in a manner to make your selections easier than you ever dreamed could be possible.

We want you to make this year's holiday shopping more pleasant than during any year of the past—YOU can help us—Shop Early. Scan this Xmas list carefully—it's worth your while.

We Have Opened Toyland on Our Main Floor With A Display of Thousands Upon Thousands of Toys

This is the day of days for the children of Plainfield and for miles and miles around—Toyland—the world of make-believe is now open, exhibiting thousands and thousands of joy-creating and pleasure giving toys so dear to the heart of children. Every child in this whole town is invited to visit Toyland. Here you will find the very biggest display of toys and dolls you have ever seen. Santa Claus just simply dumped toys into our store by the carload. There are wee tiny undressed dolls to big queenly looking ones dressed in silks and satins—then there are horns, drums, doll carriages, wagons, pianos, games, steam engines that really run, electric toys and all of the many mechanical contrivances—why we could fill this whole page with just the names of the toys—so you can imagine how many thousands of toys are on display, and every toy is arranged so that it can be easily seen with the price marked in plain figures.

You really must bring the children here—for, seeing the display of these Christmas toys is MORE to them than for you to see a once-in-a-life-time spectacle. Too, this opening of Toyland is of interest to you—for, haven't YOU got to get toys for some little child in your family? If you'll take our advice you'll select today—for right at this time is the very best time possible to make selections.

REMEMBER—TOYLAND IS NOW OPEN ON OUR MAIN FLOOR—YOU AND THE CHILDREN ARE INVITED TO COME AND VIEW THE NEW CHRISTMAS TOYS IN ALL THE GLITTERING BEAUTY OF THEIR NEWNESS.

WE DIRECT PARTICULAR ATTENTION AT THIS TIME TO OUR MAGNIFICENT STOCK OF HOLIDAY FURS

Excellent values, excellent furs, that's truly a transcending fur proposition that is irresistable. We are as careful and discriminating when buying furs as a diamond expert is in selecting diamonds. Accordingly you may be sure that any selection from our stock represents quality of unimpeachable character.

Moravian Lynx—A name given a most beautiful fur and one that wears and looks well and possesses the same style as the higher priced; not that cheap Belgian fur; Moravian lynx; large collar or animal scarf and muff; set $17.45

Opossum Fur Sets—Known as American Martin; when you see these sets you'll say they look more like skunk; extra fine; explains all; collar of medium size and regular sized pillow muff; set $13.50

Kit Lynx Sets—These are actually lynx and are most desirable as a black fur; a full sized pillow muff with soft down bed and animal or collar scarf; the set $50.00

Black Wolf Sets—If you have shopped or if you do, you will see no better than these priced $30.00; full sized muff with fancy animal scarf; nice lined and bedded raven black, splendid skins; set $20.00

Caracul Coats—These coats are imported and are actually worth $25.00 to $50.00 more than this price; beautiful, flat, lustrous skins, with rich brocade linings; deep cuffs; large collar; at $75.00

Sable Squirrel Coats—A rich brown dye; very dense; all large full skins; splendid brocade linings, cuff, sleeve and large rolling collar; at $125.00

Near-Seal Coats—These coats would not be dear at $100.00; compare and be convinced. Note the density of the fur and the even shearing; every coat of whole large skins; stayed with the new process interlining; guaranteed not to rip or tear; cuff, sleeve, wide graceful shape; shawl collar; large frog fastenings; at $75.00

Pony Coats—You may take one of these coats, compare with any sold about town for $10.00 more, and if you find better, your money will be cheerfully refunded; not those heavy pelts, but soft and pliable, light in weight, very silken and beautifully marked; best linings; at $45.00

Raccoon Sets—So beautiful are these sets, it is next to impossible to detect them from skunk, and every one knows what the beautiful skunk fur is and the price. There is no better wearing fur and presents a fine appearance; animal or collar; large muff; set $25.00

Attorney General Wickersham was taken suddenly ill at the Cabinet meeting, but his condition was reported not serious.

"Che" Gomez and eight of his partisans were lynched at Rincon Antonio for seditious acts against the government of Mexico.

President Taft's message discussing the trust question was read in both houses; no important business was transacted in either branch.

The Chancellor of the Empire stated to the Reichstag the German case in the Morocco question; an anti-British demonstration followed his speech.

The United States Supreme Court refused to grant a stay of proceedings in the case of the indicted meat packers, and their trial will begin in Chicago today.

Governor Dix consented to receive a brief from counsel to Dr. A. H. Doty, Health Officer of the Port, in answer to Commissioner Bulger's report urging Dr. Doty's dismissal.

James B. McNamara was sentenced to imprisonment for life at Los Angeles; John J. McNamara received a sentence of fifteen years; Judge Bordwel censured Lincoln Steffens.

Samuel Gompers, who left New York at midnight for Washington, said he regarded criticism of his official acts from others than members of the Federation as impertinence.

It was announced at Philadelphia that George V. Massey, general counsel of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, would retire January 1; his connection with the corporation began in 1876.

In an order for the restoration of a general free transfer system the Public Service Commission declared the street railways of New York had lost money by abolishing transfers at certain points.

Health Commissioner Lederle, of New York, said the increase in typhoid last summer in parts of Manhattan and The Bronx was due to infection from milk from a creamery in Central New York.

A young woman who declared herself to be the daughter of Mrs. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, was arrested for bombarding the Palmer mansion with bricks and stones and held for inquiry as to her sanity.

President McAneny, of New York, predicted at the budget hearing that the $8,000,000 lopped off the 1912 expenditures would tend to increase the tax rate rather than have the opposite effect, as intended.

Thomas A. Edison, during the course of an interview yesterday in which he criticised Carnegie's list of great men, said that dime novels were his favorite reading, because they required no thinking.

New York transferred its interest in unusued thoroughfares planned to cut through the property of the Rockefeller Institute to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who in turn gave it to the institution founded by his father.

In the Osgoodby divorce case in New York the husband said his hair was puled out, he was ejected from his home and that he found his wife drunk often; she charged that he was an ex-convict and said he was engaged in illegal businesses.

The Albany investigating committee adjourned, probably for good; the appropriation practically is spent, and the counsel, J. W. Osborne, said he could not proceed because of William Barnes, Jr.'s refusal to answer questions being upheld by the court.

The oasis outside Tripoli was occupied by the Italians after a prolonged fight with 20,000 troops in the invading army and 8,000 on the Moslem side; several hundreds were killed; the battle was considered decisive for the possession of the country.

WILL NOT REQUEST NEW NORTH SUMMIT SCHOOL.

A resolution asking the Board of School Estimate of Summit to seek an appropriation of $35,000 from the City Council for the building of a school at North Summit was voted down at a special meeting of the Board of Education of that place Monday night.

There are nine members in the board and it requires five votes to pass a resolution calling for an appropriation. Those who voted for the appropriation Monday night were President Tyng, Miles S. Sherwood, Robert Nixon and Robert Gow. Horace Dean was excused from voting and a negative vote was cast by John J. Lane. Three members were absent.

CHALLENGERS' PAY FOR DEMOCRATS HID

Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray sent his annual report to the Governor Saturday, in which he shows that every department of the State militia could be instantly placed in the field for operations as far as his department work is concerned. The tentage and camp equipage, he reports, could be sent from the State arsenal in Trenton within one hour after orders were received and before the militia could be mobilized at the armories.

The criticism that here is no tentage at the various armories is met with the statement that he is having a plan worked out whereby these necessaries will be placed in armories, but he fears that there will have to be expensive work done on the armories to properly store the equipment. The company commanders have not in the past desired to assume the responsibility for this property and have shipped it back to the State arsenal.

While large armories can store tentage and other camp equipments readily, it will require expensive changes in the smaller places, where the companies are scattered. But he recommends a change so that each company and each regiment may carry stores for at least the minimum peace strength of the organization, as required by the army regulations.

There is to be a change in the Sea Girt camp, if the wishes of Major Evan M. Johnson, U. S. A., attached here as instructor and inspector of the National Guard, as reinforced by Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray, and as re-echoed in the report by Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., are observed. General Murray notes the report of Major Johnson raising for the first time the suggestion of too much fuss, feathers and high rank uniforms at Sea Girt, and says that he indorses the recommendations of Major Johnson that the Sea Girt camp be in charge of the brigade commander without the interference of the quartermaster-general, the adjutant-general and their staffs.

He makes the first move to carry these things into effect by stating that in the future the quartermaster-general of the State will purchase things in bulk and the proper regimental quartermasters will take charge of the affairs at Sea Girt, thus eliminating the quartermaster-general and his staff and paving the way for the retirement of the adjutant-general and his attached officers.

General Murray also indorses the recommendations of Major Johnson that the Seat Girt camp be put on a strictly military basis, officers attending to their proper duties and the men of their command so enlisted that they will have competent cooks, mechanics and other skilled labor as required by the army regulations.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I wish to correct a statement appearing in your paper as well as other papers last night to the effect of my being a candidate for appointment to the membership of the County Board of Taxation. I am not a candidate, nor do I intend to be, but am doing my little mite the same as a majority of the Democrats of this city to have our Governor appoint the man who is enttiled to hold said office, having the ability, and also the services he has rendered our party makes Councilman-elect P. J. Reville the foremost candidate.

The Home Building & Loan Association

Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years: If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent.	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. Further information may be had at that time or by applying to the secretary, Arthur E. Crone, care of the City National Bank. tu-th

Edward T. Wilson, of the borough, who holds a position with the Standard Oil Company, has been transferred to Denver, Col., where he will take charge of the company's office. Within a short time Mr. Wilson together with his family and his mother, Mrs. Susan Wilson, will remove to Denver.

Sell Household Goods.

The contents of the house at 411 East Fifth street will be sold tomorrow morning by Robert Murray, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. The house will be opened one hour prior to the sale to allow inspection of the goods by prospective buyers.

The Young Ladies' Aid Society of the German Lutheran church will meet tomorrow night at the home of Miss Sophie Faber, 25 Prospect avenue.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

EX-SEN. KEAN PRAISED BY VETERAN OF SENATE

Shelby M. Cullom, who has been a Senator in Congress from the State of Illinois since March 4, 1883, and for the last ten years chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has recently written a very interesting book called "Fifty Years of Public Service," in which he gives an account of his service as member of Congress, Governor of Illinois and United States Senator.

On pages 362 and 363 of the book is found a well-deserved tribute to the Hon. John Kean, who was a member of the Senate for twelve years from this State, and who exercised as much real influence in that body as was ever exercised by any Senator from this State.

The following tribute appears in the book:

"For a number of years after the Hon. John Kean, of New Jersey, entered the Senate, I had no special acquaintance with him, and I did not welcome him particularly when he was made a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations in 1901. Since then I have become very intimate with Senator Kean, and there have been few men on the committee for whom I entertained a higher regard, or in whom I placed more confidence. He was a very industrious and useful member, as he is in the Senate. He filled quite a prominent place in the Senate, and watched legislation probably more closely than any other member. He was always familiar with the bills on the calendar, and made it a point to object to any questionable measures that came before the Senate. He advanced in influence and power very rapidly in the last few years of his service. Through Senator Kean I have been enabled very often to expedite the passage of measures, not only coming from the Committee on Foreign Relations, but bills in which I have been interested pertaining to the affairs of my own State. If the Senate had what is known as a 'whip,' I would say that Senator Kean comes more nearly being the Republican 'whip' than any other Senator, with the possible exception, in recent years, of Senator Murray Crane, of Massachusetts."

HOLY NAME SOCIETY DANCE WELL ATTENDED.

The dance given by St. Joseph's Holy Name Society in Abrams' auditorium, last night, for the benefit of the new church, proved to be a marked success. Fully 400 people were in attendance and enjoyed the program. Refreshments were served between the numbers.

The committee in charge was composed of Thomas Meaney, Vincent Meaney, Robert McCormack, William McCullough, Robert Hamilton, Martin Whalen, Patrick McDonough, Cornelius Guinee and William Lafferty.

NEW POSTAGE STAMPS IN CIRCULATION

Thirteen new postage stamps will be put in circulation this week, according to Director Ralph of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. The issue will amount at the outset to 25,000,000 2-cent stamps and 12,000,000 1-cent stamps a day.

In the new designs, instead of Franklin's face appearing on the 1-cent stamp, as is the case now, the face of Washington will be on all of the stamps of the six lowest denominations. The five highest denominations—8, 10, 15, 50 cent and $1—will bear the face of Franklin. Besides the picture of Washington on the 1-cent stamp the numeral "1" will be used. The present design has the "one" spelled out. The same is true of the 2-cent stamp.

The new 2-cent stamp will carry the numeral "2" in each of the lower corners. On the stamps of 3, 4, 5, and 6-cent denominations the wreath surrounding the head of Washington, as on the 2-cent stamp, will be eliminated, and the denomination printed in a curved line above the head.

The bureau is now delivering large numbers of new registry stamps to the Postoffice Department. The original order is for 10,000,000. They are being distributed throughout the country. There has been no great demand for the registry stamp here, and some troube is anticipated in introducing it. Postage stamps can be used for a registry fee, but a registry stamp cannot be used as postage.

—Murray, the auctioneer, will sell the household goods at 411 East Fifth street at 10:30 tomorrow. See adv.

STATE COMMISSIONERS STATISTICAL REPORT

The statistical report made by State Commissioner of Education Kendall at Trenton shows that during the past fiscal year $9,266,169 was expended for teachers' salaries, an increase of $618,265 over the preceding year. Based on the expenses of maintaining the public schools the average cost per pupil, calculated on enrollment, was $26.38 last year. Calculated on average attendance the cost last year was $37.05, against $37.33 the preceding year.

The number of teachers in the schools last year was 12,740, as against 11,159 the preceding year. Of this number 1,581 were men and 11,159 women. The average salary paid to all teachers last year was $727.32, as against $715.46 the preceding year. The total enrollment in the public schools last year was 442,958, the number of boys being 223,087 and girls 219,871. The average daily attendance was 339,363, an increase of 15,114 over the preceding year.

JAMES McCANN REPORTS THAT HE WAS BOMBARDED.

James McCann, one of the men engaged as a strike-breaker some time ago when the Krom Machine Co. was experiencing labor troubles at its plant, and who lives in the abandoned factory at North avenue and Berckman street, reported to the police last night that he had been bombarded with stones and bricks, several of them smashing through the windows. When the police reached the scene all was tranquil.

OUR COFFEE

produces a roaring good drink and a cup of it makes the king of breakfast drinks.

In buying coffee you sometimes get a nice looking coffee, the bean may be perfect as far as form goes and the coffee itself in the drink may be of a good flavor. Yet it may lack strength.

The poor woman who makes it gets blamed whereas the fellow who sold it is the real culprit. You will always find strength and flavor in our coffees and they are free from bitterness.

The demand increases simply and solely on account of pure quality. Shall we send you a pound to try?

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Manager Robert H. Harris has framed up the most complete scenic production of the big melodrama of Daniel Boone that has ever been produced on any stage. The history of Daniel Boone is known to nearly every man, woman and child in this country, and this drama has been written from the most exciting and interesting part of it. This famous hunter and pioneer was the first white man to enter into this unknown country, infested by Indians and wild beasts. The attack by the Indians and the burning of Boone's cabin by the red devils is made doubly exciting, as a tribe of Sioux warriors has been secured to enact the roles. To hear their yells and see the war dance in the reflection of the burning cabin, makes one feel as if he would like to get busy and help Boone and his companions wipe out the savages. At Plainfield theatre next Monday night.

Joseph M. Gaites will offer at the Plainfield theatre Tuesday night the sensational musical comedy "Three Twins," which had a run of five months at the Whitney Opera House, Chicago, and ten months at the Herald Square Theatre, New York. "Three Twins" contains more novel features than any musical comedy that has ever been produced. The Faceograph is one of the most wonderful electrical effects ever shown on the sage. There are a number of melodious song numbers including, "The Yama Yama Man," "Boo Hoo Tee Hee," "Good Night," "Cuddle Up a Little Closer" and many others.

LITERARY.

The call of our citizens "Back to the farms!" as it grows in popularity and volume, spreading through all classes of society, has become a national cry whose volume has drowned the still, small voices of a generation of thinkers and teachers to whose lives of devotion is due in large measure the recognition of the agricultural pursuits as the foundation of the health and wealth of the nation and of the people. A leader if not a pioneer in the growth of the agricultural college idea, was Henry Hill Goodell, the story of whose life with letters and a few of his addresses (Riverside Press) is now for the first time given to the public by his lifelong friend, the Rev. Calvin Stebbins.

President Goodell's ever growing influence in the shaping of legislation and of public sentiment in his State and in the nation was not only due to his position as head of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, but also and far more to the persevering courage with which his manly understanding of men armed him to meet the leaders of men in compelling attention to his important life work; nor would it be safe to underestimate the strength which he so often won away from his most dangerous opponents by the wit that sparkled with his saving sense of never-failing good humor.

The chairman of the Massachusetts legislative committee once tried to ensnare him in his advocacy of higher educational standards for the college, with the uestqion: "I notice you have some ministers among your graduates. Will you please tell me what the connection is between agriculture and theology?" When the laugh had subsided, in which he undoubtedly joined, President Goodell replied: "I have just received a letter from one of these ministers in which he says, 'I know of no more perfect illustration of original sin than the pussley I used to dig on the college farm.'" Of course the relationship between agriculture and theology was settled in a roar of laughter at the expense of the chairman.

It is perhaps this side of the character of the man that will give the book at once a place on our shelves among those especially enjoyed for reading aloud.

These traits of the character of the educator so rarely combined are in part accounted for by the Story of the Youth and the still more fascinating story of the Soldier. The life with Grant on the lower Mississippi, in the campaign which resulted in the surrender of Port Hudson, has added charms of heroism and romance under the influence of the same inimitable style, adorned with the same irrepressible good humor of Goodell the Soldier, who was always in the hottest and bloodiest of every fight that offered.

President Goodell was a college classmate and lifelong friend of the late Colonel Tyler of this city.

TEN PACKERS MUST GO TO TRIAL TODAY.

Ten millionaire packers must stand trial today in Chicago under the criminal section of the anti-trust law for forming the Beef Trust, the Supreme Court of the United States having yesterday refused to grant a stay of proceedings.

As soon as the Supreme Court met yesterday Chief Justice White announced that the motion filed by counsel for the packers was denied.

The apeal, based on the contention that anti-trust law is unconstitutional, remains on the court docket. The only possible step now would be for the packers to ask the court to expedite hearing on that appeal.

The Kingdom Of Slender Swords

By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

Copyright, 1910, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

His voice was charged with feeling. She felt a strange flutter of the heart and painful and yearning sympathy such as she had never felt before.

"I wonder what he saw from that Greek cradle," she resumed. "I could never fancy the room so well. I suppose it had pictures. Do you think so?"

He nodded. "And maybe—on one wall—a Greek icon, protected by a silver case. I've seen such that left exposed only the olive brown faces and hands and feet of the figures. Perhaps when he was very little he used to think the brown Virgin represented his mother and the large eyed child himself."

"Ah!" she cried, and a deeper light came in her eyes. "You have been in Greece! You have seen what he saw!" But he made no reply, and after a moment she went on:

"He had never known what terror was till one day an accident, received in play, brought him the fear of blindness. It must have stayed with him all his life after that, wherever he went—for he lived in other countries. I have a few leaves of an old diary of his. Here and there I feel it in the lines."

She, too, fell silent. "And then?" he said.

"There my dreams end. You see how little I know of him. I don't know why he came to Japan. But he met my mother here, and here they were married. I should always love Japan, if only for that."

"He—died here?"

"In Nagasaki. My mother went back to America, and there I was born."

She was looking out across the wide space where the roofs sank out of sight—to the foliaged slope of Aoyama. Suddenly a thrill, a curiously complex motion, ran over her. Above those far treetops, sailing in slow, sweeping eccentric circles, she saw a great machine, like a gigantic vulture. She knew instantly what it was, and there flashed before her the memory of a day at Fort Logan when a brave young lieutenant had crashed to death before her eyes in a shattered aeroplane.

If Daunt were to fall what would it mean to her! In that instant the garden about her, Thorn, the blue sky above, faded, and she stared dismayed into a gulf in whose shadows lurked the disastrous, the terrifying, the irreparable. "I love him! I love him!" It seemed to peal like a temple bell through her brain. Even to herself she could never deny it again.

She became aware of music near at hand. It brought her back to the present, for it was the sound of the organ in the new chapel across the way.

Looking up, she was struck by the expression on Thorn's face. He seemed, listening, to be held captive by some dire recollection. It brought to her mind that bitter cry:

I cannot but remember such things were,
That were most precious to me!

She rose with a sudden swelling of the throat.

"I must go now," she said. "The chapel is to be dedicated this morning. The organ is playing for the service now."

She led the way along the stepping stones to the bamboo gate. As they approached, through the interstices of the farther hedge she could see the figure of the ambassador, with Mrs. Dandridge, among the kimonos entering the chapel door. In the temple across the yard the baton had begun its tapping, and the dulled, monotonous tomtom mingled weirdly with the soaring harmonies of the organ.

With her hand on the paling she spoke again:

"One thing I didn't tell you. It was I who built the chapel. It is in memory of my father. See, there is the memorial window. They were putting it in place when I came a little while ago."

She was not looking at Thorn, or she would have seen his face overspread with a whiteness like that of death. He stood as if frozen to marble. The morning sun on the chapel's eastern side, striking through its open casements, lighted the iridescent rose window with a tender radiance, gilding the dull yellow aureole about the head of the Master and giving life and glow to the face beside him—dark, beardless and passionately tender—at which Thorn was staring, with what seemed almost an agony of inquiry.

"St. John," she said softly, "'the disciple whom Jesus loved.'" She drew from the bosom of her dress the locket she always wore and opened it. "The face was painted from this—the only picture I have of my father."

His hand twitched as he took it. He looked at it long and earnestly—at the name carved on its lid. "Barbara—Barbara Fairfax!" he said. She thought his lips shook under the gray mustache.

"You—are a Buddhist, are you not?" she asked. "And Buddhists believe the spirits of the dead are always about us. Do you think—perhaps—he sees the chapel?"

He put her locket into her hands hastily. "God!" he said, as if to himself. "He will see it through a hundred existences!"

Her eyes were moist and shining. "I am glad you think that," she said.

In the chapel the bishop's gaze kindled as it went out over the kneeling people.

"We beseech thee that in this place now set apart to thy service thy holy name may be worshiped in truth and purity through all generations."

The voice rang valiant and clear in the summer hush. It crossed the still lane and entered a window where, in a temple loft, a man sat still and gray and quiet, his hands clinched in his kimono sleeves:

"We humbly dedicate it to thee in the memory of one for the saving of whose soul thou wert lifted upon the cross."

The man in the loft threw himself on his face with a terrible cry.

"My child!" he cried in a breaking voice. "My little, little child, whom they have robbed me of—whom I have never known in all these weary years! You have grown away from me—I shall never have you now! Never—never!"

Behind him the image of Kwan-on, the All-Pitying, tossed the sunlight about the room in golden lettered flashes, and beneath his closed and burning lids there seemed to blend and weave—to form bossed letters which had stared at him from the rim of the rose window: "Thou Shalt Have No Other Gods Before Me."

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

OPENING OF ASTOR PLACE.

The undersigned, commissioners heretofore appointed by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, to make an estimate and assessment of damages that any owner or owners of land will sustain by the laying out and opening of Astor Place from the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, pursuant to the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to lay out and opening Astor Place from the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue," approved October 27, 1910, and also to ascertain the amount of damages that shall be assessed as aforesaid, and of all necessary expenses incident to such laying out and opening and to make a just and equitable assessment thereof among the owners and occupants of the lands, tenements and real estate benefited thereby, in proportion to the benefits each shall be deemed to acquire said assessments to be made pursuant to the amended charter of the City as amended or modified by general statutes of the State, and particularly by the act entitled, "An Act respecting assessments in Cities," approved April 21, 1876, hereby give notice that they have this day filed their report and assessment in the office of the City Clerk, and that the same is open to inspection of the public, and will be presented to the Common Council, at the meeting of that body to be held at the Council Chambers, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., on the twenty-first day of December, 1911, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The character of the work and improvement is the laying out and opening of Astor Place between the points stated in the above mentioned title of said ordinance.

The lands taken are designated on a map and schedule accompanying said report and assessment, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, entitled, "Assessment Map for the laying out and opening of Astor Place from the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, City of Plainfield, N. J.," to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

The lands assessed for benefits are the lands fronting on Astor Place as ordered, laid out and opened by said ordinance, and other lands fronting on Astor Place between the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue and the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, also other lands fronting on Hunter Avenue, between the Northerly side line of West Fourth Street and the Southerly side line of Evona Avenue, and lands fronting on Lyman Place to a line distance about 150' from the Northerly side line of Astor Place, and are shown on and designated on said Map and schedule to which reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

The Problem of the Christmas Gift

Because we live in an extravagant age and our friends are surfeited with the little luxuries which used to make acceptable gifts, the practical present is becoming more popular every year.

There could be no more practical and acceptable gift for wife, mother, sister or child than a 4% interest account in our Special Department. Send us $5.00 or more and we will mail to whomever you may designate, a pass book enclosed in an attractive Christmas envelope.

HERBERT BOOTH TALKS AT BUSINESS COLLEGE

Herbert Booth, of London, who has been delivering a series of lectures in this city during the past week, addressed the pupils at the Plainfield Business College yesterday afternoon. He spoke particularly of the demand for good moral character in business and referred to some of the oldest English commercial houses which have prospered because they have always given full value for money received. If one of these firms dealt in wool and offered a special sale in woolen goods, the people would flock to the place, because they had that confidence born of experience that when this store advertised a "Woolen Sale," it was not a "Near Wool—Some Cotton" sale.

Mr. Booth paid a tribute to the institution and gave an inspiring talk along the line of making the best of the opportunity that the school gives in its thorough preparation for the business world. He referred to the value of the opportunity and then portrayed the picture of what duties were entailed by reason of opportunities granted. "Larger and better opportunities call for greater responsibilities and the person who fails to assume the responsibilities for which he or she is prepared, and which he or she has had an opportunity, that person is not only a failure, but a disgrace."

"The dignity of labor is becoming recognized more and more as the people become more accustomed to the industrial age and it is a disgrace for any person, wealthy or in poverty, to be a loafer," Mr. Booth declared. "To my mind, there is no difference between the well dressed and finely groomed loafer and the most disreputable bum in the street. If anything, the street bum is deserving of some sympathy, because accident of birth may have denied him every possible chance of something better, but as for the other, far be better for him that he never had been born."

JURY PANEL DRAWN BY SHERIFF WRIGHT.

Before Judge Atwater yesterday at Elizabeth Sheriff William H. Wright drew the first petit jury panel for the January term of court. The jurymen will serve two weeks, beginning the first day of January. Eighteen of the jurymen are from Elizabeth; seven from htis city; four from Westfield, and three from Rahway. Several of the small municipalities receive a larger representation than usual.

Those from Plainfield are Arthur T. Gallup, George E. Greenleaf, Louis Sprigg, Carrol Runyon, James C. Pope, Howard A. Pope and P. Frank Stone.

Postal Clerks' Banquet.

Following the regular meeting the postoffice clerks had a dinner at the Waldorf Hotel on East Front street, last night. The affair was strictly informal in nature and was presided over by President Conklin, of the clerks' association. The dinner was marked by sociability and following it the remainder of the evening was spent with story and song, all responding with the talents with which they have been blessed.

GOV. WILSON SAYS HE ASKED FOR PENSION

The following statement was made by Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, last night at Baltimore, Md., regarding his application for the benefits of the Carnegie Foundation Fund:

"The Carnegie Foundation for the advancement of teaching is not a plan for old age pensions, but for the granting of retiring allowances on the ground of length and quality of service. Before I was elected Governor of New Jersey, when I had just entered the field of politics, I applied to the foundation for a retiring allowance, to which I understood myself to be entitled under the rules adopted by its trustees. I have no private means to depend upon.

"A man who goes into politics, bound by the principle of honor, puts his family and all who may be dependent upon for support at the mercy of any incalculable turn of the wheel of fortune, and I felt justified in seeking to provide against such risks, particularly when I was applying for what I supposed myself to be entitled to by right of long service as a teacher under the rules of the foundation.

"I understood that on the receipt of my application the executive committee of the trustees of the foundation restricted the interpretation of their rule and declined to grant the allowance. I have not renewed the application."

ARRANGE A CONCERT FOR TWO CHURCHES.

There will be a concert in Reform Hall tomorrow night at 8 o'clock for the benefit of the Mt. Olive and Calvary Baptist churches, under the direction of Mrs. Bertha Brinkley and Miss B. B. Claiborne. The program will include a play in three acts entitled "Aunt Betsey's Thanksgiving," with the following cast:

Aunt Betsey, Mrs. Bertha Brinkley; Caroline, Ruth Alexander; Lawyer Sparklers, Frank Selby; Nellie, Miss Bettie Selby; Harry Rodney, Ayers Tyler. The other part of the program will be as follows:

Opening, Lord's Prayer, chorus; opening address, Rev. G. W. Bailey; singing, chorus; recitation, Miss Harris; solo, Miss Anna Fisher; recitation, Mrs. Watson; violin solo, Fred Vaughn; recitation, Mrs. Ella Irby; solo, Mrs. Brown; recitation, Mrs. Rosa Jackson; singing, chorus; paper, Mrs. Belle Scott; solo, John Taylor; piano duet, the Misses Randolph; recitation, Miss Effie Irvey; solo, Mrs. Alexander; duet, the Misses M. and H. Vaughn; solo, Mrs. John Garner; Sewing Circle, eight girls; solo, John Brown. Rev. Dr. M. W. Vaughn will make the closing address.

Bernstein Withdraws Appeal.

The case of the S. P. C. A. against Nathan Bernstein, of Craig place, who was found guilty last Friday night of clubbing a squirrel to death several weeks ago, has been settled by the withdrawal of the appeal filed against the decision of the case by Recorder Dolliver. Bernstein was fined $10 and costs which amounted to $7.50, and he appealed the case on the ground of lack of evidence and jurisdiction of the court. This morning he paid the fine.

P.O.S. OF A. PLANS FOR NATIONAL PARK

New life has been given the movement for the establishment of a park at Washington's Crossing and the erection of a monument there. At this time the members of a committee in charge of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the New Jersey P. O. S. of A. and the one hundredth anniversary of the first organization, which events are to be celebrated in Trenton upon a large scale in 1913, are contemplating taking up the national park movement.

It is the desire that a comparatively small tract of land be purchased at Washington's Crossing and a monument erected close to the tablet which is now in position there and to have the shaft ready for dedication upon the occasion of the dual anniversary exercises in Trenton in 1913.

A commission committee was named by former Governor J. Franklin Fort, which commission is still in existence. Among the members is C. J. Fisk, of this city.

This move is desired on the part of the State and when the government decides to take up the matter other lands can be purchased and the park enlarged.

CIRCUIT COURT TO GO OUT JANUARY 1

Preparations are being made in the Federal building at Trenton for the change January 1, when the United States Circuit Court, a tribunal nearly as old as the State, will pass out of existence, its jurisdiction to be taken over by the District Court. The consolidation of the courts will be under the provisions of the bill of Congressman Moon, of Pennsylvania, passed March 3, 1911. Congressman Moon claims the change throughout the country will effect a saving of $250,000 in the salaries of unnecessary clerks and in other ways.

The change will have little effect upon the judges. The three judges in this circuit are William M. Lanning, George Gray and Joseph Buffington. They will retain their titles and will work in the Appellate Court. The District Court judges, Joseph Cross and John Rellstab, will continue to sit, except that after January 1 equity cases which heretofore have been heard only at two terms annually of the Circuit Court will be heard at four terms of the consolidated courts.

The change to be made is largely a technical one, abolishing a court whose powers have been limited in recent years by legislation and conferring upon the District Court full powers. The change will not affect the government's suit against the United States Steel Corporation in any way. This action was recently brought in the Circuit Court, but the Moon law provides that pending suits shall be continued in the District Court.

All the clerks of the Circuit Courts will have their positions abolished, but in some cases some of them may find positions in the District Court as the business there will be increased. Just how these changes wil be worked out here has not yet been decided.

Under the new code jurors for Federal courts will receive their summons by registered mail, instead of by personal visits from deputy United States marshals, and the government will have six peremptory challenges in selecting Federal court jurors instead of three.

Another reform provided by the Moon law is a prohibition against members of Congress practising before the Court of Claims at Washington.

Trolley Hits Rig.

A Fourth street trolley collided with a Hedden livery rig this morning as the latter was entering the stable on Fourth street, near Park avenue. The brakes on the car refused to work and when the crash came the glass in the vestibule was shattered, the horse was knocked down, skinning its knees and breaking the harness. John Foster, the driver, was uninjured as was also the motorman, John McCarty.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Pupils of the Plainfield High School visited the Public Welfare Exhibit yesterday afternoon. The pupils of the science classes had to submit written reports of the exhibit. During the afternoon Dr. Henry M. Maxson gave several short talks explaining the exhibit and its object to the pupils. Several pupils who attended will try for the prize offered for the best essay on the subject.

The senior class at a meeting yesterday elected a captain and manager for the basketball team. The team will soon start practice for the annual class series and senior-faculty game. Schuyler Line was chosen captain and Egbert Fountain, manager.

The high school orchestra was orgaized yesterday afternoon under the direction of Samuel B. Howe, Jr., of the faculty. Six members were present for the first rehearsal. A majority of the members play violins, clarionets and piano. Efforts are being made to organize a mandolin club.

The Boys' Athletic Association will meet tomorrow afternoon to elect a manger and captain for next year's baseball team. At the same time it will be decided whether to have a hockey team or not.

A committee from the senior class is at work perfecting a plan to "roast" the juniors at the Christmas entertainment. The committee in charge comprises Mis Helen Ryder, chairman; Miss Katherine Webster, Miss Mildred Brownlee, John Denny and Schuyler Line.

The sophomore class basketball squad has elected Murdock Hetfield captain and Edward Glenn manager.

Miss Helen Newell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Newell, and Miss Caroline Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Randolph, both of West Seventh street, have returned home from Boston, where they spent the Thanksgiving holidays.

ON NURSERY WORK

What's Being Done For Babes of Poor Told at King's Daughters Meeting.

AT THE SEMI-ANNUAL SESSION.

Mrs. Frank W. Jones Presides—Mrs. Most Reports Year's Receipts As $12,015.50—Balance $5,040.23.

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union of The King's Daughters was held in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church, yesterday afternoon, when gratifying reports were presented and interesting addresses made on topics pertinent to the work being carried on by the King's Daughters. Mrs. Frank W. Jones, the president, was in the chair, and Miss Elsie Suffern, secretary, gave her report.

Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, was in charge of the opening exercises, reading the 45th Psalm, known as "The King's Daughters' Psalm," and offering prayer. Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis, soprano, and Mrs. Stepher H. Tugwell, contralto, sang a pleasing duet, being accompanied on the piano by Miss Lillian A. Force.

Eight of the fourteen circles comprising the city union, reported, all of which showed progress. Then followed the regular order of business. One of the interesting features was the report of the Day Nursery work, presented by Mrs. A. M. Most. This is one of the important charities of the city and is closing its sixth year. Mrs. Most's report in part follows:

"It is gratifying to the trustees to report that the work of The Day Nursery for the past six years has been one of increased usefulness. During this period there have been cared for 22,150 children. In the past six months we have cared for 2,200 children, most of them under four years of age. Fortunately, we have not had any sickness this season. We have on our roll at the present time forty-six children. In looking over the records for the past six years we find that we have had 200 families represented and have had twenty-three children to board. Some of the mothers send two, some three, some four. Of course, many of the children have outgrown the Nursery, but others have been coming along.

"We have on our day book at the present time six babies under one year, nine under three years and ten under four years. The others range from five to eight years. It is impossibe in this report to enumerate all the cases which the nursery has been of great assistance to among the worthy poor. A few, typical of the many may, perhaps, be mentioned. At present we are caring for a little colored girl six years old who was found living with her grandmother in a distressed hovel. The grandmother was suffering from a stroke of paralysis and was found lying on an old trunk in a dying condition. She was removed to the hospital and the children taken to the nursery in a deplorable condition. We have had her three weeks and she is a very different looking child; bright and happy. She looked up in the matron's face the other day and said that she did not know how long she would be able to stay, but it was the best home she had ever had and wished she could live there always.

"The trustees are glad to report the purchase of a house, 502 West Front street, which they were encouraged to buy through the liberal legacy of Mrs. Minnie Edgerton. The new nursery is to be in perfect repair. The contracts have been awarded through A. L. C. Marsh, architect, and the work well underway. By the first of March we expect to occupy it. To all our members we are grateful for their interest. We recognize that our need of their assistance is greater now than ever and we trust that results accomplished at the nursery will continue to hold their interest and support."

A remarkable fact in connection with his work is that in the past six years there have been but five deaths of children. During the afternoon, Dr. W. H. Murray, who is identified with the Charity Organization Society, gave an interesting talk on the work of the city nursing bureau, showing the progress made. The report of the camp committee, of which Mrs. Walter Cahoone is the chairman, showed that during the past summer several hundred children and mothers were cared for at the camp.

Mrs. A. M. Most, treasurer, reported receipts of $12,015.50, which included the Mrs. Minnie Edgerton bequest of $10,000, and the disbursements were $6,975.32, leaving a balance of $5,040.23, of which $4,414 is a part of the legacy. Following the meeting tea was served by members of The Daughters of the Cross.

FREEHOLDER WILBUR MEETS WITH ACCIDENT

Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur is confined to his bed as the result of an accident yesterday morning. He was coming out of the water company office on North avenue on his way to the train, when he stepped on a rope, which some painters were using in erecting a scaffold, and fell length on the sidewalk. He put out his right hand to save himself and in doing so the ligaments were torn from the bones, and the arm was severely sprained.

Mr. Wilbur continued on to New York, not realizing the seriousness of the injury. Upon reaching New York he suffered so much pain that he was obliged to consult a physician for treatment. He returned home early in the afternoon. Last night at midnight Mr. Wilbur was suffering so that the family physician had to be summoned. Today he is reported as being a little more comfortable.

KING'S DAUGHTERS CIRCLES ARE BUSY

An all-day sewing meeting and luncheon was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Emerson E. Parvin, on Watchung avenue, under the auspices of the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters. It was a delightful affair and was enjoyed by twenty-seven members of the band. The morning was devoted to sewing, considerable being accomplished. At 1:30 o'clock all sat down for a delightful luncheon. Afterwards Mrs. George H. Campbell, of Grove street, entertained the company with a number of southern dialect stories and readings, which was greatly appreciated and enjoyed. A short business meeting closed the day's program.

The Loyal Daughters' Circle of The King's Daughters held a meeting at the home of Mrs. George Bowman on Hillside avenue, yesterday afternoon. The feature was a talk by Miss Agnes B. Smith, of East Sixth street, who told of her interesting work among the mountaineers of Virginia, where she has been engaged for the past three years under the auspices of the Episcopal church and the personal direction of Archdeacon Neve, of Virgina . Efforts are being made to build a log house in Virginia, $200 being required, and Miss Smith is endeavoring to raise that amount. Miss Smith as a missionary is called upon to be a minister, doctor and nurse and she related many personal incidents of great interest. The Loyal Daughters decided to send a barrel and box of good things to Virginia to help Miss Smith in her work.

COURT WATCHUNG ELECTS OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR.

Court Watchung, No. 3871, Independent Order Foresters at its meeting Tuesday night elected these officers: Court deputy, John Praed; chief ranger, John Daub; vice-chief ranger, Charles Haring; recording secretary, Clarence Brouard; treasurer, John M. Lewis; orator, F. W. Houseman; senior woodward, William Gunzleman; junior woodward, Stryker Hoagland; senior beadle, John Gulick; junior beadle, George Townley; trustees, Charles Haring, William Gunzleman; finance committee, George Townley, Frank Houseman; court physician, Dr. F. J. Hughes; druggist, Peter Hodge; press representative, John Praed. The installation will take place January 2.

Wedding Anniversary Surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, of 1036 West Eighth street, celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of their wedding yesterday and last night about one hundred of their friends and neighbors gave them a surprise party. The evening was spent in a social way with vocal, piano and violin selections as a feature. Refreshments were also served. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson received a number of gifts from their friends.

Interesting Talk On McAll Work.

The Plainfield Branch of the McAll Auxiliary held its regular meeting at the Public Library, yesterday, when Mrs. F. G. Mead gave an interesting talk of her recent trip abroad, telling of the mission work being done in foreign countries by the McAll Auxiliary. There was also an interesting letter read from the auxiliary's missionary in Limoges, France, telling of the progress of the work there.

To Exchange Pulpits.

Rev. Charles E. Dunn, pastor of the Tioga Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, will exchange with Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, next Sunday. In the morning Mr. Dunn's theme will be "The Lineage of Hope," and in the evening, "The Divine Intimacy."

ENJOY PIG ROAST

North Plainfield Township Association Host at Old-Fashioned Affair.

SPEECHES AFTER THE FEAST.

Mayor Smalley and Dr. Reed Among the Speakers—Warrenville Quartet Contributes Harmony.

An old-fashioned pig rost, of the kind often read about but seldom encountered, was given in the town hall at Watchung, last night. The North Plainfield Township Committee played the part of host and had as guests 100 of the residents, men and women, together with a few "special extras" from adjacent points. The affair was originally planned as an informal "get-together," but resolved itself into an honorary celebration of William La R. Anderson's election to the State Legislature.

The attendants were seated about three tables, one at the upper end of the others being reserved for speakers. There were all kinds of American flags, bunting, chrysanthemums and sich all about the room. It served to beautify the walls of what used to be Texier's mill and remind the visitors that Watchung lacks neither patriotism nor an eye for horticultural beauty.

There was plenty of delicious pork, flanked by apple sass and fixin's. The committee appointed to supply the provender had snared a school of sucklings somewhere in the valley and they were cooked by somebody who knew how. The best proof of this was the way all hands ignored etiquette to ask for the fourth help. There was good coffee and cheese to top off with.

When everybody had cried "sufficiency," the toastmaster, Justice George T. Hughes started the talkfest. There were no set speeches, those called upon saying what they wanted as long as they did not agree with the man who said pork should be eaten sparingly. Remarks were made by Mayor N. B. Smalley, Dr. S. G. Reed, Assemblyman-elect W. de La R. Anderson, Prosecutor Frederick A. Pope, S. S. Swackhamer and Francis E. Bodin. During the serving of the viands, vocal and instrumental music was furnished by the Minion brothers, of Newark, and the speeches were interspersed with numbers by the Warrenville quartet, composed of W. Smith, J. Todd, E. Bennett and L. Fordyce. The last named in private life is E. D. Cutting.

The committee in charge was composed of E. T. Canning, W. E. Pattie, C. C. Wheeler and M. H. Cleaves. The official carvers were Mayor Smalley, Postmaster George Schmidt and E. T. Canning.

DEED IS IN HER NAME, WIFE MUST PAY CLAIM

George W. Ord, an electrician, was the plaintiff in an action brought in the District court, this morning against Mrs. Hannah M. Djurson, in which he sought to recover the balance due on electrical fixtures installed in a house built by the defendant on Prospect place. The defendant contended that the contract was made with her husband, Mauritz Djurson, and that he and not she was responsibile for the bill.

Judge Newcorn decided that the property was in the name of the wife and was owned by her when the materials were furnished and that the fixtures are still a benefit to the property. Accordingly he awarded Mr. Ord judgment for $38.85 and costs, making a few deductions for articles admittedly not installed. Robert Newton Crane represented Mr. Ord and Francis J. Blatz was counsel for the defendant.

Red Cross Stamps.

Red Cross Seals, suitable for Christmas and New Year packages containing gifts, may be had at The Daily Press office. They are one cent each and the entire proceeds go to the Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society for its work in this city. If you cannot call, telephone No. 1300 to have the stamps sent to your address.

Commerce Chamber Meeting.

A large attendance is desired this evening at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce when the reports of the various officers will be received and plans for election of officers will be discussed.

PARISHONERS DINE

Grace Church Celebration on Eve of Rev. Mr. Stevenson's Tenth Year as Rector.

ACCOUNTS OF STEWARDSHIPS.

Speakers Make Encouraging Reports For the Various Departments of Church Work—Held at Parish House.

Parishioners of Grace church to the number of two hundred gathered last night in the parish house for what proved to be a double celebration. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, who presided at what was intended to be a sort of "get together" dinner, having announced that next Sunday would mark the beginning of his tenth year as their rector. The guests were about equally divided, there being as many women as men present. They were all seated at twenty tables and while the courses were being served an orchestra dispensed appropriate music. A nice arrangement of a quantity of seasonable blooms enhanced the beauty of the surroundings.

Rev. Mr. Stevenson gave a brief introductory talk touching on the growth of the church and its achievements by the able assistance of the committees and departments necessary in the general scope of the work. As most of the heads of these committees and departments were present he said he was going to let them relate in their own way the accomplishments and needs of each. Miss Margaret Carpenter told of the Junior auxiliary, while Miss Egan spoke on the periodical work. W. H. P. Vesey discussed the men's club. The duplicate envelope system to be introduced was explained by George M. Holstein. J. P. Nolting's theme was the Sunday-school; Rev. J. G. Currier, the assistant rector, had for his subject the Bible class. Howard Fleming, as a warden, talked for the vestry and the following for the committees with which they are identified: Mrs. D. H. Rowland, Miss Morgan, Mrs. E. F. Feickert and Mrs. D. T. Van Buren.

In a sense all of the speeches were in the nature of an accounting of stewardship, it being the idea to get the parishioners interested in the different departments of the church and give them first hand knowledge on what is being done and what is hoped to be accomplished in the future. The parish at present has a membership of 650.

Mrs. Henry Johnson as caterer served an excellent dinner.

THEIR FEET FROZEN WHILE STEALING RIDES

Carter Bond, of 424 West street, Indianapolis, and Samuel Hill, of Richmond, Va., both colored, and each twenty-six years of age, are patients at Muhlenberg Hospital both belong to the fraternity of Knights of the Road and were stealing a ride on the railroad when Jack Frost nipped their pedal extremities which led to their enforced detention in this city.

Bond was riding on the New Jersey Central and when he reached this city last night he was suffering to such an extent that he was obliged to seek the aid of the police. The man was sent to the hospital in the ambulance.

Hill was stealing a ride on the Lehigh Valley roalroad and was obliged to leave the train at South Plainfield. In some manner he reached Peter Simmonds' pool parlors on Madison avenue, where after relating his troubles he was taken to the hospital for treatment. Bond and Hill occupy adjoining cots in the men's ward and they spend the greater part of the time sympathizing with one another.

Underhill Hearing Set.

Gerard Underhill, of Watchung, will be arraigned before Justice Snape on a charge of cruelty to animals, on Wednesday, December 13, at 10 o'clock. The case will be pressed by the State S. P. C. A., through Colonel Edwards. Mr. Underhill is accused of leaving a horse out all night in Sunday's storm.

Court Plainfield to Elect.

Court Plainfield No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, will elect officers at its meeting tomorrow night. Three applications will be acted upon and all members are requested to be present as business of importance will be considered.

State Officers of Order Speak at Session of Royal Council, Sr. O. U. A. M.

NEARBY COUNCILS PRESENT.

New Brunswick Jersey City and Milltown Councils Represented —Officers Nominated by Local Lodge.

Royal Council, Sr. O. U. A. M., of this city, entertained the members of nearby councils of that order last night, and had the roll-call. There was a large attendance, there being about 150 members of the order present, including a number of State officers. Among the latter were State Councilor James E. Church, of this city; State Vice-Councilor A. P. Turnbull, of Woodbury; former National Councilor Samuel A. Charles, of New York; former State Councilor Charles A. May, of Jersey City; State Council Secretary Morris Bauer, of New Brunswick.

There were present delegations from Relief Council, No. 40, of New Brunswick; Industry Council, No. 50, of Jersey City; Rescue Council, No. 4, of Milltown. Two thirds of the membership of Royal Council answered to the roll-call. A feature was the class initiation, there being seven candidates. The work was done by the degree team from Relief Council, No. 40, of New Brunswick. During the evening there was an informal program of vocal and instrumental music and later refreshments were served under the direction of the good and welfare committe comprising I. N. Wyckoff, F. G. Welsh and C. Frank Runyon. During a business session the following nomination of officers was made:

These officers were put in nomination for the election to be held on December 20: Councilor, F. G. Welsh; vice-councilor, George VanOrden, F. L. Soper, Sr.; assistant recording secretary, John G. Bicknell; conductor, L. C. R. Dunham, George VanOrden; examiner, A. T. Stryker, A. D. Thorne; inside protector, A. T. Stryker, L. C. R. Dunham, A. D. Thorne; outside protector, S. Frank Runyon, F. L. Soper, Sr.

Entertained Card Club.

On Tuesday, December 5, Mrs. J. C. Anderson, of West Fourth street, entertained the Tuesday Afternoon Whist Club. After the games a collation was served and the table was most beautifully decorated with smilax, orchids, Easter lilies and other rare cut flowers. The first prize was won by Mary Sproggins, of Jersey City. Mrs. Laura Williamson, of Brooklyn, took the booby, and Mrs. Richard Miles won the guest prize.

DISORDERLY ON CAR, OFFENDERS ARE FINED

As the result of his refusal to pay his fare on a trolley car last Saturday night, Thomas Reardon was fined $20 with the alternative of spending sixty days in the county jail, when arraigned in the city court today. James Groulett, who went to the assistance of Reardon when the latter was clinching with the conductor, was fined $10 or thirty days. Both young men live in Scotch Plains. They were arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza on a charge preferred by Max Greenberg, of Newark, conductor of the car.

Reardon boarded the car at Fourth street and Watchung avenue at 11 o'clock last Saturday night and began arguing with the conductor at Fifth street and Watchung avenue about the payment of his fare. The conductor entered the car to get the other fares, leaving Reardon on the rear platform, but the latter followed on behind using abusive and profane language and making threats. At Fifth and Richmond streets, Greenberg had finished collecting the fares and told Reardon to pay or get off. Then Reardon paid but continued a tirade of profanity until Netherwood avenue was reached. There the car was stopped and Greenberg stepped off to assist a woman to alight. Reardon followed and the men came to a clinch. The motorman went to the assistance of his mate and then Groulett took a hand, leaving his seat in the car to jump into the melee. He blackened one of Greenberg's eyes and received a punch in the mouth. Reardon was arrested by Detective Flynn.

Groulett also paid his fine this morning. Reardon was unable to do so and unless it is forthcoming during the day he will be taken to Elizabeth. He admitted on the stand that he had served four years as burglary.

A Truancy Case.

Antonio Parrello, of Johnson avenue, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning on a charge preferred by Miss Ball, who alleged that he has not been sending his two daughters to school. Parrello said that he is a widower and did not know that his girls were not at school except for two days when the snow was on the ground and his children had poor shoes. In the future he will see to it that they attend regularly.

Gifts to Library.

At the regular meeting of the directors of the Public Library two gifts were acknowledged, namely The Diary of James K. Polk, four volumes, from the Rev. J. D. Wilson, of Philadelphia, and from F. W. Yates sixty-three volumes of law books.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.
John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

MET WITH DEATH

South Plainfield Farmer Ground to Pieces by Train on Lehigh Valley Tracks.

WAS DRIVING HOME ON TRACK.

The Victim's Rig Smashed But His Horse Escapes Injury—Survived By a Wife.

Carl Ruppensten, a German truck gardener who resided on the South Plainfield road between Chamberlain's corner and Samptown, was ground to pieces on the Lehigh Valley Railroad near New Market, early last night, in one of the most peculiar accidents recorded in this vicinity. He was run down just west of bridge 28 over the upper end of the New Market pond by the rear end of the wreck train as it was running backward to South Plainfield. The victim was driving home in his work wagon, having lost the road, and was using the eastbound freight track for a thoroughfare. The force of the collision with the rig threw the light caboose off the rails, blocking traffic for nearly an hour.

Ruppensten, who was about fifty-five years old, drove to New Market early yesterday afternoon on a matter of business. He spent some time at the home of Charles Brunges, just outside the villege, and his rig was last seen near the schoolhouse at 5 o'clock. About two hours later, according to calculation, he proceeded over the Washington avenue bridge of the lake, which would have taken him to the West Seventh street road. He should not have gone this way but continued south of the pond and turned over the Valley tracks at Samptown. Instead of keeping to Washington avenue the horse turned into the railroad and jogged down the track. No one knows why Ruppensten did not discover the mistake in time to get away from the dangerous locality.

Bridge 28 is a half-mile east of the Washington avenue crossing and the wrecking train was almost upon it when the flagman on the watch saw something loom up in the flickering rays of his lantern. The next instant the caboose was lifted from the track by the collision. His signal to stop was needless as the engineer had felt the jar and applied the brakes. A hurried search by the workmen and crew explained the strange occurrence. The rig was smashed to smithereens and pieces of a human body were scattered all about. The dismembered trunk was wedged in under the train but the head was missing. It was not located for a long time.

The railroad men busied themselves getting the caboose to rights and when able to proceed carried the remains of Ruppensten to South Plainfield. After the legal preliminaries had been complied with they were brought to the Runyon undertaking rooms in this city.

A strange part of the accident is the fact that the horse was not injured in the slightest. It stood alongside the tracks with every bit of the harness intact. It is the belief of some that the driver had suddenly discovered his plight and had attempted to unhitch when the crash came.

Ruppensten leaves a wife but no children. He was well known in the city and borough having brought garden truck to the local merchants for many years. He was a frequent visitor at Saengerbund Hall and took part in local German affairs.

Missionary Sale and Tea.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a tea and sale tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, 935 Central avenue. There will be a sale of fancy articles, cakes and candy. There will also be a program, including violin selections by Miss Marguerite Burnet, piano selections by Miss Clyde Burnet and Miss Alice Drake; soprano solos by Mrs. Robert Giddis and readings by Mrs. Robert Lowry. All interested are invited.

Count's Horse Killed.

As the result of her investigations, Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, agent for the S. P. C. A., learned that an emaciated and diseased horse found by Patrolman Saunders, Tuesday night, was the property of "Count" VanNess, of East Front street. The agent called on Mr. VanNess this morning and after considerable trouble was able to convince him that the best thing to do with the poor animal was to put it to death, which was accordingly done by Dr. F. C. Herbert.

Miss Elsie Cook, of Plainfield, gave an interesting "story hour" yesterday afternoon in the Library rooms. The affair was well attended and several others of a similar nature will be held during the winter.

Samuel Johanson left yesterday for San Francisco, where he will superintend the erection of a large printing press for the Walter Scott Co. Mr. Johanson will be away for about six months.

Miss Louise Nicholl, who has been spending her Thnaksgiving vacation with her father, Thomas J. Nicholl, has returned to her studies at Smith College, Northampton, Mass.

The Plainfield police picked up Thomas Riordan yesterday on charge of assaulting a conductor on the Public Service main line car Monday night.

Capt. H. B. Saunders, of "Wildwood," is spending several weeks on a business trip to Halifax.

Frank Hunter is spending two weeks visiting relatives in Brooklyn.

ELECTION LAW VIOLATED BY COLLECTOR, SAYS FISH.

Papers in the first case under the new election law have been filed with Justice Bergen by Attorney Robert H. McAdams, of Elizabeth, in behalf of Harwood Fish, of Roselle Park, who charges Borough Collector J. W. Titus, of Roselle Park, with violation of the corrupt practices act at the last election, when Mr. Fish was defeated for the collectorship. The more specific charges are to the effect that Mr. Titus, with fraudulent device, prevented and interfered with the true elective franchise of a sufficient number of voters to affect the election. The fraudulent device referred to is a certain circular letter issued by Mr. Titus on November 4, containing the signatures of twenty-five prominent men and circulated through the mail as endorsing his candidacy.

Mr. Fish claims that the majority of these signatures were not signed and never authorized by the parties themselves to be usd in this manner. Electioneering within 100 feet of the polls is also alleged to be another offense of Mr. Titus; also that the printed matter was not properly signed by the campaign committee representing Mr. Titus. Other minor details of the alleged violations are contained in the petition.

Justice Bergen received the papers and will probably render a decision in a few days, or refer it to the Supreme Court for a construction of the law, which may revert to quo warranto proceedings. Great interest centres in the case, as it is the first to be brought up under the new election law.

NEITHER WOMAN NOR DOG DISTURBS THIEF.

For daring, the robbery of William McCutcheon's house on the South River causeway, near New Brunswick, Tuesday afternoon, has never been exceeded. A thief entered the house while a St. Bernard dog was on watch, while two women were at work in the kitchen and while Mr. McCutcheon's brother was in a store next to the house. The thief got away with over $900 and a $50 gold watch.

Policeman Johnson, of South River, has asked the police of nearby places to be on the lookout for a man he lodged in borough hall Monday night and who has disappeared.

Mr. McCutcheon is a foreman at the Parlin powder works. He had been saving his earnings for five years and had gathered $900, which he kept in a bureau. The silver in a small savings bank was also taken, the thief leaving the pennies.

ARREST POLISH BOSS TO PREVENT FLIGHT.

The belief that he was about to leave this country led to the arrest Tuesday night of Jerry Bentley, known in Elizabeth, as "The Polish boss," at his saloon, 89 Bayway. Sheriff's Deputies Fred Teipel and Thomas L. Carey, who made the arrest, had to use force to compel him to go with them.

The capias was issued by Sheriff Wright at the request of County Prosecutor Swift, who was informed Bentley was about to flee.

There are two indictments against Bentley for atrocious assault and to each of these he has pleaded guilty and was at liberty in $1,000 bail, furnished by himself.

In addition there are three other indictments for assault and battery to which he has not yet pleaded.

The Real Mystery.

"Oh, the fool and his money are soon parted," said Slithers, sententiously.

"That's all right," said Blobbs, "but the thing that I can't make out is where in thunder the fools get all the money they are parted from."—Harper's Weekly.

Feet Tired— So Tired?

TIZ Makes Sick Feet Well, No Matter What Ails Them.

TIZ acts at once and makes tired, aching, swollen feet remarkably fresh and sore proof.

It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Dreutzer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other fot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

"AUTO RECIPROCITY RULE AND RUIN POLICY"

Following the expression of his opposition Tuesday to automobile reciprocity with New York and Pennsylvania, George W. F. Gaunt, State master of the New Jersey Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, in session at Atlantic City, took a whack at the policy of the American Automobile Association in trying to bring about reciprocity with other States.

"The A. A. A. declares," Mr. Gaunt said in his address to the grange at its annual meeting here, "that it will pull through its policy of reciprocity. It is one of rule and ruin. Take away registration and the State's only jurisdiction is an immediate arrest, which in nine cases out of ten is impossible. This would not only give the non-resident motorists immunity, but encourage breaking the existing laws. Take away the tourists' fee now demanded and the State will receive no compensation for the wear and tear on its roads.

"Any members of the Legislature who supports the A. A. A. policy of reciprocity is open to the criticism that he has yielded to coercion and bribery. I believe the association is the worst enemy of the motorists."

Soon after this arraignment the executive committee framed a resolution, which, if adopted, will place the grange on record as condemning all efforts to repeal the present law or discredit the automobile department of the State and declaring the law to be absolutely fair and just both to resident and non-resident.

Besides recommending an employers' liability mutual insurance to protect the farmer, Mr. Gaunt urged as an alternative an amendment to the liability law excluding the farmer and also the householder from the effects of the act.

"The employers' liability law spells ruin for the small farmer and adds a new and serious burden to the larger agriculturists," Mr. Gaunt asserted.

"The present fish and game laws are sadly in need of revision," the speaker continued. "Present conditions in many sections have made them obnoxious. We should take some positive action looking toward correction."

Mr. Gaunt advocated conservation of natural resources, parcels post, federal aid for road improvement, direct election of United States Senators and effective railroad regulation and opposed ship subsidies, a central United States bank and an amendment to the existing oleomargarine laws.

The grange closed its sessions here last night. Much interest is being taken in the question as to whether the "insurgent" element of the National Grange has made any progress in the State organization. The "insurgents" showed such strength at the meeting of the National Grange that they succeeded in defeating the slate prepared by former Governor Batchelder, of New Hampshire, national master, and forced the selection of officers acceptable to both wings.

BOSTON PASTOR'S PLAN FOR COURTING PARLORS.

Boston, Dec. 7.—Courting parlors for the young women and biliard and pool rooms for the young men of the parish will be established by Rev. George F. Durgin, pastor of the Tremont Street Methodist church, if his plan meets with the approval of his board of trustees.

"I would clean out the basement of this splendid church and into that basement I would put attractions that would appeal to young people," says Dr. Durgin in outlining his scheme. "What harm could ever come if we had a pool and billiard room or a bowling alley and gave opportunity for enjoyment free from corrupting influences?

"Why should the basement of our church be used for lumber storage when parlors and courting rooms could be provided therein, the use of which would be a moral factor in the redemption of the city?"

NINE-YEAR GAME IS STILL UNDER WAY.

Within the next year will be finished at Des Moines, Ia., the longest cribbage game ever played in the world, death not intervening. The final score is to be one million points.

The players, four aged men, are now playing the last one hundred thousand points, and expect to finish within a year. They play once a week. The players are Milo Ward, Samuel Neidig, J. C. Loper and W. H. Heaton.

For nine years they have been playing. All are well-to-do retired men, and will not disclose the wager made for the winners.

During all this playing none of the players has ever held the possible twenty-nine hand. In fact, they have begun to feel superstitious that to hold such a hand might be a bad omen to them. Twenty-eight hands have been held several times.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks closed weak in New York yesterday.

Wu-Ting-fang refused to attend a peace conference in Wu-Chang.

Heads of the Chinese Republic movement decided to float a bond issue of 10,000,000 taels.

W. J. Burns, the detective, said the McNamaras were responsible for several explosions in Philadelphia.

An aviator and his passenger were killed at Filey, England, bringing the total of aviation fatalities to 109.

French Deputies attacked the Under Secretary of State for Fine Arts because of the theft of the "Mona Lisa."

David Lloyd George's national insurance bill passed its third reading in the Commons, and first reading in the Lords.

The McNamaras were held in the county jail at Los Angeles to await summonses to appear before the federal grand jury.

Congress—The Senate was not in session. House: Adjournment was taken after a wrangle of two hours over a routine bill.

Prince Chun, Chinese Regent, abdicated, retiring with a pension of 50,000 taels annually; the Hankow armistice was extended for three days.

Mayor Gaynor told members of the Board of Education of New York that the present method of teaching languages in the public schools was useless.

It was learned in Jamaica that the private secretary of the Colonial Governor, who visited the Panama Canal, was an authority on British military affairs.

The McNamara ways and means defence committee met in Washington, but reached no decision as to what report it will make in the case of the convicted men.

Six men were killed and five injured in a triple collision between freight and express trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad near Manor, Penn.; twenty horses were also killed.

Seth Low, in an open letter to Joseph H. Choate, suggested that Article III in the arbitration treaties should be amended to make their meaning clearer before they were adopted.

A negro elevator boy in New York was held by the coroner to answer for the death of Isaac S. Vogel, a jeweller, found slain in a Canal street loft building, and said to have been robbed of $11,000 in gems.

The so-called Macy Corner, in New York, being the small plot of land which is surrounded by the building of R. H. Macy & Co., was reported about to be sold for $1,000,000, which price would make a record for the realty market.

Blanck and Harris, owners of the Triangle Waist Company, in whose New York factory fire 149 lives were lost, were mobbed when they left the court for luncheon, but were saved from harm by a detective; the jury for their trial was completed.

John D. Rockefeller and the Rev. F. T. Gates were invited by Chairman Stanley of the House Steel investigating committee to appear before the committee next Monday to reply to the charges of the Merritt brothers, of Minnesota, concerning the Mesaba ore properties.

Many speakers of note, including Champ Clark, Governor Woodrow Wilson, Andrew D. White and President Jacob Gould Schurman, addressed a mass meeting that filled Carnegie Hall, New York, in the interest of the movement to compel Russia's better observance of the passport rights of American Jews.

WILLS HOUSEKEEPER ALL; DAUGHTER WAS WILLING.

Having turned over to his daughter jewelry and other personal effects of her mother, William Sleep bequeathed all his property to Mrs. Mary Ward, who had been his housekeeper for a number of years. Sleep died some time ago, and his will has just been admitted to probate. Sleep conducted a roadhouse at Shippenport, near Lake Hopatcong, for a number of years.

Sleep's daughter, Mrs. George Hicks, acquiesced in his plans for disposing of his property, it is said. Mrs. Sleep is now a patient at the State Hospital for the Insane at Morris Plains. The value of the estate is small.

Mrs. Ward became Sleep's housekeeper soon after Mrs. Sleep was sent to the hospital. The property was given her, it is stated, in return for taking care of Sleep during his frequent illnesses.

The will makes Mrs. Ward executrix. She will conduct the hotel and barroom until the expiration of the license in June. Senator Fitzherbert, who drew the will and is conversant with Sleep's affairs, says that by the time all bills are paid and the estate settled, Mrs. Ward will receive less than had she been paid stated wages.

STYLISH GARB OF WIFE LEADS HUSBAND TO JAIL.

Wanted by the Chicago police on a charge of obtaining $261 by questionable means, Abraham J. Cohen was arrested Tuesday at the Burkely Hotel, Elizabeth, where he has been staying with his wife for the last two weeks.

The Chicago police have been looking for Cohen since July 9. Detective Francis McGrail says the stunning costumes worn by Mrs. Cohen furnished the suggestion that led to the arrest of her husband.

Cohen was indignant when taken into custody. He demanded to see the warrant, and when it was shown he became less vehement. Chief of Police Tenney says the charge named is only one of many made by the Chicago police, who, he asserts, accuse Cohen of duping many persons in that city. He will be held until an officer arrives.

The prisoner, who was stylishly dressed, was followed to the station by his tearful, bejeweled wife. Mrs. Cohen asked leave to speak to her husband alone, but this was denied. She then kised her husband and departed. Cohen gave his age as twenty-eight years. He did not name his occupation. When asked his address he said Elizabeth would do for the present.

ASSERTS JERSEY CITY NEEDS MORE FIREMEN.

President Morris, of the Jersey City Fire Board, commenting on the two big fires Monday, one at the United States Express Company's stables, and the other at the Leo Paper Box Company's plant, declares that the department was handicapped by a shortage of men. He has conferred with Mayor Wittpenn regarding the addition of two men to each company.

The Leo company announces that its plant will be rebuilt. The debris will be cleared away as soon as the ruins cool sufficiently.

ALLOT DISTRICTS TO GAME LAW OFFICERS.

The State Fish and Game Commission has announced the four imaginary districts into which the State has been divided for the enforcement of the fish and game laws. Each of the commissioners will have personal supervision over one district, subject to the general oversight of the commission.

Commissioner Ernest Napier, of East Orange, will have the district comprising Essex, Hudson, Bergen, Union, Passaic, Ocean and Monmouth counties. Percival Chrystie, of High Bridge, has been assigned to the district comprised of Hunterdon, Somerset, Sussex, Warren, Middlesex and Morris.

William A. Logue, of Bridgeton, will have as his territory Salem, Cumberland, Gloucester and Camden counties. The remaining counties, Atlantic, Cape May, Burlington, and Mercer, have been assigned to William A. Faunce, the recently appointed member of the board from Atlantic City.

GENERAL SLOCUM'S HULK IN WATERY GRAVE AT LAST.

New York, Dec. 7.—The hulk of the old steamboat General Slocum, 1,028 of whose passengers lost their lives when the craft took fire in the East River on June 15, 1904, is finally at the bottom of the sea. Captain Robert P. Moon, of the tug Hudson, brought news of the old vessel's finish when he reached this city Monday.

The steamer had been reconstructed into the barge Maryland, and Captain Moon was towing the old craft, laden with coke, from Camden to Newark, N. J. The barge sprang a leak off Atlantic City on Monday night, and was abandoned in twenty-four feet of water near Ludlam Beach. There the barge sank.

Captain Moon got the Maryland's crew off safely, though a high sea was running. There were three men, one of them J. E. Hagen, a son of Peter Hagen, who bought the General Slocum's hull and converted the vessel. Mr. Hagen said last night that ill-luck had always followed the Maryland, and he had no regret now that the boat was lost.

ALLEGED HORSE THIEF IS SEVERELY BEATEN.

Patrolman Frity, of Elizabeth, early yesterday morning had a fight with an alleged horse thief, who was severely clubbed over the head before he gave up. The man gave his name as Dominic Gusaico, of Avenue C, Bayonne, and he will be arraigned when he recovers from his injuries, inflicted by the officer.

Gusaico was driving a team of horses to a wagon when held up by the officer. He resisted arrest, and tried to throw the officer down. Frity whistled for assistance and Patrolman Neubeck came up. He drove the rig to Keron's livery stable.

It was learned that it belonged to Patrick Faughan, an Elizabeth street contractor, and had been taken out of his stable at 516 Washington avenue.

The prisoner was bleeding from cuts he had received and was taken to the General Hospital. He may have a fractured skull.

ELIZABETH'S OLDEST EDUCATOR IS DEAD.

Professor James H. Lansley, the oldest educator in Elizabeth, died suddenly shortly after midnight Tuesday at his residence 323 Jefferson avenue, from heart disease. For more than forty years Professor Lansley had conducted a business college and was in the harness up to the time of his death.

Mr. Lansley had been living alone for some time, and was between seventy-five and eighty years old. He is survived by a widow, one daughter and two sons whose present whereabouts is unknown. The oldest son, William J. Lansley, is a surveyor and also engaged in the telephone promoting business. When last heard from he was in Perth Amboy.

WIFE, 62, COMPLAINANT; AGAINST HUSBAND, 32.

New Brunswick, Dec. 7.—Arraigned on complaint of his wife, who is nearly twice his age, George Harmety changed his plea, Tuesday afternoon, and admitted guilt in answering a charge of desertion. Mr. Harmety is thirty-two years old and his wife is sixty-two.

Judge Peter F. Daly placed Harmety on probation for a term of three years and directed that he pay $4 a week for the support of his family. Harmety was arrested in Kingston, N. Y., and brought here on extradition papers. His wife declared he deserted her and their children several months ago.

BLIND BABIES' HOME AT SUMMIT IS LEFT $10,000.

By the will of Horatio Cornelius Kretschmar, of the Stock Exchange firm of Lee, Kretschmar & Co., who died December 1, the Arthur Home for Blind Babies at Summit is left $10,000.

Mrs. Cynthia Alden, the president of the society, said that Mr. Kretschmar had made a few small gifts to the babies' home. She added that in a circular letter which had been out some time she asked that the home be remembered in the wills of those persons to whom the communications had been sent.

Mrs. Alden declared that the money would be used in extending the work of the home by the erection of necessary buildings.

BULL HATED HIS MASTER.

Miner Gored to Death Year After Beating Beast.

A year ago Antone Anderson, a miner, angered at a usually docile bull for which his wife was in the habit of caring, gave the animal a beating with a club. Last night, while his wife was busy with other duties, Anderson undertook to lead the bull to water. Anderson was gored to death.

A crowd gathered and demanded that the animal be killed. Mrs. Anderson protested, and to prove her assertion that the bull was ordinarily gentle, walked up to the "man killer" and rubbed its nose and stroked its head. The beast responded affectionately.—Denver Times.

RED CROSS STAMPS ALREADY IN DEMAND

Fifty thousand Red Cross stamps were placed on sale in various parts of the city this week, and there has already been a large demand for them. The distribution is being conducted by the Charity Organization Society, which stimulates interest in the work by exhibiting the little pasters at the Welfare show. Something like 3,000 were disposed of there and if the sales continue as they have the past few days a record will be broken locally. An order for an additional 10,000 stamps for Plainfield was mailed today.

The stamps cost a cent each and the entire proceeds with the exception of a small percentage goes toward the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society in this city. The fraction deducted is contributed to the State league. Something like $300 was realized here last season.

The stamps may be purchased at the local drug stores, stationery stores and other stores. Help along the good work by buying some and placing them on your Christmas packages and letters.

SEAL ENVOR.

By William L. Ninabuck.
(With apologies to Kipling).

When our last Seal is disposed of, and the workers are weary and tired;
When the millionth message is carried and the remnant heap has been fired,
We shal rest and faith we shall need it, lie down a whole night or two
Till the Spirit of Human Kindness shall sec us to working anew.
And those that have bought shall be happy, and those that have sold beside,
To know that their million pennies are stemming the White Plague tide;
Are bringing and teaching the Life-code, nurses and sunshine and air,
Assuring the dwellers of death haunts that Hope is still young and fair.
And no one shall wreak a havoc and levy against the game,
Not when the curse of the plague-heart would point his eternal shame!
But all for the joy of working shall move toward a far-hung star
For the health of Man as Man sees it, for the God of things as they are.

AN OLD TIME SINGING SCHOOL SATURDAY NIGHT

Aunt Polly Basset and her son, Jedediah, will make a visit to the Plainfield High School, Saturday night, and they will be accompanied by a large company of young people who will entertain with a program of old-time selections. Aunt Polly Basset will conduct the singing school and the company will wear costumes of the olden time. There will be old-time ballads, rousing choruses, comical ditties. Paul Collier and Jonathan Slauson will act as constables.

Among the best pieces will be a ditty by Ernestine Wilson, as little Dorcas Tubbs, entitled, "When I was a Maiden;" Robert Butler, Fred Mygatt, Frederica Quentin and Dorothy Smith, who will be known as Tinkham Offspring, Obed, Job, Love and Kitty, will join their voices in a four-part tune entitled, "Cousin Jedediah;" a new song called "Yankee Doodle," by Irving Manley; and a sentimental song, "Jeddy, So Bashful," by Emily Garda as Ketury Slaughter. Among the pieces on the last part wil be a song, "In Punkinville," by Helen Wooley and Mabel Boyce, who will take the part of the two twins, Lunette and Duett. Burnett Doane and Jennie Peacock, as Aminadad and Ruth, will sing a song called "Ye Quaker Courtin';" Margaret Russell and Jedediah will sing a duet entitled, "Jeddy, Jeddy, I've Been Thinkin';" and Roy Titsworth will render a quaint ditty called "When We Were Young."

Others chosen to appear in special parts are Marguerite Arnold, Kathryn Bingaman, Louise Bird, Mildred Bookstaver, Esther Brownlee, Gertrude Butler, Helen Crane, Ella Guttridge, Ivy Hargraves, Mandella Ford, Hazel Hyatt, May Kilbride, Alice Mallery, Madelyn Moy, Clara Neuman, Claire Newman, Edith Ogden, Jennie Peacock, Hazel Piddington, Elizabeth Schuck, Dorothy Silbert, Eva Selden, Carolyn Slauson, Gwendolyn Stanton, Grace Thompson, Neva Waldorf, Ethelwyn Walker, Marion Wean, Benjamin Cooley, Bruce Conlin, Estey Foster, Egbert Fountain, Felix Janke, Schuyler Line, Harold Lounsbury, Harold McDowell, Raymond Manley, Bonsall Stover, Elmer Hunting.

A Whiner Rebuked.

"The bluff, cheery optimism of the late Senator Frye," said a Lewiston divine, "could not brook a whiner. Once at a dinner here in Lewiston a whiner seated opposite Senator Frye said dolefully: 'I have only one friend on earth—my dog.' 'Why don't you get another dog?' said Senator Frye."—Philadelphia Record.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

FURS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS AT
Charles Kurtzman's Fur Store
178 EAST FRONT STREET, Dr. Pittis' Office Building.

At such a big reduction in prices

That no one either in town or out of town can beat us.

If there is any gift to be given in the fur line, why not buy at a place where you are positively sure you are getting a guarantee for your money. We always give you the best satisfaction in quality, style and prices, because we are manufacturers and can save you the profits that you would otherwise have to pay the middleman. When we offer a reduction it means that the prices are cut to one-half the figure quoted elsewhere.

We, the CHARLES KURTZMAN FUR STORE, were the first fur store established here in town and have leased our premises for many years. No other can say the same and speak the truth in doing so.

NOTICE—We will refund the purchase price to any customer who will prove that they can get the same goods elsewhere at a lower figure. Alterations and remodelling are specialties. Remember the place.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Manager Robert H. Harris brings his thrilling romance of pioneer times to the Plainfield theatre Monday night. Few plays have been written in later times that contain half the thrilling adventures as does "Daniel Boone on the Trail," a story steeped deep into the hearts of all patriotic Americans. At Frankfort, Ky., a monument now stands of this famous hunter, overlooking the banks of the Kentucky River.

The merry musical play "Three Twins," will be the offering at the Plainfield Theatre on Tuesday night. "Three Twins" is an adaptation of that famous farce "Incog," she to the most charming music. Every number is so full of melody, that you will hum it for days after you hear it. Chief among them is the Yama, Yama Man, and Cuddle up a Little Closer. Miss Frederica Going's rendering of the former number is a delicious bit of grotesque comedy. The company which numbers over 60 people, is headed by Harrison Garrett, a most refined and finished comedian, who has the gift of being capable to act, sing and dance; a truly rare combination.

This city will have one of the stage's most popular stars on Saturday, December 16, matinee and evening, at the Plainfield theatre, none other than Robert Edeson, who comes in "The Arab." This play was written especially for Mr. Edeson by Edgar Selwyn after he had rested from the labors of producing "The Country Boy," but circumstances prevented Mr. Edeson from appearing in the original productions at the Lyceum and Astor theatres in New York. Now that Mr. Edeson has assumed the role of Jamil Abdallah Azam in "The Arab," the piece is said to have taken a new lease on success and long life. Henry B. Harris has given Mr. Edeson the original spectacular production intact, and the original cast, with a few improvements.

PATRICK KEARNS DIES; AGED SEVENTY-THREE YEARS.

Patrick Kearns, aged 73 years, for the past twelve years employed in the city street department, being a familiar figure about town, died this morning at his home on Stony Brook place, after a short illness. Mr. Kearns had been a resident of this city for forty years and had many friends. He was a member of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield. He is survived by four sons, John, Joseph, Thomas and Henry Kearns, and two daughters, Miss Anna Kearns and Mrs. John Fagan, the last named of Cornwall, N. Y. The funeral service will be held at St. Joseph's church, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and the burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

SAURER MOTOR TRUCK VISITS THE DAILY PRESS.

The first motor truck made by the Saurer Motor Company, of this city, was turned out of the works today and this afternoon the truck was given a trial spin about the city. The first place visited was that of The Daily Press office. The truck attracted considerable attention.

It is now the purpose of the company to turn out one complete truck a day. A force of about 300 men are now employed and this will be increased to a large extent the first of the year.

MISS INEZ BARBOUR TO BE HEARD HERE.

Miss Inez Barbour, soprano, of New York, will be the assisting artist at next Tuesday's concert, the third in the season's series of the McIntyre chamber music concerts. The 'cellist Stanislas Bem, will be the soloist, playing Boellmann's variations Symphoniques for 'cello.

The trio will be Rubenstein's brilliant and effective trio in F major. The program in full will appear on Monday.

A $100,000 FIRE LOSS AT BOONTON EARLY TODAY.

Fire threatened to wipe out Boonton early today, destroying six business buildings covering half a block in the heart of the town's commercial district and threatening most of the principal structures.

Two hotels, a furniture store, a clothing store, a cafe and a laundry were destroyed, the opera house, police headquarters and town hall scorched and two volunteer firemen were injured. The loss is $100,000.

Boland—DeCamp.

Miss Ida Boland, daughter of Mrs. Margaret McCarthy, of Brooklyn, and James L. DeCamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin DeCamp, of Linden avenue, were married yesterday afternoon by City Judge William G. DeMeza in his office on Park avenue. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hall, of 27 Somerset street, where the bride has been making her home for some time. The couple will reside in the borough.

Express Company Changes.

The local office of the United States Express Company has been enlarged to include the western end of the west bound waiting room. The alterations are now being made and it is expected will be completed in time to handle the greatly increased business at Christmas time. The addition will accommodate the agent's and cashier's offices, the tracing department and bureau of information.

Announce Engagement.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Lena Stram, formerly of this city, but now of Schenectady, N. Y., to Albert E. Odd, of Bedford, Canada. The wedding will take place in the spring. Miss Stram is the daughter of Peter Stram, of this city.

Mrs. E. A. Parse and Miss Helen Adams, of Grove street, returned home last night from Knoxville, Tenn., where they have been visiting relatives.

Harry Kesselring has purchased the property at 59 Duer street, belonging to former Recorder Thomas Doud, of the borough, and has taken up his residence there.

OUR COFFEE

produces a roaring good drink and a cup of it makes the king of breakfast drinks.

In buying coffee you sometimes get a nice looking coffee, the bean may be perfect as far as form goes and the coffee itself in the drink may be of a good flavor. Yet it may lack strength.

The poor woman who makes it gets blamed whereas the fellow who sold it is the real culprit. You will always find strength and flavor in our coffees and they are free from bitterness.

The demand increases simply and solely on account of pure quality. Shall we send you a pound to try?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 10, 1911.

Topic.—The source of a worker's strength.—Col. i, 9-13. (A candlelight meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Strength is an absolute necessity to the successful worker. The laborer who performs the more arduous tasks of life must have physical strength. The professional man whose duties require the use of the mind must have intellectual strength. The successful religious worker must have spiritual strength. Weakness never is power. Some men who have accomplished great things in history have been physically weak, but by strength of will they have performed great deeds in spite of physical defects. As workers for God we should seek to be strong.

We are not here to dream, to drift.
There's work to do, hard loads to lift.
Shun not the battle—face it. 'Tis God's gift.
Be strong.

The source of all spiritual is in God. Spiritual work is not done by human might nor by physical power, but by the spirit of God. No personal confidence, no plan of organization, can take the place in Christian work of the strength that comes alone from God. To do His work successfully we must be "strengthened with all might, according to His glorious power."

Prayer is a source of strength for spiritual service. Paul desired that the Colossians might be strengthened and did not "cease to pray" for them with this object in view. Such a desire for the Ephesians also possessed him, and he prayed unto God that they might be "strengthened with might by His spirit." The blessings of God come through prayer, and we should therefore pray unto Him for strength and power to successfully do His work in the world.

The realization of personal weakness is a source of spiritual strength. Paul says, "When I am weak I am strong." This seems to be self contradictory, but rightly understood it is not. Realizing his own weakness, the apostle was driven to God and in Him found himself strong. Self confidence is often a source of weakness. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall," but a consciousness of our own weakness that leads us to put all our confidence in God is a sure source of strength.

Trust in Christ is a source of spiritual strength. His strength is vouchsafed to all who put their trust in him. Paul trusted in Him and hence was able to say, "I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me"—all things, all that is necessary and all that God requires us to do under the circumstances and conditions of our life. Therefore trust and be strong.

A Visit to Burma.

Many considerations led me to look forward to a brief visit to Burma with peculiar interest, says Francis E. Clark, and I was in no way disappointed. Three days after leaving Calcutta the great steamer plowed up the Irawadi to Rangoon.

It was my good fortune to spend Sunday, Dec. 5, as the guest of Dr. D. A. W. Smith, the president of the Karen Theological seminary.

Dr. Smith is the son of the famous author of "America," who, it will be remembered, just before his death in 1895 wrote the Christian Endeavor hymn for the Boston convention. The son is no less beloved in Burma than was the father in America.

Rev. W. F. Thomas was my interpreter as I spoke to 120 eager, intelligent theological students, and if a better interpreter is to be found in any land I have yet to find him. It was an education to see how one man can throw himself into another's thoughts and doubtless improve upon them.

In the afternoon the whole school adjourned to the city of Rangoon, a few miles away, where a great Christian Endeavor rally was held in the new and commodious Cushing hall of the Baptist college. This was the first day that this beautiful hall had been used, and fully 2,000 people crowded it, a hundred little boys sitting on the floor around the platform.

Addresses were made by the visiting Endeavorers, and among them was a cousin of Adoniram Judson, a lady who was most heartily greeted by my interpreter at that meeting, Rev. Ah Soo, whose mother was one of the first Burmese converts baptized by Judson.

There are three Endeavor societies in the college—a Burmese, a Karen and an English society—while many other societies from the city and vicinity were represented, among them one composed of Telugus and Tamils. Some delegates had come from a hundred miles up the river.

At the close of the meeting those of each nationality sang "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" in their own tongue, Karens, Burmese, Tamils, Telugus and English, and then all sang it together, the different languages mingling most sweetly in the common song of praise.

In the morning Mr. Shaw had spoken very acceptably to the students of the college, and the same evening I preached to a large congregation in the English Baptist church. Thus ended a busy, happy and memorable day in the capital of Burma.

PICTURES FOR GIFTS

The State's Most Remarkable Collection High-class & Popular Books

We have just reason to be immensely proud of our Picture Galleries, for they are stocked lavishly with Pictures that will appeal to all seekers of gifts.

Like books, Pictures will fit in almost any case and if you are puzzled as to what to give you are safe in falling back on a Picture.

Maybe your first choice would be a Picture, for in many cases they fill the bill to a "T."

Choice is so wide here as to make it possible for us to please every one.

PICTURES AT $2.50

These include Water Color effects, Etchings, Colored Gravures; in oval, oblong and square frames of fine gilt; in 2, 2½, 3 and 4 inch wide mountings; suitable for parlors and sitting rooms; easily worth $3.98; wonders at our price $2.50

Also at $2.50 we have these celebrated subjects in very large sizes—Roman Forum, Coliseum and The Lion and Tiger; framed in dark oak; very effective.

WATER COLORS

This is a splendid time; a treat to see—pictures that will delight every lover of the beautiful. You could not possibly make a mistake in giving a Water Color to any one of refinement. Landscapes and Marines and many of those quaint studies from down East; picturing the holes of the old Colonial days: mounted in fancy Gold Frames with Gold and White mats; panel and square shapes; sizes from 11 to 14 inches to 30x40 inches; very fairly priced at .... $2.50 to $40

OIL PAINTINGS

These are genuine imported and domestic Oil Paintings, not the trashy imitations with which the market is flooded; many of them are the work of budding artists who may some day shine in the art world. We have picked their pictures for their true merit alone and have mounted them beautifully in great Roman Gold Frames with Shadow Box and Glass and priced them like ordinary merchandise; for instance:

$5 Landscapes; 9x12 in., marked $2.50.
$7.50 Landscapes and Marines; 12x18 in., marked $5.00.
$15 Sheep and Cattle Pictures; 16x20 in., marked $10.
$15 Landscapes and others; 18x24 in., priced $10.

PICTURES AT $5

Landscapes, Etchings, Pastels and Marines and superb colored Figures; all in rich gilt frames; including many celebrated pictures hand colored—like, for instance: "When the Heart Is Young," many of which have not been sold for as little as $5

"HER GIFT"

Every one admires this charming subject, "Her Gift," in which a new born babe figures conspicuously. We frame this beautiful picture in many styles; suiting all tastes; in antique Gold Frames, $1.25; in Antique Frames, $1.98; others in Silver, Gold, Pink, Blue and Bisque, $2.98 to $5.

FACSIMILE WATER COLORS

These are charming Pictures indeed and so very low priced, too; Landscapes in fancy Gilt Frames in five different patterns; upright and oblong shapes, 14x17 in., 10x18 in., 8x24 in., 7x18 in., special at .... 50c and 69c

OVAL PICTURES

Dainty Gilt Frames with beautiful and popular female heads; in various sizes; most artistic; priced at about one-third less than value: 39c, 50c, 69c, 75c.

STEEL ENGRAVINGS

There are many who love genuine Old Steel Engravings of the subjects that seem never to grow passe; such as the Deer Pass, Pharaoh's Horses, Deluge, Fetching the Doctor, Stag at Bay. These are large size pictures, mounted in heavy oak and gilt frames, averaging 26x36 inches; worth easily $7.98; special priced by us $4.98

PICTURES AT 25c

This is a wonderful line, indeed—in great variety, quality and prices. Studies in colors, black and white and sepia; figures, landscapes, fruits, etc.; in Oak or Gilt frames; one particularly special lot in this collection are 15x18 with 1 inch Gilt Frames; choice of them at 25c

DEN PICTURES

Here is a line that will make an optimist out of the most confirmed grouch; one cannot walk thru this division of the Picture Store without stopping to look and laugh; some of the most unique conceptions ever brought out are now on view, and while they are classed as Den Pictures; there are many other uses for them than the decoration of a den.

Most of these pictures are in Dutch finished frames and many have ornaments in colors appropriate to the subjects; often the frame itself is a picture worth while. Prices 25c to $5

COLORED PICTURES

Those beautiful subjects, Aurora and Apolla, exquisitely colored and mounted in 24-inch Whistler Gilt Frames; size 20x34 inches; formerly retailed at $7.50; are priced here $3.98

The same studies in smaller sizes; 11x12 inch Gilt Architectural Frames, 9x16 inches; value $2.50, at ....

OUR $1 PICTURES

At this popular price we offer large sized pictures; most of them in color; reproductions of paintings; in gilt frames and some in black and white in oak frames; choicest of gifts that could possibly be bought at our low price... $1

FRENCH MIRRORS

Mirrors make beautiful gifts; especially these with the French Picture Tops, 10x14 inches, with mirror complete; 14x54 inches in beautiful antique frames with bow knot tops; the value is $7.50; we sell them for $5

PICTURE FRAMING

We do more Picture Framing than any Newark store and have here for selection an enormously large line of mountings so that we are able to frame any picture you may have; old or new, commonplace or rare; just as you would have it.

We guarantee our prices the lowest.

SELLING CUT CARPET ROLLS

The Home Building & Loan Association
Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years: If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent.	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. Further information may be had at that time or by applying to the secretary, Arthur E. Crone, care of the City National Bank. tu-th

When Big Guns Crash.

The effects of two ten-inch turret guns fired simultaneously on board a war vessel are rather astonishing. A correspondent on board the vessel says: "For several moments I wondered what hit me and where I was hit. The glass that protects the helmsman from the weather and the windows of the charthouse, the glass of which is one-third of an inch thick, were smashed to atoms. An ink bottle that stood on the table in the charthouse jumped about six inches, and every drop of ink sprang out, but the bottle dropped back to the spot from which it jumped. Three water bottles and three tumblers were on the table in the smoking room, all being full of water. When the guns were fired the bottles and the tumblers jumped into the air. Three gentlemen who were in the room also left their seats. The bottles and tumblers fell back into their old places, but every drop of water had been spilled upon the table, though nothing had been broken." This suggests a rather unpleasant outlook for the sailors in case of a battle.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Beaver's Day's Work.

A young beaver in Regent's park gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree twelve feet long and two feet six inches thick just as the town clocks sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground. That done, he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until half past 5 o'clock. Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work, and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and again began to gnaw. He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter. The work done, he took a bath.—Harper's Weekly.

Betting In Buenos Aires.

The Hippodrome, one of the finest race tracks in the world, is owned by the Buenos Aires Jockey club, and its enormous revenue is derived from this source. The Argentinians are born gamblers, and they wager almost incredible sums on horseflesh. The municipal statistics of Buenos Aires show that $25,800,000 in American gold was wagered upon the races at the Hippodrome in one year. This is an average of fifty Argentine dollars for each man, woman and child in that great city. Naturally the reported figures do not include all the money wagered on horse racing, so that the true sum is no doubt several millions in excess of the reported figures. There are none so old and few so young that they will not wager a few pesos on a favorite. The tense faces of all present show the personal interest in the result. The jockey club receives as its share 10 per cent of all bets, besides the entrance fees and seat sales.—Travel Magazine.

Victoria and Napoleon.

Queen Victoria once gave a remarkable description of her visit to the tomb of Napoleon I. during the reign of Napoleon III. "The coffin is not yet here," she wrote, "but in a small side chapel of St. Jerome. Into this the emperor led me, and there I stood at the arm of Napoleon III., his nephew, before the coffin of England's bitterest foe, I, the granddaughter of that king who hated him most and who most vigorously opposed him and this very nephew, who bears his name, being my nearest and dearest ally! The organ of the church was playing 'God Save the Queen' at the time, and this solemn scene took place by torchlight and during a thunderstorm. Strange and wonderful indeed!"

An Offensive Cravat.

A man once called upon Whistler with a letter of introduction, and an amusing scene followed, arising out of the fact that the visitor was wearing a red necktie. Whistler declared it interfered with the color scheme of his room and "put him off" a picture he was painting in quite a different "key." Finally he obliged him to take off the offending cravat before he would condescend to exchange another word with him.

The Lamb.

"Does your husband play poker?"
"Yes, but not for money."
"That so?"
"No. He wouldn't do such a thing. When he plays it's only for fun, and he keeps tally with little red, white and blue checks."—Detroit Free Press.

His Pet.

Harker—Think I'll try to sell old Stuffem some pet dogs. Barker—Useless job. All he thinks about is eating. Harker—Hasn't any four legged friends, eh? Barker—Only one, and that's the dining room table.—Chicago News.

Unidentified.

Suspicious Neighbor—Did your mother have a rooster for dinner yesterday, sonnie? Sonnie—Yes'm. Suspicious Neighbor—A big one with black tail feathers? Sonnie—Dunno. Mother didn't cook the feathers.—Sydney Bulletin.

Regrets.

Regrets are a waste of time in every possible instance except one—when they become valuable lessons for the future.

CHAPTER XVI.

DAUNT LISTENS TO A SONG.

THE day had dawned sultry, with a promise of summer humidity, and Daunt was not surprised to find the barometer performing intemperate antics. "Confound it!" he muttered irritably as he dressed. "If it was a month later one would think there was a typhoon waltzing around somewhere in the China sea."

That morning had seen his first trial of his new fan propeller, and the glider's action had surpassed his wildest expectations. The flight, of which Barbara had caught a glimpse from Thorn's garden, had been a longer one than usual—quite twelve miles against a sluggish upper current—but even that failed to bring its customary glow.

Today Daunt could not exorcise with the mass of detail the leering imps that plagued him. They peered at him over the edge of the code books and whispered from the margins of decorous dispatches, chuckling satirically.

"Barbara!" they sneered. "Mere acquaintances often name steam yachts for girls, don't they? Arrived the same day as her ship, eh? Rather singular coincidence! What a flush she had when Voynich spoke of Phil's brother last night at the tea house. Angry! Of course she was! What engaged girl likes to have the fact paraded, especially when she's practicing on another man? And how about the telegram? How long have you known her, by the way? Two days? Really, now!"

The weekly governmental pouch had closed at noon, and pouch days were half holidays, but Daunt did not go to the embassy. An official letter had arrived from Washington which must be delivered in Kamakura. Daunt seized this excuse, plunged ferociously into tweeds and an hour afterward found himself in a railway carriage thudding gloomily toward the lower bay. In his heart he knew that he was trying to run away—from something that nevertheless traveled with him.

At Kamakura an immediate answer to the letter he brought was not forthcoming, and to kill the time he strolled far down the curved beach.

Daunt knew a tea house on the very lip of the cliff, the Kinkiro—"Inn of the Golden Turtle"—and he bent his steps lazily in its direction. At the hedge he paused an instant. Some one somewhere was humming, low voiced, an air that he had once loved. He pushed open the gate and went on into the tremulous radiance. Then he stopped short.

Barbara was seated above him in the fork of a low camellia tree, one arm laid out along a branch, her green gown blending with a bamboo thicket behind her and her vivid face framed in the blossoms. She sat, chin in hand, looking dreamily out across the bay, and the hummed song had a rhythm that seemed to fit her thought—slow and infinitely tender.

"You!" he cried.

She turned with a startled movement that dissolved into low, delicious laughter.

"Fairly caught," she answered. "I don't often revert far enough to climb trees, but I thought no one but Haru and I was here. Will you come and help me down, Honorable Flyman?"

"Wait," he said. "What was the song you were humming?"

She looked at him with a quick intake of breath, then for answer began to sing, in a voice that presently became scarce more than a whisper:

"Forgotten you? Well, if forgetting
Be hearing all the day
Your voice through all the strange babble
Of voices grave, now gay—
If counting each moment with longing
Till the one when I see you again,
If this be forgetting, you're right, dear!
And I have forgotten you then!"

Daunt's hand fell to his side. A young girl's face nested in creamy pink blossoms—a sweet, shy, flushed face under a mass of curling gold bronze hair. "I remember now!" he said in a low voice. "I sang it to you that day!"

"I am flattered!" she exclaimed. "The day before yesterday you had forgotten that you ever saw poor little me! It was Mrs. Claybourne, of course, that you sang to! Yet you were my idol for a long month and a day!"

"It was to you," he said unsteadily. "I didn't know your name. But I never forgot the song. I remembered it that night in the garden when I first heard you playing!"

They walked together around the curving road, leaving Haru with the tea basket. "Patsy would have come," Barbara had said, "but she is in the clutches of her dressmaker." And Daunt had answered, "I have a distinct regard for that Chinaman!"

His black mood had vanished, and the leering imps had flown. In the brightness of her physical presence how baseless and foolish seemed his sullen imaginings! What man who owned a steam yacht knowing her would not wish to name it the Barbara? Walking beside her, so near that he could feel the touch of her light skirt against his ankles, it seemed impossible that he should ever again be other than light hearted. She was no acquaintance of hours, after all. He had known her for seven years. He was in wild spirits.

BARBARA WAS SEATED ABOVE HIM.

They stopped at a tea house open on all sides and, sitting cross legged on its tatame, drank tea from earthenware pots that held only a small cupful. They went, laughing like two children, down the zigzag stone steps. He pointed to a gloomy fissure which ran into the mountain at a little distance.

"O maiden, journeying to holy Ben-ten," he said, "behold her shrine!"

"How disillusioning!"

"People find love so sometimes."

She slowly shook her head. "Not all of them," she said softly. "I am old fashioned enough not to believe that."

"We will ask Ben-ten about it," he said.

"Oh, but not 'we!'" she cried. "I must go alone. Don't you know the legend? People quarrel if they go together."

"I can't imagine quarreling with you. I'd rather quarrel with myself."

"That would be difficult, wouldn't it?"

"Not in some of my moods. Ask my head boy. Today, for instance"—

"Well?" for he had paused.

"I was meditating self destruction when I met you."

"By what interesting method, I wonder?"

"I was about to search for a volcano to jump into."

"I thought that the nearest active crater is a hundred miles away."

"So it is, but I'm an absentminded beggar."

She laughed. "May I ask what inspired today's suicidal mood?"

"It was—a telegram."

"Oh!" She colored faintly. "I—I hope it held no bad news."

He looked into her eyes. "I hope not," he said. Something else was on his tongue when "Look!" she exclaimed. "How strange the sea looks off there!"

From where they stood steps were roughly hewn into the rock, winding across the face of the cliff. Besides, these stone pillars were socketed, carrying an iron chain that hung in rusted festoons. Along this precarious pathway from the cavern an old man was hastily coming, followed by a boy with a sagging bundle tied in a white cloth. "That parcel, no doubt," said Daunt, "contains the day's offerings. Wait! You're not going?" for she had started down the steps.

She had turned to answer when with the suddenness of an explosion a burst of wind fell on them like a flapping weight, spattering them with drops that struck the rock as if hurled from a slingful of melted metal.

Daunt had sprung to her side and was shouting something. But the words were indistinguishable. She shook her head and went on stubbornly, clinging to the chain, a whirl of blown garments. She felt him grasp her arm.

"Go back!" she shrieked. "It's—bad—luck!"

As he released her there came a second's menacing lull, and in it she sprang down the steps and ran swiftly out along the pathway. He was after her in an instant, overtaking her on a frail board trestle that spanned a pool where the cliff was perpendicular. Here the wind, shaggy with spume, hurled them together. Daunt threw an arm about her, clinging with the other hand to the wooden railing. Her hair was a reddish swirl across his shoulder, and her breath, panting against his throat, ridged his skin with a creeping delight.

He bent and shouted into her ear. All she caught was, "Must—cave—next lull"—

She nodded her head, and her lips smiled at him through the confused obscurity. A thrill swept her like silver rain. Pulse on pulse, an emotion like fire and snow in one thrilled and chilled her. She closed her eyes with a wild longing that the wind might last forever, that that moment, like the ecstasy of an opium dream, might draw itself out to infinite length. Slowly she felt the breath of the tempest ebb about them, then suddenly felt herself lifted from her feet, and her eyes opened into Daunt's. Her cheek lay against his breast, as it had done in that short moment in the embassy garden. She could feel his heart bound under the rough tweed.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE ISLAND OF ENCHANTMENT.

ONCE more the wind caught them, but he staggered on through it and into the high rock entrance of the cave.

Inside its dripping rim the sudden cessation of the wind seemed almost uncanny, and the boom of the surf was a dull thunderous roar. He set her on her feet on the damp rock and laughed wildly.

"Do you realize," she said, "that we have transgressed the most sacred tenet of Ben-ten by coming here together? We are doomed to misunderstanding."

"Now that I recollect, that applies only to lovers," he answered. "Then we"—

"Are quite safe," she quickly finished for him. "Come, I want to see the shrine. We must find a candle."

He peered into the gloomy depths. "I think I see some burning," he said. "We will explore."

A little way inside they came to a small well, with a dipper and a rack of thin blue and white towels to cleanse the hands of worshipers. On a square pedestal stood a stone Buddha, curiously incrusted by drippings from the roof. Near it was a wooden booth, its front hung with pendants of twisted rice straw and strips of white paper folded in diagonal notches. It held a number of tiny wooden torii strung with lighted candles, above each of which was nailed a paper prayer. A few copper coins lay scattered beneath them. Daunt thrust two of the candles into wooden holders, and they slowly followed the narrowing fissure, guttered by the feet of centuries, between square posts bearing carven texts and small images coated with the spermy droppings from innumerable candles.

She held up her winking light toward his face. "What a desperate absorption!" she said laughingly. "You haven't said a thing for five minutes."

"I'm thinking we had better explain at once to Ben-ten that we're not lovers. Otherwise we may get the penalty. Perhaps we'd better just tell her it was an accident and let it go at that. What do you think?"

"That might be the simplest."

"All right, then. I'll say 'Ben-ten, dear, she wanted to come alone; she really did. We didn't intend it at all. So be a nice, gracious goddess and don't make her quarrel with me!'"

"What do you suppose she will answer?"

"She will say, 'Young man, in the same circumstances I should have done exactly the same myself.'"

The passage had grown so low that they had to bend their heads, then all at once it widened into a concave chamber. The cannonading of the wind rumbled fainter and fainter. He took her hand and drew her forward. "There is Ben-ten," he said.

The Goddess of Love sat in a barrel cleft of the rock, enshrined in a dull, gold silence. Beads of moisture spangled her robe, glistening like brilliants through the mossy darkness. "Poor deity!" said Barbara. "To have to live for ever in a sea cavern! It's a clammy idea, isn't it?"

"That's"— He paused. "I could make a terrible pun, but I won't."

"One shouldn't joke about love," she said.

"Have you discovered that too?"

She gazed at him strangely without answering. In the wan light his face looked pale. Her unresisting fingers still lay in his; he felt their touch like a breath of fire through all his veins. Her eyes sparkled back the eery witch glow of the candle flames. "You are a green golden gnome girl," he said unsteadily. "And I am under a spell."

"Yes, yes," she said. "I am Rumptydudget's daughter. I have only to wave my candlestick so to turn you into a stalagmite."

She suited the action to the word and dropped her candle, which was extinguished on the damp floor. Bending forward to retrieve it, Daunt slipped. The arm he instinctively threw out to save himself struck the wall and his own candle flew from its socket. As he regained his footing, confused by the blank, infolding darkness, he stumbled against Barbara, and his face brushed hers. In another instant the touch had thrilled into a kiss.

A MOMENT SHE LAY IN HIS ARMS.

A moment she lay in his arms, passive, panting, her unkissed mouth stinging with the burn of his lips. The world was a dense blackness, shot with fire and full of pealing bells, and the beating of her heart was a great wave of sound that throbbed like the iron shod fury of the seas.

"I love you, Barbara," he said simply—"I love you!"

Are We Making, Madam, a Million-Dollar Mistake?

When we select our wheat—

When we wash, brush and scour it—

When we pass it through 20 grindings—

When we sift it 10 times through silk.

No doubt this is adding a million dollars per year to the necessary cost of our milling.

Is it our mistake?

Or is it your mistake when you fail to get it—when you fail to specify Gold Medal Flour?

Think what this means:

Gold Medal Flour now far outsells any other flour that's milled.

It feeds 24,000,000 folks daily.

Just because housewives—millions of them—have found that Gold Medal excels all other flours.

You'll not find it different.

WELFARE REPORT

Purposes and Results of the Joint Philanthropic Societies Exhibition Told.

STATEMENT OF THE CHAIRMAN.

The Attendance Gratifying and Real Object of the Show Accomplished—The Report Complete.

As chairman of the joint committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis League and the Charity Organization Society for the public welfare exposition, William M. Wherry, Jr., makes the following report:

The intention of the two societies was to show to the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield, the field which they cover, the necessity for their work, the efforts they were making to meet the needs of the community, and in addition the points at which the work was defective for lack of facilities or funds. The entire exhibit took three weeks to organize. It was participated in by all classes in the community with the greatest enthusiasm. The citizens of Plainfield recognized that the problem was their problem, and they evinced their usual eagerness to master it, and to devise ways and means to solve it. We invited the co-operation of all the different institutions and organizations that are engaged in welfare work in Plainfield and they generously responded. No one who was asked to help in getting up the exhibit or in advertising it refused, and no one undertaking a task fell down on it. Not only this, but many people whom we did not ask directly, volunteered to help and render assistance. The exhibit was free, not one cent of money was asked from anyone who attended it, but many generously offered to make contributions not only to defray the expenses of the exhibit, but to carry on the work. The entire cost of the exhibit was less than $100 to each society, and your committee feels that the returns were well worth much more than the cost.

The attendance commenced on Thanksgiving Day with about 1,500 people. In increased daily and by Sunday, the third of December, in one hour, between 2 and 3 o'clock, more than 500 people passed through the entrance door, and the total record for that day was over 2,500. The night of the third the weather was very bad, and at the request of those in charge of the schools in Plainfield and North Plainfield, it was decided to keep the exhibit open one day longer, so as to enable the classes of the schools to inspect it. Accordingly, on Tuesday, the fifth, the doors were again opened, and 500 school children passed through the exhibit and listened to a very instructure lecture by H. M. Maxson. It was noticed in the daily papers that the exhibit would be open on the fifth, and more than 2,000 adults took advantage of the opportunity.

Experts from elsewhere who visited the exhibit were very complimentary in regard to the extraordinary interest and and zeal which the people of Plainfield manifested in their study of the problems presented.

Your committee desires to congratulate the citizens of this city and the borough and to thank them for having participated so zealously in the exhibit and for having made it such a success. They desire to thank especially the merchants of the town who advertised the exhibit on their wagons and in their stores, and those other merchants who loaned us tables and chairs and other articles used in the exhibit. They desire to thank the Public Service Corporation for putting in place the lighting. They also desire to thank the corporations, contractors and individuals who furnished labor, materials and carpentery work, electric light work, decorations, the press which helped in the publicity work, and those persons who assisted us in getting up the exhibit. We have on record in our rooms a register of all the helpers, but to mention them all would fill several columns of the newspapers, and we cannot make any distinction where all were so generous. As a matter of fact, the exhibit was Plainfield's exhibit, and to thank one we must thank the whole town for their help and support.

Our thanks are also especially due to those persons and institutions who from out of town loaned us their exhibits and helped to put them in place.

Talk for Young People.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will preach a special sermon, Sabbath morning, December 16, to the young people and children, using the blackboard for a few simple illustrations and using the text, "Thou has the dew of thy youth." The pastor will also speak to the Junior Society tomorrow afternoon.

EMMANUEL CIRCLE GIVES ENTERTAINMENT

Under the auspices of the Emmanuel Circle of The King's Daughters, a social and entertainment was given at the Temple Baptist church last night. The affair was largely attended by members and friends of the circle. The program, which was a varied one, included a pantomime, entitled "Modern and Medieval Ballad of Mary Jane." After the entertainment refreshments were served. The program follows:

Instrumental selections, Temple Quartet, William Conger, Dr. J. F. Berg, Elmer E. Wheeler, Arthur Mosher; recitation, "The Eve Before Christmas," Miss Helen Myers; piano solo, Sonata, Beethoven, Miss Bertha Jones; recitation, "Market Day," Miss Miriam Smith; recitation, "A Country Store," Mrs. Clarence Murphy; violin solo, Arthur Mosher; selection, "Autumn Breezes," orchestra. The following took part in the pantomime:

"Mary Jane," Harry Bouton; "Benjamin," William Crow; "Lord Mortimer," Chris. Utzinger; "Father of Mary Jane," Edward Baker, Jr.; clergyman, Fred Borrup. Miss Anna Mackey was the efficient coach, reading the poem, while Miss Bertha Jones at the piano rendered appropriate selections.

LOCAL PARTY INSPECTS WORLD'S LARGEST SHIP

A party of fifteen young men from this city were among the first visitors to board the world's largest steamer, the "Olympic," soon after she warped into the White Star line docks at West 22nd street, New York, yesterday. It was her first trip over since the accident in which she figured in the English channel last September when the second class cruiser "Hawk" stove a gaping hole in her port side aft. The steamship company had to stand its share of the damage, which with the loss of business, aggregated more than $1,000,000.

The Plainfielders received the courtesy of the boat through E. E. Parvin, of this city, who is secretary of the holding company which controls the White Star line. The party was taken in charge by Assistant First Cabin Steward James Bowker, who guided them through the mazes of the leviathian's interior. They were also permitted close views of the stevedores at work in the hold getting out the cargo and the marvellous up-to-date coaling apparatus, which fills the "Olympic's bunkers in fifteen hours less time than it does on the other side of the Atlantic.

The members of the party were the following: Rev. Frederick L. Greene, George H. Beiser, J. F. Lindsey, James Penny, Benjamin Evans, Walter Firstbrook, Arthur Fluck, Peter C. Sweeney, John E. Nicol, Lester Sutton, Thomas M. Muir, William Terry, Clarence W. Mundy, Harold Sharkey and Monroe Good. After the inspection the sightseers, nearly all of whom were members of the McWilliams Bible class of Hope chapel, enjoyed dinner downtown and in the evening took part in the service of the Jerry McAuley Mission on the East side.

Dispossessed Woman.

Unable to secure compliance otherwise with its requirements, the Board of Health yesterday dispossessed Mrs. John Sweeney from the room on New street, which she has been using as a place to sell goods, cook and sleep. She has been arraigned in the city court before Judge William G. DeMeza on several occasions and after each of these visits would clean up her room as the court directed. In a short time the place would again be unsanitary and instead of going to her apartments on Plainfield avenue as she promised the court to do, the woman would remain at the New street place which would soon become filthy.

Junior Baraca Class Elects.

The Junior Baraca Class of the Temple Baptist church has elected these officers for the coming year: President, George Huff; vice-president, Edward Simons; secretary, Russell Whitman; teacher, Clarence B. LaRue; assistant teacher, Harry Bouton. It was decided to place a baseball team in the field next summer, and George Simons has been elected manager. Russell Whitman has been elected manager of the basketball team.

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight; Saturday cloudy. Maximum, 57; minimum, 26.

—Why not make it a framed picture this year? Philip Swain, 317 West Front street, has a choice selection suitable for Xmas gifts at moderate prices. 12 6 2 w-f

FORMER RESIDENT TO WED CONNECTICUT GIRL

Cards were received by local friends today, announcing the marriage of Miss Ruth Fairchild, daughter of Captain R. W. Fairchild, of Litchfield, Conn., and George McCusker, formerly of this city, but for the past two years a resident of New Haven. The wedding came as a surprise as no previous intimation had been given.

Miss Fairchild that was, attended the State Normal School at New Haven until a week ago Wednesday when it closed for the Thanksgiving holdiays. Instead of returning home, the young woman proceeded to New York the following Saturday, where she was met by McCusker. The ceremony was performed in St. Patrick's cathedral at high noon. At the conclusion of a wedding trip, the couple will make their home with the bride's uncle of St. Ronan's place, New Haven.

Mr. McCusker has many friends in the city and borough, having resided in the East End for a long time. He is at present connected with the New Haven office of the Southern New England Telephone Company.

CHURCH WOMEN HELD SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR

The bazaar and entertainment held yesterday afternoon and last night under the auspices of the Women's Association of the Congregational church was successful, even exceeding the expectations of those in charge. The entertainment features were particularly pleasing while each of the nine booths was a centre of attraction and activity. In the afternoon Rev. R. F. Y. Pierce gave a talk especially for the little ones. He sketched with colored crayon as he talked.

The night program which was in charge of Mrs. Charles A. Rice, was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Elizabeth Martin; solo, Master Eugene Martin; reading, Mrs. Royale T. Phillips; piano solo, Miss Margaret VanZandt; young women's quartet, the Misses Steiner, Phillips, Whitall and Waring; whistling solo, Mrs. Charles A. Rice; duet, (a), sketch from Tannhauser; (b), Love Song from Faust, the Misses Weeks and Martin.

The following were the women in charge of the affair: Mrs. C. L. Goodrich and Mrs. J. M. Whiton, general chairman; tickets and publicity, Miss Ethel Millar; decorations, Mrs. F. F. Hylan.

Useful and fancy articles booth, Miss Jessie McIntosh assisted by Mrs. Percy VanAlstyne, Mrs. Fred W. Stack, Miss Ethel McIntosh, Mrs. C. S. Tapscott and Miss Mary Decker; children's table, Mrs. Frank Clawson and Mrs. Phillip Suffern; groceries, Mrs. John V. Beekman, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Van Arsdale, Miss Myra Emmons, Miss Marjorie Phillips, Miss Jeannie Millar and F. A. Weeks; dinner favors, Miss Daisy Day; candy, Mrs. F. A. Weeks, assisted by Mrs. Thaddeus Doane, Jr., Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux and Miss Martine Weeks; book stall, Mrs. Joseph A. Robinson, assisted by Miss Harriet Merrick and Miss E. J. Miller; bread, cakes and pies, Mrs. D. Foster Updyke, assisted by Mrs. Thomas Hylan and Miss Lillian Whitall; ice cream, Mrs. Alonzo Weseman and Mrs. M. L. Harold, assisted by Miss Gladys Waring, Miss Helena Curtis, Miss Helen Weseman, Miss Beth Martin and Miss Florance Neilson; lemonade, Miss Nellie Winkler, assisted by Miss Margaret Weseman and Miss Katherine Phillips.

MEN'S CLUBS TO HEAR OF "BIG BROTHER" MOVEMENT.

The Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold its December meeting Thursday night, December 14, at 8 o'clock. An invitation has been extended to all the men's associations of other churches to attend. The topic for the evening will be "The Big Brother Movement" and the speaker will be Clyde Oswald, president of The American Printer. An informal social hour will follow the address. All members of the club and other men and boys of the church and congregation are cordially invited.

FIRST ENLISTMENT

Six are Mustered in Today as Members of the Army of Good Fellows.

RECRUITING OFFICE OPENS.

Salvation Army Captain Praises the Scheme Which Means No Publicity For Those Who Would Make Poor Tots Happy.

The first recruits for the annual enlistment of Good Fellows made their appearance this morning, six having been mustered in. They promised to provide a joyous Christmas for nineteen poor little tots who otherwise would never know any real happiness from a child's standpoint, that which comes from finding a toy in its Christmas stocking over the fireplace on Christmas morn. Last Christmas over 600 were made happy by the local Army of Good Fellows and it is hoped that equally as many will be provided for this Christmas by the red-blooded Good Fellows. Just as quickly as possible names of children will be sent to those requesting them by the Charity Organization Society, whose efficient and hard-working executive secretaries personally investigate each case before they send the name of a child to those requesting names.

In this morning's mail came this letter, which speaks for itself:

"Good Fellow,

"Care of Daily Press.

"Dear fellow worker:

"I am so pleased to see you on the job once more that I feel constrained to send you a few lines of encouragement, for I have seen more of the magnificent work that you have been the means of putting in motion during the past two Christmas seasons. While you have accomplished so much in the past, let us hope that the increased need this season will be not only the magnet to draw all of the Good Fellows of the past two seasons but that numbers of new members will enroll under your banner, and the result will be 'A child's Christmas for every child in Plainfield.'

"It would be a great pleasure for me to take you by the hand and wish you God's speed, but seeing our standard-bearer prefers to keep his identity a secret I take this means of sending you greetings and wishing you increased success.

"While I am responsible for looking after the needs of hundreds who look to our organization for their Christmas cheer, it will give me much pleasure to enroll as a 'Good Fellow' and will be responsible for at least six children.

"Yours for the needy,
"SAMUEL A. HEWITT,
"Capt. Salvation Army."
"Captain."

Good Fellows requesting names will be kind enough to enclose a return stamped envelope as no expenses are incurred in this movement.

HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING ADDITION IS DELAYED.

It transpires that the State School Commission withheld its approval of the plans of the new addition to the Plainfield High School so long that the work of building it will not now be begun until the spring. It was expected that the addition would be in readiness for occupancy by that time, but the delay caused by the State Commission made it impossible.

When the present building was erected, the plans included the wing to be added and those drawings were submitted to the State Commission and were passed. When the wing was eliminated it was not necessary to notify the State board, it is said. Since the time that the plans were originally passed and their submission at this time, certain changes have been made in the requirements as regards stairways, etc., and it was only after the whole matter was carefully gone over by the State inspectors that the plans were passed.

Received Gov't. Check.

The Religious Society of Friends has received its check from the Government in payment for its land on Watchung avenue adjoining the Force estate, which is part of the tract to be used for the proposed Federal building. The check was dated December 1.

For Parents and Teachers.

The Franklin-Whittier-Stillman Parent-Teacher Association will meet at the Franklin School auditorium on Monday night at 8 o'clock when Miss Bullock will give an illustrated lecture on England. All mothers and others interested are invited to attend.

—Special Saturday, a 1-lb box of Ritz special holiday assortment of satin gloss nut-filled candies, 25c; reguar 40c.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS UNVEILING ON SUNDAY

Two memorial windows which are being erected at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be unveiled at the Sunday morning service at 10:30 o'clock. These windows are in memory of the late John Taylor Johnston, a former benefactor of the church, and his son, Colles Johnston, and are the gift of Mr. Johnston's daughter, Mrs. Pierre Mali.

The windows represent the baptism of Christ by John the Baptist in the lower lights beneath the gallery, incidents in the childhood of John the Baptist and Jesus, and contain the figures of Mary and Elizabeth. The work is done in the painted glass, which will be the rule for all the windows in the church.

This piece of work is the product of the Tiffany studios in New York and this pair of windows is the third which has been placed in the edifice during the past year. Another set of windows is in process of being made in memory of another of the former members and benefactors of the church and will be unveiled in the near future.

CURRENT POLITICAL EVENTS HER THEME

Miss Janet Richards, of Washington, gave the third of her series of talks on "Current Events," before a large audience of women at the Hartridge Auditorium yesterday afternoon. Many interesting political events which have occurred since her last appearance here were related by the lecturer, who particularly discussed recent developmnts in the trouble between Persia and Russia. She also touched on the trouble in China, giving the latest information from that country.

Miss Richards referred to the recent sudden re-appearance of Roosevelt in the political arena, noting the fact that he is being talked of again for the Presidency to succeed Mr. Taft. Referring to the fact that President Taft had been severely criticised because of his tariff speech of 1909, she quoted the President as saying that if he had to make the speech again he would modify it considerably, because he had learned a great deal on the subject since taking that memorable speech. Miss Richards in closing touched upon many other live topics under the general subject of "Current Events."

—Job printing. Satisfaction assured.

SLASHES THROAT IN A SUICIDAL ATTEMPT

Temporarily crazed by a protracted illness from nervous prostration, Mrs. Ole Johanson, of Scotch Plains, attempted suicide at her home, early yesterday afternoon, by cutting her throat with a butcher knife. She was discovered by members of the family almost immediately afterward and Drs. Westcott and Munger were summoned. It was thought at first that their efforts would be of no avail as she was in a critical condition for several hours. She became better through the night and it was said today that she would probably recover.

Mrs. Johanson has been afflicted for the past three years, being under medical treatment all the time. Recently she became a victim of melancholy and required constant attention. While the members of the family were busy preparing dinner at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, she eluded their vigilance and catching up a keen-bladed knife hurried to the barn. She was missed within a few minutes but too late to prevent her from her suicidal attempt.

Mrs. Johanson's son, Samuel Johanson, left a few days ago for Sacremento, Cal., to erect a press for the Walter Scott company.

MR. WRIGHT TO GIVE ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

The illustrated lecture to be given at the Hartridge Auditorium Thursday night, December 14, by J. Dunbar Wright, will offer an exceptional opoprtunity for the people of Plainfield to see superb colored views and hear a delightful lecture. The lecturer will describe an automobile tour taken by Mr. Wright through Algeria and Turnesia in 1911, and will be told as only Mr. Wright can do it. The proceeds of the affair will be for Muhlenberg Hospital.

All of the pictures to be shown were taken by Mr. Wright and he afterward colored them, making them true to the subjects in every detail. During the past few years Mr. Wright has spent a great deal of time in travel and his knowledge of the country to be pictured in his coming lecture will make it of especial interest.

Announce Engagement.

Mrs. Ella M. Dorthy, of the New Madison, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Helen M. Dorthy, to Albert J. Glaeser, of New York city. Mr. Glaeser is a purchasing agent for the Levgar Iron & Construction Company, of this city.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.
John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

CIVIC BODY DEBTS

Expenses of the Chamber of Commerce Much Greater Than its Receipts.

NO INTENTION TO DISBAND.

Members Favor Continuing the Organization After a Discussion of Secretary Ulrich's First Annual Report.

How can an institution with an income of $1,320 annually continue to exist when the operating expense is double that amount, was the question which the members of the Chamber of Commerce discussed until far into the night last night. The income is represented by the dues, $10 each from the 132 members. The rent and secretary's salary, alone amount to $1,800 annualy, and then there is the printing, postage, telephone, light and all the other accounts necessary for the maintenance of the chamber, to say nothing of the loss sustained through the recently conducted Industrial Exposition.

According to the report of Secretary John Ulrich, which was received last night and the acceptance of which caused the discussion, $3,000 per year is necessary for current expenses. In the reading of the report the fact became patent that the first year of the Chamber was going to show a loss. Last May President George L. Babcock indorsed a note for $500 in order that the chamber could meet current expenses. When the note came due Mr. Babcock paid it out of his own pocket.

Concluding his report Mr. Ulrich stated that with reluctance he would be obliged to decline re-election as secretary of the chamber at the annual election to be held the first Thursday in January.

J. C. Allen, a director of the chamber, said that the report did not show some conditions which he thought those present were entitled to know about. After stating that the actual shortage of the year would amount to $2,500, he said that the chamber was dead and that those present were attending the funeral. This was because the merchants and active members of the old Board of Trade had not taken any interest in the Chamber of Commerce since its organization by the merging of the two bodies mentioned.

Mr. Allen was thought pessimistic by some speakers, all of whom were not for abandoning the chamber, but were for making renewed efforts along different lines to increase the membership and other sources of income. In reply to this Mr. Allen said that in order to make up a part of the deficiency the Chamber had disposed of its right to conduct expositions here in the future, thus leaving the only way to increase the income to increase the membership. Finally a motion was made after a lot of discussion on the election of officers at the next meeting that it be the sense of the meeting that the present officials receive endorsement and as an evidence of the confidence reposed in them they be requested to stand for re-election.

The only other matter discussed outside of the election and report was the passage of a resolution endorsing the proposed automobile reciprocity legislation.

Those speaking in favor of a continuance of the organization were former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray, F. A. Duttenhoffer, George M. Christian, Charles H. Hand, Jacob Sacher, Arthur L. Case and J. C. Hansen.

TWO COLORED WOMEN FIGHT IN THE STREET.

Pearl Williams and Florence Riggs, young colored women of Plainfield avenue, were arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning as the result of a fistic encounter on the street yesterday afternoon. Pearl was changing her boarding place and became involved in an argument with Florence over some clothes which were being moved with other belongings. When Patrolman Dobson came along they were clinching and the clothes were being trampled in the mud. After hearing the real and imaginary troubles of the couple Judge DeMeza told them to go home and behave themselves in the future, sentence being suspended.

Church Feast.

The feast of the Immaculate Conception was celebrated this morning at St. Mary's church with mass at 5:30, 7:00, 8:00 and 9:00 o'clock, the one at 9:00 o'clock being a solemn high mass celebrated by Father B. M. Bogan, assisted by Fathers Hogan and Sciolla. Masses were also celebrated at St. Joseph's church.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

WESTFIELD.

The sale of land for unpaid taxes will be held at the town hall on December 15. There is a long list of property advertised but mostly all of it is small lots that have been sold in the big woods section and the owners do not consider them worth paying taxes on.

The contract for a water supply for Garwood was signed Wednesday by the borough clerk and Mayor Sargeant and the representatives of the Plainfield-Union Water Company. The contract is for five years and the hydrant price is $15 per year.

Electioneering is commencing toward having three elected to the Board of Education at the annual school election in March next. All of the women's clubs in town are in favor of it.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Edward Alexander, brakeman on the drill engine, while at work yesterday slipped and fell from the top of a car and was badly shaken up. Dr. Hughes was called and found no bones broken. It will be some time before Mr. Alexander is able to go back to work.

FINAL DEGREE MASONS ELECT

The New Jersey Society of Thirty-third Degree Masons had its fifth annual banquet at the Washington, Newark, Wednesday night. Election of officers was held. William H. Grosscup, of New York, was chosen president; Theodore B. Townley, of Elizabeth, secretary, and Edmund S. Wyckoff, of Philadelphia, chaplain.

The retiring president, Allton H. Sherman, of Orange, was chosen toastmaster. There were addresses by Robert A. Shirrefs, of Elizabeth, deputy for New Jersey; William P. Weiser, of Camden, and Stephen Smith, of Burlington, all of whom are honorary members of the society and active members of the supreme council of New Jersey; Charles P. Suarkman, of Paterson; Austen Hall McGregor, of Newark; William D. Wolfskeil, of Elizabeth, and P. H. Charlock, of Elizabeth. Mr. Charlock received the final degree in September.

Besides the officers and the speakers, those present were William H. Jones and M. G. Perkins, of Newark; Mahlon Morey and Charles P. Russ, of Elizabeth; E. William Collins and John W. Wright, of Camden; R. C. Chamberlain and Alfred K. Leuckel, of Trenton; George W. Fortmeyer and John C. Cassidy, of East Orange; William Van Eerde, of Paterson; John G. Gopsill, of Jersey City; Cooper H. Prickett, of Burlington, and Herbert Frapwell, of Arlington.

Our Big Sale of Guaranteed All-Wool Suits Grows in Importance

$15. $16. $18. and $20. Suits	$22. $25. and $26.50 Suits
$12.75	$18.75
"Made in Newark."	"Made in Newark."

The demand for Suits at $12.75 has been greater than any suit sale during our long history as MANUFACTURING RETAILERS. We expected to sell a great many Suits but nothing like the number already disposed of.

Tomorrow we add to this suit sale our regular $22.00, $25.00 and $26.50 Suits priced at $18.75, which greatly increases its importance to men whose limit for a suit is between $18.00 and $20.00.

All the suits offered at these two Special Prices are fancy mixtures, and among them there is a wide choice of distinctive patterns, many of them exclusive.

Every one of these suits was made in our workshop by our own expert tailormen who put snap, long life, and permanent shapeliness into every garment they turn out.

Every Suit bears our "GUARANTEED ALL-WOOL" label.

Guaranteed All-Wool Overcoats, $15.

Solid Gold Jewelry

We will be important factors in the jewelry trade this season, as we have been preparing for months to place before you lines of jewelry that in beauty and quality make all our previous efforts in this direction seem insignificant.

Whether you purchase or receive a gift of Straus jewelry you will have an article of solid worth.

Of course, we are also showing large lines of gold filled, sterling silver and gold and silver plated jewelry, but every piece will be sold for just what it is. The following items, picked at random, will give an inkling of our stock and how low our prices are. Choose as early as possible for gift buying. A deposit will reserve it until Christmas. We will return your deposit if you change your mind.

STATUS OF DEPUTIES CIVIL SERVICE PUZZLE

Deputies and assistants in a score of State departments at Trenton are interested in investigations now being made by the Civil Service Commission to finally determine the proper classification of such State employes. Heretofore the commission has followed the general rule that if a deputy or assistant is empowered to perform all the duties of his chief in the absence of the latter he is not under the protection of civil service.

This broad ruling, however, has not been sufficiently definite to meet all cases, and recently a number of rather difficult problems have arisen regarding the proper classification of second men in various departments. In looking up the subject the commission found that there is a wide difference in the language of the various laws under which deputies or assistants are named, and a corresponding difference in the authority or powers conferred upon them.

It is the intention of the commission, as soon as its investigations have been completed, to make a complete reclassification of all assistants and deputies. This will be of particular interest, because during the next two years a number of department heads are likely to be changed, and the fate of their assistants may hinge largely upon the ruling of the commission.

NEWARK, NEW JERSEY

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., December 8, 1911.

THE GOOD FELLOWS.

This season marks the third anniversary of the Good Fellow movement in Plainfield begun and carried on by The Daily Press and the Charity Organization Society. Last season over 600 children of poor people were given a joyous Christmas by the local lodge of Good Fellows. Now the movement is spreading all over the country as is explained in the following editorial of the Trenton True American:

"In several Western cities there are clubs that are organized for the Christmas season only. The members call themselves "The Good Fellows." Membership in this organization is not confined to convivial spirits. Some of the members are traveling salesmen. Some are bachelors and some are bachelor girls. Some are childless men and women and some are men and women with large families of their own. The only restriction as to membership is that you have a bit of genuine Christmas spirit in your heart and that you are willing to make some little personal effort to put Christmas joy into the heart of some one who is likely to be overlooked in the general distribution of Christmas favors, some ragged newsboy, perhaps; some hard-working bootblack; some little girl whose parents are fighting wolves away from the door; some lonely invalid, hid away from the charities of the world.

"Sometimes one of these Good Fellows will search out a poor boy and make it his especial business to give that boy a jolly Christmas. Some times a Good Fellow assumes charge of a whole family and undertakes to give that family a real, old-fashioned yuletide. He buys the Christmas tree and helps to decorate it. He looks after the toys and all the other pretty things necessary to making that tree a grand surprise for the little fellows on Christmas morning. It is his own enterprise. He tells the charity bureaus and the organized Santa Clauses to keep hands off. "This family's Christmas," he says, "is my affair. I am going to have all the fun for myself of making these poor people glad that Christ was born in Bethlehem."

"It is said that the plan works wonders. It has been the means of putting unbounded cheer into homes that have not known a full-hearted Christmas for a decade. It has been the means of giving many a man who has more dollars than he needs a chance to make an investment that returns a bigger percentage of pleasure than any other enterprise.

"We would like to see Good Fellow lodges organized in other cities. We don't know of any other fraternity that can pay such big benefits for such reasonable dues. What a ritual could be written for a lodge of this kind! What beautiful emblems it could appropriate! What brilliant insignia! What thrilling mottoes and what appealing passwords!

"But after all, no paraphernalia is needed. No pomp, nothing spectacular, nothing deep or awe-inspiring is befitting for the lodge of Good Fellows. Only a kind and generous heart and some of the spirit of Christmas that is willing to alleviate want and unhappiness without first making a scientific inquiry about who is to blame."

Mount Bethel Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Israel V. Adams entertained the Ladies' Aid Society of the Mount Bethel Baptist church at their home at Coontown, New Jersey, last night. There were over sixty people present, some coming from Plainfield and the surrounding sections. A feature was the raffling of a large candy basket filled with a seasonable sweets. After the regular meeting a supper was served, the proceeds of which was about $20.

For Poor Horse's Sake.

In an effort to lighten the burdens of the horses during the heavy shopping days prior to Christmas, Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, local agent of the S. P. C. A., today placed on the counters of nearly all the city stores signs asking purchasers to shop as early as possible in the day and to take all small packages with them. Many of the residents are expected to respond to the request.

Accident Victim's Funeral.

The funeral of Carl Ruppensten, who was killed on the Lehigh Valley railroad near New Market, Wednesday night, will be held at his late home near Samptown, this afternoon. Rev. C. W. F. Attlee will officiate and burial wil be in Hillside cemetery.

Miss Edith Bechtel will be the soloist at the 11 o'clock service at St. Stephen's church, Sunday morning.

TALKS TO DOCTORS ON TYPHOID VACCINE'S USE

"Treatment of Typhoid Fever with Typhoid Vaccine," was the subject of an interesting talk given by Dr. James G. Callison, of the Post-Graduate Hospital, New York, before the Plainfield Medical Society at The Homestead last night. It was the quarterly banquet and meeting of the local society, and twenty-seven of the members were present. An excellent dinner was served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, after which Dr. Callison spoke and a discussion followed.

Dr. Callison said that the use of typhoid vaccine as a preventitive measure was no longer considered an experiment, that it had passed beyond that point and physicians agree that it is an absolute necessity. Dr. Callison cited numerous incidents to prove the truth of his statements, showing what an important part typhoid vaccine is playing in the treatment of this dread disease.

Perhaps, the most forcible argument in support of the use of this vaccine was shown during the stay of the United States Army in Texas last summer. It was stated that for the first time in the history of the army there was no typhoid fever because of the general use of the vaccine. Now every man who enters the service is innoculated with the vaccine and is immune from the ravages of the disease.

In the discussion which followed, Dr. H. D. Corbusier, who has served with the army in Cuba and China, was able to tell some interesting things as to preventitive measures from the outbreak of disease among the soldiers, as well as the treatment of various diseases. The fact that typhoid vaccine is no longer an experiment, will be welcome news for the fever is considered one of the worst in the list of those prevalent in this country.

Priest's Birthday.

This afternoon Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, is being given a reception at the parochial school by the children of the parish in honor of his fifty-second birthday. The popular priest has received congratulations from his many friends in this city, and he says he appreciates particularly the efforts of the little ones to make his anniversary pleasant.

Marshal Disappears..

Day Marshal James Benson, of Dunellen, is missing from that borough and rumor has it that he has left town for good. He recently disposed of his trucking outfit despite a chattel mortgage upon it and secured a considerable sum of money. He also secured a small sum by giving a note for his month's pay as marshal, not yet due. Benson has been gone since Sunday.

Christmas Slippers

The Grandest and Best Display We Ever Made

Each season more and more discriminating people turn to articles of usefulness for their Chrismas giving and the best expression of thoughtfulness is to give something which the recipient would otherwise have to purchase—Men's, Women's, Boy's and Girls. For these reasons we have gathered a magnificent collection of slippers and house shoes, varied in materials, colorings and shapes, and at a wide range of prices, so that every taste and pocketbook may be accommodated, like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Dry Cleaning

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

FURS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS AT

Charles Kurtzman's Fur Store

178 EAST FRONT STREET, Dr. Pittis' Office Building.

At such a big reduction in prices

That no one either in town or out of town can beat us.

If there is any gift to be given in the fur line, why not buy at a place where you are positively sure you are getting a guarantee for your money. We always give you the best satisfaction in quality, style and prices, because we are manufacturers and can save you the profits that you would otherwise have to pay the middleman. When we offer a reduction it means that the prices are cut to one-half the figure quoted elsewhere.

We, the CHARLES KURTZMAN FUR STORE, were the first fur store established here in town and have leased our premises for many years. No other can say the same and speak the truth in doing so.

NOTICE—We will refund the purchase price to any customer who will prove that they can get the same goods elsewhere at a lower figure. Alterations and remodelling are specialties. Remember the place.

TOLD OF HIS TRAVELS ACROSS LABRADOR

"2,000 Miles Across Labrador," illustrated with one hundred especially fine views, was the subject of a lecture of interest given at the Washington School, last night, by Clifford H. Easton. The lecture was one of the series arranged by the Board of Education, and the large auditorium was filled with people from all parts of the city.

Mr. Easton was one of a party of men who took the trip to Labrador in 1905, and the pictures he displayed last night were taken by himself on that expedition. They were among the finest of the kind presented here. The trip was a sequel to the expedition of the late Leonidas Hubbard, who lost his life in that country, and naturally was filled with interest as the lecturer described the peculiar people that inhabit Labrador and told of their customs.

Mr. Easton and his party had many thrilling experiences and several times were threatened with death. In describing the trip made by dog sleds, Mr. Easton explained how these sleds are made and what weight they will carry. In this connection he said that Dr. Cook's statement as to how he reached the North Pole by the aid of two such sleds and carrying the weight described, seemed to him to be at variance with the true facts.

The lecturer frequently mentioned the name of Dr. Grenfell and told something of the great work he is doing among the people of Labrador, and how he had on several occasions been able to save the lives of people through his knowledge of medicine and surgery.

The next lecture will be "A Familiar Talk on Japan," on January 4, by John M. Whiton.

Children's Party.

Radiance Knight, aged six years, of Dover, who is a guest at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth D. Noe, of 141 East Fifth street, gave a party to her many little friends in Plainfield, yesterday afternoon. Games were played, after which refreshments were served and the little tots departed for their homes at 5:30 well pleased with the affair.

PROBE MURDERS OF YEARS AGO

New Brunswick, Dec. 8.—Dormant for years, investigation has been revived through the arson inquiry into the series of murders which marked a wave of crime at Old Bridge and the grand jury is said to have taken up the question of solving these homicides. Private detectives have worked up a new theory of the cases in the last three weeks.

It is asserted that the jury has quizzed witnesses in particular regarding the murder of Mrs. Rachel Wright, about six years ago. Mrs. Wright was the first of four who died by the hand of an assassin and this cloud of murder was succeeded by a wave arson.

Mrs. Wright, an octogenarian, partly blind, who lived alone, was murdered in her home, opposite the Baptist church. Mrs. Wright was known to have some money concealed behind a loose board in a rear stairway. She knew all her visitors by the sound of their voices, and could not be induced to permit a stranger to enter her abode.

Found with her throat cut and skull fractured, it was at once surmised that the assassin was some one who was known to Mrs. Wright, or he could not have gained entrance to the house without forcing a door or window, which had not been done. Several persons were under suspicion, but no arrests were made. When the police ceased their active efforts to find the assassin public interest in the murder lapsed and finally it was all but forgotten.

During the discussion of the murder, George Whiteman, Jr., son of the keeper of the Rooster Inn, on the old Bridge-Matawan road, two miles from town, had announced publicly his determination to put the assassin in prison. He had been a personal friend of Mrs. Wright. One day when working in the bar of the inn a man entered the door and ordered a drink, as was evident from the half-filled glass which stood upon the counter. What followed must be conjectured.

Neighbors heard the sounds of several shots, and when they reached the inn the young man, who was known as "Buck," was found shot through the breast, and died a moment later. Nearby lay the body of his father, who not only had been shot but attacked with a knife. It was the theory of the police that Mr. Whiteman had gone to the assistance of his son and that the assassin, finding himself recognized, killed the old man to prevent a witness rising up against him. The murderer never was brought to justice.

Several weeks after this double crime a laborer, who is presumed to have had some knowledge of the assassin, was found murdered in a roadway near the inn. The identity of the murderer never was established. Murder was succeeded by arson for a time, but in December, 1909, Thomas Collins, a well known citizen of the village, was held up by a masked robber, and, after being shot twice and struck with an iron bar, was robbed of $100 and other valuables. The police found a silk mask near the scene of the crime.

TEST R. R.'S LIABILITY IN CASE OF FIRE LOSS.

Trenton, Dec. 8.—Argument in the suit of Bobbink & Atkins, nurserymen of East Rutherford, against the Erie Railroad Company, was heard by the Court of Errors and Appeals Wednesday afternoon. The suit involved several carloads of plants and trees, which were shipped from the pier of the Holland Steamship Line in Hoboken to East Rutherford, and before they were removed by Bobbink & Atkins the trees were destroyed by fire.

The argument involved principally the liability of a railroad company to protect goods entrusted to it for shipment. In the trial court a verdict for the railroad was directed, and this was sustained by the Supreme Court. The case was then carried to the Court of Errors. It was contended for the nurserymen that the fire was started by the sparks from a locomotive which was not properly provided with spark arrester. The company, in its defense, claimed that there was a clause in the bill of lading which specified that it should not be held liable for damage by fire.

Counsel for the plaintiff's insisted that it was a railroad company's duty to transport safely to the point of destination and then to keep the goods until the owner had had a reasonable time in which to remove them. It was contended that there was no consent to the use of open cars and in the absence of this consent the plants should have been shipped in box cars.

MAY CONDEMN MORE SCHOOLS

With St. Mark's School already condemned as unfit for use, the West Orange Board of Education was informed Wednesday night by County Superintendent Albert B. Meredith, that it might expect to have the St. Cloud and Pleasantdale schools condemned as not meeting the State requirements as to light and ventilation.

Although the board apparently accepted the vote of Tuesday as being representative of the wishes of the citizens the members joined Mr. Farr in denouncing the methods of the opposition and in refuting statements made in a circular sent out by the Citizen's League.

The board set to work to solve its problem of providing additional accommodations in the face of the situation brought about by the condemnation of St. Mark's School by the State, by instructing committees to report on the feasibility af abandoning the High School department and converting its rooms into a grammar school, sending the pupils to the Orange High School; also to report on the selection of a new site and the erection of a thoroughly modern building; and finally, on the remodeling of St. Mark's School and erecting the cheapest possible addition in an effort to meet what seemed to be a demand to keep down the taxes. President T. H. Powers Farr favored giving the voters alternatives at the next election.

TO PREVENT FIRES

How Blazes in Public Places May be Avoided During Holidays.

FIRE CHIEF APPROVES RULES.

Suggestions of Timely Interest About the Xmas Trees in Private Homes and in the Shops.

Fire Chief T. O. Doane approves the following suggestions to storekeepers, theatre proprietors and public places in general whereby fires may be prevented during the Christmas rush.

Carelessness and neglect are largely responsible for loss of life and property in fires during the Christmas season.

The following suggestions are offered in the interest of public safety:

Cotton batting, paper and light fabrics generally should not be used for decorations in stores or store windows unless they have been dipped in a solution of phosphate of ammonia and water to render them non-inflammable.

Electric wiring demands constant examination.

Gas lights should be protected by a globe, chimney, screen or smoke bells and combustible material should be kept 24 inches away from flame.

Electric lights should not be dressed in paper petticoats. There is sufficient heat in every bulb to start a blaze.

Ventilate show windows. There is always danger of spontaneous combustion.

Smoking is prohibited in all department stores in Plainfield.

Every employee should know what to do in case of fire.

In places where people gather in churches, halls or schools, unusual precautions should be taken.

Exits should be marked with red lights. Red arrows can be painted on floors and sidewalks, pointing toward exits.

Keep sand, water or fire extinguishers convenient for quick use.

Put sheet tin under Christmas trees.

Fireproof trimmings and Santa Claus costumes and wigs. Have a soft rug handy.

Don't trim Christmas trees with paper or similar materials. The dry tree is bad enough.

Watch the burning candles. Be especially careful in making temporary electric light connections.

Several pails or basins filled with water should be kept in the kitchen.

If anyone's clothing takes fire the first thing to do is to throw that person down. This changes the direction of the flame and saves the eyes, face and lungs. A rug or blanket next. Tuck it around the body to exclude the air.

Keep curtains muslin and similar materials at least two feet away from gas jets.

BIG PAINT CONCERN IS TO LOCATE AT FINDERNE.

Following recent reports of purchases at Finderne, by the H. W. Johns-Manville Company, manufacturers of asbestos products and paints, the further announcement is now made that the company has increased its holdings to about 200 acres, and has practically completed arrangements for the removal of its immense plant from its present site, at the foot of Thirty-ninth street, South Brooklyn, to the new location.

The total amount to be spent on the plant is estimated at about $2,000,000. Present plans include the construction of 200 houses for operatives, the company's entire force being fully 2,000. The immediate plans of the company call for the construction of a spur from the Jersey Central Railroad tracks into the property, as well as a new branch of the trolley line between Bound Brook and Somerville.

THINK HE'S BICYCLE THIEF.

Summit, Dec. 8.—In the arrest here yesterday morning of a colored man, who gives his name as John Williams, Chief Brown believes he has the person who at intervals for two years has stolen a number of bicycles here. The police had been looking for Williams since early in November. He was arrested by Police Sergeant John P. Murphy.

A bicycle which Williams is charged with having stolen from a local drug store, November 5, the police recovered from a colored man employed on the city ash dump. The city employe, in the police court yesterday morning, identified Williams as the man who sold him the wheel. Williams denied his guilt. He will be held for investigation.

If President Taft is really to send in seven messages before the holidays the holidays themselves will be badly needed.—Louisville Post.

12000 Yards Seco Silk 14c

SATURDAY'S SALE OF OUR EXCESS STOCK AT THIS LITTLE PRICE

The universally known and widely used Seco Silks have established a value for themselves because of their unquestioned merit. We have sold many thousand yards of these Seco Silks and they have never failed to please the buyers. Now we are going to offer our excess stock of Secos of this season's make, and because they are of the 24 inch width instead of the 26, a trifling difference in the making of a dress, we are going to offer them at this little price; in this fine range of colors; in both plain and satin dots:

For sale on Bargain Table No. 2—front.

Don't miss this sale; wade through snow and slush to get here if need be; trolley cars will bring you to our door; people in Jersey City will find the new subway handy to get here. Tell your friends about this important sale.

These soft, silken fabrics that now cost so little make pretty dresses for girls, pretty party frocks and little dress-up home attire.

STATE REFORMATORY FOR WOMEN IS URGED

For the purpose of considering preliminary plans for the erection of the proposed Women's Reformatory, the board of managers will have a special meeting at Clinton tomorrow. The meeting will be held on the site recently purchased for the building. Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander, of Hoboken, is the president of the board.

Dr. George B. Wight, the commissioner of charities and corrections, has been invited to be in attendance and make such suggestions as he sees fit. The last Legislature appropriated $20,000 for the purchase of the site, and it is the idea of Mrs. Alexander that a building can be erected for about $35,000, capable of accommodating 150 inmates. Dr. Wight, however, thinks that the cost will be nearer $75,000.

Besides Mrs. Alexander, the members of the board of managers are: Judge Algernon, T. Sweeney, of Newark, vice-president; Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, treasurer; Mrs. Allen Marquard, of Princeton, and Mrs. Lewis T. Bryant, of Atlantic City.

DYNAMITERS FACE VIGOROUS ORDEAL

Los Angeles, Dec. 8.—The McNamara brothers, John J. and James B., whose complicity in the alleged dynamiting conspiracies became a matter of investigation after their confessions of guilt and their sentences to terms in the State Penitentiary, rose early yesterday, prepared to face a vigorous ordeal—the rigid interrogation of a special prosecutor in the government's probing into the alleged trafficking of dynamite and misuse of the mails to promote destruction of property where labor warfare was involved.

The Federal Grand Jury, which is scheduled to meet today, is expected to hear from the lips of the McNamaras some details of the alleged conspiracy—not necessarily incriminating others, but sufficient to bring within the purview of the law those persons who may have been involved in promotion of what they thought to the best purposes of their fight in defense of organized labor.

Attorneys for the McNamaras had advised them to use their own judgment about disclosing details of their confessed crimes. What they would tell remained a mystery early yesterday, but in view of the testimony of Ortie E. McManigal, confessed dynamiter, it was thought that the dynamiters would tell at least sufficient details to warrant the grand jury in inquiring into the methods of other men.

It was believed that the McNamaras might be removed to San Quentin Penitentiary today. Sheriff Hammel has refused to say anything on the subject, declaring that the brothers were being kept in Los Angeles at the pleasure of the federal grand jury, but it was thought that after their first appearance before the inquisitorial body, expected yesterday, the federal authorities would be satisfied and the prisoners removed.

The importance of the local angle of the federal inquiry is not fully known, but it is argued that the Indianapolis investigation is the centre of the government's scheme of inquiry, to which the Los Angeles investigation is as yet subordinate.

STATE TO TURN LOOSE GAME WORTH $30,000.

Trenton, Dec. 8.—Announcement was made by President Ernest Napier, of the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners, yesterday, that arrangements have been completed for the annual stocking of the woods and uplands of the State. The commission expects to spend at least $30,000 in stocking the State with English pheasants, Hungarian partridge, quail and deer.

Orders have been placed by the commission with a firm of importers for about 6,000 English pheasants and 1,000 Hungarian partridge. These birds are to be delivered during March, and arrangements are also under way for a large supply of quail and deer.

Mr. Napier believes that the turning out of the birds in the early spring will be productive of better results than have been attained by liberating them earlier. In the past the mortality resulting from releasing birds during the winter, or purchasing them at this season and holding them over, has been large.

Under the present contract, the delivery next March is to consist of nothing but strong, healthy birds. As the species of birds to be purchased is already on the increase because of the stocking in previous years, the commission believes that the release next spring of the highest quality of birds obtainable will cause a marked improvement in both the quality and quantity of game to be found later in the hunting covers.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

According to a statement issued yesterday by Liebler & Co., the first month's business of "The Garden of Allah" at the Century Theatre has broken all money records for a dramatic attraction. The public has paid $105,615 to see the Robert Hichens-Mary Anderson drama. This means an average of $3,000 to each performance. The attendance has been slightly in excess of 69,000 persons. The sale of boxes has averaged ten to the performance, the total number of mail orders received from clergymen buying seats was 416, and there have been several hundred orders taken by wireless, from incoming steamships.

The popular success of the new American musical comedy, "The Three Romeos" at the Globe theatre, New York, was evident so immediate that Charles Dillingham, manager of the theatre, announced the sale of seats for six weeks in advance including a special matinee Thanksgiving Day. It seems an emphatic proving up of the managerial pharse, "give the people what they want." An elaboration of this phrase, meaning, by the way, "American Musical Comedy," is; many girls and pretty ones, many songs and jingly ones, gorgeous gowns and costly ones, sumptious scenery and properties, in fact everything that makes for the amusement of the eye and ear of the tired business man and the lady who goes to the theatre with him. In the new musical comedy there is present another quality which has made for its success—it is fast and furious fun, but it is clean. The management has been adroit enough to consider the average mind of the New York theatregoer as cultured.

His Fourth Marriage.

Morristown, Dec. 8.—The marriage of J. Fred Runyon, of this place, to Miss Gertrude L. Dixon, took place Wednesday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Andrew M. Lee, in Western avenue, this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. Urmy, of the Methodist church. Mr. Runyon is a former fire chief of Morristown.

Christmas Coin Envelopes

The Problem of the Christmas Gift

Because we live in an extravagant age and our friends are surfeited with the little luxuries which used to make acceptable gifts, the practical present is becoming more popular every year.

There could be no more practical and acceptable gift for wife, mother, sister or child than a 4% interest account in our Special Department. Send us $5.00 or more and we will mail to whomever you may designate, a pass book enclosed in an attractive Christmas envelope.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST C. E. ANNIVERSARY EXERCISES.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will celebrate its twentieth anniversary at the morning service tomorrow. The address will be made by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, and the program of exercises will be as follows:

Organ voluntary, doxology, invocation, anthem, choir; hymn, "Awake, My Soul;" responsive reading, gloria, prayer, offertory, secretary's report, Miss Nettie G. Stillman; hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers;" sermon address, Rev. F. K. Mathiews; hymn, "Brightly Gleams Our Banner; benediction, organ postlude.

"Impressions of the Far East."

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club of the Congregational church will be held on Tuesday night, December 12, when Rev. Charles S. Wyckoff, who has just returned from a trip around the world, will give a lecture on the subject of "Some Impressions of the Far East." A pleasant evening is assured all who attend.

—Neuman Bros. will have for tomorrow's trade a carefully selected assortment of fruits and fresh vegetables.

The Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will meet Thursday night, December 14.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Not a single detail has been overlooked in presenting "Daniel Boone," which appears at the Plainfield Theatre on Monday night. Manager Harris has secured a tribe of Sioux Indians from the Porcupine Agency, headed by Chief Young Buffalo. A pack of Siberian wolves has been imported and trained for their attack on Boone. The famous trailing dogs have been secured from Kentucky. The scenery has been painted from actual photographs taken along the beautiful Kentucky River, while an actual duplicate of Boone's cabin has been built. Some of the thrilling scenes in the play are the burning of Boone's cabin by the Indians, the rescue of Boone from the burning stake and the hurling of Elizabeth Zane into the den of wolves. The death of Simon Gerty, the renegade, and Washington's message to Boone make a fitting climax to this intense drama.

The "Three Twins" comes to the with the full prestige of a Metropoliwith the ful prestige of a Metropolitan success behind it, having run 5 months in Chicago at the Whitney Opera House and ten months in New York at the Herald Square Theatre, where it received the unanimous praise of the entire New York press as being one of the smartest musical plays produced in years. Jos. M. Gaites has spared no expense in the mounting of this attraction, the costuming is gorgeous, the scenery magnificent and the electrical effects bewildering. The finale of the first act is said to be one of the most elaborate pieces of mechanism that has ever been placed on the stage. It shows an aerial circular swing with six beautiful show girls in baskets and while revolving the swing is illuminated with 2,000 incandescent lights, making a gorgeous spectacle.

Moving Pictures.

The program for the motion picture exhibitions at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow is as follows: Hansel and Gretel; Hunting Big Game in Africa; Van Bibber's Experiment; Shooting the Rapids; a Comedy Film, and Y. M. C. A. Training School, Silver Bay, on Lake George. The last film is one especially prepared this summer at Lake George by Thomas Edison, inventor of the machine. There will be two entertainments in the afternoon and two at night.

Surprise for Louis Jeffrey.

Master Louis Jeffrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Jeffrey, of East Sixth street, was given a surprise party Wednesday night in honor of the twelfth anniversary of his birthday. About twenty young people were present and the evening was delightfully spent playing games and listening to several recitations, after which refreshments were served. Master Louis was the recipient of many useful remembrances.

The Kingdom Of Slender Swords

By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

Copyright, 1910, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

The stammering utterance pierced the swift, confused sweetness of that first kiss like a lance of desperate gladness. Through the tumbling passion of the words he poured into her heart she could feel his hands touching her face, her throat, her loosened hair.

"Barbara! Listen, dear! I must say it! It's stronger than I am—no, don't push me away! Love me! You must love me!"

With her arms on his breast she had made a movement to release herself. "We are mad, I think!" she breathed.

"Then may we never be sane!"

"I—you have known me only two days! What"—

"Ah, no! I've known you all these years and have been loving you without really knowing it. I made a woman out of my own fancy that I dreamed alive. In the long winter evenings when I worked at my models in the little house in Aoyama I used to see her face in my driftwood blaze and talk to her. I called her my 'Lady of the Many Colored Fires.' I never thought she really existed, but that first night in the embassy garden I knew that my dream woman was you—you, Barbara!"

Her hands pushed him from her no more. They fell to trembling on his breast. In the dense, salty obscurity she turned her head sharply to feel again his lips on hers, her own molding to his kiss. She drooped, swaying, stunned, breathless.

"Barbara, I love you!"

"No—not again. Light the candle."

"Just a moment longer here in the dark with Ben-ten. It's fate, darling! Why should I have been in Japan and not in Persia when you came? Why did I happen to be there in the garden that night at that particular moment? Why, it was the purest accident that I came here today! No—not accident. It was kismet. Barbara!"

"Make a light, I beg you!"

His lips were murmuring against her cheek. "Say 'I love you too!'"

"I—cannot. You—you would hold me cheap. I would be—I am. What? Yes, it was a tulip tree. I was sixteen. Oh, you couldn't have—why, you'd forgotten the whole thing. You had, you had! Don't hold me. No, I don't care what you think! Yes, I do care! Yes, I—I— This is perfectly shameless! Dark? That makes it all the worse. What will you— No, no! You must not kiss me again! We must go back. I will go back."

She freed herself, and he fumbled for his fallen candle. He struck a match. The sputtering blue flame lit her white, languorous face, her fallen hair, her heaving breast. It went out. He struck another, and the wick blazed up.

"Look at me, dear," he said. "Tell me in the light. Will you marry me?"

"I cannot answer—now."

"Why? Don't you love me?"

"I—in so short a time how could I? Let us go now. I don't know myself—nor—nor you."

She was trembling, and he noted it with a pang of compunction.

"Tomorrow, sweetheart—will you give me my answer then?"

"Yes." It was almost inaudible.

"At the foreign minister's ball tomorrow night? I'll come to you there, dearest. I"—

He stopped. She had caught her hand to her throat with a wild gesture. "Ben-ten! She—she is frowning at us! There! Look there!"

"My poor darling!" he said. "You are nervous. See—it was only the shadow! I ought not to have brought you into this dismal hole. You are positively shivering."

"Let us hurry," she said, and they went quickly into the warmer air and light of the entrance.

The squall had passed with the fateful swiftness of its coming. The waves still gurgled and tumbled, but the fury of the wind was over. The murk light had lifted, showing the wet sky a patchy drab, which again was beginning to show glimpses of golden hue.

They walked back to Haru at the tea house beneath the wild, poignant beauty of disheveled cryptomeria, echoing once more the eternal song of the semi—along paths strewn with drenched petals and sweet with the moist scents of sodden leaves—then together down the steep templed hill and across the planked walk to the mainland, where a trolley buzzed through the springing ricefields, musical now with the me kayui—me kayui of the frogs. Daunt accompanied them to the through line of the railway. From there he was to return to Kamakura for the answer to his letter.

The sun was setting when the Tokyo express pulled into the station. As Haru disappeared into the compartment Daunt took Barbara's hand to help her to the platform. There had been no other first class passengers to embark, and the forward end of the asphalt was deserted. Her lovely flushed face was turned toward him, and there in the dusk of the station he bent swiftly and kissed her once more on the lips.

"Dearest, dearest!" he said behind his teeth and turned quickly away.

In the car as the train fled through the glory of the sunset Barbara closed her eyes, the longer to keep the impression of that eager gaze, the lithe, muscular poise of the strong frame, the parted lips, the brown hair curling under the peak of the cloth cap.

Her thought drifted into tomorrow, when she was to give him her answer. Ah, she knew what that answer would be! She thought of the telegram of the night before, which she had read in the candlelighted street. Tomorow Ware also was coming for an answer. She knew what that would be too. She felt a sudden pity for him. Yet she knew now what wisdom she had gained in these two swift days—that his was not the love that most deserved it. Daunt's parting kiss clung to her lips like a living flower. The hand he had clasped still burned to his touch; she lifted it and held it against her hot face, while the darkening carriage seemed to fill with the dank smell of salty wind and sea weed mingled with his voice:

"Barbara, I love you! Dearest, dearest!"

She thought the gesture unseen, unguessed by any one. But in the forward car, beyond the glass vestibule door, which to her was only a trembling mirror, a man sat watching with burning eyes. He had been gazing through the window when the train stopped, had risen to his feet with instant recognition—to shrink back into his seat, his fingers clinched, his bitten lip indrawn and a pallor on his face.

It was Austen Ware, and he had seen that kiss.

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

SOME SOUND ADVICE; IS INTERESTING HERE

In swearing in the new members of Gotham's Board of Education whom he appointed the other day, Mayor Gaynor took occasion Wednesday to give his views regarding the present system of education in the New York schools, which will be read with considerable interest by Plainfield people. He hit out straight at the so-called "fads and fancies" method of instruction, and in plain language said that the children are not getting the kind of education they need.

They are being over-educated, even submerged with education, he said, and this is particularly bad for pupils who were growing up with a disinclination to work with their hands. All they cared to do, he said, was to sit on a high stool at books or at a typewriter.

Girls, under our present system of teaching, he said, refuse to do housework, and this he thought to be bad for the country. A system of education that produces such a result he termed a failure. Here is what he said:

"There are eleven of you here. That is nearly one-fourth of the board, and I have a notion to say a word to you. It is what I would say to the whole board if I dared to go up there and say a word to so many people. And I do not know that it would be meddling for me to say a word.

"I have a notion, which I have long entertained, that those in charge of the city's common schools here, and I suppose elsewhere to some extent, are trying to do too much. What I mean is, I think we are trying to teach the children too much. The result is that we do not teach them well.

"What I precisely mean is there are too many subjects taught to the children, in my belief. When you overload children they get a disgust for the whole thing, and they do not learn much. I know that was my experience when I was in the common schools myself.

"I began in the district school in the country, and I afterward went to the village school where they had a higher school, and I noticed it was easy to discourage children, although we were taught only the essentials, only a few things.

"In the navy the maxim is that the speed of a squadron at sea is that of the slowest ship. Now the speed with which a class can go along must have some rule like that to apply to it. I do not mean that it should go along at the rate of the dullest scholar. If that were so it would scarcely go along at all. But there must be some average. You cannot teach children by applying a standard that only the brightest can conform to or keep place with.

"Now, I may be all wrong, but I think a large percentage, if not the largest percentage of children in our schools are just submerged—they just about have their noses above water struggling to breathe. They have more than they can do. We try to teach them too much, and the result is they come out with a superficial knowledge about a lot of things, but no accurate knowledge about anything. And another view of it is that this over-educating of them makes them disinclined to work with their hands. That I am absolutely certain of.

"We are now bringing boys and girls out of the common schools who are taught so much and who think they know so much that they won't work any longer with their hands. They simply say that they won't—that they have been educated. They say 'Let other peaple work with their hands and we will work with our heads.'

"Unless they can get a job where they can sit on a high stool at books or at a typewriter they simply won't work. And the girls refuse to do housework. That is all there is to it. It is bad for the country.

"There is a shortage of workers all over the country. Those born here and brought up in the schools won'twork with their hands. At all events, they don't want to work. Now, I think a system of education that produces that result is a failure. And I think our system in the large cities is very largely producing that result. I feel certain of it from my experience.

"But I give my own opinions up so often in deference to the opinions of others that I, of course, may be wrong about this, and am open to conviction. I never stick to my opinion one minute after someone shows me it is wrong. I even let consistency fly in order to have the right opinion, if possible, and I believe Emerson says that 'Consistency is merely the hobgoblin of small minds,' that it does not amount to so much."

GUARDSMAN WHO KILLED WIFE SEEKING A PARDON.

Walter Jacobson, the National Guardsman who shot and killed his wife in their home in Spring street, Elizabeth, a year ago Christmas day, is seeking a pardon. He was sentenced by Judge Atwater to serve nine years. Jacobson's friends in the regiment have been active ever since his conviction, and they hope to obtain his release.

AWAIT NEW RECTOR

Rev. W. S. McCoy Expected at Holy Cross Church December 23.

FINE PREACHER AND WORKER.

Graduate General Theological Seminary and Classmate of Rev. John G. Currier, of Grace Church.

Rev. William S. McCoy, who has accepted the call to the rectorship of the Church of the Holy Cross, is expected to arrive in Plainfield on December 23, and take charge of the services at Christmas time. There is much rejoicing in the parish over the fact that a new rector has been secured and all the members are looking forward with much pleasure to the resumption of activity in all departments again.

Mr. McCoy has been the assistant rector of St. Luke's church of Rochester, N. Y., for the past four years, and has been doing a great work in that parish. He was highly recommended for the rectorship of the Church of the Holy Cross by Rev. Dr. Anstice, of the general convention, and the call and acceptance has been approved by Bishop Scarborough. Mr. McCoy is about thirty-eight years of age and has a wife and three children. He is a graduate of the General Theological Seminary and was a classmate of Rev. John G. Currier, the new assistant rector at Grace church.

Mr. McCoy only preached at the Church of the Holy Cross but once, but he made such a favorable impression that the vestry at once made efforts to secure him as rector. While Mr. McCoy has the reputation of being a fine preacher, it is said that he is especially strong as a parish worker.

MIANTONOMOH TRIBE GIVES ANNUAL DANCE.

Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, conducted its annual reception and dance in Saengerbund Hall, last night. A large number of the members and their friends were in attendance and enjoyed the evening's gaities. Music for the occasion was furnished by Suhr's Imperial orchestra.

The committee in charge was composed of the following: Chairman, Peter Sheridan; secretary and treasurer, Charles L. Holstein; floor committee, Frank Schropfer, Charles Holstein, Jr., and David Allen; reception committee, Jerry Griffin, Fritz Finkbain, Thomas Parsons and George Ivins; door committee, Peter Lund and Alfred Rhodier.

Quarrelled Over Sale.

Frank Sekonie, of Terrill road, purchased a stove from Louis Kadish, of Somerset street, a few days ago and yesterday became involved in an argument with the store proprietor regarding it. The merchant called the police and being unable to have the matter settled, arrested both. When arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning the men asked for a postponement and the case was put over for one week.

REV. DR. EASTON GIVES AN INTERESTING TALK

A fair-sized audience greeted Rev. Dr. Charles C. Easton in the Netherwood Reformed church last night and heard him define "The Old Century and the New," according to his idea of the manner in which they are viewed by the pessimist and the optimist. The comparison of their viewpoints was most humorous and the cheerful one overwhelmingly won out.

The pictures drawn in all lines of progress, religious, education and scientific, were most convincing and owing to the speaker's intimacy with prominent people in Washington, D. C., where he was formerly pastor of the Eastern Presbyterian church, his statistics had a tone of authority because his figures had been secured first hand from the various departments.

January 12, Dr. Easton will deliver his lecture on "Gladstone, the Grand Old Man of England." Next to the lecture delivered last night, the Gladstone address is considered the best in his repertoire and is founded on a friendship that existed between these men for a number of years.

COUNCIL HEARS EXPERT ON S.O. TANK PETITION

Acting upon the suggestion of the councilmanic fire committee, of which Duncan W. Taylor is the chairman, a conference of the members of the Common Council was held last night for the purpose of discussing the question of permitting the Standard Oil Company to erect large tanks in this city for the storage of gasolene and kerosene. On Mr. Taylor's invitation, Peter Joseph McKeon, consulting engineer in fire prevention, fire extinguishers and fire insurance in New York, gave the city fathers much valuable information. The plans of the Standard Oil Company were discussed and the question of the advisability of compelling the company to place its tanks underground was considered. Mr. McKeon asserted that there is less danger in having the tanks above ground, in fact, he said, he thought it to be a safer plan. He said he thought that there were more dangers to be found outside of the actual storage of the combustible liquids. He referred to the handling of the liquids outside of the tanks.

Mr. McKeon told the city fathers he did not believe it to be possible to pass an ordinance or law that would cover every possibility of danger, but suggested that as many of the dangers as possible be eliminated with a view to safeguarding life and property. He said that the policy too often was to "save at the spigot and lose at the bunghole."

It appeared that Mr. McKeon as well as the councilmen considered that the plans of the Standard Oil Company covered about every possible requirement, although the members of the Council did not put themselves on record to that effect.

No action will be taken on the petition until after the first of the year.

RUPPENSTEIN FUNERAL HELD AT SAMPTOWN HOME.

The funeral of Carl Ruppenstein, who was killed on the Lehigh Valley railroad when his wagon was run down by the wrecking train at bridge 28, Wednesday night, was held at his late home in Samptown yesterday afternoon. Rev. C. W. F. Attlee was in charge and a large number of relatives and friends were in attendance, many of them from the city and borough. There were a number of handsome floral tributes.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being Charles Blackford, Monroe Pyatt, Samuel Pyatt, Adolph Bohren, John Herrmann and August Norway.

Singing School at P. H. S.

The final rehearsal for "Aunt Polly Bassett's Singing School," to be given at the Plainfield High School, tonight, was held yesterday afternoon. The affair will be given for the benefit of the incidental fund. The performance will be a revival of the old-fashioned singing school, which was organized by Mr. and Mrs. Quaith. A large number of school children will take part in the entertainment.

Slightly Injured By Auto.

The trial of Harry Richard, who ran down George Hall, of West Second street, with an automobile on West Front street, yesterday afternoon, was put over for one week by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. Hall was not badly injured and after being attended by Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was able to go to his home. Richard is in the employ of Brokaw Brothers. The accident occurred near Somerset street.

PLEA TO CONGRESS

Local Mothers' Association Wants Federal Children's Bureau Established.

DISCUSSED CHRISTMAS TOPICS.

Many Members Speak on Timely Subjects—Mrs. J. C. Pierson Presides at Interesting Session.

A resolution endorsing the scheme to establish a Federal Childrens' Bureau was unanimously passed by the Plainfield Mothers' Association at the meeting yesterday afternoon at the High School auditorium and copies of it will be sent to Senator James E. Martine and Congressman William E. Tuttle so that when the bill comes up in Congress again this winter it will have previously been called to their attention and their support of it requested. The meeting was in keeping with the season and a program under the title of "The Children's Christmas, or How to Preserve the Children's Christmas," was carried out.

Mrs. J. C. Pierson, the newly elected president, was in the chair. She was chosen to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. H. B. Corbusier, who was made first vice-president to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Morris Benton. The general subject had been divided under separate heads and these had been assigned to different women as follows: Interpretation of the children's Christmas, Mrs. Morris Benton; Stories, Songs and Pieces, Mrs. E. D. Hutchinson; How to Make Poor Children Happy, Mrs. H. M. Maxson; Gifts Children Can Make, Mrs. J. B. Groendyke; Choice of Toys, Mrs. W. A. Parker; The "Do-With" Toys, Mrs. William Sandford, Jr.; Celebrating Christmas Day, Mrs. Penn; Use of the Christmas Tree, Mrs. C. G. Monroe; Christmas Conditions, Mrs. William C. Hubbard; Spirit of the Season in Nuremberg, Mrs. H. A. Johnson; in Denmark, Mrs. O. E. Mogensen; in England, France and Italy, Miss Bateman.

A large and creditable collection of gifts made by the pupils of the city schools was displayed, the teachers being in charge. The next meeting will be held January 12, when Dr. H. D. Corbusier will deliver a lecture on The Prevention of Disease in Children.

The resolution sent Senator Martine and Congressman Tuttle follows: "We, the members of the Plainfield Mothers' Association, do hereby petition and strongly urge that when the Child Bureau bill comes before the Senate and Congress again this winter, you will give it your vote and support and do all you can to secure its passage." The resolution was signed by all the members present after being unanimously passed. The bill in question has been in Congress for three winters and has passed the lower house once. Through the agitation of mothers' congresses and associations it will be revived during the present session.

OFFICERS FOR YEAR OF FORESTERS COURT.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters at its meeting last night elected these officers for the ensuing year:

ENGINEER SUBMITS SEWER BEDS PLANS

The scheme to improve and enlarge the sanitary sewage system of the city was discussed last night when George W. Fuller, of New York, appeared before the councilmanic sewer committee and presented plans for the work as previously directed by action of the Common Council. It is proposed so far as possible to eliminate all objectionable features by improved methods.

While the general method of disposal at the beds will be somewhat along those now in force, it will be improved upon to a considerable extent and it is believed will render the system much less objectionable. The plan is to increase the capacity of the disposal plant about fifty per cent. which it is believed will be sufficient to take care of the increased flow of sewage for many years to come.

Mr. Fuller explained in detail his plans and they appeared to meet with the approval of the councilmen. The next step will be to secure the consent of the State Board of Health and the plans will be sent to Trenton for that purpose. If the approval is forthcoming, bids will be advertised for. The sewer committee is anxious to have the work completed as early as possible next year as there is now an urgent need for the improvements which will take care of the increased flow of sewage.

While Dunellen has not taken any definite step toward interfering with Plainfield's plans for enlarging the sewage disposal plant, it is stated on authority that that municipality will strongly oppose the same and will have its representatives go before the State Board of Health and the Legislature, if necessary for the purpose of defeating the objects of Plainfield.

GEORGE WATSON IN BANKRUPTCY

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was yesterday filed against George Watson, a dealer in horses, whose New York stables are at 212 West 50th street, New York, Mr. Watson is well known here, where he has been an exhibitor at the local horse show.

The creditors named in the petition are Paul A. Sorg, the amateur whip, who more than a year ago sold out his stable of prize winning horses; Atkins & Durbrow, importers, with offices at 160 Pearl street, who have supplied Watson with peat moss, and Percy E. Hoge.

The claims of the three creditors amount to $12,447 for goods sold and delivered and on notes. Admission of insolvency is alleged in the petition.

The assets, consisting of a stock of show horses, are valued at $40,000.

Judge Holt appointed Charles C. Nadal, a lawyer with offices at 92 Liberty street, as receiver, with a bond of $20,000.

Watson has for years been one of the most prominent exhibitors at horse shows held in this section of the country, and he has won hundreds of blue as well as other ribbons.

Mr. Watson has recently made his home on the Watson farm at Gladstone.

WOMEN['S] RELIEF CORPS HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION.

The Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., at its regular meeting last night elected these officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. Hattie L. Gibbons; senior vice president, Miss Try Mattox; junior vice president, Mrs. Mary Meiers; treasurer, Mrs. S. P. Struthers; chaplain, Mrs. Sarah Mattox; conductor, Mrs. Emma K. Frazee; guard, Mrs. M. F. Pitts; first delegate to department convention, Mrs. M. F. Pitts; second delegate, Mrs. Sarah E. Clarkson; alternates, Miss Evelyn Manley, Mrs. Hattie Kirch. The installation will take place jointly with that of the G. A. R. The women will give a social to the members of the Post on December 22.

B. ESTROM'S PLACE ENTERED BY BURGLARS.

The tailoring shop of Benny Estrom, located on Somerset street just over the bridge, was entered by burglars last night. They cut away a wooden shutter and removed a part of the window sash to get inside. Two overcoats and two suits of clothes were taken. Chief Marshal Weiss was notified and made a careful inspection of the premises. The job indicated that someone acquainted with the place had turned the trick. The stolen clothing was valued at about $100.

MEN'S CLASS DINE

Dr. N. H. Probasco's Bible Society Enjoy Second Annual Banquet.

HELD AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, J. E. Church, F. S. Thompson and F. K. Anderson Among the Speakers.

Twenty of the seventy young men present last night at the second annual banquet of Dr. N. H. Probasco's Bible class, were baptized by the Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss during his pastorate at the First Baptist church. He was one of the speakers and made this statement with pardonable pride and evident pleasure. In addition to making an address Dr. Norman Probasco presided and introduced the other speakers who were Arthur M. Harris, superintendent of the First Baptist church Sunday school; James E. Church, former superintendent; F. S. Thompson and Francis K. Anderson.

The tables were spread in the Boys' department rooms which were all thrown into one by the removal of partitions. The menu included everything that goes to make an ideal turkey supper. During the serving of the dinner a quartet comprising Messrs. Stein, Cubberly, Neuman and Dunning sang appropriate selections.

Dr. Chambliss took for his theme the "Uniqueness of the Class," which has grown from two small classes to one with more than seventy-five members all about the same age. At this point he mentioned having baptized twenty of them. Mr. Harris was the next speaker congratulated the members in having a medical man of high spiritual character for teacher, and gave a little straight business talk about the development of brain and character as assets in the business world, saying that they commanded their worth and won the respect of associates.

Mr. Church emphasized to the young men the spiritual life as applied to the political issues of the day, asserting that it is the duty of the young men of the present day to form views on public questions and that Christians are needed in politics.

Mr. Thompson advised the members not to be satisfied with themselves, their lives, or their class, but to keep striving to do a little better all the time in everything, and after a while if they do not give way to discouragements, troubles will appear smaler and smaller and finally disappear entirely. In closing he

CHAPLAIN STEVENSON TO TELL OF JOURNEY

Chaplain George E. T. Stevenson, U. S. Navy, well-known traveler and observer, who accompanied the Atlantic fleet on its trip around the world, will be the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which time he will tell of the world-wide work of the association. Chaplain Stevenson was on the Battleship Virginia on the memorable cruise.

The subject of his lecture, which will be based upon facts and impressions obtained on that long journey, will be the "Y. M. C. A. as Seen on the Cruise of the Atlantic Fleet Around the World." The lecture will be amply illustrated by over sixty fine slides prepared under the direction of Mr. Stevenson, nearly one-half of which are colored. This lecture has already been given before large audiences of men in the associations at Trenton, Paterson, Lakewood and other cities. The lecture will be free. In the evening Chaplain Stevenson will speak at the First M. E. church on "Missions As Seen On the Cruise of the Atlantic Fleet Around the World."

A WARNING WORD TO CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS

With the approach of the holiday season and its accompanying crowds of Christmas shoppers, Fire Chief T. O. Doane asks that eager buyers keep mindful of certain facts that may mean the prevention of injury or loss of life in the event of a fire or panic. One of the most important and which has the disapproval of all the merchants is the custom of taking perambulators into the stores as persisted in by many women. They not only block the aisles and impede progress under ordinary conditions but in the event of any trouble would produce untold trouble. Mothers should keep the vehicles absolutely outside for the safety of the youngsters as well as others.

The "shop early" injunction should also be borne in mind. Leaving everything until the last minute only adds to the rush and works good to no one. Too much care cannot be used in decorating, both in homes and stores, and the less inflammable material is used the less likely serious fires are apt to occur.

To the Shoppers.

Beginning next Friday the stores will remain open evenings for Christmas shoppers.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It's all up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.——— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

NAMES BUTTFIELD

Sewage Commission Member Will Fill Borough Council Vacancy.

SUCCEEDS B. R. WALDRON.

Announcement of Choice by Mayor Smalley Leads to Some Pointed Remarks by Mr. Woolston.

The vacancy in the Borough Council, caused by the resignation of Barzilla R. Waldron, was filled, last night, when Mayor Smalley's appointment of William J. Buttfield was unanimously confirmed by the members of the organization. The selection was somewhat in the nature of a surprise as very few of the wise ones had "picked the winner." A lobby of 100 or more citizens attended the special session called to name Mr. Waldron's successor.

Directly after Mayor Smalley had announced his appointment, Councilman Milne introduced a resolution that it be confirmed. This move brought Mr. Woolston to his feet and for several minutes a lively dialogue ensued between him and the mayor. The councilman said he could not understand why Mr. Waldron had resigned at this time inasmuch as he had not attended a meeting for seven months. If he could stay away that long without quitting, he said, he could just as well have waited until the first of the year and permitted Mayor-elect Clark to fill the vacancy. The Mayor retorted that the law gave him the right to appoint a man in an emergency of this kind and he proposed to do it. He added that he had first offered the appointment to George T. Rogers, W. F. Williams and Charles L. Nichols, but each in turn declined.

"I would not have voted for any one of them," said Mr. Woolston.

The mayor continued his remarks, stating that he believed the people would have confidence in Mr. Buttfield as he had been working very hard for the interests of the borough as a member of the sewage commission and could be counted upon to continue his efforts in all municipal matters. This brought the interjection from Mr. Woolston that anyone who had worked against the interests of the borough as Mr. Buttfield had done in the consolidation fight would be doing no more than right to do something beneficial. However, Mr. Woolston expressed pleasure that Mr. Buttfield had decided to accept the appointment and voted to confirm the selection.

To Mr. Woolston's reference to consolidation Mayor Smalley replied that if all the people who opposed it were compelled to work for the interest of the borough, North Plainfield would be getting a lot of good work done for nothing.

Before adjourning, the Council disposed of a couple of minor matters of routine business. A bill from Arthur Brokaw aggregating $66.42 for a drawing was ordered paid and Mr. Van Arsdale reported favorably on a petition for a light on Park place between Grove and Duer streets. It was granted on a vote.

ANOTHER BIG REALTY DEAL IN CITY'S CENTER.

In addition to the purchase of the U. B. Crane property on East Front street last week, William H. Abbott yesterday closed a deal through Albert M. Lederer, broker, whereby he secured the property now occupied by the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., and adjoining that bought from Mr. Crane. This plot is known as the J. B. Luttbeg estate and gives Mr. Abbott a frontage of 55 feet with a depth of 188 feet. The total purchase represents an investment of $40,000.

Both properties are at present occupied by one story buildings. In the near future these will be raised and replaced by a modern business building with stores on the ground floor, offices and flats on the upper.

Funeral of Patrick Kearns.

The funeral service of Patrick Kearns was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church, Father W. H. Miller, pastor, being in charge. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The pall-bearers included four sons, John, Joseph, Thomas and Henry Kearns and Henry Hefferan and Vincent Killeshus.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Plainfield People Should Learn to Detect the Aproach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's disease, or dropsy. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Plainfield.

Miss Lena Wahl, 335 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I can endorse Doan's Kidney Pills highly. They did me so much good when I was suffering from pains in my back caused by disordered kidneys that I think there is nothing like them. The promptness with which Doan's Kidney Pills disposed of my trouble was surprising and gratifying. They not only removed the pain and lameness but strengthened my kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

RAILROADS ORDERED TO PROVIDE FREE CUPS

Twenty railroad companies operating in New Jersey were notified by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners yesterday that beginning January 1 they must provide individual drinking cups, or glasses in sanitary conditions, upon all trains on which water is furnished for drinking purposes.

Such drinking vessels are to be available, without cost, to any passenger upon a request made to the conductor or brakeman of the trains or to the porter of any car.

The order was issued by the board as the result of complaints brought against several lines which failed to supply their patrons with drinking water after the taking effect of the law of last winter prohibiting the use of common drinking cups in any public place.

The order of the board is directed to the following railroad companies: Pennsylvania, Lackawanna, Erie, Central, Lehigh Valley, Susquehanan, West Jersey and Seashore, Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Reading, Lehigh and Hudson River, Lehigh and New England, Raritan River, Tuckerton Railroad, Pemberton and Highstown, New York Central and Hudson River, Wharton and Northern, Morristown [illegible] Erie, Rahway Valley, New Jers[illegible] and Pennsylvania, New York and Long Branch.

FIRST PELLAGRA DEATH IN STATE IS REPORTED.

A disease, new to New Jersey, will be included for the first time as a cause of death in the next report of the State Board of Health.

For the first time on record, pellagra has been fatal in this State, the burial permit for Mrs. Martha Burtis, forty years old, who died at St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, November 29, having been listed at the city clerk's office.

Pellagra is a disease peculiar to the South, where it has become a problem and where it is being fought by government and philanthropists. New Jersey physicians have regarded it as so far removed from their experience and practise that little attention has been given it here.

When Mrs. Burtis, who lived at North Branch, in Hunterdon county, was taken sick, Dr. F. G. Clark, of Whitehouse, and Dr. H. V. Davis, of North Branch, were somewhat puzzled, but they suspected pellagra and treated her accordingly.

Brought to the hospital in Newark as a private patient, Mrs. Burtis went under the care of Dr. H. J. F. Wallhauser, of 47 New street, Newark, a specialist in dermatological diseases. She was buried from the residence of her father, Henry Bryan, at Liberty Corner, Monday. She was well known in Newark, having been a dressmaker there for many years.

TRENTON SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

A tract of land covering about twenty-three acres, lying near the present sewer outlet into the Delaware River, is to be purchased by Trenton for the location of its sewage disposal plant, if the present plans of Commissioner Fell, who is in charge of the project, are executed. The commission Wednesday authorized an issue of $15,000 in bonds, part of which will be expended in buying the ground.

The action means that the city is ready to go ahead with the establishment of the disposal plant and take advantage of the offer of L. T. Leet, of the New York Filtration Company, which proposes to construct one-twelfth of the disposal plant, or a unit, according to the company's designation, at its own expense, on the condition that if it meets with the approval of the city commission and the State Board of Health, the city is to pay for the construction thereof. If the unit, when completed, does not come up to the city and State official's ideas, it is not to cost the city a penny.

Legislators Addresses.

The New Jersey members of Congress are all permanently located for the winter in Washington as follows: Senator Briggs, 204 R street; Senator Martine, the Cecil, Fifteenth and L streets; Representative Gardner, the Dewey Hotel; Representative Browning, 146 East Capitol street; Representative Scully, the New Willard; Representative Wood, the Cochran; Representative Tuttle, the Benedick apartments; Representative Hughes, the Driscoll; Representatives McCoy and Townsend, the Wyoming apartments; Representative Kinkead, Congress Hall; Representative Hamill, the Plaza apartments.

Delicate Ladies and the Aged.

For medicinal use physicians say Speer's Port Wine surpasses the imported. Delicate ladies and aged people find it the best wine to be procured, and so blood-making as to absolutely give strength and color and prolong life.

Favors Woodrow Wilson.

Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, said yesterday that he considered Woodrow Wilson the strongest man among the Democrats for the Presidential nomination.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOMERVILLE.

District Deputy O'Keefe, of Plainfield, made an official visitation to Somerset Council, Knights of Columbus, last night, when the third degree was further exemplified to the candidates recently taking that degree. It was also the annual election of officers.

Rev. F. J. Soule, pastor of the Baptist church, has announced a children's evening, when he will deliver an illustrated lecture on "Boys and Girls of India," on Sunday, December 17.

The first meeting of the Amusement Club for the season was held on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Hugh W. Gaston, of West Cliff street, as hostess.

Mrs. Studdiford and children, Neil and Met Studdiford, of Brooklyn, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Quick, west of Raritan.

The members of Somerville Engine Company will hold their annual dinner at the Ten Eyck House next Tuesday evening.

Miss Susan Anderson is the guest of her aunts, the Misses Eliza and Margaret Anderson, at Basking Ridge.

S. D. Apgar and Robert Chiniski have gone to Florida, where they expect to spend the winter.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY

Councilman C. H. Berkheiser is acting mayor of the borough pending the incoming administration. The resignation of Mayor Sandford and Mayor-elect Richards as councilman, were receved at the last meeting of the Council.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. M. L. Rarick. An address was delivered by Mrs. Mary Tomlinson, of Plainfield, and it was followed by a social and refreshments.

The Christmas entertainment of the Presbyterian church will be held on Thursday night, Dec. 28. The usual cantata will be omitted and a program of music, carols and recitations will be furnished by the school.

Work has commenced on the foundation of the bungalow to be erected at Front street and Jackson avenue for Frank Wynkcop.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Mrs. George Schenck, of New Market, has returned home after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Soper.

George Huff, of Arlington, but formerly of this village, has taken a position on the Lehigh Valley railroad here.

Mrs. Lewis Randolph and children, Elma and Russell, have gone to visit friends in Flatbush.

Eugene Caffrey has removed from his home on Church street, to John street, Plainfield.

Miss Mayme Gallagher, of Pittsburg, is visiting friends in the village.

Mrs. P. F. Kaine has returned from a visit with Plainfield friends.

J. Y. Wilson, of Dunellen, visited friends in the village yesterday.

Mrs. Wyckoff, of Fords, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Albert Soper.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The young people of the Baptist church held an enjoyable social last night in the church parlors. After the regular weekly rehearsal for the cantata, which will be rendered during the holidays, two hours were spent playing games and enjoying music. Refreshments were served.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be the morning preaching service by the pastor, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, at 10:30; Bible study meeting at 4 p. m. Evening service will be the B. Y. P. U. meeting at 7 p. m.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting tonight at the Methodist church will be in charge of Rev. Mr. Rockey.

Mrs. John Alberts has returned from a visit with relatives at Long Island City.

Mrs. Henry C. Meyer has returned from a visit with relatives at Newark.

Mrs. William C. Cory has been entertaining friends from New York.

Second Fire This Week.

The house of James Neilson on Madison avenue, Westfield, was totally destroyed by fire at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The loss was about $3,000, partly covered by insurance. The house was on the outskirts of the town and a mile from the water supply. The road was in bad condition and not much more than a wood road, yet the automobile engine made the trip to the scene in good shape. It could not be used, however, owing to a lack of water. On Wednesday fire totally destroyed the Casino on Elm street entailing a lost of $30,000.

WRITES LOS ANGELES ON HUDSON OUTRAGES.

Prosecutor Pierre Garven, of Hudson Co., sent a long communication, Friday to District Att'y Fredericks, of Los Angeles, in which he requested information as to whether or not the McNamara brothers or Ortie McManigal in their confessions threw any light on the two attempts to blow up the new Hoboken viaduct, or the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge.

The attempts in question occurred about three years ago, and have always remained a mystery. Mr. Garven is inclined to believe that the work was done by non-residents.

As to whether or not the statute of limintations would operate in behalf of the guilty person or persons the prosecutor said:

"Whoever perpetrated the outrages became fugitives from justice, and I am satisfied that they could be brought to trial, even at this late day."

When the Hoboken viaduct was partially destroyed there was not a vestige of a clue to be found. Mr. Garven assigned a number of his detectives to learn what dynamite sales were made in this vicinity, and traced down every registered sale. He was convinced at the time that the dynamite was not purchased at any of the Eastern depots for the sale of the explosive.

COURT QUICKLY BALKS A CHRISTMAS JOURNEY.

Elizabeth, Dec. 9.—A contemplated trip to Europe was cut off Wednesday afternoon when Jeremiah Bentley, a saloon-keeper, was sentenced by Judge Atwater to pay a fine of $500 and serve thirty days in the county jail.

Bentley, therefore instead of spending Christmas with his relatives in Russia, will be the guest of Union county during that period. He was to sail for the other side Wednesday and had purchased his ticket. He had also disposed of his property. Bentley had five indictments hanging over him, three of atrocious assault and two for assault and battery. He had pleaded guilty to two of these.

Prosecutor Swift got word that the saloon-keeper was about to leave the country so he had him arrested on a sheriff's capias.

There is also another charge against him of Sunday selling on which he was convicted, but he carried the case to the Supreme Court, where it is still awaiting a decision.

WITNESSES WAITING PLAY CARDS AND SEW.

Cards and sewing bags were brought by witnesses subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury upon the continuation of the investigation of the charge of arson preferred against Ellis Appleby, of Old Bridge, by the Middlesex county grand inquest Thursday. The women witnesses brought with them their sewing bags and spent the time while waiting to be called making fancy articles for Christmas gifts. The young people summoned brought packs of cards with them and played pinochle in one of the ante-rooms to pass the time. Miss Julia Zwingleiss was among the witnesses called. She lived with the Beebe family over the Selover & Stopaker store, which was destroyed, and discovered the fire which broke out in the store.

STATE GRANGE AGAINST ANY AUTO RECIPROCITY.

Atlantic City, Dec. 9.—The resolutions opposing automobile reciprocity with New York and Pennsylvania, which were submitted by the executive committee, were adopted Wednesday by the New Jersey Grange, Patrons of Husbandry.

Automobile Commissioner Smith's plan for an automatic supplementary registration of automobiles coming into New Jersey from other States was indorsed.

State Road Commissioner Stevens reiterated his advocacy of State rather than county supervision of the main thoroughfares.

Committees were named by the Grange in part as follows:

Constitution and by-laws—Chairman, A. W. Fund; A. G. Smith, Francis A. Branan, John G. Borton and Sisters L. J. Allen, Hendershot and Horner.

Finance—Chairman, William H. Borden; John Warrick and J. T. Allison.

Good of the Order—Chairman, Collins B. Allen; Thomas W. DeKay, William T. Hagman, E. D. Burley, Walter S. Haines and Sisters Suthhin, Pew, Sailor and Lippincott.

Co-operation—Chairman, George P. Lippincott; James D. Carlough, William N. Dubois, William R. Sharp, M. W. Githens, Sisters Flanigan, Patrick, Hickman, Stoll.

Resolutions—Chairman, T. Wood Wyne; J. H. Douglas, Richard W. Cook, Enoch E. Madara, Elbert Kirby and Sisters DeCamp, Rogers, Anna Haines and Wilson.

Claims and Grievances—Chairman, David F. Duncan; Burris Snyder, W. H. Lawson, Herman Croshaw, Henry P. Heiffer and Sisters Anderson, Doughty, Wicoff and Fox.

Master's Address—Chairman, Henry L. Davis; George Redshaw, William C. Dawson, Charles Turner, Frank Husel and Sisters Stillwell, Gaventa, Jackson and Thornley.

The State Grange now has assets of $10,000.

CRANFORD WOMAN SUES FOR JEWELRY INSURANCE.

New York, Dec. 9.—Both sides yesterday summed up at the trial in the Supreme Court of the suit instituted by Mrs. Frederick B. Ryan against a local fidelity concern for $2,500. The plaintiff is the wife of a Cranford, N. J., contractor. She has an insurance policy in the defendant company. The policy covers loss of her jewelry by theft.

Four rings belonging to the Ryans disappeared last February. They were valued at $2,500. Demand was then made on the insurance company for the value of the missing rings. The company declined to pay until positive evidence, showing the rings were stolen, was produced. It was asserted by the company that there was a possibility that the rings had been lost. It was then decided by the Ryans to begin legal action.

Counsel for the company, at Wednesday's proceedings, asked for a dismissal of the suit. It was declared that no evidence showing theft had been placed before the jury. The testimony of witnesses was to the effect that the gems were discovered missing at a reception. Mrs. Ryan was a guest and when she went to put on the gems found that they were not in the hand bag in which she believed they were at the time she left home.

called for a standing toast to the strongest person on earth "Mother." Prolonged cheering followed the toast.

Mr. Anderson spoke on Elbert Hubbard's "Message to Garcia," as applied in daily life saying that independence of thought is needed more and more each day. Dr. Probasco was the last speaker and urged the boys to maintain the high standard established by punctuality regularity and close attention in Sunday school work. This would develop the brotherly side and would result in greater social leaning toward each other. The dinner came to a close by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." All of the speakers were enthusiastically applauded and cheered.

PATRICK KLINEY INJURED WORKING ON COLLEGE BLDG.

In an effort to avoid being struck by a piece of iron, Patrick Kliney, a stationary engineer employed at the work of rebuilding Mt. St. Mary College, fell over a barrel of lime this morning and was so badly injured that he was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital. His injuries are not of a serious nature and unless some complications set in he will be about in a few days. The iron was a part of a lift his engine was pulling to the roof. It slipped from the noose when near the top and seeing it descending, Kliney tried to get out of the way.

WOMAN'S CULTURE.

It is not the wish of the advocates of the higher culture of woman's powers to withdraw her from her existing spheres of interest and activity, but rather to fit women for the more enlightened performance of their special duties, to help them toward learning how to do better what they have to do, whether as members of society alone or in the higher walks of a mother's or a teacher's duties, or in any of the arts or professions which may be chosen by them.

The work that many women are doing nobly now, without instruction, how much more nobly and efficiently would they be able to do it if they had been taught.

When you are tired and sick of having your eyes fitted by the old-style way of fitting glasses, or the so-called subjective test of putting lines and letters on the wall and asking whether you can see this or that letter and line; when you have been all through this many times and have been unable to get fitted correctly, come to us and we will look through your eyes and take the exact focus and error of your sight and give you comfort and relief with proper fitting glasses. We make this visit to introduce this system of fitting glasses.
If you have headaches, dizziness, nervousness or any trouble resulting from eye-strain, come to us and have your eyes measured by the new system, from which wonderful results are obtained.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

FURS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS AT

Charles Kurtzman's Fur Store

178 EAST FRONT STREET, Dr. Pittis' Office Building.

At such a big reduction in prices

That no one either in town or out of town can beat us.

If there is any gift to be given in the fur line, why not buy at a place where you are positively sure you are getting a guarantee for your money. We always give you the best satisfaction in quality, style and prices, because we are manufacturers and can save you the profits that you would otherwise have to pay the middleman. When we offer a reduction it means that the prices are cut to one-half the figure quoted elsewhere.

We, the CHARLES KURTZMAN FUR STORE, were the first fur store established here in town and have leased our premises for many years. No other can say the same and speak the truth in doing so.

NOTICE—We will refund the purchase price to any customer who will prove that they can get the same goods elsewhere at a lower figure. Alterations and remodelling are specialties. Remember the place.

20TH ANNIVERSARY OF ENDEAVOR SOCIETY

The twentieth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was observed at the morning service today, when an interesting program was arranged. Frank Kellogg as president was in charge, and he was assisted by Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the church, in the opening exercises. There was special music with anthems by the church choir.

The address was made by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, Scotch Plains, who congratulated the society on its progress for the past twenty years, commending the members for what they have accomplished and expressing the hope that they would be even more useful in the future.

The annual report of the secretary, Miss Nettie G. Stillman, was of interest. It showed that seven new members were added to the roll during the year, the present total membership being ninety-nine, forty-five of which are on the active list. Attention was called to the excellent work of the budget committee of which Raymond Burdick is the chairman. This committee has raised its pledge of $130, which will be divided among the various departments of church work. In fact all amounts have been raised and the society starts the new year with much promise.

Miss Stillman's report, which was an excellent one, also included that of the treasurer, Frank Langworthy. This showed the year's receipts to be $148.45 and the disbursements, $120.12, leaving a balance of $28. The work of the society's committees were also touched upon showing that they have been active, and special note was made of the work of the Junior C. E. Society, which has gained seven new members and has an average attendance of twenty-three at each meeting. Mrs. Frank Kellogg is the superintendent. The senior society was organized December 9, twenty years ago, and has continued to be a factor in the religious life of the church.

BASKETBALL.

The girls' basketball team of the North Plainfield High School will play the girls' team from the New Brunswick High School in Debele Hall, Thursday afternoon, December 14, at 4 o'clock.

The Iroquois A. A., of Newark, will meet the Hope chapel basketball team at the chapel gymnasium tonight at 8:15 o'clock. Both teams are evenly matched and a fine game is expected.

The Somerville High School basketball team has cancelled its game scheduled for today with the North Plainfield High School five. This was to have been a county championship contest.

1ST M.E. WOMEN HOLD NEW ENGLAND SUPPER

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, of which Mrs. L. M. French is the president, and for the purpose of raising money with which to pay for the new kitchen just completed at the church, a New England supper was given in the basement of the church edifice last night. It was largely attended. There was an abundance of goods things to eat. The women were assisted in their work by having use of the new kitchen which is complete in every way.

There were four general chairmen, Mrs. John Valiant, Mrs. James C. Peck, Mrs. Arthur H. Osmun and Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, who had the details of the affair in charge. Supper was served at separate tables, at each one of which the following members of the society presided: Mrs. Arthur H. Osmun, Mrs. L. D. Albin, Mrs. Stephen H. Tugwell, Mrs. Frank Crawford, Mrs. Angus P. Atwood, Mrs. Harry Gee, Miss Hope Irene Miller, Mrs. James C. Peck, Mrs. Harry K. Dumont, Mrs. John M. Lewis, Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. W. A. W. Burnett and Mrs. Arthur T. Goodenough.

The above named women were assisted in serving by the folowing:

Miss May Randolph, Miss Edith Randolph, Miss Jane Bailey, Mrs. Daniel Sherwood, Miss Helen Edgar, Miss Florence Pryor, Miss Ethel Pryor, Miss Lucile Ewart, Miss Minnie B. Sharp, Miss Mildred Burnett, Miss Harris, Miss Edna French, Miss Jane Crawford, Miss May Doane, Mrs. Samuel Clark, Miss Zeta Voorhees and Miss Moyer. E. A. Edgar was the efficient cashier. The supper was served from 6:30 to 8:30 and afterward there was a social hour.

YOUNG WOMEN'S SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, a successful social, sale and tea was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, on Central avenue, yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. It was a delightful affair and was largely attended by members and friends of the society. The sum of $65 was realized from the sale, while thirty or more cook books compiled by members of the society were ordered. Mrs. John G. MacLaughlin, who was attired to represent a cook, was kept busy all the afternoon receiving orders for the new cook book.

A feature was the program which included violin selections by Miss Marguerite Burnet, piano selections by Miss Clyde Burnet and Miss Alice Drake; soprano solos by Mrs. Robert Giddes and several readings by Mrs. Robert Lowry. The performers were all heartily applauded.

Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen and Mrs. William A. Conner poured tea, and they were assisted by Mrs. Gifford Cooley, Miss Bessie Flanders and Mrs. Norman H. Probasco. The various members of the society were in charge of the sale of cake, candy and fancy articles and everything was disposed of at good prices. The members of the society greatly appreciated the courtesy and hospitality of Mrs. Harris in opening her home for the affair.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Williard Loyal Temperance Legion will meet tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at the W. C. T. U. rooms to rehearse the Christmas music.

Rev. Dr. George C. Wilding, a remarkably interesting speaker, will occupy the pulpit at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, tomorrow morning and evening. W. C. Lawton will lead the Epworth League meeting in the evening.

A special vesper service will be held at the Congregational church tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, the subject being "An Hour with the New Hymns." Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor, will give a short talk on "The Hymns of the Kingdom."

The Plainfield Sunday-school Association, including represenatives of schools from Elizabeth to Somerville and other nearby towns not directly on the line of the New Jersey Central, is holding a regular meeting in the parish house of Grace church this afternoon. The meeting is being largely attended by Sunday-school officers, teachers and workers in general.

The feature of the program will be two addresses, one on "Missions in the Sunday-school," by Rev. Dr. W. T. Holden, archdeacon of Suffold, L. I., and the other on "Teacher Training," by Rev. R. J. Thomson, rector of St. Agnes' church, Little Falls, N. J. The addresses are to be followed by a general discussion and a social hour during which tea will be served.

—Andrew E. Kenney, of Watchung avenue, has been granted a patent on a washing machine.

Mrs. W. Remsen Taylor and Miss Mary B. Dickinson leave today for San Antonio, Texas, to visit Mrs. Taylor's son, Lieut. W. R. Taylor.

OUR COFFEE

produces a roaring good drink and a cup of it makes the king of breakfast drinks.

In buying coffee you sometimes get a nice looking coffee, the bean may be perfect as far as form goes and the coffee itself in the drink may be of a good flavor. Yet it may lack strength.

The poor woman who makes it gets blamed whereas the fellow who sold it is the real culprit. You will always find strength and flavor in our coffees and they are free from bitterness.

The demand increases simply and solely on account of pure quality. Shall we send you a pound to try?

REV. A. B. SHEPHERD IS MADE ARCHDEACON.

Solemn and impressive services marked the installation of the Rev. R. Bowden Shepherd, of Riverton, as archdeacon of the diocese of New Jersey, in Christ Episcopal church, Trenton, yesterday. In attendance were many Episcopal rectors from throughout the diocese, together with many members of local congregations. The installation service proper was conducted by Bishop Scarborough, while the rector of the church, the Rev. Robert W. Trenbath, assisted.

The special services set apart for the instalation of an archdeacon were read by Bishop Scarborough and the answers were given in a clear and audible voice by the candidate kneeling at the altar. Many of the rectors in attendance occupied positions about the chancel.

The sermon of the day was delivered by the Rev. Dr. H. B. Baker, rector of Princeton Episcopal church. Dr. Baker prefaced his remarks by stating that the service was an unusual one and consisted in setting apart the beloved brother as an archdeacon, an office worthy of especial attention.

SCHOOL JANITOR TESTS TENURE OF OFFICE LAW.

The first test of the law of last winter providing a tenure of office for janitors in public schools began yesterday at a hearing given by Assistant Commissioner of Education J. B. Betts in the case of J. R. Vickers, formerly a janitor in the Northfield district of Atlantic county.

Vickers was not reappointed by the local board at the expiration of the term provided in his contract of employment.

He claimed the protection of the tenure of office act, which the local board held was not enforcible. Mr. Betts reserved decision.

PATERSON FAMILY LOST IN PHILADELPHIA FIRE.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.—Three persons were burned to death or suffocated Wednesday night in a fire which destroyed the Marie apartment house at Sixteenth street, near Spruce street.

Those who lost their lives were Samuel Balfour, Mrs. Balfour and their nine-year-old daughter. The bodies were found on the fourth floor of the apartment, where they had rooms.

Mr. Balfour was manager of Woolworth's store at Eighth and Arch streets, this city, and his home was in Paterson, N. J.

WESTFIELD WITHOUT AN ENTERTAINMENT HALL.

A special meeting of the Westfield Board of Education has been called by President Egel to consider the feasibility of allowing entertainments and meetings to be held in the auditorium of the Washington School. The fire of Wednesday destroyed the Casino, the only audience hall in the town, and so many applications have already been made to the board for the use of the hall that it is deemed advisable to let the hall for public meetings temporarily.

Armor Plates to Be Harder.

Messrs. Krupps have been experimenting to find a substitute for the nickel-chrome combination which they have hitherto used for armor plate, and now they have adopted nickel-tungsten-steel for this purpose. It is said to have 11 per cent. greater resisting power than any yet employed, and plates made of it successfully resist projectiles moving 2,250 feet per second. It is not only harder, but tougher than nickel-chrome steel.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Kidneys.

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good bye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of the urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1239 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The Irish players appear in "The Playboy of the Western World" again at the Maxine Elliott Theatre this evening, using as a curtain-raiser Lady Gregory's "The Rising of the Moon," instead of "The Jail Gate," as previously announced. On Monday, St. John Ervine's "Mixed Marriage" will have its first performance in America.

To know the difference between an actress and an artist, consider the point of view of Madame Alla Nazimova, who is appearing in the "Marionettes" at the Lyceum theatre. The stage, from the footlights to the gridiron, is an area as familiar to Madame Nazimova as the palm of one's hand is to the ordinary man or woman. Of mere mechanical "effects" got by ingenious lighting, draping, decorations—secondary aids for attaining illusion in the theatre—she knows nothing and cares less. She thinks of the stage as a place where the most perfect illusion is got by the most perfect characterization, no matter how poor or rich the setting may be. People talk much of her wonderful technique. But it is simply this. The "effective" in stage lights, scenery or decoration may be striking, but the striking is not always the true; whereas nothing can be more effective than truth to what after all is the most powerful agency that can be exerted on any stage—not the mechanics of the theatre but the characters of the play.

No American composer has received such lavish praise as has been bestowed upon Victor Herbert, by the New York critics, for his delightful comic opera, "The Enchantress," in which beautiful Kitty Gordon is now appearing at the New York Theatre. "After clouds, sunshine," says Acton Davies in the Eevening Sun. "Whatever else you fail to hear in musical comedy this season, don't miss 'The Enchantress.' Its score is one long series of delightful numbers." "If people in large numbers," observes Adolph Klauber, dramatic critic of The Times, "do not go to see 'The Enchantress' it will be their loss. To begin with, Mr. Herbert has written in his most charming vein or veins, for he is a versatile musician, and he has scored some of his melodies so delightfully, that no small amount of pleasure is derived from the orchestra."

Every program announced at Keith and Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, seems to have in it more and bigger novelties than the one preceding it. This is evidence of a desire on the part of the management to present and procure the very best talent available. Next week, December 11, is a bill fairly bristling with bright things, a veritable banquet of comedy predominating. Miss May Tully, the clever actress, makes her welcome re-appearance, after a long absence and will present a one-act comedy of divorce life in Reno entitled "The Battle Cry of Freedom;" another special feature will be Charley Dooin, the famous redheaded manager and catcher of the Philadelphia National League baseball team. Silk O'Loughlin is reported as saying that Charley Dooin is the best baseball comedian on the stage today and Silk ought to know.

HOBOKEN COUNCIL ACT TAKEN TO GRAND JURY.

Rudolph Schroeder, secretary of the Hoboken Board of Trade, wants the Hudson County Grand Jury to indict the Hoboken Common Council, which he accuses of exceeding appropriations.

Schroeder appeared before the elisor-drawn jury Thursday afternoon and presented his charges, the outgrowth of the proposed improvement of Willow avenue, Monroe street and Second street, Hoboken.

It appears that the Council appropriated money that was deemed sufficient for the work, but that when the contract for the paving was let it was found to be sufficient only for the paving of Willow avenue and Second street. The Council, Schroeder claims, then transferred money from another fund to complete the improvement of Monroe street, which he says left a shortage in the funds raised in the tax budget for other purposes.

Mr Schroeder was before the grand jury for nearly an hour. It is reported that as he did not show any suspicious circumstances the grand jury decided against indictment. The Board of Trade has been closely following the acts of the Council. As the grand jury will be discharged today it is not believed there will be any extended investigation into Hoboken affairs.

MIDDLESEX ELECTION BILLS.

The Middlesex County Board of Freeholders Thursday signed election bills amounting to about $23,000.

The board took up the complaint of property owners in the vicinity of the Landing Bridge, who objected to traffic over the bridge being closed while a new draw was placed in position by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company over the Delaware and Raritan Canal. They declared that New Brunswick would lose much of the Christmas trade from that section if the bridge was closed. The freeholders have arranged so that the present bridge can be put in use at the Landing Bridge a short distance from its present location and traffic will be continued as usual.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE COMING OF AUSTEN WARE.

FROM boyhood Austen Ware had trod a calculate path. Judicious, masterful, possessed, he had gone through life with none of the temptations that had lain in wait for his younger brother, Phil. These traits were linked to a certain incapacity for bad luck and an unwearying tenaciousness of purpose. Seldom had any one seen his face change color, had seldom seen his poise of glacial complacency shaken.

Tonight, however, the oil lamps which glowed dully in the ceiling of the carriage threw their faint light on a face torn with passion. Barbara's beauty, whose perfect indifference no touch of sentimental passion had devitalized, had from the first aroused Ware's stubborn sense of conquest. He had been too wise to make missteps—had put ardor into the background, while surrounding her with tactful and graceful observances which unconsciously usurped a large place in her thought. In the end he had broken down an instinctive disinclination and converted it into liking.

But this was all. For the rest he had perforce been content to wait. Thus matters had stood when they parted a few months ago. He recalled the day he had sailed for Suez. Looking back across the widening water, he had conceived then no possibility of ultimate failure. "How beautiful she is!" he had said to himself. "She will marry me. She does not love me, but she cares for no other man. She will marry me in Japan." There had been nobody else then.

As he peered out into the glooming dusk all kinds of thoughts raced through his mind. Who was the man? Was this the resurrection of an old "affair" that he had never guessed? No. When he left her Barbara had been fancy free. It was either a "summer acquaintance" or one come to quick fruition on a romantic soil. He took out a cigar case and struck a match with shaking fingers. Had it even come to clandestine rendezvous? She had gone one way, the man another. A whirl of rage seized him. The slender metal snapped short off in the fierce wrench of his fingers. He thrust the broken case into his pocket with a muttered curse that sat strangely on his fastidious tongue.

Gradually out of the wrack emerged his dominant impulse, caution. He had many things to learn. He must find out how the land lay. He must move slowly, re-establish the old, easy, informal footing. Above all, he must lay himself open to no chance of a definite refusal. A plan began to take shape. His telegram had told her he would arrive in Tokyo next day. Meanwhile he would find out what Phil knew.

He left the train at Yokohama under cover of the crowd. In a half hour he was aboard his yacht. Two hours later he sat down to order his dinner on the terrace of the hotel, cool, unruffled, immaculately groomed. A hundred yards from the hotel front great floating wharfs had been built out into the water. They were gayly trimmed with bunting and electric lights in geometrical designs. A series of arches flanked them, and these were covered with twigs of ground pine. Ware had guessed these decorations were for the European squadron of Dreadnoughts, of whose arrival today's newspapers had been full.

Ware was not gregarious and tonight was in a sullen mood. But, with his habitual policy, he thrust this beneath the surface and in another moment was bowing to the introductions—Baroness Stroloff, her sister, a chic young matron whose natural habitat seemed to be Paris; the ubiquitous and popular Count Voynich and a statuesque American girl whose name Ware recognized as that of a clever painter of Japanese children.

The talk flew briskly hither and thither, skimming the froth of the capital's causerie—recent additions to the official set, the splendid new ballroom at the German embassy and the increasing importance of Tokyo as a diplomatic center, the coming imperial "cherry viewing garden party" and—at last!—the arrival of the new beauty at the American embassy.

"A real one!" commented Voynich, screwing his eyeglass in more tightly. "And that means something in the tourist season."

Ware's fingers flattened on the stem of his glass of yellow chartreuse as the artist said: "We are in the throes of a new sensation at present, Mr. Ware; a case of love at first sight.

"A CASE OF LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT."

It's really a lot rarer than the novelists make out, you know. We are all tremendously interested."

"But he knows her," said Voynich. "The other evening in Tokyo, Mr. Ware, Miss Fairfax mentioned having met you. She is from Virginia, I think."

Ware bowed. "She is very good to remember me," he said. "And so Miss Fairfax has met her fate in Japan?"

"Well, rather," said the artist. "I hear betting is even that she'll accept him inside a fortnight."

Ware sipped his liqueur with a tinge of relief. Evidently the world of Tokyo had not yet discovered that the new arrival's first name was that of his yacht.

"Daunt doesn't play according to Hoyle," grumbled Voynich. "She's a guest of his own chief, and he ought to give the others half a chance. He lives in the embassy compound, too, confound him! He monopolized her outrageously at the review the other day. He's an American 'trust.' I shall challenge him."

The voice of Commander De Kay broke in:

"Coppery hair and pansy brown eyes, a skin like a snowdrift caught blushing and a mouth like the smile of a red flower—a girl that Romney might have loved, slim and young and thoroughbred—there you have the capital sentence of the secretary of the American embassy."

Down the middle of the street came running a boy. His hands were full of what looked like small blue handbills. De Kay got up quickly. "There's an evening extra," he said. "It's the Kokumin Shimbun." He bolted down the steps, stopped the runner and returned with one of the blue sheets.

"Nothing special," he informed them. "Prices in Wall street are smashing the records. That looks like a clear political horizon, in spite of what the wiseacres have been saying. This visit of the squadron will prove a useful poultice, no doubt, to reduce international inflammation—its officers being shown the sights of the capital, and the celebrations to come off as per schedule, including the naval minister's ball tomorrow night. By the way," he added, turning to Ware, "I arranged for an invitation for you. It's probably at the hotel in Tokyo now, awaiting your arrival."

A little gleam came to Ware's eyes. The threads were in his hands, and this suited his plan. "Thanks," he said, "you're very kind, commander. I shall see the subject of your rhapsody, then, before the judge puts on his black cap."

"Ah, but you'll have no chance," laughed the baroness. "Trust a woman's eye."

"Unless his aeroplane takes a tumble," said the American girl reflectively. "There's always a chance for a tragedy there."

They rose to depart.

Ware drank his black coffee alone on the terrace. Daunt a secretary of embassy! A rival less experienced than he, full of youth's enthusiasms; a young Romeo wooing from the garden of officialdom! It had been a handful of days against his own round year, a few meetings at most to offset his long and constant plan. And as a result the thing he had seen through the car window. He shut his teeth. He would have taken bitter toll of that kiss.

As he lit his cigar one of the hotel boys came to him. On his arrival Ware had sent him to Phil's bungalow on the bluff with a note.

"Ware-San not at home," he said.

"Where is he?"

"No Yokohama now. He go Tokyo yesterday. Stay one week."

"Is he at the hotel there?"

"Boy say no hotel. House have got."

"What is the address?"

"Boy no must tell. He say letter send Tokyo club."

Ware's composure had been fiercely shaken that night, and this obstacle in his path pricked him to the point of exasperation. With impatience he threw away his cigar and walked out through the cool, brilliant evening. He left the bund and threaded the honcho-dori—the "main street." Midway of its length was a jeweler's shop window with a beautiful display of jewel jade. In it was hung a sign which he read with a wry smile, "English Spoken; American Understood." Ware entered and handed the Japanese clerk his broken cigar case. At his elbow a clerk was packing a jade bracelet into a tiny box for delivery. He wrapped and addressed it painstakingly with a little brush:

Esquire Philip Weare,
Kasumiga-tani Cho, 36.
Tokyo.

In the street Ware smiled grimly as he entered the address in his notebook. He had always believed in his luck. Tomorrow he would find Phil and gain further enlightenment—incidentally on the matter of jade bracelets. His mouth set in contemptuous lines as he walked back to the hotel.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE WOMAN OF SOREK.

"AND as to the foreigner named Philip Ware, that is all you know?"

"That is all, Ishida-San," Haru answered.

They stood in the cryptomeria shadows of Reinanzaka hill, from which he had stepped to her side as she came from the embassy gate. It was dark, for the moon was not yet risen, and the evening was very still.

Such an ambush by her lover, unjustified, would have been a dire affront to the girl's rigid Japanese code of decorum. That he had seen Phil greet her at Mukojima the evening before had shamed her pride, and in speaking of it tonight he had seemed at first to lay a rude finger on her maiden dignity. But she had seen in an instant that his errand was inspired by neither anger nor jealousy. He had touched at once her instinct of the momentous.

Her quick, clever brain and finely attuned perception read what lay beneath his questions. The great European expert whom Japan herself employed and the young foreigner who had pursued her—were they then, objects of question to that wonderful, many sided governmental machine which was lifting Japan into the front rank of modern nations? Although she had never shared the disfavor with which her father viewed her lover's duties, she had wondered at his present apparently menial position. Tonight she was gaining a quick glimpse beneath the surface. He told her nothing of the details which, though he could not himself have built a tangible indictment from them, had one by one clung together into a sharp suspicion that embraced the two men. But the agitation she felt in his words had sent a quick thrill through her, had tapped that deep racial well of feeling, the Yamato Damashii, which is the Japanese birthright. She felt a sudden passionate wish that she, though a woman, might pour herself into the mighty stream of effort, though she be but a whirling cherry petal in the great wind of her nation's destiny. He had come to her for any shred of information that might add to his knowledge of the youth who was now Bersonin's satellite. But she had been able to tell him nothing.

She bowed to his ceremonious farewell, a slim, misty figure that stood listening to his rapid footsteps till they died in the darkness. She walked up the dim slope with lagging pace. She was thinking deeply.

At the top of the hill, opposite the huge, rivet studded gate of the princess' compound, lay the lane on which the chapel stood. As she turned into the darker shade she was aware of two pedestrians coming toward her, of a voice which she recognized with a shiver of apprehension. The sentry box by the great gate was empty, and she stepped into it.

Dr. Bersonin and Phil paused at the turning, while the latter lit a cigar from a match which he struck on the sentry box. Haru's heart was in her throat, but her dark kimono blent with the wood and the flash that showed her both faces blinded his eyes.

"See!" said the doctor. A mile away from the low lying darkness of Hibiya park a stream of fireworks shot to the zenith, to explode silently in clusters of colored balls. "The first rocket in honor of the squadron!"

"Tomorrow the admiral has an imperial audience," said Phil, "and the superior officers are to be decorated."

"So!" said the other in a low, malignant voice. "And I, who have designed Japan's turrets and cheapened her arsenal processes, I may not wear the Cordon and Star of the Rising Sun!" In the darkness a smile of malice crossed his face. "We shall see if she will hold her head so high then! Whether war follow or not, it will damn her in the eyes of the nations. She will not recover her prestige in twenty years."

THERE WAS A FIRE IN HARU'S BOSOM.

They passed on down the dark slope, out of sight and hearing of the girl crouched in a corner of the sentry box. At the foot of the hill Bersonin said:

"It will take some days longer to finish my work, but the ships will stay for a fortnight. Tomorrow night I will mark the triangle on the roof of the bungalow, so that the angle of the tripod will be exact. There must be no bungling. You can go by an earlier train, so we shall not be seen together, and I shall return here in time for the ball."

There was a fire in Haru's bosom as she went on along the thorn hedges. She had heard every word, and she said the English sentences over and over to herself to fix them in her mind. What they had been talking of was the secret that lay beneath Ishida's questions. For an instant she had almost touched it. A feeling of deep pride rose in her. Japan was not sleeping; it watched. And in the path of the plotting danger stood her lover.

These two men hated Japan. War? They had used the word. Japan did not fear war. Had not that been proved? Her heart swelled. But the thing they were planning was her country's enduring humiliation, "whether war follow or not." She felt a sudden deep horror. Could such plots be and their God, her God now, not blast them with his thunder? And one of these men had spoken with her, touched her, kissed her! She struck herself repeatedly and hard on the lips.

The chapel was brilliantly lighted, and the rose window threw beautiful tints, like shawls of many colored gauze, over the shrubbery. She entered and slipped into a seat near the door. The lesson was being read. It was from the Old Testament, the modern, somewhat colloquial translation.

This-after, Samson a Sorek Valley woman called Delilah did love.
Then the Princes of the Philistines the woman-to up-came, saying:
As for you, by sweet discourse prevail that where his great power is or by what means overcoming, to bind and torture him we may be able * * *

It seemed to her suddenly that a great wind filled all the chapel and that the words sat on it. Slowly her face whitened till it was the hue of death.

She might find out the secret!

And Delilah to Samson said: Where your great power is or by what means overcoming to bind and torture you one may be able, this me tell.

She began to tremble in every limb. She a samurai's daughter? She thought of her father, aged and broken, grieving that he had had no son in the war. She had been but a useless girl child, left to plant paper prayers at the crossroads for the brave men who longed to achieve a glorious death. If she did this thing would it not be for Japan?

And he at last-to his mind completely opened.
The woman's knees-upon Samson did sleep and she called a man who of his head the seven locks cut off * * * and the power of him was lost.

If she did, would it avail? She remembered Phil's eyes on her face the day on the sands at Kamakura—their smoldering, reckless glow. She remembered the bamboo lane. In those daredevil kisses her woman's instinct had divined the force of the attraction she exercised over him, had felt it with contempt and a self humiliation that burned her like an acid. To use that for her purpose? But she was a Christian. From the Christian God's "Thou shalt not" there was no appeal.

She could no longer be a Christian.

But the old gods of her people shining from their golden altars—the ancient divinities who looked forever down above the sound of prayer—they would smile upon her.

M'MANIGAL CONFESSES ONE JERSEY CITY "JOB."

Indianapolis, Dec. 9.—Unpublished portions of Ortie McManigal's confession to Detective Burns, which was repeated to the grand jury, were made public here yesterday. It deals with details of the "jobs," which, he says, were carried out under John J. McNamara's direction, giving dates, purchase of dynamite and times of explosions. In all he tells of eighteen "jobs," including one at Greenville, Jersey City, N. J., in July of last year.

McManigal says he began working with the McNamaras in June, 1907, and committed various crimes under a man whose name he does not give because he is not under arrest, but who is supposed to be the much wanted Kaplan.

This man kept back part of the money that was to be given for wrecking bridges and factories, and after this discovery McManigal dealt with John J. McNamara personally, coming to this city frequently for consultation and getting the explosive at the Jones stable, where it had been planted, and in the basement of the Central Life building, where McNamara had his office as secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.

McManigal told of "jobs" which he and J. B. McNamara had done last year. Nitro-glycerin, used by the dynamiters, was termed "soup" by the gang. Before going to Greenville, McManigal blew up a plant at Akron, O. He then "pulled" the Greenville and McKee's Rocks "jobs."

BAR "COURT COURSE" FOR PUPILS IN BAYONNE.

Condemnation of the practise of taking pupils of the Bayonne High School to listen to proceedings in the police court was made by President James Benny, of the Board of Education, at a meeting of that body Thursday night. His remarks were provoked by a visit which Miss Osgood, teacher of civics in the High School, and her class made to Recorder Marx's court some time ago. There were many cases, President Benny said, in which the testimony was not fit for boys and girls in the High School to hear.

Superintendent of Schools John W. Carr will put a stop to the practise.

BRIDEGROOM NOT ON HAND.

"Deserted at the Altar" might have been the name of a little nuptial tragedy enacted at Madison, Thursday evening, when the wedding of Miss Amelia Forte and Dominic Cadillo was postponed, owing to the failure of the bridegroom to put in an appearance.

Mayor George W. Downs, who is acting as borough recorder since the death of Justice of the Peace Edward W. Scofield, was engaged to perform the ceremony. Miss Forte lives on North street, Cadillo is from Orange. Efforts to locate Cadillo failed. The ceremony was indefinitely postponed.

Valuable Picture.

A superb photogravure reproduction of the "Mona Lisa," by Leonardo da Vinci, will be given to any North American reader for 5 cents in cash and a coupon from the Sunday North American of December 10. This great North American offer comes at the holiday season, and it expresses, in a measure, the good will of The North American toward its readers. The unframed photogravure will be sent by mail to all readers who forward the coupon and 10 cents to cover postage and packing. Truly, the opportunity to obtain a reproduction of this great masterpiece was never before given by any newspaper. The photogravure is 14x20 inches, on fine art paper. The art store price of this photogravure would be $2.

Medal For Westfield "Vet."

Robert F. Mitchell, of 571 Cumberland street, Westfield, has received from Secretary of the Navy Meyer a medal commemorative of his service as a naval veteran in the Civil War. Mitchell served under Admiral Farragut in the West Gulf blockading squadron from May, 1864, to September, 1865. He was on the Arizona when that vessel was destroyed by fire at the mouth of the Mississippi River February 27, 1865. He escaped by swimming to shore, while seventy of his comrades lost their lives. Prior to joining the navy he was a member of Company F, Thirteenth Illinois Infantry, enlisting in May, 1861.

Postpone Action on County Job.

The Union County Board of Freeholders did not elect a county sealer of weights and measures Thursday, as expected. It was decided by the Republican majority to lay the matter over until the annual meeting on Thursday, January 4, when it will be made a caucus measure. The Republicans are determined that no Democrat will be given a chance to slip into the job through a split in the majority party. Only two candidates so far are in the field on the Republican side. They are former Freeholder John Farrell, of Rahway, and former Assemblyman Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth.

It would be worth a Thanksgiving turkey to know if in the summer of 1913 a sign would be swung to the breeze in Cincinnati bearing this: "William H. Taft, Attorney-at-Law."—Pasadena Star.

A Word to the Mothers on Christmas

At a recent meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association, a strong protest was presented against the lavish expenditure of money on expensive and useless gifts for children and a plea made for the practical present.

A bank book enclosed in an attractive Christmas envelope will make a gift that is not only practical, but is wise and educational as well.

With a deposit of $5.00 or more you can open a 4% interest account in our Special Department in the name of your child.

POLICE MAKE RAIDS

Chief Kiely and His Men Descend Upon a Pool Room and "Speakeasy."

TWELVE CAUGHT IN DRAG NET.

One of the Pool Room Proprietors Pleads Guilty—Proprietor of "Speakeasy" Fined $100—Other Court Cases.

The city court was overcrowded this morning with the friends of those who had been caught in the police drag net over Saturday night and yesterday. Interest was divided between the prisoners captured in two raids. The first one took place Saturday night when Chief Kiely and Roundsman Higgins "pulled" the pool room at 144 North avenue, broke up a poker game and arrested six young men who were playing. The second raid was made yesterday morning on the house occupied by William Oliver, on Muhlenberg place, suspected of being a "speakeasy." Five men and a woman, all colored, were taken from the house and arraigned before Judge William G. DeMesa this morning.

Dominic Rocco, one of the alleged proprietors of the pool room, pleaded guilty to the charge and was remanded for sentence tomorrow morning. Dominic Paretti, the man under whose name the place has been conducted was not captured in the raid and has not been seen about town since. If he returns he will be arrested. Those made prisoners were Thomas McNonnough, Thomas Brown, George Millar, Eugene Wilder, William Hand and William Schott. Sentence was in each case was suspended.

William Oliver, the proprietor of the alleged speakeasy was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or spend 30 days in the county jail. Until this afternoon he had not paid. Burgess Thorne, of South Second street, testified that on several occasions he has purchased whiskey in the Muhlenberg place house. The testimony of Louis Corbin, Watson Jackson, William Banks, Charles Demund, John Person and Ella Redd was so conflicting that it left small room for doubt as to the character of the house. Sentence on all the witnesses was suspended. Chief Kiely, Sergeant Overbaugh and Patrolman McDonald made the raid. William Morris, of East Fifth street, arrested for drunk and disorderly conduct, received a suspended sentence.

JUDGE PARKER SUPPORTS TAXPAYERS

The Board of Education, of Bernardsville township and the American Concrete Steel Company failed in their attempt on Saturday at the hearing in Jersey City before Judge Parker, if the Supreme Court, to set aside the certiorari recently obtained by Winfield S. Angleman, for interested taxpayers, to review the proceeding leading to the making of the contract for the new $31,000 high school building at Bernardsville.

They were represented at the hearing by Lindabury, Depue & Faulks and George W. W. Porter, of Newark, and testimony was taken for two days to sustain their contention. Mr. Angleman appeared in opposition to the application and met the testimony produced by an argument on the law applicable to the case. After hearing arguments on both sides, Mr. Angleman's position was sustained by Judge Parker, who refused the application.

GEORGE EVELAND WEDS MISS FRANCES MOTT.

George Eveland, of South Second street, and Miss Frances Mott were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William E. Mott, on Woodhaven avenue, Cranford. Rev. H. Rinesmith, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the young people, a number of whom were from this city.

Following the ceremony a reception was held before Mr. and Mrs. Eveland departed on a honeymoon trip, the destination of which has been a carefully guarded secret. Upon their return they will reside in this city.

GOVERNMENT DEAL RESULTS IN BOOM

The fact that the government proposes to erect a Federal building on Watchung avenue and Second street, has served to boom the value of property in that section of the city. Marchant Brothers, of Watchung avenue, have just purchased of Andrew Love, Sr., his residential property on East Second street, near Watchung, opposite the residence of W. A. Woodruff, on which is located a two story French roof house. The place will be remodeled and the firm will establish its dairy business there.

The two story brick building and property on the south corner of Watchung avenue and Second street, with a frontage of nineteen feet, has been sold to a local fruit dealer, who will take possesion in the spring. The fruit dealer paid $450 a foot for the land. This is a big advance over the former price of $100 a foot which was asked for property on Watchung avenue. In the real estate deal reported Saturday, whereby W. H. Abbott secured East Front street property representing an investment of $40,000, there is another indication of the advance in the price of business property. Woodhull & Martin originally paid $110 a foot for the property and the present price paid on Saturday was $750 a foot.

P.H.S. ENTERTAINMENT PLEASES BIG AUDIENCE

"Aunt Polly Basset's Singing School" pleased a large audience at the Plainfield High School, Saturday night, the affair being given for the benefit of the incidental fund of the school. The old-time ballads, comical ditties and clever capers by Mr. Quaith, who took the part of Jedediah Basset, provoked continual laughter. The school was conducted by Mrs. Quaith as "Aunt Polly Basset." A chorus of over fifty boys and girls from the high school took part.

The school session opened with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," by the chorus, after which there were special numbers by various members of the chorus, according to the program previously announced. Mrs. Quaith was especially funny in her part. In the second part, Miss Helen Woolley and Miss Mabel Boice, as the twins, sang "In Pumpkinville," which won hearty applause. Then followed solos and duets by those comprising the cast. The school was dismissed with a farewell greeting to the townsfolk by the school marm. The whole affair was given in a finished manner and pleased the large audience.

SALVATION ARMY PLANS TO MAKE POOR HAPPY.

The local corps of the Salvation Army now is busily engaged with the preparation of its annual free distribution of Christmas dinners for the poor, and a Christmas tree and entertainment for 250 children and distribution of coal for a number of the most deserving widows. Last year there were 500 dinners given, but owing to the added need this year an effort is being made to increase this amount to at least 700.

Applications are now being received at the Army's hall on East Second street on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings any time after 7 o'clock. Donations are urgently needed for this large undertaking and may be sent to Captain S. A. Hewitt, at 157 East Second street.

The Captain was much encouraged by the response of donations dropped in the kettles on the street on Saturday which was the first day of the effort, and will be continued until Christmas.

THE W. C. T. U. ARRANGES CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

The members of the W. C. T. U. will meet at the rooms of the union, 100 Madison avenue, Thursday, allday, to pack the Christmas boxes for the Children's Home at Vineland and for Captain George Benn's mission yacht for sailors. Last Thursday a letter was received from Captain Benn expressing his appreciation for the gifts to the sailors, and how they had touched the lives of the sailors and in many instances resulted in conversion.

Clothing, toys and pictures are wanted for the Children's Home at Vineland, and clothing for men and women, comfort bags, toys, mittens, mufflers, oranges, nuts and candy are wanted for Captain Benn's work.

No Chase on Saturday.

Owing to the fact that there is still much snow on the ground in the country, making the going bad, the Watchung Hunt club could not hold its chase Saturday afternoon. As soon as the going is favorable the hunts will be resumed.

GIVE DINNER-DANCE

Brilliant Affair of Unity Circle, King's Daughters, at Park Club.

SOME BEAUTIFUL DECORATIONS

Society Women Act As Patronesses—Music a Feature—A List of Members of the Circle.

The dinner-dance given at the Park Club, Saturday night, by the Unity Circle of The King's Daughters, was a brilliant affair and by far the most pretentious yet attempted by any of the circles in the city union. The clubhouse was unusually attractive in its decorations, which was in charge of a committee of which Miss Helen Hyde was the chairman. Southern smilax, cedar trees and poinsetta all combined to present an attractive picture. Southern smilax and greens were also suspended from wires stretched across the large hall, adding much to the effective decorations.

Dinner was served at 7 o'clock by the young women members of the circle, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Johnson. They wore Spanish costumes, carrying out the Spanish idea, which was used so effectively in the decorations. A feature greatly enjoyed was the Spanish music by the Neapolitan Quartet from New York. While the dinner was being served, the singers playing their instruments, danced in and around the tables singing their popular songs.

Still another feature, which added to the merriment of the guests, was the appearance of Jack O'Day, of New York, in the costume of a Spanish woman. He was a guest of William Palmer Smith and party, and he went about selling cigarettes, candy and flowers. Nearly everyone believed him to be a woman, and they were shocked when they saw him sit down and smoke a cigarette. While he concealed his identity, Mr. Day had lots of fun flirting with the young men, and several requested an introduction. Their friends had the laugh on them later when it became known that it was a man who had presented such a perfect disguise of a woman.

The dinner was concluded about 9 o'clock, when the dancing began and was continued until midnight. Music for the dancing was furnished by VanEpps Brothers, and they rendered a popular program during which there were numerous encores.

The entertainment committee comprised the Misses Alice Smith, chairman; Alverda Holland, Margaret Henderson, Katharine Brown and Sylvia Curtis. The decorating committee comprised the Misses Helen Hyde, chairman; Audrey Gernon, Eleanor DeGraff and Mayme Brown. Miss Marguerite Ramsey was chairman of the committee on tickets and advertising. The profits from the affair will be used by the circle to meet its yearly pledge in support of the Day Nursery. The following were patronesses:

Mrs. F. H. Andrews, Mrs. F. L. Blendinger, Mrs. Josiah Brown, Mrs. James DeGraff, Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. W. T. Gough, Mrs. R. S. Gernon, Mrs. C. W. Holland, Mrs. Loius Hyde, Mrs. F. Harrington, Mrs. F. W. Iredell, Mrs. F. W. Mansley, Mrs. Warren Marsh, Mrs. Walter McGee, Mrs. C. E. Rocap, Mrs. J. N. Ramsey, Mrs. E. M. Snyder, Miss Edith Smalley, Mrs. Clifford Wharton, Mrs. Joseph Yerkes, Mrs. J. S. Zelie, Mrs. Howard McWilliams, Mrs. Louis Timpson and Mrs. W. H. Barnard.

The members of the Circle are: Misses Alice Smith, president; Marion Snyder, vice-president; Alverda Holland, secretary; Eleanor DeGraff, treasurer; Louise Andrews, Dorothy Adams, Marguerite Bowlby, Gertrude Bowlby, Marguerite Blendinger, Katherine Brown, Sylvia Curtis, Mary Dickenson, Barbara Fleming, Mary French, Louise French, Gwendolyn Gough, Audrey Gernon, Dorothey Hoyt, Helen Hyde, Helen Harrington, Margaret Henderson, Frances Iradell, Naomi Markley, Marion Marsh, Vera Jeffries, Marion Rocap, Marguerite Ramsey, Jean Saunders, Jean Wharton, Anna Yerkes, Frances Zelie, Lilabell Barnard, Marjorie Brown, Beatrice Hedges, Ruth Timpson, Mrs. Harold Vanderhill. Mrs. George English.

Fire Chiefs Visit Here.

Chief Decker, of the Westfield Fire Department and Chief Gerstung, of the Elizabeth Department with the fire committee of the Westfield Common Council, were guests of Chief T. O. Doane yesterday afternoon. Chief Gerstung visited the Westfield fire house to inspect the new automobile apparatus and in order to give him an opportunity to see hot it is operated, he with the committeemen were brought to this city. A stop was made at fire headquarters where the machine was examined by a large number.

DIES IN 65TH YEAR

John J. Fitz. Randolph Succumbed to Heart Trouble After Year's Illness.

FUNERAL SERVICE TOMORROW.

Descendant of Famous Norman Family—Member Crescent Avenue Church—Wife and Son Survive Him.

John Joseph Fitz Randolph died at his home on Madison avenue yesterday morning about 4 o'clock, following an illness of a year. Death was due to heart trouble. He was sixty-four years of age. His father, his brother, Thompson E. F. Randolph, and himself had for many years been active among the grain and flour dealers of New York, all of them bearing a high reputation. All these have now passed away.

Mr. Randolph was descended from Edward Fitz Randolph, who came with his family to East Jersey in 1669 and who was of an ancient Norman line, coming to Yorkshire, England, with William the Conqueror in the eleventh century. In New Jersey several members of this family have enjoyed honor and distinction. He had traveled extensively in Europe and America.

Mr. Randolph was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, where he was a regular attendant and interested in all departments of church work. He is survived by a wife, who was Miss Lucy Ogden Evans and a son, Alan Fitz Randolph, who is a student at Princeton University. The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie will be in charge and the burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

GRACE CHURCH PARISH ACTIVITIES

During Advent evensong is said daily at Grace church at 5 o'clock. This afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a meeting of St. Cecelia's Guild and at 8 o'clock tonight there will be a meeting of the vestry of the parish for organization. Tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, the Plainfield Woman's Exchange will meet in the parish house, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a neighborhood meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary in the auditorium of the parish house. Rev. E. P. Newton will give an illustrated talk on "Missions in Alaska." All women are invited.

Tuesday night at 8 o'clock the Young Men's Club will meet in the basement of the parish house and at the same hour there will be a meeting of the Woman's Friendly Society. Wednesday and Friday mornings at 1 o'clock matins will be said in the church and on Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 there will be a business meeting of the choir boys' club. Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the church, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, will give an address on "The Prophecy of Isaiah." Thursday morning at 10 o'clock there will be a celebration of the Holy communion in the church. Tuesday night the Young Men's Club will play basketball and Saturday morning at 10 o'clock there will be a meeting of the Junior Boys' Club.

TRINITY ENDEAVORERS HOLD A NOVEL PRAYER MEETING.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church held a novel prayer meeting, last night, prior to the regular preaching service. Miss Harriet Randall was the leader and each member attending was requested to bring a candle and candlestick. After Miss Randall opened the meeting and made a few remarks, explaining the plan adopted, she lit a candle and then the next one taking part, lit her candle, getting the light from the one held by Miss Randall.

Each one in succession lit their candle from the one held by the preceding speaker. The idea was that unless each one was a witness for Christ they would not be able to let their light shine. All the other lights in the room were extinguished, the only light being furnished by the candles. The idea made the service an impressive one.

William Jeffery Surprised.

William Jeffery was given a surprise party, Saturday night, at the Berkeley Lyceum, in Berkeley Heights, by a large gathering of his friends, for the most part members of the People's Circles and the Republican Club. Talent from New York was engaged to entertain the assemblage at which former Assemblyman William B. Garrabrant presided.

JOHN HOLLY DEAD

Former Plainfielder Who Died at Stamford, Conn., to be Buried Tomorrow.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE THE CAUSE.

Once a Tester For S. O. and Later In Insurance Business—Member of Many Societies.

The funeral service of John Isaac Holly, who, for nearly thirty years, was a resident of this city, will be held at his late home, 50 North street, Stamford, Conn., tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial will be in the family plot at Stamford. Mr. Holly had been ill for two months and his death was due to Bright's disease. Mr. Holly was a familiar figure here. He resided at what is known as Holly Park on Park avenue, one of the most attractive sites in this section, which is now owned by Milton Mendel.

Mr. Holly was born at Stamford, Conn., and was the son of Edwin M. Holly. For many years he was a tester for the Standard Oil Company and later was engaged in the life insurance bupsiness in New York. At one time he was a colonel in Squadron A, N. G. N. Y., and also a quartermaster on the staff of Col. Charles F. Roe, of the National Guard of New York. For the past few years since his second marriage he had lived in retirement at Stamford.

Mr. Holly was a member of the New England and Union League clubs, also the New York Farmers' Society and of the Masonic order. He was a communicant of All Souls' church, New York city, for many years. He is survived by a wife, three daughters, Mrs. George Morse, the Misses Louise and Margaret Holly, and one son, John I. Holly, of this city.

Advent Address.

The second of the series of Advent addresses at Grace church was delivered yesterday afternoon by Rev. Philemon F. Sturgis, of Morristown. Next Sunday the sermon will be delivered by Rev. Herbert Shipman, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth avenue, New York, who succeeded the noted Rev. Dr. Parker Morgan. Dr. Shipman was at once time chaplain of the United States Military School at West Point.

The librarians of Trinity Reformed church Sunday school have contributed $50 for new library books.

There were 464 pupils and teachers in attendance at Trinity Reformed Sunday school yesterday afternoon.

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY OF G.L. VAN EMBURGH

George L. VanEmburgh, of East Second street, celebrated the eightieth anniversary of his birthday on Saturday and the happy occasion was marked by the gathering of a large number of relatives, friends and neighbors from this city, Newark, Bloomfield and Elizabeth. The octogenerian was the recipient of a shower of congratulations and best wishes not only on account of his birthday anniversary, but also because of being spared after a long and severe illness.

Mr. VanEmburgh is still detained at his home by rheumatism, but at present he is feeling and looking quite well. At the evening meal on Saturday there was a large birthday cake, ornamented with eighty candles, and this feature was particularly enjoyed by Mr. VanEmburgh and his guests. Mr. VanEmburgh is the senior elder of Trinity Reformed church and members of that congregation also joined to extending best wishes on Saturday.

Dutch Arms to Meet.

The Dutch Arms, men's association, of Trinity Reformed church, will meet on Monday night, December 18, at which time Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will make an address. There will be a musical program. Refreshments will also be served.

"The Star of Bethlehem."

The Christmas cantata, "The Star of Bethlehem," by F. Flaxington Harker, will be sung at the First M. E. church, Sunday morning, December 24, by the quartet choir, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster. Miss Edith Rubel, violinist, will assist.

NEW POORMASTER?

Henry L. DeForest Said to be Slated as Successor to A. D. Ayers.

C. O. S. SEEKS CONTROL OF POOR

Caucus to be Held Tonight—Rumors of Change in City Clerkship Following Conference.

According to rumor Henry L. DeForest, of Hillside avenue, an officer of the Charity Organization Society, is slated to succeed Alexander D. Ayers as overseer of the poor and to have general direction of the poor department under the supervision of the Charity Organization Society. A caucus has been called for tonight by members of the Council and represenetatives of the Charity Organization Society when the matter will be discussed.

It is no secret that for sometime the Charity Organization Society has wanted to merge the city poor work with the charity efforts put forth by the organization, believeing that if all was combined more efficient work would result and on a more economical basis.

Mayor Moy tried several times during the early part of the year to remove Mr. Ayers, making three different appointments, but the Council refused to confirm either one. It is understood that Mr. Moy has opposed the plan of the Charity Organization Society, on the ground that it is contrary to law. Now, it is said, that under a new law, the Council will have the selection of the overseer of the poor, and it is the intention of the Charity Organization Society to try and effect a change, whereby the organization will have full charge of this work. By many of the friends of Mr. Ayers it is believed that he has sufficient votes among the members of the 1912 body to retain him in office.

Another caucus of several members was held Saturday night, when the question of a city clerk for next year was discussed. According to rumor, no decision was reached, the members being unable to agree on any one for the position. The full Council was not present at this caucus, and it is said that another caucus will be held the latter part of the week with a view to reaching a decision on the appointment of a city clerk as well as on other appointments. There is said to be several candidates for the clerkship, as well as other positions and the outcome will be watched with unusual interest.

FINE PROGRAM FOR M'INTYRE CONCERT

The McIntyre concert at the Plainfield High School tomorrow night, promises to be an enjoyable one. An inviting program has been prepared which should appeal to seasoned music lovers as well as others. One of New York's best known and capable sopranos, Miss Inez Barbour, will assist the trio. Stanislas Bem, the 'cellist, will appear as soloist, giving the splendid variations by Boellmann. The program in full is as follows:

Opus 52, in four movements, Aubenstein, trio; four songs for soprano, "Oh, si les Fleurs," Massenet; "Fantoches," Debussy; "Du bist ein Kind" Weingartner; "Mansfallen-Spruchlein," Wolf; 'cello solo, variations by Boellmann; three songs, "Love Has Wings," Rogers; "The Willow," Goring-Thomas; "Come unto These Yellow Sands," LaForge; Andante Cantabile for trio by Milenka.

ARMY OF "GOOD FELLOWS" IS INCREASING RAPIDLY.

The army of "Good Fellows" is increasing rapidly and there is now a total of thirty-two who have enlisted in this grand work of providing a happy Christmas for the poor children of the city. There is no better way to provide cheer for the needy and now that the general plan of this movement of "Good Fellows" is well known, it has caught on like wild fire and there are a great many people who have approved of this method and have signified their willingness to join in the good work.

This morning's mail brought a number of letters addressed to "Good Fellow." One said that he would provide for three children, another for six, another for two and still another for one. Let the good work go on, and the result will be that every poor and worthy child in the city will have a Christmas that will never be forgotten.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story: I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

The W. C. T. U. will hold its weekly prayer and praise meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, on Elmwood place.

H. C. Krebs, of the borough schools, conducted the young people's meeting at the First Baptist church, last night, speaking on the topic of "Sewing and Reaping."

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold an all-day sewing meeting at the home of Mrs. J. G. MacLaughlin, 1058 Arlington avenue, on Wednesday.

The Junior Mission Band of the First Baptist church will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. J. A. Powlison will give a talk to the children on the subject: "Enoch and His Walk."

At the First Baptist church next Sunday morning something will be said in behalf of the national fund of $250,000 for ministers and missionaries being raised by the Baptist denomination throughout this country.

PERSONAL.

Corporation Counsel and Mrs. W. M. Stillman have returned from a delightful ten days' trip to Florida.

Ormond VanNest, of Mariners place, a student at Peddie Institute, has returned after spending a few days at his home.

Miss Linda Butler, of East Front street, recently returned from Mexico, has gone to East Orange and Maplewood to visit friends.

Miss Rodman, daughter of the late Rev. E. M. Rodman, who has been out of town for a number of months, has returned for the winter and is stopping on East Seventh street.

Mrs. Pearson, wife of Captain Samuel B. Pearson, of the Ninth U. S. Cavalry, stationed at Fort Russell, Wyoming, is stopping for a time at the home of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Vermeule, of East Sixth street.

Edward T. Wilson and family of Sycamore avenue, are planning to go to Denver the first of the year, where Mr. Wilson will engage in business connected with the Standard Oil Co. Mrs. S. T. Wilson, Mr. Wilson's mother, is planning to accompany them.

NO WOMAN APPOINTEE ON ELIZABETH BOARD.

To end all rumors to the effect that he would appoint a woman to serve on the Board of Education for the next term, Mayor Stein, of Elizabeth, last week announced that all such rumors were false and that of the nine to be appointed, nine would be men. The rumors caused considerable interest in the city, and as there is nothing under the present law to prevent a woman from serving on that body, it was thought probable that it was the intention of the chief executive to do such. Many prominent local men are in the field as aspirants for the office of School Commissioner. The terms will be from one to three years.

ADMITS ACTING AS LOOKOUT FOR FIVE MURDERERS.

White Plains, N.Y., Dec. 11.—With five men already under sentence of death for the murder of Mrs. Mary Hall on November 9, a sixth Italian, Salvator Di Marco, admitted Saturday, the police assert, that he, too, was implicated in the crime. Di Marco was taken into the death chamber at Sing Sing prison where the five guilty men are said to have identified him as their companion. He denies that he had any actual part in killing the woman, but says he acted as lookout while the others went through the house, hoping to find $3,000 insurance money which they thought Mrs. Hall had.

GAVE LIFE FOR HIS SON.

Pittsburg, Kan., Dec., 11.—That his son might live, William Kennedy, a miner, gave his life Saturday night, when white damp was discovered. It happened in a room of the Wear Mine No. 20, and when the deadly air was noticed a dozen men rushed for safety. At the entry Kennedy found that his son Joe was missing. The father seized a cart and re-entered the room and with the assistance of two or three volunteers who stepped in to aid him, placed his unconscious son on the cart and pushed him to the door. There the father fell dead, overcome by poisonous air. Soon afterward the boy revived and walked home to bear the news to his mother.

Arranging a Pair.

"Townley says you'll have to count him out of the theatre party."

"Eh? What's the matter?"

"He's so hoarse he can't speak."

"Tell him to come anyway. You can pair him off with the Gabber girl—she won't give him a chance to say a word."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FOR SIMPLICITY IN SCHOOLS.

That present methods of teaching pupils in elemental and grammar school grades must be greatly simplified was the practically unanimous declaration of speakers at the annual session of the Burlington county Board of Education, in Masonic Hall, Saturday.

County pedagogues accepted as a challenge, the criticism from the State board, to the effect, that there is now a woeful lack of throughness in the work of the grades below the high school. They named a commission to study the conditions in Burlington county and co-operate with the State educational authorities in finding a remedy.

Another Postal Bank in Elizabeth.

To supply the demands of the downtown residents another postal savings bank will be opened in Elizabeth on January 2. The new station will be located at the Station A, Third and Fulton streets. Such progrees has the one station made since its opening last summer, and so many names of residents of the downtown section of the city been registered there, that Postmaster Charlock thought it a good idea to open a new bank. He applied to the authorities at Washington and was given orders to open a downtown station on the second day of next year.

Manufacturers' Liability Action.

In order to get a number of manufacturers from Union county, Waverley, Perth Amboy, Carteret and other places of Middlesex county interested in an insurance plan that will give them better protection against loss occasioned by the enactment of the Employers' Liability law, a meeting will be held in the Board of Trade rooms at Elizabeth on next Friday afternoon. The system planned has been tried and made successful elsewhere, and it is expected by local manufacturers and others interested in the matter that the idea will be made successful.

LITERARY.

The Sacred College as it stands today is unquestionably a remarkable body. It is the only kind of international parliament that is practicable. Though thoroughly aristocratic in its character, its ranks are recruited from all classes of society, and a man of the people by meriting the cardinalate can become the equal of princes. Indeed, repeatedly in the Church's history, holiness, scholarship, and administrative genius have won for their possessors the cardinal's hat and even the papal tiara.—From "The New American Cardinals," by Walter Dwight, S. J., in the American Review of Reviews for December.

A delectable mental repast, with a fine Christmas flavor, is offered to the literary epicurean by the December Lippincott's. It is strong, interesting, and well-balanced. The complete novel is an unusual story by Charles Egbert Craddock, author of "The Fair Mississippian," "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountain," and other well known books. The title is "The Ordeal," and the scenes are laid in the South, local color and the peculiar characters of the region being depicted with rare fidelity. The theme of the story is a decided novelty, and the interest is intense until the very striking denouement. Excitement is furnished by one of the characteristic feuds between moonshiners and revenue officers, which leads to an appalling crime for revenge, upon which the plot of the narrative is based.

WARDROBE TRUNK.

Every girl who has seen a wardrobe trunk instantly appreciates the advantage of having one of them, but as such pieces of luggage are so expensive as to be beyond the reach of most of their admirers the best course is to try to provide a substitute with the aid of an ordinary trunk and the exercise of some ingenuity.

One girl partially solved this difficulty by having the tray of her square trunk cut in half and on section of it nailed permanently in position after dividing it into compartments for lingerie and shoes.

The space below the tray was then equipped with three hat holders tacked against the sides of the trunk, and into the adjoining floor space was fitted a large flat box with a hasp fastening, which was divided to hold handkerchiefs, gloves, veils and neckwear.

The half of the trunk lid which did not collide with the remaining portion of the divided tray was then equipped with hooks for a dozen garment hangers and made a satisfactory wardrobe for gowns and frocks of thin or medium weight textures, as they did not crowd one another unduly.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

The Hamburg-American liner President Grant, bound for New York, went aground in the Elbe.

Five persons were killed and eight injured in a collision outside the Paris terminus of the Northern Railroad.

The King of Sweden distributed the Nobel prizes in Stockholm; Mme. Curie, of Paris, was one of the recipients.

The "Novoe Vremya" expressed the opinion that the Russo-American treaty of 1832 was doomed to speedy abrogation.

The Porte decided to expel Italians from the Galiopoli peninsula, on the western side of the Dardanelles, and from Smyrna.

It was reported that there had been 150 incendiary fires in Harlem in the last two months, and three arrests were made for arson.

The body of Joseph Shortlidge, who founded Maplewood Institute, at Concordville, Penn., in 1860, was found in a stream near his school.

President Taft's renomination and election were predicted by leading members of the Republican National Committee, assembled in Washington.

Miss Mabel E. Allen, of Brooklyn, was reported to be entitled to a share of the estate of Jonathan Merry, of Boston, if she is not "legally dead.

It was stated at Los Angeles that Ortie E. McManigal would be taken to Indianapolis within a few days to tell what he knows about dynamite conspiracies.

Philadelphia experienced a dry Sunday under its new reform Mayor; political and social clubs that heretofore sold liquor on Sunday made no effort to open.

Governors of seven Western States and a large party arrived in New York for the purpose of calling attention to the possibilities of their section of the country.

It was expected that the taking of testimony in the suit against the ten meat packers indicted for violating the Sherman anti-trust law would begin in Chicago today.

Park Commissioner Stover, of New York, was called up by indignant citizens to take some action toward affecting several improvements for which he has long had the money in hand.

Twenty young men, arrested in raid on a crap game, in New York, were fined in the Tombs court, and the alleged proprietor of the place was held for trial as a common gambler.

At a meeting of suffragettes, Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch said juvenile rowdyism was worse in New York than anywhere else, and blamed Mayor Gaynor largely for this state of affairs.

The Secretary of War in his annual report said the army was unprepared for war, being widely scattered, lacking in reserves and in artillery; he recommended the abandonment of many posts.

The Postmaster General's report showed an annual deficit of $17,000,000 changed to a surplus of $219,000, though the service was improved; one-cent letter postage and a parcels post were urged.

John J. and James B. McNamara, the Los Angeles dynamiters, were received at San Quentin prison at 10 o'clock yesterday morning to serve their sentences imposed by the Los Angeles court after their confessions.

Commissioner Edwards, of New York, estimated that the warm weather had saved the city $200,000 in the cost of removing the last snow fall, and the Weather Bureau reported that yesterday was the warmest December 10 since 1878.

A dispatch from Briceville, Tenn., stated it was believed the number of persons who met death by the explosion in the Knoxville Iron Company Cross Mountain coal mine would reach between 150 and 180; the bodies of eight miners were recovered, but black damp seriously interfered with the rescuers; all the men in the mine at the time of the explosion were believed to have perished.

MANSLAUGHTER VERDICT AGAINST FLANAGAN.

Guilty of manslaughter with a recommendation to mercy was the verdict of the jury in the trial of Thomas Flanagan. Flanagan was accused of causing the death of John H. R. Miller, a trolley car inspector. While drunk, Flanagan caused a disturbance on a Public Service car, and then tried to jump from the car while it was in motion.

Miller, who was on the platform with the conductor, tried to hold Flanagan. In the scuffle Miller was pushed or fell from the platform to the roadway. His skull was fractured and he died a short time afterward.

Flanagan was remanded for sentence Wednesday. He is twenty-five years old and was employed in a local factory as a molder. The jury took five hours to decide upon a verdict.

TO BOOM EVERETT COLBY FOR U.S. SENATE

A boom for the election next year of former State Senator Everett Colby to the seat in the United States Senate now held by Frank O. Briggs is to be launched on the evening of Friday, December 22, at a Christmas tree smoker at the headquarters of the Progressive Republican League in Newark.

Plans for the affair are being perfected by a committee headed by Borden D. Whiting, Mr. Colby's law partner. The guests are to be members of the executive and central committees of the league.

The affair is to be in the nature of a get-together jollification and there are to be presents of a humorous character for the candidates at the recent primaries.

Mr. Colby has made up his mind that he has a strong chance of winning. He figures that with several old-line candidates in the field, the party vote will be so split up that the Progressives of the State will be able to name their man. He expects to get the solid support of the Progressives.

There has been some talk that George L. Record might also be a candidate, and if it should develop that Mr. Record could muster greater strength than Essex's former Senator, it is probable that the two men would get together amicably and let the stronger man go into the race alone.

The movement for Colby's indorsement in Essex is well under way. Already Mr. Colby is making his plans for the formation of an organization in this county and throughout the State.

North Plainfield Team Defeated.

The Summit High School basketball team defeated the North Plainfield High School five, Saturday, by a score of 37 to 14. The borough boys were no match for the Summit team. Morris, of Summit, did the best work for his team, making seven baskets and five fouls. W. Taylor and Townley were the stars for the borough team. The game scheduled for today between North Plainfield High and Somerville High has been cancelled, because of the inability of the latter team to get the armory at Somerville.

S. P. C. A. to Meet.

The Plainfield branch of the S. P. C. A. will meet this afternoon and appoint a nominating committee to present a list of officers for the annual election on January 8. The following will be elected as members: William L. Smalley, Jr., Mrs. J. M. Charles, Mrs. A. B. Jones, Mrs. G. Hodges and Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite.

BEAUTIFUL MEMORIAL WINDOWS UNVEILED

Two memorial windows were unveiled in the Crescent Avenue church at the morning service yesterday. They are in memory of the late John Taylor Johnston and his son, Colles, and are the gift of Mr. Johnston's daughter, Mrs. Pierre Mali. The unveiling was marked by a formal acceptance by the pastor, Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie.

The windows represent the baptism of Christ by John the Baptist, in the lower lights beneath the gallery, incidents in the life of John the Baptist and Christ and contain the figures of Mary and Elizabeth. The work is done in painted glass, which will be the rule for all the windows in the church.

In his sermon, Dr. Zelie defined the relation between labor and the church, drawing some potent illustrations from the recent developments in labor circles, the exposures resulting therefrom and the probable effect on organized unions and using one of the principal figures in the windows, John the Baptist, his life and achievements to point the moral.

MISS ALICE HOOPER BRIDE OF M.S. TERRY

In the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends, Miss Alice L. Hooper became the bride of Monroe S. Terry, of Rahway road, at the home of her parents near Oak Tree, Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. J. Whitaker, of Brooklyn, and following the reception, which was held after the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Terry departed on a tour, keeping the destination a secret. Upon their return they will reside temporarily with the parents of the bride.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary C. Hooper, as maid of honor and was gowned in crepe de chine satin with silk trimming. She also wore a tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor's gown was of white allover embroidery and her bouquet was of white roses. John P. Terry was best man. The guests present were from this city, Alton, Brooklyn, Fanwood and Oak Tree. The young couple were made the recipients of a large collection of handsome and useful gifts.

Lecture On "Samaria."

Instead of the regular Sunday-school session yesterday afternoon at Grace church, the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, gave an illustrated lecture on "Samaria," in the auditorium of the parish house, to a large and appreciative audience.

"LOOP" ALEXANDER SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE

Hats off to "Loop" Alexander, property man at the Plainfield theatre. While absolutely unarmed and with his sleeves rolled back to show he had nothing concealed in them, he overpowered and drove back a ferocious bear that was bent on destroying Mrs. Martha Roberts, scrubwoman of the playhouse as she hysterically fled about the stage seeking to escape, this morning. Totally in ignorance of the full danger that lay before her, Mrs. Roberts had clambered back of the foots, pail and brush in hand, to shine up the boards. The bear had been brought in on a load of baggage for the "Daniel Boone" company and was lurking about in the canvas shadows. When it caught sight of the woman there was a gr-r-r-owl, then a scream and the race for life was on.

It was just at this moment that brave "Loop" Alexander appeared on the scene, r. u. e. Without stopping to say, "Come on men," he jumped into the fray. Fixing his eagle eye on Bruin's optics, he looked him full in the face and commanded "go back." This was repeated three times and then the bear gave a vicious snarl and slunk off to a corner, where it was chained up. Only for the fact that its teeth were missing, the snapping of its jaws could be heard a block.

"Loop" was in a cold sweat after the ordeal was over but modestly waved Mrs. Roberts back when she attempted to thank him for saving her life.

"I only did my duty," he murmured. "I used to travel with a circus, doing a 'loop-the-loop act,' from which I get my name, and I knew if you go at them fellers as if you meant it, they never show fight."

Again we say, hats off to "Loop" Alexander, the death-defying property man who knows no fear.

Held for Shooting.

Two Italians with unpronounceable names were lodged in the borough jail by Chief of Police Caning, of Watchung, last night. He alleges that they shot at him when he met them running down the road after hearing a pistol report twice. He fired in return as they fled in the darkness and caught both later as they attempted to board a car at the Somerset street treminus. The men will be given a hearing before Justice Snape this afternoon.

Street Clock in Position.

The work of erecting the clock in front of the State Trust Co. was rushed to completion today and henceforth the time will be obtainable by night as well as day for during the hours after sundown the dial will be illuminated by inside lights. These will be shut off at midnight by the policeman on that beat just as the one on the Front street beat turns off the lights in the clock in front of Slocum's.

Clan Mackenzie to Nominate.

Previous to the regular business meeting of Clan Mackenzie tonight there will be a meeting of the entertainment commitee. At the clan session nominations of officers will be made.

EDWARD F. BURNS HIT BY AUTO

Edward F. Burns, national lecturer of the Modern Woodmen of America, is in a serious condition at his home, 693 Ridge street, Newark, as the result of being struck by an automobile last Wednesday evening in Broad street, opposite Bank street, that city. Mr. Burns' left side is partially paralyzed and it is feared he has sustained internal injuries.

Mr. Burns had just alighted from a northbound Mt. Prospect car when the accident occurred. As he started for the west sidewalk, it is said, he saw a large touring car coming swiftly northward on the west side of the street and directly upon him. He jumped, but was struck while in the air and thrown to the curb.

The automobilist stopped his car and took the njured man to the First precinct police station. Dr. T. M. Pascall was summoned and treated Mr. Burns, who was later removed to his home.

Tells of World Journey.

Former Chaplain Stevenson of the U. S. S. Virginia, addressed a large audience yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. on the work of this institution among the sailors and seamen in the navy branch of the government. His address was replete with experiences and fine views of the cruise of the fleet around the world. Last night he spoke to another large congregation at the First M. E. church. After the service he was engaged to address the Brotherhood at the meeting on December 29.

John Stewart, general manager Erie Railroad, is the guest of David C. Smalley, today.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

At such a big reduction in prices

That no one either in town or out of town can beat us.

If there is any gift to be given in the fur line, why not buy at a place where you are positively sure you are getting a guarantee for your money. We always give you the best satisfaction in quality, style and prices, because we are manufacturers and can save you the profits that you would otherwise have to pay the middleman. When we offer a reduction it means that the prices are cut to one-half the figure quoted elsewhere.

We, the CHARLES KURTZMAN FUR STORE, were the first fur store established here in town and have leased our premises for many years. No other can say the same and speak the truth in doing so.

NOTICE—We will refund the purchase price to any customer who will prove that they can get the same goods elsewhere at a lower figure. Alterations and remodelling are specialties. Remember the place.

WILL OF J.F. DRYDEN GIVES FAMILY ALL

In the presence of the family and the necessary witnesses, the will of John F. Dryden, former United States Senator and president of the Prudential Insurance Company, who died on November 24, was probated Saturday afternoon by being legally proven and made ready for formal filing in the office of Surrogate Isaac Shoenthal, of Essex county. It does not place a value upon the estate, which, it is generally believed, will amount to nearly $15,000,000 when the vast interests of the late Mr. Dryden have been gone over and arranged as the will directs. Everything is left to the members of the family of Mr. Dryden. There are no public or charitable bequests.

Drawn on October 17, 1907, the will was witnessed by Frederick Faulks, of Elizabeth; Richard W. Lindabury, of Morris Plains, and R. V. Lindabury, of Bernardsville. It names as executors and trustees the widow, Mrs. Cynthia F. Dryden; the son, Forrest F. Dryden, and the daughter, Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser. They are specially absolved from the necessity of giving bonds for their doings in connection with the management and distribution of the estate.

After giving horses, carriages, paintings and other personal belongings to Mrs. Dryden, the widow, and $10,000 each to Edward H. and Harriet M. Stark, nephew and niece of the testator, the will leaves all the remaining estate to the executors and trustees and directs that it be divided into five equal parts. Forrest F. Dryden is to receive one-fifth absolutely; Mrs. Kuser, the daughter, receives $100,000 at once, and the balance of one-fifth of the estate is to be held in trust for her. The remaining three-fifths of the whole estate are to be held in trust for the widow of the testator.

All the beneficiaries are to receive the incomes from their trusteed shares for life. The will is simply and carefully drawn, and provides for redistribution among the grandchildren of the testator at the deaths of the present beneficiaries.

Robert H. Pierson.

Robert H. Pierson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lisbon Pierson, of Dunellen, died at his parents' home on New Market road, Saturday night. He had been ill for a long time with a pulmonary complaint. The young man was about twenty-eight years old and is survived by several sisters and brothers, one of whom is Mrs. Frank Kelso, of Elm place. The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

To Address Men's Club.

William C. Smallwood, executive secretary of the New Jersey Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis, will address the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "The Management of Tuberculosis Camps." This is a lively topic of conversation in this city at present and all men who are interested in the subject are cordially invited to hear this attractive speaker.

Temple Baptist Meetings.

The Board of Trustees of the Temple Baptist church will meet tonight. Tomorrow night there will be a business meeting of the Baraca and Philathea classes, and at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night there will be a prayer meeting for Sunday-school teachers. After the regular prayer meeting there will be a business meeting of the Endeavor Society.

Former Councilman's Funeral.

Funeral service for George E. Richardson, former councilman of Westfield, whose death occurred Saturday at that place, will be held at his late home tonight at 8:15 o'clock and will be in charge of Cosmopolitan lodge, No. 5, F. and A. M., of New York. Interment will be made privately Tuesday morning in Fairview cemetery.

Engaged as Sales Manager.

William E. MacClymont, of Woodbine avenue, has been engaged as sales manager for The Bacon Piano Co., with salesrooms at 550 Fifth avenue, New York. This is the concern founded by John Jacob Astor in 1789.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Pierson, of Essex street, are parents of a nine-pound boy, born on Friday, who has been named Judson Titus Pierson. The little fellow is a grandson of the late Rev. Judson Pierson, for many years a well-known Baptist minister residing at Bridgeton.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

St. Paul's Brotherhood will decorate Trinity Reformed church for the Christmastide season.

Dr. H. K. Carroll will address the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, Sunday night, December 17, on the subject of "Missions in the West Indies."

The members of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church will meet at the home of Miss Etta Raybert, 221 East Second street, each Friday afternoon.

Trinity Reformed church is represented on the general committee of "Men and Religion" movement by F. E. Smith, C. M. Dolliver and Rev. J. Y. Broek. Mr. Broek is also chairman of the general committee on missions. The other members of the church committee and their departments are: Social service, A. K. Willett; evangelican, F. E. Smith; Bible study, E. F. Sheppard; boys' work, C. M. Dolliver; missions, Rev. J. Y. Broek.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS.

Why not celebrate Christmas in a more reasonable fashion? It is not proposed to abolish present-giving, Christmas trees, hanging stockings, or the plum pudding; but in ten thousand households that is all there is of the holiday. There are great gaps in the day which are impossibly dull, although there are the people ready for fun, and the fun is ready for the folk. But it needs a little preparation. Get busy before Christmas with other things than gifts and things to eat, save up your jokes, plan your games, learn your stunts! Make the day something to remember until the next Christmas.—Newark Call.

KATHERINE ENDRESS GIVEN PLEASANT SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Katherine Endress, daughter of Councilman-elect and Mrs. Fred Endress, of West Sixth street, was given a surprise party at her home Saturday afternoon. The affair was arranged by a number of young friends of Miss Endress, assisted by the latter's mother. The afternoon was spent playing games of all kinds and enjoying some instrumental and vocal music. Later refreshments were served.

Those present were Wilhelmina, Katherine and Marguerite Endress, Marion and Dorothy Lynn, Katherine Stevens, Marjorie Thiers, Rachel Smith, Frances Marshall, Junior Marshall, Mabel Haring, Erma G. Dobbins and John Endress.

Held for Blinding Babe.

Charged with causing the blindness of the year-old-son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Longo, Joseph Fannelli was held in Passaic Friday for the grand jury. Longo told the court that Fannelli jokingly offered a bottle of vitrol to him, saying it was Italian wine. As he was about to try it, he says, Fannelli snatched the bottle from his hands. In doing so Fannelli, it is charged, splashed the contents about the room. Most of the acid fell on the baby, which was in his mother's arms.

New Contralto Soloist.

Miss Bushnell, of New York, has taken the position of contralto soloist at the First Baptist church for the month of December. She sang a pleasing solo at the morning service yesterday, and it was greatly enjoyed by the large congregation. Miss Bushnell has a natural contralto voice of unusual sweetness and expression, and an attractive personality.

Open Meeting of Machinists.

Plainfield Local, No. 167, International Association of Machinists, will hold an open meeting tonight in Eagle hall on East Second street. There will be present speakers from Battle Creek, Mich., Westerly, R. I., Taunton, Mass., and Chicago. All persons interested are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Christmas Social.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church, will hold a Christmas social in Vincent chapel Friday night. The committee has planned an enjoyable entertainment. All are invited to attend and bring a neat package of something you intended to give away and the committee will do the rest.

Rasores to Meet.

The Rasores will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. William Myers, 1100 Watchung avenue. The subject will be "Arnold Bennett."

In the Borough Court.

William Searle, arrested Saturday night for intoxication, had sentence suspended by Recorder Dolliver, this morning.

POSSES SEARCH FOR HUNTER MAKING CALL

Believing that Richard Mann, night agent at the Jersey Central's Liberty street station in New York, had injured himself while hunting, several posses started in search of him Saturday night. He had gone out in the afternoon with Gus Winter, of Bound Brook, where both reside, taking with them several hounds belonging to William Greasheimer. Winter got tired and returned home, leaving Mann to go on alone. Toward nightfall the hounds came yelping into their master's yard without guard and it was immediately surmised that some dire misfortune had befallen the lone hunter.

Search was immediately instituted for Mann. One auto with several men started originally but as the rumor spread others joined in the hunt until three machines and twenty men were on the trail. One party caught the right trail and, ending up at the Peterson farm, near Finderne, at 10 o'clock, where Mann was found calling on a young woman friend. A back search was then instituted for the other posses but it was after midnight before they were all apprised of what had happened.

Mayor Moy to Attend Meeting.

The Board of Public Utilities will meet in the Courthouse, Elizabeth, on Friday, with the Board of Freeholders, at which time the New Jersey Central will present a new schedule of fares drafted for the consideration and approval of the Board of Public Utilities. Mayor G. W. V. Moy will attend the meeting.

OUR COFFEE

produces a roaring good drink and a cup of it makes the king of breakfast drinks.

In buying coffee you sometimes get a nice looking coffee, the bean may be perfect as far as form goes and the coffee itself in the drink may be of a good flavor. Yet it may lack strength.

The poor woman who makes it gets blamed whereas the fellow who sold it is the real culprit. You will always find strength and flavor in our coffees and they are free from bitterness.

The demand increases simply and solely on account of pure quality. Shall we send you a pound to try?

Plainfield in.... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

April 30, 1874.

At a meeting of the newly elected Town Committee of North Plainfield last week, Mr. John Thickstun was elected chairman of the same. A good appointment.

We notice that our friend, Mr. Albert Hedden, is now running a hack wagon on his own hook from the depot to all parts of the surrounding country. Mr. Hedden is well known to our citizens, having been employed for many years past by both Messrs. John W. Laing and the late John Roselle, and is thoroughly competent to take charge of such a business. We trust "Al" will meet with success he merits.

The Gas Company is making rapid progress in the construction of their new Gas House, which, when completed will be of brick, one story high, 115x54 feet in size, capable of containing 50 retorts instead of 10 as at present. A new gasometer will also be built. The straitening of the tracks of the railroad company will necessitate the removal of the old house and one of the gasometers.

Firemen should bear in mind the necessity of electing three Trustees of the "Plainfield Association for the Relief of Disabled Firemen" at the annual election for officers next Monday evening.

Messrs. White and Stelle were the purchasers of the homestead propety of the late Jethro Vermeule, on Centre street, at the Administrators' sale of the same on Monday last. The price paid was $2,000.

Parties wishing two or three nicely furnished rooms, convenient to the depot, can be accommodated by calling at the corner of Cherry and Fifth Streets.

May 14, 1874.

The Gas Co. has entered into a contract to light the city lamps, 93 in number, from now to January 1, 1875, for $1,500. The lamps were lighted for the first time under this contract last evening. We suggest to the company, however, that the glasses be cleaned.

And now with the prospect of a "dry" season in Plainfield the "seventeen years locust" are coming to pester us. We move an amendment to that long ordinances, forbidding the "varmints" coming here.

Rev. J. C. Bryan has purchased land adjoining that recently purchased by Rev. J. C. Vincent of Jeremiah Manning, Evona, and contemplates the erection of two handsome dwelling houses the coming summer. The price paid for the land was $5,000.

Company E, 3rd Reg. N. G. N. J., are now located in their new quarters in Cutter's building, Front street. Their drill room is 28x45 feet in dimensions. In the rear is a reception room, 15x28, the walls neatly hard finished, with place for chandelier in the center of the ceiling. The company propose to furnish this room in a neat and tidy manner. It wil be used to hold meeting in and for the reception of visitors. The company is increasing in numbers and improving in drill.

John H. Tier had a unique sign board at the head of the lane leading to his ice ceram garden, but some parties unknown to him borrowed the same, undoubtedly for the purpose of deciphering it. Mr. Tier desires us to say to the parties who borrowed the sign that he has a duplicate which they can have by calling upon him and returning the other. He says he don't want to put the new one out in the rain, and as the one taken has been through April "showers" it would be better to hang it out again instead of the new one.

ONE ON PITTSBURG.

"John M. Harlan," said a Chicago lawyer, in a eulogy of the late Supreme Court justice, "had a way of pointing an observation with a story.

"Once he wanted to rebuke a man for exaggeration, so he said he was as bad as a Pittsburg millionaire who was being interviewed by a New York reported.

"'Where, sir, were you born?' the reporter, as he sharpened his pencil, asked.

"'I was born in Pittsburg,' said the millionaire.

"'And when did you first—er—see the light of day?'

"'When I was 9,' the millionaire replied. 'My people then moved to Philadelphia.'"—Washington Star.

A Working Majority.

Post—Thinks he's the whole thing does he? Parker—Well, I'd hardly go as far as that, but he certainly considers himself a quorum.—The Smart Set.

Honest Confession.

Mrs. Malaprop—No, I never was strong on literature. To save my life I couldn't tell you who wrote "Gray's Elegy."—Life.

Job printing. Satisfaction assured.

The Kingdom Of Slender Swords

By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

Copyright, 1910, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

For all save one sleep came early that evening to the house in the Street-of-Prayer-to-the-Gods. In her little room Haru lay as stirless as a sleeping flower.

At length she rose, noiselessly slid the paper shoji and with infinite care, inch by inch, pushed back the shutters. The moon had risen, and a flood of moonlight came into the room. Stealthily she opened a wall closet and selected her best and gayest robe, a holiday kimono of dim green with lotus flowers and an obi of cloth of gold, with chrysanthemums peeping from the weave. By the round mirror on her low dressing cabinet she redressed the coiled ebony butterfly of her hair and set a red flower in it. She touched her face with the soft rice powder and added a tint of carmine to the set paleness of her cheeks. She wrapped in a furoshiki some soberer street clothing, toilet articles and a mauve kimono woven with silver camellias, set the bundle by the opened amado and noiselessly passed into the next room.

It was the larger living apartment. The tiny lamp which burned before the golden shrine of Kwanon on the Buddha shelf cast a wan glimmer over the spotless alcove and threw a ghostly light on her finery. Through the thin paper shikiri she could hear her father's deep breathing, and in the room in which he slept a little clock chimed 11. She opened the door of the shrine and stood looking at the tablet it held, the ihai of her mother. The kaimyo, or soul name, it bore signified "Moon Dawn of the Mountain of Light Dwelling in the Mansion of Luminous Perfume." She rubbed her palms softly together before it, and her lips moved silently. From the golden shadows she seemed suddenly to feel her mother's hand guiding her childish steps to that place of mourning worship, to see that loving face as she remembered it looking down on her across the rim of years. She bent and passed her hand along the two swords, one long, one short, that rested on their lacquered rack beneath the shelf. It was her farewell to her father.

She had left no message. She could tell no one. If she succeeded she would have done her part. If she failed there was only a blank darkness in that thought. But she had no agitation now, only a dull ache.

In her own room she took a book from a drawer and slipped it into her sleeve, caught up the furoshiki, stepped noiselessly to the outer porch and carefully closed the amado behind her.

She walked swiftly back to the empty chapel. The great glass window that had seemed so beautiful with the light behind it was now dark and opaque and dead. Only the cross above the roof in the moonlight looked as white as snow. She drew the book from her sleeve. It was her Bible, with her name on the flyleaf. She unhooked the gold chain about her neck and slipped off the little enamel cross. She put this between the leaves of the Bible and laid it on the doorstep.

A half hour later she stood before a wistaria roofed gate in Kasumigatani Cho—the "Street-of-the-Misty-Valley"—near Aoyama parade ground. The glass lantern above it threw a dim light on a gravel path twisting through low shrubbery. Down the street she could hear a dozen students chanting the marching song of Hirose Chusa, the young war hero:

"Though the body die, the spirit dies not.
He who wished to be reborn
Seven times into this world
For the sake of serving his country,
For the sake of requiting the imperial favor—
Has he really died?"

Haru opened the gate. Cherry petals were sifting down like rosy snowflakes over the scarlet trembling of nanten bushes. A little way inside was a graceful house entrance half shaded by a trailing vine. The amado were not closed; the shopji were brilliantly lighted.

CHAPTER XX.

ON THE KNEES OF DELILAH.

THE room where Phil sat was softly bright with andon, through whose thin paper sides the candlelight filtered tranquilly.

It had been furnished in a plain half foreign fashion; a bookrack and a French mahogany desk sat in a corner, an ormolu clock ticked on its top, and beside it was a lounge piled with volumes from the shelves. It would have affected a Japanese almost to nausea. The severity of beauty of its etched and paneled walls, the plain elegance of its satinwood fittings, were cheapened with a veneer of vulgarity. A row of picture postcards in colors was pinned on the wall—the sort the tourist buys for ten sen on the Ginza, too highly tinted and with much meretricious gilding—and a photograph hung in a silver gilt frame of interlocked dragons. It showed a girl in abbreviated skirts and exaggerated posture, and on the mount was printed, "Miss Cleo Clifford in 'Gay Paree.'" The air was full of the sickly sweetish smell of Turkish cigarettes. The desk was a confusion of pipes, ivory nets'ke, cigarette boxes and what not, and a man's cloth cap and a gauntlet were tossed in a corner beside an open gold lacquer box heaped with gloves.

Phil, however, felt no qualm. The room fitted him as a scabbard fits its sword. He had discarded his heavier outer clothing and donned a loose, wide sleeved robe of cool silk, tied with a crimson cord.

"Give me the whisky and soda," he said to the grizzled servant in the vernacular, "and I shan't want you again tonight."

The bottle the Japanese left at his elbow was becoming Phil's constant comforter. Alone with his thoughts, he fled to it as the hasheesh eater to his drug, because it banished his dread and bolstered the courage that he longed for. Tonight as he sat with the intoxication creeping like dull fire in his blood he was thinking of Haru, with her soft, smooth skin, her perfect neck, her lithe, graceful limbs, her eyes that held caught laughter like moss in amber.

His thought broke off. He had heard a sound outside. It seemed to be a light tapping on the grill of the outer door. Could it be Bersonin? Had anything gone wrong? He went hastily into the anteroom and opened the grill.

For an instant he stared unbelievingly at the figure standing there, the gay kimono, the rouged cheeks, the sparkling eyes. He took a step forward.

"Haru! Is it really you, little girl?" he cried.

She laughed, a high, clear, flutelike note. "Such an astonish!" she said. "You not know my mus' come after those kiss? Can I not come in, Phil-lip?"

With a laugh that echoed her own, but one of ringing triumph, he caught her hand, drew her into the lighted room and closed the shoji. His look flamed over her.

"I couldn't believe my eyes!" he cried. "I don't half believe them yet. Why, your hands are as cold as ice. We'll have a drink, eh?"

He went into an outer room, came back with a bottle of champagne and knocked off its neck against the mantel.

"Yes, yes!" she said. "My mus' drink so to be gay, Phil-lip!" She drank the bubbling liquor at a draft. "What are the use of to be good? Ne?"

"You're right, little girl! The pious people are the dull ones." He came to her unsteadily. "So you'll train with me, eh? Well, we'll show them a trick or two. How would you like to have plenty of money, Haru, as much as you can count on a soroban?"

"You so much clever!" she laughed. "No all same Japan man. He ve-ree stupid. My think you mos' bes' clever man in these whole worl' to goin' find so much money—ne?"

"HARU! IS IT REALLY YOU?"

With a savage elation he drew her close in his arms.

* * * * * * *

Mr. Y. Nakajima, the almond eyed guide of gold filled teeth, came to the end of his elaborate conversation. He turned from the old servant, leaning on his pruning knife, and spoke to the man who stood waiting outside the wistaria gate in the Street-of-the-Misty-Valley.

"He say Mr. Philip Ware stay here," he announced, "but house is ownerships of his friend, Mr. Daunt of America embassy. He regret sadly that no one are not at home."

Ware reflected. Daunt's house? He lived in the embassy compound—so they had said at dinner last night. Why should he maintain this native house in another quarter of Tokyo? There came to his mind that hackneyed phrase, "the custom of the country," the foreigner's specious justification of the modern "Madame Butterfly." In this interminable city, with its labyrinthine mazes, who could tell what this or that gray roof might shelter? Was this a nook ensiled for pretty Japanese romances "under the rose?" He had loaned it to Phil—they were friends.

Ware struck his stick hard against the hedge. He scarcely knew what thought had entered his mind, so nebulous was it, so indefinable. If he had thought to use this discovery he knew no way; if it was Daunt's covert, here was Phil in possession.

"Ask him if he has any idea where he is."

The guide translated. The servant was ignobly unacquainted as yet with the danna-San's illustrious habits. He arrogantly presumed to suggest that he might augustly be in any one of a hundred esteemed spots.

Ware thought a moment frowningly. "Tell him I am Ware—San's brother," he said then, "and that I have just arrived in Tokyo. I shall wait in the house till he comes."

The old man bowed profoundly at the statement of the relationship. He spoke at some length to the guide. The latter looked at Ware questioningly, but hesitated.

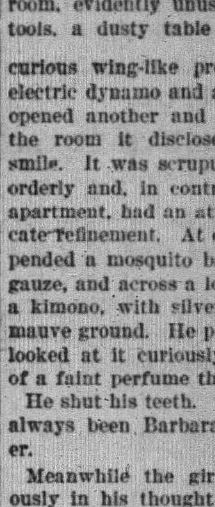
"Well?" asked the other tartly.

"He think better please you wait to the hotel."

Ware struck open the gate with a flare of irritation. "You can go now," he said to the guide and, disdaining the servant, strode along the gravel path and entered the house.

Under the trailing vine Ware slid back the shoji and entered the house.

As he stood looking at the interior his lip curled. He hated the cheapness and vulgarity to which Phil turned with instinctive liking, and he had long ago come thoroughly to despise his younger brother and to relish the whip-hand which the law, with its guardianship, gave him. The place fitted Phil, from the cigarette odor to the loud photograph in the dragon frame and the partly open wall closet with its significant array of bottles. It expressed his idea of "a good time."



THE PLACE FITTED PHIL.

He slid open a shikiri. It showed a room, evidently unused, littered with tools, a dusty table with models of curious wing-like propellers, a small electric dynamo and a steel lathe. He opened another and stood looking at the room it disclosed with a faint smile. It was scrupulously clean and orderly and, in contrast to the outer apartment, had an atmosphere of delicate refinement. At one side was suspended a mosquito bar of dark green gauze, and across a low stool was laid a kimono, with silver camellias on a mauve ground. He picked this up and looked at it curiously, half conscious of a faint perfume that hung to it.

He shut his teeth. The camellia had always been Barbara's favorite flower.

Meanwhile the girl thus incongruously in his thought had felt a gray shadow across her sunshine. She found her uncle greatly perplexed and troubled. Haru's Bible, found on the chapel doorstep, had been brought to him that morning. He had sent at once to the Street-of-Prayer-to-the-Gods, and the messenger had returned with news of her disappearance. The fact that she had taken clothing with her showed that the flight was a deliberate one.

It pained him to think what the return of the book and the little cross might mean. In his long residence in Japan the bishop had grown accustomed to strange denouements, to flashing revelations of subtle deeps in oriental character. But save for one instance of many years ago, which the sight of Barbara must always recall to him, he had never been more saddened than by today's disclosure. What he told her had left Barbara with an uneasy apprehension. She drove away pondering. The anxious speculation blurred the glamour of the afternoon.

The homeward course took her through Aoyama, by unfrequented streets of pleasant, suburban-like gardens and small houses with roofs of fluted tile as softly gray as silk. Here and there a bean curd peddler droned his cry of "To-o-fu! To-o-fu-u!" and under a spreading kiri tree a blind beggar squatted, playing a flute through his nostrils, while his wife, also blind and with a beady eyed baby strapped to her back, twanged a samisen beside him. In the road groups of little girls were playing games with much clapping of hands and shouting in shrill voices.

In one of the cross streets a dozen coolies strode, carrying flaming white banners printed in red idiographs. The last bore a huge papier mache bottle, an advertisement of a popular brand of beer. A brass band of four pieces, discoursing hideously tuneless sounds, led them, and between band and banners stalked a grotesquely clad figure on stilts ten feet tall, the shafts pantalooned so that his legs seemed to have been drawn out like india rubber. The spidery pedestrian was followed by a score of staring children of all ages and sizes.

Suddenly Barbara rose to her feet in the carriage. She had seen a girl emerge from a small temple and turn into a side street.

"Fast! Drive fast, Taka!" she called quickly. "The street to the left!" He obeyed, but a soba-ya had halted his shining copper cart of steaming buckwheat and momentarily delayed them.

The hastening figure was farther away when they rounded the turning. Barbara clasped her hands together. "It was Haru! It was Haru! I am sure!" she whispered.

The girl slipped through a gateway hung with wistaria. As Barbara sprang to the ground she was hurrying through the garden.

"Haru!" But the flying figure did not seem to hear the call.

Barbara ran quickly after her along the gravel path.

In the house Austen Ware, standing with the kimono in his hand, had heard the rumble of carriage wheels. He had left the outer shoji open, and through the aperture he saw the slim form hastening toward the doorway. An exclamation broke from his lips. Behind her, just entering the gate, was Barbara.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

A Word to the Mothers on Christmas

At a recent meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association, a strong protest was presented against the lavish expenditure of money on expensive and useless gifts for children and a plea made for the practical present.

IROQUOIS A. A. LOSE FIRST GAME

The Iroquois basketball team, of Newark, met defeat for the first time this season Saturday night at the hands of the Hope chapel five on the local court. The score was 28 to 16 and it was the hardest fought game either team has thus far played. The start was a fast one and the pace did not diminish as the contest was waged. At the end of the first half the visitors had the lead by one point. In the second half the local tossers played a bit more closely to their opponents, giving more attention to team formations, thus pulling away from the Newark boys.

Much credit for the victory is due Thomas and John Heron. Johnny showed his skill at foul throwing in the first half by dropping three through the net in succession. He made a total of nine points and his brother had twelve to his credit. Guy Snyder made the next highest number. James Doig had the hardest man to play among the opponents and kept him covered all the time. King was the star for the visitors making half of the points scored.

The lineup follows:

"WHITE WAY" IN ELIZABETH.

Between eighteen and twenty thousand people lined Broad street, Elizabeth, Friday night, when Mayor Alfred A. Stein touched a switch, turning on the lights of the new White Way.

The White Way is the result of the efforts of the business men of the city, who believed that the increased illumination of the city's main street would hold trade in the city.

Preceding the turning on of the lights a banquet was held in the Elks' Club by members of the Broad Street Improvement Association, Charles H. K. Halsey, president of the Board of Trade, and Mayor A. A. Stein were the speakers.

Work is Progressing.

Work is progressing satisfactorily on the new Day Nursery property on West Front street. Many alterations are being made both inside and out of the dwelling and all improvements will be installed. An addition has been built on the rear of the house and the front porch has also been enlarged. The King's Daughters hope to take possession of the place about March 1.

DYNAMITE SERMON

Rev. Chas. E. Herring Draws Morals From McNamara Case.

BAD MEN IN GOOD CAUSE.

Too Bad, Preacher Says, That Labor Has Been Cursed With Such Leaders.

"The Damaging Effect of Bad Men to a Good Cause," was the subject discussed by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church last evening. The case of the MacNamaras was used as the illustration of his sermon.

"We have all been greatly stirred by the account of the bomb outrage at Los Angeles, California, in which twenty-one innocent people lost their lives," said Dr. Herring. "If the man who set the bomb had been an anarchist or a member of the 'black hand' fraternity, we should have said that it was the natural outcome of the principles governing such associations of lawbreakers. Instead of that, the men who perpetrated these deeds of violence were men high up in the councils of labor. We have noted the criticisms of the press that not only these men but organized labor has been on trial, and has therefore been injured by the fiendish action of these men. They afford us an illustration of how men who are persistently in the line of wickedness can become demoralized in their thinking, for one of these brothers declared that it was not his intent to kill, but that he acted for a principle.

"Think of it, a principle that endangered a number of innocent lives. Did he imagine that some miracle might happen and that only the building would be destroyed? The evidence is that he and his brother had been engaged in wickedness so long that all idea of moral principle was lost. It is too bad that the cause of labor has been cursed with such leaders, for labor was never organized that it might be the means of great wickedness, but for self-preservation against conscienceless employers.

"The economic principle on which most people work is 'get all you can for as little as you can,' a very necessary thing in these days of increased cost of living. Yet the principle is so apt to degenerate into cruelty. For this reason labor unions have been organized that men might recognize that they were not dealing with cattle and slaves but with men. We hope that the experience of labor with selfish demagogues may inspire them to clean house, to free themselves from the men who are bad advisers.

"Another illustration of the damaging effect of a bad life is in the case of a minister who has gone wrong. We need carefully to consider two things before we pass judgment on him. First, the title of 'Rev.' is not conferred on a man by any theological seminary, presbytery, conference or classis. Any man, be he a scalawag or not, who can get anybody to listen to him can assume the title. Secondly, it is one of the sad things in our free country that in some things we possess so little freedom. A man's name may be printed in scare lines in the paper as being guilty of some crime, and be condemned by the public, becaue of wilful misrepresentation, while because of the puerile technicalities of the law his trial may be long delayed. Our system of justice is certainly in an infantile stage compared with other countries. There are some ministers who go wrong. They are certainly few in number, and they do certain damage. There are hypocrites everywhere but they should not hinder an honest man from seeking and following the truth. Judas, the arch traitor, was one of the twelve disciples, but think of the eleven other disciples.

"There are grafters in your brotherhoods who take a secret oath to fellowship and who politely pick your pocket. In the days of Christ, He recognized the depravity of the Roman Empire, but he trained his true followers to live the right life. Let us follow the gleam as they did."

HAD A FINE TRIP

Local Boys Return After Riding Wheels Over Four Hundred Miles.

TO WASHINGTON AND BACK.

Senator Martine Had "Open Sesame" and They Did the Capitol—Itinerary of the Novel Journey.

A bicycle trip of more than 400 miles, filled with incidents and experiences enough to fill a book, was completed Saturday night by Franklin B. Newell, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Newell, of West Seventh street, and Irving Schenck, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schenck, of Union street. Ten days were consumed in the novel venture and the riding was so arranged that it gave very little fatigue or discomfort of any kind. The two boys, both of whom are members of the Plainfield High School sophomore class, are enthusiastic over the undertaking and have visions of some day pedalling cross the continent or up toward the Cook-Peary pole.

The wheelmen started away from this city early Thanksgiving morning. The first stop was made at Princeton, where the high-brow finishing plant was looked over and the town inspected, after which they pushed on to Trenton. More sightseeing finished up the day and the boys slept the sleep of the just in the new dormitory of the local Y. M. C. A. Early Friday morning the journey was resumed down the Delaware, towns and villages fleeting by in moving picture style, until Philadelphia was loomed up dead ahead. The pace of the machines was cut down to comply with Sleeptown's custom and city hall was made the stopping place. Places of interest were visited until nightfall after which a Y. M. C. A. again sheltered the riders until morning. Saturday was passed in a steady grind to Newark, Del., where another night was spent, and the journey was resumed Sunday. This was the longest day's ride, the boys keeping at the pedals from 8 in the morning until 10 at night. They encountered rain and soft, rich, oozy, juicy Maryland mud all the way from Havre de Grace to Towlison, their resting place. The fifteen miles between these two places had to be made on foot at frequent intervals. Washington was reached Monday night after a short stop at "Ballinuch" as the natives pronounce it.

The riders were entertained at the home of a treasury official, to whom they had letters of introduction from J. A. Powlison, of the borough. One of the first stops Tuesday was in the Senate chamber, where they received a hearty welcome from Senator Martine and Secretary W. W. St. John.

"So you are the boys I read about in The Daily Press," was the "farmer orator's" observation; "well, the capital is yours; here are the passports," and the bicycle duo were accorded cards of admission to everything the United States had worth showing. All day Tuesday and Wednesday and Thursday was spent in looking, listening and marvelling. The Senate in session, all the big public buildings, Washington monument, Mount Vernon and the White House were among the interesting things seen.

Bright and early Friday morning, the pair started back. They reached Baltimore Friday afternoon and on account of limited time, took the night boat to Philadelphia. They rode home from there Saturday via Lambertville, Flemington and Somerville.

Neither of the boys had a tire punctured or a breakdown of any sort. They learned more good geography than they could get in a three months' book course and feel as if they could give Chief Doane points on fighting fires as they saw the departments in four cities dealing death blows to conflagrations. There were lots of other good things worth telling about and either Frank or Irving will do it with all the frills simply for the asking.

William Heath and William Nischwitz, of Fairview avenue, left today for Los Angeles, Cal., where they will complete arrangements for having Mrs. Heath remove to this city, where she and her son will reside.

RECTOR RESIGNED

Rev. Elory G. Bowers Leaves St. Stephen's Church to Accept a Call.

HE GOES TO GOSHEN, N. Y.

Parish's Career Successful Under His Charge—The New Vestry Elects Wardens and Other Officers.

Rev. Elory G. Bowers, at a meeting of the vestry of St. Stephen's church, last night, presented his resignation to take effect January 1. He has accepted the rectorship of St. James' church at Goshen, N. Y. The vestry received the resignation reluctantly, realizing the good work being done in the parish by Mr. Bowers. Prior to going to St. Stephen's church a year ago, Mr. Bowers was curate of Grace church for a year and a half, where he did fine work. Before coming to Plainfield Mr. Bowers was curate of Trinity church, Newport, R. I., and for five years was curate of Christ church, Elizabeth. He is a graduate of the General Theological Seminary. During his stay in his present charge the financial condition of the parish has been maintained, St. Margaret's guild was organized as well as a flourishing kindergarten, in the Sunday-school, and all departments of kindergarten, in the Sunday-school, and all departments of the parish work have prospered.

At the vestry meeting last night an organization was effected by the election of William R. Townsend as clerk and Charles Banks as treasurer. Adam C. Hill is the senior warden and Charles A. Sturtevant the junior warden.

HARRY GULICK LOSES LIMB BY AMPUTATION.

Harry Gulick, the well known mason, whose home is at 541 West Fifth street, underwent a serious operation at St. Michael's hospital, Newark, Saturday, during which it was found necessary to amputate his right leg above the knee. A part of the bone had become diseased in some manner and treatment failed to afford relief. The staff at St. Michael's found the trouble spreading rapidly and decided upon the amputation to save his life. He was reported today as recovering.

Mr. Gulick is a native of Plainfield and has many friends in the city and borough. He was at one time connected with his father, the late Jacob Gulick, in the contracting business, but in recent years has been employed by local masons. He has a wife and four children.

WILL CASE'S TRIAL PUT OFF FOR TERM.

Trial on the caveat filed by Mrs. Phoebe Guttman, of West Front street, against the probating of the will of her mother, Mrs. Katherine Able, was postponed for the term in the Hunterdon county court this morning, owing to the illness of the caveator and absence from the State of an important witness. The trial is to be by jury and is only the second time in the history of Hunterdon county that a case of this kind has been heard in this manner.

City Judge William G. DeMeza and Harry J. Able are counsel for the proponent, Edward Able, F. J. Blatz and Senator Gebhardt are attorneys for Mrs. Guttman.

Vestry Organized.

W. T. Pelletier was elected secretary and O. G. Waring, treasurer, at the organization of the vestry of Grace church, last night. All other matters that came before the meeting were of routine nature.

Cut glass and silverware in a great variety of articles are on display at Vail's jewelry store.

THREE TWINS TONIGHT AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"Three Twins," which comes to the Plainfield theatre tonight, is a thoroughly up-to-date musical comedy, full of fun and entertainment, spectacular and musical; entirely innocent and thoroughly enjoyable. The plot—and there is one—is merely a string of nonsense on which to hang a series of songs, dances, tableaux and other stage effects, all of them novelties and beautiful. The fun grows out of the mix-ups and complications resulting from the appearance at a summer hotel of three young men, who so resemble each other in features, dress and voice, that no one, not even the wife of one, the sweetheart of another and the father of the third, can tell them apart. But this is only incidental to the music and dancing. Here arises a series of complications that keep the audience in a constant roar of laughter. While the fun making is at its height, advantage is taken of the opportunity to dazzle the laughter convulsed audience with some of the cleverest and most beautiful mechanical electrical effects ever seen on any stage.

COUNCIL TO CONFER WITH DEP'T HEADS

The heads of various city departments have been requested to attend a conference to be held tomorrow night with members of the Common Council, when plans for the coming year will be discussed, with a view to ascertaining what will be needed by the different departments. Among those who have been invited to attend the conference are Mayor G. W. V. Moy, Corporation Counsel W. M. Stillman, Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department; Chief P. S. Kiely, of the police department; Alexander D. Ayres, overseer of the poor; City Treasurer William F. Arnold; Tax Collector William R. Townsend, City Judge W. G. DeMeza and others.

Members of the various committes from the Council will be present and there will be a general discussion of departmental work. It is also expected that a caucus will be held relative to the selection of a city clerk and it is quite likely that the poor department will be discussed. Councilmen-elect Fred Endress and P. J. Reville, the new Democratic members have been invited to attend this conference. Mr. Tolles, who is to continue as president of the Council next year, will likely receive suggestions at that time relative to the makeup of the standing committees for next year, and which will be announced at the first meeting in January.

FIRST BAYTIST CHURCH TO HAVE AN ORCHESTRA.

Under the direction of Joseph Satteis, an orchestra has been organized at the First Baptist church Sunday school, to assist at the sessions of the school. The idea was suggested by Superintendent Arthur M. Harris, and already the orchestra has become a feature greatly enjoyed by the school. The members are as follows:

Violins, Mrs. Violet Truell Johnston, Miss Marguerite Burnet, Miss Ruth Martin, Anthony Paroubek, Arthur Mosher, Jesse Wheeler, Ernest Higham, James Manning, Jr., Charles D. Wheeler, R. W. Barnes, Walter Cubberly, E. C. Martin; cornets, Whitney Frazee, James D. Macnab; 'cellos, Arthur Frost, Otto Miller, Dr. J. F. Berg; horn, Gowan Naylor; trombone, Garrett Dunham; bass, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, A. B. Lewis; flutes, E. E. Wheeler, Walter Sampson.

Scottish Concert.

It was decided at last night's meeting of Clan Mackenzie to engage the Plainfield theatre for the annual concert to be given on Robert Burns' Birthday, January 25. Several artists have already been engaged, among them being Miss Jean Byson, the Scottish nightingale whose rendition of Scotch ballads at the concert last year afforded the large audience so much pleasure. Owing to a small attendance, the nomination of officers was postponed until a later date.

In Police Court.

For causing a disturbance in the gallery of the Plainfield theatre, last night, Charles Cassatt, colored, of West Third street, was fined $10 by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. The prisoner was taken from the building by Special Policeman Keiderling.

CHILDREN BUREAU

Parent-Teacher Association's Pleas For Federal Gov't to Establish Department.

EXPLAINED BY DR. MAXSON.

Mrs. Voorhees to Name Legislation Committee—Illustrated Lecture Given By Miss Bullock.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin-Stillman-Whittier Schools at a largely attended meeting last night in the Franklin School passed a resolution endorsing the establishment of a Federal children's bureau and calling the attention of Senator James E. Martine and Congressman William E. Tuttle to the bill, which will be presented at the present session of Congress and asking their support of the measure. A similar resolution was passed by the Plainfield Mothers' Association at a meeting last Friday.

The activity regarding the passage of this bill is one of the results of the State Mothers' Congress held here on November 10 and 11, at which time resolutions endorsing the establishment of the bureau and requesting that all branches of the organization take steps to call the attention of the State's representatives at Washington to the measure which was first introduced three years ago and succeeded in passing the House, but was defeated in the Senate on account of an amendment.

In speaking on the purpose of the bureau last night, Dr. Henry Maxson, superintendent of schools, said that it is intended to investigate all conditions of child life, correct existing wrongs to which the Child Welfare societies have called public attention, compile statistics whereby instructors and parents may obtain facts in deciding certain questions and all other ways perform the functions of a bureau created for the purpose just as the bureau of agriculture can tell what is the best thing to do for corn, wheat, cattle, etc., or the bureau of fisheries furnish statistics regarding the run of shad, salmon, herring, etc.

For the upkeep of these bureaus, thousands of dollars are appropriated annually, Dr. Maxson said, so that experiments may be carried on. The bureau of agriculture last year spent several hundreds of dollars to bring a certain plant from the interior of China and introduce it in this country. Enormous sums have been spent in investigating the cause and cure of hog cholera, but so far as he knew nothing has been appropriated nor spent by the government to investigate the origin or remedy for certain kinds of children's diseases.

The bill to be presented at this season will be identical with the one presented three years ago with the exception that a provision is made to place the bureau under the control of the Department of the Interior instead of the Bureau of Commerce and Labor. All present signed the resolution and many pledged themselves to write personal letters to the representatives.

At the request of the president, Mrs. S. H. Voorhees, a motion was made to have a legislative committee appointed to keep the association advised on all legislation to come before the National and State governments during the winter having a bearing on child welfare and school laws. The motion was carried and the committee will be appointed in a few days.

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons read a report as chairman of the sanitation committee in which the outdoor schools were explained and favored. The report also included an urgent request to parents to interest themselves more in the schools and to make it a point to regularly visit them.

After the business meeting, Miss Noel J. Bullock gave an illustrated talk on her tour last summer through Wales and England.

Drunk and Disorderly.

Arrested for drunkenness and disorderly conduct on Park avenue, last night, Harry Raynor, a printer, said this morning, when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court that if allowed to go he would start at once for his home in the Nutmeg State. Sentence was suspended.

Announce Engagement.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Marie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson, of Myrtle avenue, and Franklin Meier, of East Second street. No date has been set for the wedding.

—Neuman Bros. are advertising many attractive specials for the holiday season, including everything in the fruit line, choicest variety, fresh vegetables, plum pudding, mince meat, foreign and domestic cheeses and a large assortment of delicacies.

HEBREWS TO OBSERVE THE HANUKKAH FEAST

Plans are being made by the Hebrews of this city for the celebration of Hanukkah, or Feast of Lights, which commences on Friday. The festival, which is one of the most joyous in the Hebrew calendar, will last for eight days. While it is observed with special services in the synagogues, it is especially a home celebration. The association with the feast of the Menora or Hanukkah lamp, gives the occasion the name of the Feast of Lights. One candle will be lighted Friday night and an additional light will be started each evening until the eight branches of the candelabra are ablaze.

The festival recalls the soul-stirring days described in the books of Maccabees, when Antiachus Epiphanes, seeking to Hellenize all parts of his dominions, polluted the Temple at Jerusalem and transformed it into a heathen shrine by placing therein a statue of Jupiter. The Jews rose in revolt, and, under the leadership of the Maccabean family, the movement became a national war in which the Syrians were eventually expelled and the temple purified and rededicated.

COMMERCE CHAMBER FINANCIAL PROBLEM

Further discussion of Chamber of Commerce affairs, particularly those relating to the finances, was the purpose of a meeting held last night in the tea room at Truell Inn. It was expected that a plan would be arranged whereby the organization would be firmly established in the interests of the city. The sentiment expressed by those present was to the effect that the institution had justified its existence for good influence in the community and deserved the active support of business men and commuters.

A deficit in the report of the year's work, partly on account of the failure of the Industrial Exposition, seemed to be a stumbling block in the way of future continuance and the opinion of those present was that this debt must be paid before the end of the year. Towards this shortage $485 was subscribed and while the report of the meeting does not give the amount of the deficit it is stated that the balance may be collected during the week.

Full confidence in George L. Babcock as president of the chamber, was the sentiment of all present and the hope expressed that he would give consideration to the request incorporated in the resolution passed at the meeting last Thursday night which was to the effect that he stand for re-election.

EDWARD MARTIN SERIOUSLY INJURED

Edward Martin, of West Third street, employed as an oiler in the Sauer Motor Truck works on Clinton avenue had his left hand crushed this afternoon by the traveling crane and was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital. At the time of going to press he was still on the operating table and the extent of his injury could not be learned.

Young Martin, who is about twenty-three years old and single, had climbed into the shafting to oil a counter shaft and to steady himself grasped the rail on which the crane travels. He did not notice it moving towards him and was in such a position that he was hid from view of the man running the crane.

PANDEMONIUM CLUB FAIR WELL ATTENDED.

The Pandemonium Social Club fair, which opened in Abrams' auditorium Saturday night, drew a large crowd last night. The dancing and other features provided offered plenty of diversion. Thursday will be club night an invitation having been extended to all the other social organizations to attend.

John McClelland, who is president of the club, is general chairman of the fair committee, and he is being ably assisted by Patrick McDonough and Thomas Egany.

Convention Choir to Meet.

The Convention Choir, which assisted at the State Sunday school convention held here last month, will hold its last meeting and rehearsal for the year tonight at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. It is likely that plans will be decided upon for future action. Beginning January 1 it is expected that the choir will meet twice a month for rehearsal.

TO BETTER TRADE

Machanists Planning Campaign For Eight Hours and More Pay.

DEMAND COMING NEXT YEAR.

Drawbacks of the Men Discussed at Open Meeting in Eagle's Hall by Leaders in I. A. of M.

That a machinist receives the lowest pay for the longest day of any of the recognized trades, was one of the assertions made by Harris Churchill, of New York, deputy of District No. 19, International Association of Machinists, at an open meeting conducted by Local 167 in Eagle's hall, last night. Fuly 350 members and others interested were in attendance and applauded the remarks.

Mr. Churchill declared that practically every houseworker or tradesman outside of those he represented labored but eight hours a day and was paid anywhere from $3 to $7 for it. He declared the only reason why they did so was because they had made a concerted and organized demand for it. The machinists are realizing this and a movement is now on foot all over the country to have the trade so well organized that a simultaneous request for better pay and less hours will be made in all parts of the union on April 1 or May 1 of next year. The International Association is directing the preliminary arrangements.

One of the most galling points about the non-recognition of the trade, continued Mr. Churchill, "is the fact that the machinists turn out machines under the conditions I have quoted and they are operated by men who get much higher pay and work the eight hours, and yet the machinst must serve four years in learning his trade. He must also have a good common school education and be able to work down to the thousandth part of an inch."

Other addresses of a similar nature were made by Hugh Reilly, of Newark, and William W. Deans, of New York, both of whom are prominent in the International Association. It was expected that several other representatives from Taunton, Mass., Westerly, R. I., and Chicago would be present but they were detained for some reason. As it was, the arguments advanced by the men who spoke gave the machinists plenty of food for thought. An informal discussion concluded the session. It is probable that a number of similar meetings will be conducted by Local No. 167 before the national de-

TWO YOUNG ITALIANS ARE GRAVELY ACCUSED

When arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court, this morning, Dominic Rocco, arrested Saturday night in a raid on the pool room at 144 North avenue, where a poker game was broken up, did not change the plea of guilty entered yesterday morning and was given the preference of $25 fine or thirty days in jail. In addition to the charge of maintaining a place where gambling was allowed, a complaint alleging that he is one of two young men who have been sharing in the ill-gotten earnings of women. On this charge bail was fixed at $500 for a hearing next Tuesday.

The other man, Dominic Paretti, eluded the police after the raid Saturday night and has left town. The second charge alleges that Paretti and Rocco provided a resort on Cottage place where men and women congregated for wrongful purposes. Former City Judge William N. Runyon represents Rocco and Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., will be present at the hearing for the State.

EQUAL SUFFRAGISTS HEAR OF JUDICIARY

"The Judiciary" was the subject of the third of the series of talks given yesterday afternoon by Miss Mary Philbrook before the Civic Club of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, at its headquarters in the Babcock building, and it was enjoyed by a number of the members. In her previous talks Miss Philbrook has devoted her attention to questions of government, etc. Yesterday she discussed the duties of district court judges, prison judges, city judges, constables, sheriffs and clerks of courts.

Miss Philbrook explained in detail how these several officials are appointed or elected, telling at considerable length of their manifold duties. The speaker gave a clear and comprehensive idea of this part of the judiciary, which was greatly enjoyed by all present. After the talk a little time was left for discussion and Miss Philbrook answered numerous questions put to her by various ones present.

Missionary and Aid Meeting.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will hold its monthly meeting at the chapel, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A meeting of the executive committee will be held at 2 o'clock. All of the members of the society are urged to attend.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off just last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No. .... Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.
John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

THE DAILY PRESS CHANGES OWNERS

A. L. Force Sells This Paper to Leslie R. Fort and Ralph L. Morrow, Who Assume Control on Jan. 1.

Negotiations were completed yesterday by which The Daily Press, the oldest paper in the city, was sold by A. L. Force, to Leslie R. Fort, son of former Governor Fort, at present the editor of the Lakewood Times and Journal, and Ralph L. Morrow, for the past nine years editor of the paper.

Albert L. Force.

Under the new ownership a number of changes will be made in the mechanical equipment of the plant. Mr. Force, who established the paper twenty-five years ago, will retire from active work. In addition to The Daily Press, which has had a prosperous career, the sale includes the Constitutionalist, its weekly edition. A corporation will be formed, and the new owners will assume possession on January first, 1912.

A. L. Force, the retiring proprietor, is the dean of editors in this section of the State, having become one forty-four years ago. He was born in this city in 1846 and has lived in the community all his life. His scholhood home was on a little island near Farragut road and East Front street. When but twelve years of age he started to learn the printer's business, obtaining a job as "printer's devil" on the Plainfield Gazette, owned by Charles Wilson. That plant was located on the second floor of the present site of the Scheurer building in West Front street. Four years later he went to work on the Plainfield Union, of which Milton F. Cushing was editor. The Union plant was on the second floor of the Gloekner building, at Front and Somerset streets. There he stayed for three years and then went to Gray & Green's printing shop at Frankfort and Jacob streets, New York, where his brother, the late William L. Force, was also employed. That was during the Civil War. Subsequently he worked at Harrison's printing shop over old Cob Web hall, on Duane street near Broadway.

In 1867 Mr. Force and his brother formed a partnership in the printing business in Plainfield. Their shop was on the site of Moraller brothers' store in Park avenue. That was in January, 1867. One year later they started the Weekly Constitutionalist as a Democratic newspaper. The firm's business grew so rapidly that Andrew Vanderbeek, the owner of the property, built the present structure at Park and North avenues purposely for the concern, which has ever since occupied it.

In May, 1887, Force Brothers founded The Daily Press, conducting it in conjunction with the Weekly Constitutionalist. The paper was Democratic and according to a letter from Grover Cleveland in the possession of the proprietor, The Daily Press was the first paper to boom Mr. Cleveland for a second term as President. In recent years The Daily Press has been Independent Republican in politics. On numerous occasions it has raised large funds for charitable causes and other worthy objects here and in other places. Its career has been unusually prosperous and never more so than at the present time.

Mr. Force, who will retire from active business on January 1, has been a member of Trinity Reformed church for a quarter of a century and for two decades has been one of its elders and deacons. He is a Mason and Arcanumite.

There's a Reason.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wyckoff, of Bayonne, were the guests of former Mayor and Mrs. William Wyckoff, Sunday.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church will hold a social in the chapel tonight.

The Sunday school board of the Methodist church held the monthly meeting last night.

CALLED A MURDERER, GETS A 6-CENT VERDICT.

You can call a barber a "murderer and a thief" for six cents, according to a decision banded down yesterday afternoon by Judge Whittemore in the Elizabeth District Court.

Hyman Kalesky, who was the plaintiff in the case, did upon his oath declare that he was termed as foregoing by Solomon and Bertha Asch. All the parties reside in Roselle, where Kalesky has a barber shop.

Just what led up to Mr. and Mrs. Asch bestowing such an epithet upon the barber is just a little more than was brought out in the proceedings yesterday. However, Mrs. Asch declared that Hyman simply couldn't resist stropping his razor on her garments. Whether the defendant was occupying the garments at the time didn't develop. Anyhow Hyman declared that his feelings had been injured to the extent of $500.

When Judge Whittemore gave a judgment of six cents Hyman gasped, swallowed and blinked and decided to spend it for three postage stamps and then write himself three letters, telling himself what he would have done with the $500 had he been awarded that amount.

MAY DROP TROLLEY EXTENSION MEASURE.

Frank Bergen, chief counsel of the Public Service Corporation, has written to City Attorney James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth, protesting against certain provisions in the ordinances granting franchises to the Public Service Railway Company to extend its tracks in South Broad street and along Bayway to connect with the proposed new Trenton "short line." The trolley company objects to the manner in which the ordinances provide for the removal of snow from the streets over which the new line will operate and to the provisions regarding the sale of thirty-three school tickets for a sum not exceeding one dollar.

The letter has been referred by the city attorney to Patrick J. McGurn, chairman of the council committee on streets and highways, who will bring it to the attention of the joint committee on streets and highways and railroads and street railways. It is understood that the letter practically declares that the petitioning corporation will refuse to extend its lines under the provisions of the ordinances that have already passed two readings in the City Council and will come up for final passage next Friday night.

Prior to the objections filed by the trolley company much opposition had developed to the ordinances among the councilmen and citizens at large, many of whom objected to the failure of the corporation to agree to lay a spur down Bayway and over First street, and to the granting of perpetual franchises. Now that the corporation has objected to the ordinances as they stand there promises to be a double-barreled fight on the floor of Council, and it is doubtful if the measures will be finally passed.

TWO GIRLS, 15 YEARS, TRY DEATH IN CELL.

Bayonne, Dec. 12.—Arrested for being frequenters of moving picture houses and charged with being disorderly persons by the police, two fifteen-year-old girls attempted to take their lives by inhaling illuminating gas in the women's section of the city prison here yesterday. The girls were discovered lying on the floor unconscious by a keeper in time to be resuscitated and were later arraigned before Recorder Hugh Mara and held.

Investigation showed that the girls had broken off a length of gas pipe in the room in which they were detained and then had calmly laid down to die. They are Carrie Westfall, of 50 East Twentieth street, and Julia Smith, of 19 Court place, this city. The Smith girl had but recently run away from her home and was absent for several days.

REPUBLICAN FOUND TO BE ELECTED BY RECOUNT.

Flemington, Dec. 12.—John T. Force, Republican, who was defeated at the November election for freeholder by John Johnson, Democrat, by twelve majority, was declared elected by a majority of sixty-four votes last night upon the completion of the recount before Justice Trenchard.

The recount gave Johnson 3,092 and Force 3,156. Four days were consumed by the Hunterdon County Board of Elections and many ballots were rejected affecting both candidates. Johnson was Senator Gebhardt's candidate and was opposed at the primaries by the Pidcock faction of the Democratic party.

HOW HARMON FIRST MET SENATOR MARTINE

Governor Harmon, of Ohio, who spent Friday and Saturday in Washington, was a guest of Senator Pomerene in the latter's rooms in the Senate office building Saturday morning and while there was visited by a number of Democratic Senators. Among the callers were Senator Martine, of this city, and four other members of the Senate who are avowed advocates of the nomination of Governor Wilson as the Democratic candidate for President—Chamberlain, of Oregon; Johnson, of Maine; Kern, of Indiana, and Meyers, of Montana. Others who paid their respects to the Ohio Governor were Senators Clarke, of Arkansas; Smith, of South Carolina; Overman, of North Carolina, and Shively, of Indiana.

Governor Harmon's meeting with this group of Senators was purely social, and in the half hour that they were together there was not a hint of the great political struggle which will be centered in the next Democratic national convention. There was some slight discussion concerning tariff legislation, but nothing was said that could be construed as having any political significance.

The greeting between Senator Martine and Governor Harmon was very cordial, each recalling the fact that they had previously met in Plainfield, where the latter's daughter, a Mrs. Wright, formerly resided.

"Oh, I remember you very well, Senator," spoke up the Ohio Governor when Mr. Martine was presented by Senator Pomerene, and then turning to the other Senators present Mr. Harmon related his experience in these words:

"I was in Plainfield a few years ago visiting my daughter, and was being driven through one of their beautiful avenues, when we passed a colonial-looking old house that sat well back from the road. It was in hot weather, and the place certainly had an inviting look—a bit of rural scenery right in the heart of a thrifty city. I asked who lived there, and the gentleman with whom I was driving said: 'Why, the craziest Bryan man in New Jersey.' 'Who is he?' I asked. 'Jim Martine,' was the reply.

Governor Harmon said that later on he had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Martine, and was happy again at the opportunity of renewing his acquaintance in Washington.

RARITAN CANAL TOLL HEARING ON TODAY.

The State Board of Public Utility Commissioners are giving a hearing at the State house today on the claim of the New Brunswick Board of Trade that the present tolls on the Delaware and Raritan Canal are excessive, and that they discriminate against certain classes of goods.

The complaint of the Board of Trade was filed as the result of the agitation, not only in New Brunswick, but in other towns along the waterway, that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the lessee of the canal, maintains excessive tolls, and in other ways seeks to divert transportation from the canal to the railroad, thereby increasing its freight revenue.

It is expected that there will be placed before the commission some of the testimony taken before the legislative committee, which two years ago made an investigation of the alleged disuse of the canal and the excessive rates and discrimination in rates. Senator George S. Silzer, of Middelsex county, was a member of the canal probe committee, and Assemblyman August C. Streitwolf, of New Brunswick, has interested himself in the movement to obtain lower rates on the canal.

WESTFIELD DISMISSES CHARGE AGAINST CHIEF.

Charges preferred against Chief of Police O'Neill, of Westfield, by Mayor Dennis were considered in executive session and dismissed by the borough Council Saturday night. Mayor Dennis and Councilman Casey, chairman of the police board, were the only members to vote in favor of an investigation and hearing. The charges were based upon the chief's failure to report or take action on an attempted shooting at the patrolmen's ball, Thanksgiving eve.

It is alleged that a man named Charles Lance snapped a revolver at Ellsworth Ladley. A bystander took the gun away from Lance and gave it to O'Neill. Mayor Dennis heard of the affair and when, after several days, O'Neill took no action, the Mayor directed the arrest of Lance, who is now under bonds to await action by the grand jury.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE IS PRINCETON'S NEW LECTURER.

Princeton University announced Saturday that Joseph H. Choate, former United States Ambassador to Great Britain, had accepted the position of Stafford Little lecturer on public affairs. He will succeed ex-Mayor George B. McClellan, of New York city, who resigned to accept a professorship of public affairs in the University. The lectureship calls for two addresses.

MINISTERS AND WIVES HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

With the carriage in which they were riding reduced almost to splinters and the horse which was drawing the vehicle killed, Rev. and Mrs. Samuel McLanahan, of Princeton, and Rev. and Mrs. Minot C. Morgan, of Summit, had a thrilling experience Saturday night.

How the party escaped being killed is regarded as remarkable. The driver of the horse, Frederick Jordan, was seriously injured, while the clergymen and the women escaped with slight cuts and bruises.

The party was being driven from the North Summit Neighborhood House in Morris avenue to the home of Rev. and Mrs. Morgan in Maple street. When near the Summit silk mill a runaway team of horses attached to a dirt wagon crashed into the rig containing the clergymen and their wives. The pole of the dirt wagon went clear through the horse drawing the carriage.

Mr. Morgan was seated with Jordan on the front seat of the coupe, while within the vehicle were Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. McLanahan and Mr. McLanahan. When the collision occurred the carriage was overturned. Jordan was thrown beneath the horse which was killed, while Mr. Morgan was thrown several feet.

Recovering himself Mr. Morgan found Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. McLanahan and Mr. McLanahan pinned beneath the wrecked carriage. Tearing away the roof of the vehicle, which had been loosened, Mr. Morgan extricated the women and Mr. McLanahan.

Jordan was dragged out unconscious from beneath the dead horse. All were taken by Mr. Morgan to the Neighborhood House, where they were attended by Dr. C. B. Keeney, and were later taken home.

The owner of the runaway team, Antonio Matoney, of Cook avenue, Madison, claims he was placing a lighted lantern on his wagon when the team became frightened at a dog and dashed away. Matoney could not be found Saturday night after the collision and his horses were brought to the livery stable of James Geddis, owner of the horse that was killed.

POLICEMAN KILLED ARRESTING WIFE BEATER.

Asbury Park, Dec. 12.—Just as he was about to arrest Charles Clayton, accused of wife beating, Patrolman Charles Lippincott was shot down and killed early yesterday morning by Clayton. Then Clayton turned the weapon on Patrolman George Miller and pulled the trigger, but the hammer fell on an exploded cartridge.

Miller after a struggle wrested the revolver from Clayton and overpowered him. Miller is the only negro on the local police force. The murder occurred a short distance from Clayton's home on Prospect street.

Several hours after the killing Clayton signed a confession of guilt. He was taken to the county jail at Freehold, where a formal charge of murder will be made against him.

Lippincott was one of the best liked men on the force, having been appointed about seven years ago. He was thirty-six years old and leaves a wife and three children.

Clayton had been in trouble before for wife beating and had served a term in jail for the offense.

Soon after midnight a call came to one of the police sub-stations that Clayton was again abusing his wife. Lippincott and Miller were sent to the house, and when they arrived there Clayton was just leaving. Seeing the officers he started to run away, with Lippincott and Miller in pursuit. Lippincott was in the lead. He called on Clayton to stop and the latter threw up his left hand as if to indicate that he would give up.

Lippincott ran up and was about to place his hands on the suspect's shoulder when Clayton, who had a revolver in his right hand, shot the officer through the heart. When he tried to fire at Miller, it was almost a point-blank shot. Had it not been for the defective cartridge, Miller would almost certainly have suffered the same fate as Lippincott.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD CHILD WAS FATALLY BURNED AT PLAY

Mabel Simon, a five-year-old child, was fatally burned Saturday. The little girl, who has been living with her aunt, Mrs. Louis Bosztotski, of 432 Court street, Elizabeth, was playing with a box of matches. They become ignited, setting fire to her dress. She run to her aunt, who beat out the flames with her hands, but not until the child had been severely and probably fatally burned.

The little girl was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the same institution in which her mother is lying seriously ill.

CHOPS OFF BABE'S FINGERS.

"Charlie, put your hand on the block," said George Williams, eight years old, to his brother, three years old, yesterday, while the older boy was chopping wood in the back yard of their home at 612 Pemberton avenue, Atlantic City.

The keen edge of the axe was already descending when the baby, taking the joke seriously, obeyed. The blade clipped off three of the child's fingers and mutilated a fourth. The injured boy was taken to the hospital.

CLAIM SMITH WANTS TO GO TO THE SENATE

Rumors are beginning to be heard in State political circles that former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., will again be a candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Senator Frank O. Briggs, and the rumors are leading to more or less lively discussions as to the interesting complication likely to ensue.

If former Senator Smith does aspire to go to the Senate again, he will, in all probability, be found supporting Governor Wilson for President next year. As astonishing as this statement may sound, there are some Democrats who point out that such a situation is likely to come to pass. For example, a Democrat said today:

"Former Senator Smith will be a candidate for United States Senator at next year's primary. And he will win, too. That is, he will win the popular expression at the primary. Then he will have to get the Legislature to elect him, of course, and it will be necessary for him to have Wilson again on the ticket to get that Legislature. ou see, therefore, that while at first blush it may sound startling to predict that Mr. Smith would put aside his bitter enmity for Governor Wilson and support him for the Presidency, the fact is, it would be remarkable if anything else happened, presuming, of course, that Senator Smith does enter the Senatorial contest."

The candidacy of former Senator Smith, if he shall be a candidate, will bring about another interesting situation, in the opinion of some Democrats who visit the State House. If Mr. Smith shall become the Democratic Senatorial choice it will be Govenor Wilson's duty, according to the precedent he established in the Martine case, to do all he can to put former Senator in the United States Senate. Viewing this possible situation today, a Democratic leader said:

"Two years hence we Jerseymen may view Governor Wilson comfortably established at one end of Pennsylvania avenue and United States Senators Martine and Smith seated among the National lawmakers at the other extremity. Many stranger things have happened. Such an outcome of the present Democratic strife would be no more extraordinary than was Smith's election to the Senate in 1893 or his defeat in 1911."

mand is made.

A meeting of prominent machine manufacturers from all parts of the country with leaders of the I. A. of M. was held in New York yesterday. The purpose was to discuss some of the clauses in the demands which are to be made but none of them have been made known.

Funeral of Mrs. S. E. Carson.

The funeral service of Mrs. Sadie E. Carson, wife of James H. Carson, was held at the late home on Chatham street, Saturday afternoon, and was largely attended. Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, of which Mrs. Carson was a charter member, assisted by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, of which she was formerly a member, officiated. There were many floral tributes. The pall bearers were Clifford Compton, Edward Weaver, Joseph Rutledge, John Pitts, William Carson and James Hansen. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Young People's Society Social.

The Young People's Society of the First Baptist church will give a social on next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. One of the features of the social will be the music of a fine orchestra led by Robin C. Brown. The orchestra consists of a band of eight pieces. One of the best selections will be that of a battle in which Mr. Brown will give some fine demonstration of the use of the kettle-drum. Egbert Fountain and Robert B. Butler will give a fine selection (by special request). Refreshments will be another feature of the entertainment.

Full Program at Proctor's.

Because of some difficulty in booking acts, only four acts were offered at Proctor's theatre, yesterday, but today the fifth act will be presented, it being Palmer, Marshall & Co., in the German comedy sketch, "Love and Pickles." It is said to be exceedingly funny. The Church Sisters, clever dancers; Sam Morris, German comedian; Allie Akerstorm & Co., in "Made In Germany," a bright comedy sketch full of laughs, and Elliott, Belmont & Elliott, comedy acrobats, complete a fine bill.

Italian Held In $200 Bail.

The two Italians arrested by Chief Canning at Watchung, Sunday night were arraigned before Justice Snape, in the borough court, yesterday afternoon. They pleaded not guilty to a change of felonious assault and were held in $200 bail for the grand jury. They had not secured it up to 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Election Tonight.

Watchung Council, No. 52, Knights of Columbus, will hold the annual election of officers tonight.

ELIZABETH POLICE SEEK A THREE-FINGERED THIEF.

The Elizabeth police are looking for a short man with only three fingers on his right hand who attempted to rob the home of Milton B. Lauder, of Pennington street, Elizabeth, early yesterday morning, and escaped by jumping from a second story window. Mr. Lauder fired three shots at the intruder as he ran from the house. The print of the burglar's right hand on the window sill and his footprints on the lawn beneath are the only clews left to the police.

Hearing a noise on the second floor of her home Mrs. Lauder went to investigate. Seeing a man rifling the bureau drawers, she screamed and he ran to the window, hung to the sill for a moment and then dropped to the ground. Mr. Lauder, hearing his wife scream, grabbed a shotgun and fired three loads of buckshot at the fugitive.

BIBLE LESS READ NOW, ASSERTED BY BISHOP.

In a sermon at Christ church, New Brunswick, Sunday morning, Bishop John Scarborough declared the Bible is being less read in these days than in former times.

People are more interested in the things of the world, the prelate said, and more attention is paid to politics and reading about the McNamara brothers than to the perusal of the Scriptures.

The days of daily Bible reading in the home and thought over its contents are fast passing away, the bishop said, and he greatly deplored this change.

"White Elephant Party."

"A White Elephant Party" will be held in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church, Friday night, and a good time is promised all who attend. The idea is for everyone attending to bring something that they did not want for exchange purposes, and the exchanging of these packages results in no end of fun.

There will be an all-day sewing meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Thursday.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

FURS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS AT

Charles Kurtzman's Fur Store

178 EAST FRONT STREET, Dr. Pittis' Office Building.

At such a big reduction in prices

That no one either in town or out of town can beat us.

If there is any gift to be given in the fur line, why not buy at a place where you are positively sure you are getting a guarantee for your money. We always give you the best satisfaction in quality, style and prices, because we are manufacturers and can save you the profits that you would otherwise have to pay the middleman. When we offer a reduction it means that the prices are cut to one-half the figure quoted elsewhere.

We, the CHARLES KURTZMAN FUR STORE, were the first fur store established here in town and have leased our premises for many years. No other can say the same and speak the truth in doing so.

NOTICE—We will refund the purchase price to any customer who will prove that they can get the same goods elsewhere at a lower figure. Alterations and remodelling are specialties. Remember the place.

A Reliable Door Check

Doors have been in use for centuries and people have not yet learned to close them. You suffer from the effects of draughts, noises, dust odors and other outside annoyances because people forget.

With a Blount Check these unnecessary disturbances disappear.

It is a door closer that never forgets. It shuts a door positively, but quietly—no slam; no sound at all save the click of the latch.

With a Guaranteed Gold-Filled Frame—Frame and Glasses Made to Order.

No Charge for Testing the Sight.

When you are tired and sick of having your eyes ntted by the old-style way of fitting glasses, or the so-called subjective test of putting lines and letters on the wall and asking whether you can see this or that letter and line; when you have been all through this many times and have been unable to get fitted correctly, come to us and we will look through your eyes and take the exact focus and error of your sight and give you comfort and relief with proper fitting glasses. We make this visit to introduce this system of fitting glasses.

If you have headaches, dizziness, nervousness or any trouble resulting from eye-strain, come to us and have your eyes measured by the new system, from which wonderful results are obtained.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were strong in New York yesterday.

New Zealand defeated a proposition for a general prohibition law.

The Supreme Court decided not to review the reorganization plan of the Tobacco Trust.

In the House of Lords Mr. Lloyd George's national insurance bill passed its second reading.

A Washington dispatch stated many Representatives in Congress favored Taft's renomination.

The Department of Agriculture estimated the cotton crop of 1911 at 14,885,000 bales, a new record.

Jubilation was expressed in Russia at Great Britain's "pliancy" with regard to Russian policy in Persia.

Secretary Knox of the State Department defended "dollar diplomacy" in his address at the Waldorf.

The Conservative party was victorious at the Ontario elections, confirming Sir James Whitney's government.

A sharp fight developed over the chairmanship of the committee of arrangements for the Republican National Convention.

An open letter from Emilio Vasquez Gomez formally repudiated any political connection between the writer and General Reyes.

Chinese republicans selected Hankow for the great peace conference; Premier Yuan's representative was provided with full powers.

Mrs. Ellen R. Peck, the well known crook, was released from the State prison at Auburn, N. Y., and took a train for New York city.

Herbert T. Jennings, president of the insolvent Mount Vernon National Bank, was arrested on a federal indictment charging misappliction of $95,899.

The condition of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, who was operated on for appendicitis in Ceylon, was reported as still serious; no complications have set in, however.

Mayor Gaynor, of New York, in his address to the visiting Governors, said he considered the recall of judges a good piece of legislation and that the trusts were not to blame for high prices.

A dispatch from Briceville, Tenn., stated that sixteen bodies have been taken from Cross Mountain Mine; there were one hundred other miners yet buried beneath the debris caused by Saturday's explosion.

The New York Central's Pawling express crashed into a freight in the fog, one man being killed and five injured, and the ramming of two ferryboats and delay of the liners were due to the weather, also.

Only efficient high pressure service, lightning work by the firemen and the absence of a high wind prevented another serious Coney Island conflagration when a blaze that started in Luna Park was confined to a small group of buildings.

A Street Cleaning Department driver in New York was instantly killed by a 25-pound piece of flagging thrown from a roof; finger prints may lead to the discovery of the slayer, as the missile retains marks, and the police have a prisoner.

A jury at Philadelphia, in the case of Miss Harriet Dewitt, of Easton, Penn., charged with being the wielder of the mysterious "poisoned pen" that caused scandal in church circles in Easton by reason of the receipt of hundreds of scurrilous anonymous letters, returned a verdict of not guilty.

Congress—Holiday recess from December 21 to January 3 ordered. Senate: Committee hearings on the Lorimer election and Sherman law held; ineffectual effort for vote on Newlands executive program. House: Railroad securities commission report submitted by the President; committee hearings on passport question and Steel Trust held; pension debate resumed.

EVERETT COLBY FOR "T.R." FOR PRESIDENT

Announcement was made yesterday in Newark by Everett Colby, one of the leading Progressives of the Republican party in New Jersey, and a former State Senator, that if Col. Roosevelt should become a candidate for President he would support him.

"I have tried hard to find out what Mr. Roosevelt intends to do," said Mr. Colby, "but have been unable to do so. It would simplify our work if we knew.

"If Mr. Roosevelt will become a candidate for President I shall support him. In saying this I don't mean to seem to oppose Mr. La Follette. But I am certainly in favor of Col. Roosevelt first."

Other Progressive leaders decline to be quoted yet on their attitude toward Col. Roosevelt, but there is among them a unanimity of opinion that if he becomes a candidate he will get the vote of the Progressives. Some of the Progressives are inclined to take Col. Roosevelt at his word that he will not run again.

Ex-Senator Colby is preparing to get in the United States Senatorial fight in New Jersey to succeed the present incumbent, Frank O. Briggs.

MUST NOT ANNOY COURT WITH TEARS.

Trenton, Dec. 12.—William Hummell, arrested on complaint of his wife, on charges of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and non-support, was released at her urgent request yesterday in Central Police Court. Mrs. Hummell pleaded eloquently and with tears for mercy toward her husband. Judge Naar, in granting the wife's appeal, warned the prisoner that he would be sentenced to the county workhouse for a long term if he should be arrested again on such charges.

Then the court gave a warning to women that they must decide whether or not they desire their husbands to be punished before causing their arrest. Often after making complaints against their husbands and taking the time of the police and the court officers in preparing such cases wives annoy the court by tearful appeals for mercy. Such inconsistent actions, Judge Naar declared, must cease.

BLOWN FROM HOUSE BY ESCAPING GAS EXPLOSION.

In a hunt for escaping gas, Policeman John A. Smith, of Rahway, Sunday night entered the cellar of the house at 11 Essex street, that place, and, lighting a match, was blown headlong out of the cellar. Fred Bartz, who accompanied Smith, shared a similar fate. Neither was seriously injured. An alarm of fire was sent in, but the flames had been extinguished before the department arrived.

The house for the past six years has been occupied by John Bartz, who moved out Saturday, the property having been sold to the Pennsylvania Railroad. It is said boys were playing in the house Sunday and took out part of the gas fixtures. Although Bartz occupied the house for six years, at no time did he burn any gas. The meter, it is said, was not known to have been in the house by the gas company.

ELIZABETH MAY GET WATER FROM WANAQUE.

The special committee on municipal water supply and the directors of the Elizabethtown Water Company at a conference yesterday afternoon obtained the necessary data for the completion of the report to be presented to Elizabeth City Council next Friday night.

None of the members of the committee will divulge the nature of the report, but it is known that they have had at least two plans for getting a municipal water supply under consideration. The plan that seems to be most favored is to get the supply from the Wanaque watershed, through the State Water Supply Commission. The commission held a meeting in Newark this morning.

The other plan considered by the Elizabeth committee was the purchase or condemnation of the Elizabethtown Water Company.

—A gray horse belonging to A. M. Griffen & Son got out of the barn on Washington street, last night, and was found wandering about by Patrolman Saffron. It was claimed by the owners this morning.

—At the opening of the Hunterdon County Court this morning, Harry J. Able was appointed acting prosecutor by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard to serve through the term or until H. G. Chamberlain, the prosecutor, has recovered from an illness.

SOCIALIST OFFICIALS RETAIN OWN ATTORNEY.

Interesting developments are expected to result from the appointment of Henry Carless, of Newark, as attorney for the Socialists in Elizabeth. It was announced yesterday that Mr. Carless will have charge of the drafting and revising of ordinances that will be introduced in City Council by the two Socialist members-elect, who will take their seats January 1.

Elizabeth has a city attorney and an assistant city attorney. The councilmen of the two larger parties have been satisfied to have them pass upon the measures introduced. There is, therefore, little doubt that the introduction of an outside lawyer into the preparation of municipal legislation by the first officials of a new party will be resented by the Democratic and Republican members.

James C. Connolly, who is a candidate for county judge to succeed Edward S. Atwater, whose term expires in 1913, is the city attorney, his assistant being Joseph T. Hague.

A settlement was reached between the directors of the British railway companies and the representatives of the men's unions.

WANTED TO RENT.

WANTED—Two or three unfurnished rooms for light housekeeping in North Plainfield. Address S. H., care Press.

LIGHTS ON WHITE WAY WEAK, IT IS CHARGED.

Steps to ascertain whether or not the Public Service Corporation is furnishing the power required to generate 2,000 candlepower in each of the lights on Broad street's new white way will be taken at a meeting tonight of the Broad Street Improvement Association at Elizabeth.

The lights were placed under a contract entered into with the city about three years ago, providing that they should be of 2,000-candlepower. In another section, however, it provides that the candlepower mentioned shall be the "trade power" of the lights and that the contract shall be considered carried out if the company furnishes the required energy to produce the candlepower. An informal investigation has resulted in the general belief that the lights are not giving 2,000-candlepower.

Mayor Stein last night said that it was his intention to order an investigation in connection with his campaign to have all wires put underground and that he would immediately co-operate with the merchants who subscribed to the installation of the new lighting system.

An investigation of the entire lighting system of the city may be the result, as the contract between the Public Service Corporation and the city provides that the latter may deduct from the price of the lights a sum in proportion to the amount of energy which is not being furnished.

The committee of arrangements of the Broad Street Improvement Association, which had in charge the celebration incident to the opening of the white way on Friday night, met yesterday afternoon and prepared a report to be submitted to the association at its regular meeting tonight, when a complete financial statement will be made.

It is now thought that Yuan Shih Kai may grab the throne. He is, indeed, a true progressive!—Washington Post.

The Kingdom Of Slender Swords

By HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES

Copyright, 1910, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

For a breath he stared. A cool, thriving suspicion, one bred of his anger and humiliation that shamed his manhood, ran through him. Barbara there! Was it another rendezvous, then? The fierce, self dishonoring doubt merged into the mad jealousy that already burned him like a brand.

He dropped the kimono, drew back the shikiri of the unused apartment and stepped inside.

Swiftly and noiselessly the light partition slipped into place behind him.

Through the thin paper pane parted by his moistened finger Ware's hot, hollow eyes saw the Japanese girl come into the room. She had not waited to shut the shoji behind her. She drew quick sobbing breaths, and her eyes had the desperate look of a hunted animal. She ran into the sleeping apartment and closed its shikiri.

Barbara had halted at the doorway. As she stood looking in her eyes fell on the mauve kimono with its silver camellias. It was the robe Haru had worn the first evening she came to her. If she had doubted all doubt was now gone.

But an instant she hesitated, then, with sudden resolution, knocked on the grill and stepped across the threshold.

The man who watched could not solve the puzzle; but in that instant the sick suspicion he had harbored became a cold and lifeless thing in his breast.

A great sense of shame rushed through him as he saw her gaze wander about the interior with its veneer of the foreign, to the disordered desk, the lounge and its litter of books, the photograph on the wall, the open panel with its champagne bottles. In her glance distaste had grown to a quick question. The coarse suggestions of the place were welling over her. Whose house was this? Had Haru seen her, and was she hiding from her?

Suddenly she saw the man's cap and gauntlet in the corner. Her cheeks rushed into flame. She seemed to see Haru's innocent face smiling at her over the throbbing samisen and through its tones to hear again the echo of a ribald laugh before the gilded cages of the Yoshiwara. Something in her cried out against the inference.

All at once Barbara took an abrupt step forward. She was looking at the round glass lantern just outside the doorway, painted with three characters:

ドント

She chilled as if ether had been poured in her veins. The name they stood for had been her first lesson in Japanese which Haru had taught her. She snatched up one of the volumes from the chair. It was Lillienthal's "Conquest of the Air." She opened it to the title page.

Ware, watching, saw with surprise that she was trembling violently. She had grown pale to the lips. The book slipped from her fingers and crashed on to the tatame. It lay there, open as she had held it, and he saw what was written across the white leaf. It was Daunt's name.

His thought leaped as if at the flick of a lash. Daunt's book! What was she thinking? The piteous pallor that swept her face like an icy wave answered him. Why she was there—her interest in this Japanese girl who fled from her—he could not guess. But it was clear that she had not known the house was Daunt's and that with the knowledge she was face to face with what must seem a damning complicity. Perhaps some hint of this retreat had come to her—he knew how gossip feathered its shafts—some covert allusion, some laughing ouidire, to which her coming had now given such verity. Phil was the deus ex machina of the situation. His Japanese amour she was now laying at Daunt's door. All this flashed through his mind in an instant. He watched her intently.

Over Barbara was sweeping a hideous chaos of mocking voices, bits of recollection barbed with agony—the little house near Aoyama parade ground (the carriage had passed the great empty plaza a few moments ago) that he had kept from "sentiment;" the house she had asked him to show her, when he had evaded the request. And Haru! A feeling of physical anguish like that of death came to her. A dull pain was in her temples, and the floor seemed to be rising up with her toward the ceiling. Daunt? He whose lips had lain on hers, whose letter was in her bosom—it burned her flesh now like a live coal. "There has never been another woman to me, Barbara. There never will be!" The words seemed to launch themselves from the air, stinging like fiery javelins.

Behind the shikiri a weird, malevolent clamor was shouting through Ware's brain. He stood alone with his temptation. What had he to do with Daunt or with her belief in him? She had accepted his own advances

The Home Building & Loan Association

Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years: If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent.	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. Further information may be had at that time or by applying to the secretary, Arthur E. Crone, care of the City National Bank. tu-th

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

beckoned him half around the world—for what? To discard him for this man whom she had known but a handful of days. Chance had arranged this mise en scene. Was he to tell her the truth—and lose her? The key to the situation was in his hand. He had only to keep silence.

"MY BAD—OH, VE-REE BAD JAPAN GIRL!"

At that moment he felt crumble down in some crude gulf within the fabric of his self esteem the high built structure of years. Something colder, formless and malignant came to sit on its riven foundations. A savage elation grew in him.

Suddenly a shikiri was flung aside. Haru stood there, her face deathly pale, her hands wrenching and tearing at her sleeves. She laughed, a high, gasping, unnatural treble.

"So-o-o, Ojo-San! You come make visiting, ne?" The shrill voice rang through the silent room. "My new house now an' mos' bes' master. No more Christian! My bad—oh, ve-ree bad Japan girl!" With another peal of laughter she pointed to the knot of her obi. It was tied in front.

Barbara ran down the garden path as if pursued. She stepped into the carriage blindly.

This, then, was the end. It came to her like the striking of a great bell. Tomorrow the streets would lie as vivid in the sunlight, the buglers would march as blithely, the bent pines would wave, the lotus pads in the moat glisten, the gorgeous peisha flash by. She alone would know that the sun had died in the blue heaven.

"Home, Taka," she said and leaned back and closed her eyes.

Behind her Haru's laughter had broken suddenly. She rushed into the little sleeping room and threw herself on the tatame before the tiny image of Kwanon in a wild burst of sobbing.

Ware opened the shikiri softly and with noiseless step passed out of the house.

FORMER HEAD OF HARVARD SUFFERS WITH APPENDICITIS.

Dispatches received at Boston Saturday announced that President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard, was operated upon for appendicitis at Kandy, Ceylon, Friday. The appendix was removed, the message stated. Dr. Eliot was reported resting comfortably. A quick recovery, the cablegram said, was anticipated.

Dr. Eliot left Boston a month ago for a tour around the world, accompanied by his wife, his daughter, a niece and a private secretary. He resigned as president of Harvard three years ago, upon reaching the age of 70.

At Kandy, which is situated high among the hills of Ceylon, there is an excellently equipped hospital in charge of English physicians and surgeons and nurses. Friends of Dr. Eliot were much releived this afternoon by the second dispatch.

RAILROAD CO. CLOSES STREET IN ELIZABETH.

The eastern end of Third street, Elizabethport, has been closed off by the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The railroad company has built a high board fence across the north side of Turnbull street at its intersection with Third street. So far as is known the company had no legal warrant for closing the street.

The company officials explain their action by saying that the short portion of Third from Trumbull to the railroad tracks was of practically no use except to pedestrians who availed themselves of it as a short cut to reach the Elizabethport Station. Several narrow escapes from being struck by trains on the Long Branch division, occurred at this point and for the beter protection of life the railroad company decided to close the street.

CONFER WITH DE FOREST ON OVERSEER POSITION

What was originally intended to be a meeting of the councilmanic alms committee last night with Henry L. DeForest, who, it has been rumored, is slated to succeed Alexander D. Ayers as the head of the poor department work of the city, resolved itself into a conference of a majority of the Common Council with Mr. DeForest. The members declined to discuss what took place at the session, a few of them declaring only that everything is working harmoniously and that matters will probably be settled in a satisfactory way to all concerned.

An impression having been generally gained that the Charity Organization Society has been endeavoring to get control of the poor department of the city for the purpose of combining it with its charity work, prompted a statement from a city father today to the effect that the Common Council "would not stand for such an arrangement under any consideration." There is a disposition on the part of the councilmen to work in harmony with the Charity Organization, but as for turning over the appropriation of the city for the poor department to the Charity Organization or its representatives and allowing that society or its agents to assume control of the work, there is not the slightest possibility of such a thing, according to some members of the Common Council.

There is a plan underway, it is said, whereby the Charity Organization Society will be in closer touch with the city poor department for the purpose of increasing the efficiency of the charity work in the organization as well as the city department, and no doubt there will be a better understanding in the future between the city and the organization.

STATE TRUST CO. CLOCK ADMIRED

The handsome street clock purchased by The State Trust Company was erected in front of the company's banking house on Park avenue, yesterday and late in the afternoon was set going. It has since been admired by many, who recognize that it is a public convenience. The work of erecting the clock was begun on Saturday and pushed rapidly to completion.

The clock measures fifteen feet over all; the dials measure thirty inches in diameter and are of glass, frosted. Around each of the dials is a black hand showing the lettter-ing "The State Trust Company." The entire structure is of cast iron. The movement which is located in the base of the post is of the very finest type for use in street clocks. It is constructed with heavy cast iron plates hard hammered brass wheels and cut steel pinions.

There is a small dial on the movement which travels in unison with the hands to the large dials above. The pendulum is constructed with a mahogany rod with a heavy cylindrical bob. This pendulum is 39 5-16 inches long from the centre of the oscillation. The clock is so constructed that the hands move forward once each second. The weight which travels the clock is of lead and weighs 125 pounds. This weight is suspended on steel wire rope. From the movement in the base of the post extending to the centre of the dials is a brass shafting which connects with beveled gears and shafts on which the hour and minute hands are fitted.

FAMOUS SCULPTOR HAS PASSED AWAY

Thomas Ball, the famous American sculptor, died yesterday at the home of his son-in-law, William Couper, in Montclair, in his ninety-third year. Thomas Ball outlived all the famous American sculptors who attained prominence in the last half of the nineteenth century, and reached a greater age than any of his contemporaries.

Mr. Ball was born in Charlestown, Mass., on June 3, 1819. Early in his career Mr. Ball was a member of the famous Handel and Hadyn Society of Boston, and took part in the first production of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" in this country. Mr. Ball assumed the title role in the oratorio.

Besides being a sculptor, Mr. Ball was also a painter of distinction. Mr. Ball resided in Florence, Italy, from 1865 to 1897. He then returned to this country, and in 1898 took up his residence in Montclair. The most notable of Mr. Ball's works are the equestrian statue of Washington in Washington; the Lincoln "emancipation group," in Washington; a statue of Gov. Andrews, at the State House in Boston; statue of Daniel Webster, in Central Park, New York; stateu of Josiah Quincy, in front of the City Hall, Boston, and a statue of Charles Sumner, in the public gardens, Boston. Another large figure of Washington, the work of Mr. Ball, is in Methuen, Mass.

Several years ago Mr. Ball completed a painting on which he had been laboring at intervals for fifty years. It is entitled, "Jesus Speaking to Martha and Mary."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Resplendent with the massive stage pictures of the Orient, the gorgeous trappings of a showy people and the radiant colors of a tropical clime, "The Arab" comes to the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, December 16, matinee and evening. This announcement is important in itself but there is an added interest in the fact that the presentation of this great play is co-incident with the annual visit of Robert Edeson. Mr. Edeson has had a variety of plays, exploiting his ability in diversified ways, but in "The Arab" he has a play and a part entirely different from anything yet essayed by him. He has made of "The Arab" even a greater success than was anticipated by the author, Edgar Selwyn, when the piece was written for Mr. Edeson.

MAIL CARRIER QUITS; OTHERS WANT PLACE.

Albert E. Thornton has resigned his position as carrier of the mail between the postoffice and the North Avenue station to take effect January 1 and Postmaster E. H. Bird has received four applications for the job. The government awards the contract for carrying the mail to the lowest bidder. Those who have submitted bids are Benjamin Urquhart and Andrew Winrow, who previously held the job; John Kline and H. S. Hall. The bids were sent to Washington this morning and Mr. Bird expects an answer within two weeks.

The trouble heretofore has been that the one that got the job bid so low that he eventually got tired of it. The work requires a man to be on duty practically all the time between 5 o'clock in the morning and midnight and at certain hours of the day an extra man is needed. Mr. Thornton has been doing the work for $15 a week.

CONCERT PLEASING

Joseph McIntyre Musical Entertainment at High School Delighted Large Audience.

THE ARTISTS GET APPLAUSE.

Miss Inez Barbour, Soprano, and Mr. Bem, 'Cellist—The Rubenstein Trio a Delightful Number.

The many patrons of the McIntyre concerts were again delighted by the feast of music spread for them last evening at the High School auditorium. We have spoken so often of the great excellence of these concerts that it is hard to say a new word of praise, but last evening's offering was without doubt one of Mr. McIntyre's greatest offerings for our musical pleasure.

The three artists, the McIntyre Trio, who appear in the ensemble number, make an organization of such merit that it is a foregone conclusion that whatever they give will be a treat. Last night's number, the Rubenstein Trio, contained so many delightful moments that one finds it hard to discriminate as to their precedence. From the noble opening movement and the grand finale, to the seductive scherzo and plaintive quasi religious andante the listener has appeals to his most varied emotions. As the trio was written by one of the princes of the piano it naturally falls that this instrument would be the centre of activity and importance. This fact added much to the successful outcome, as it gave an opportunity for a beautiful touch and tone and above all a musicianship which Mr. McIntyre possesses so preeminently.

Mr. Grimson and Mr. Bem aided and supported his fine work to perfection.

Mr. Bem was heard in the difficult and interest variations for 'cello by Boellmann, winning enthusiastic applause, being recalled several times, bowing his acknowledgements.

Miss Inez Barbour, soprano, assisted the Trio by singing two groups of songs. She won an instantaneous success. Seldom has a singer in Plainfield received the applause vouchsafed this songstress, or more deservedly. She is a fine artist and has a beautiful, high, clear, true soprano voice and uses it with perfect skill. She sings her French and German songs like a native, with rare and delicate feeling. Her numbers were well chosen and arranged and faultlessly performed. She leaves shortly for a long season of opera in Berlin and Hamburg. Plainfield can plainly congratulate itself upon its having had the pleasure of hearing the charming artist.

The program of last night follows: Trio, opus 52, for piano, violin and 'cello, moderato assai, andante, scherzo, moderato, Rubeinstein; songs, Oh! Si les Fleurs, Massenet; Fantoches, Debussy; Du bist ein Kind, Weingartner; Mausfallensprüchlein, Wolf. Cello, Variations symphoniques, Boellmann. Songs, Love Has Wings, Rogers; The Willow, Goring-Thomas; Come Unto These Yellow Sands, La Forge. Trio, Andante Cantibile, Milenka.

The next and last of this series of concerts occurs on January 16.

Mrs. Hall's Lectures.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall gave the first address in the course of public school lectures at Atlantic City, last night, in the high school auditorium there. Her subject was "The Cardinal Points of Good Manners." Mrs. Hall has just returned from the East, where she gave a course of four lectures on manners at Miss McClintock's school, Boston, and a talk on "Current Events," before the Worcester Woman's Club and the Levaha Club at Worcester. This is the same address which she gave recently before the Women's Club of Orange, New Jersey.

Captured Escaped Prisoner.

Having escaped some time ago from the State Home for Girls, to which institution she was committed from this city a year ago, Eva Chapman, colored, came back to town several weeks ago and last night was arrested. The authorities at the Home were notified of her capture and asked to have her detained until the arrival of an agent. She is being held at police headquarters.

Both D. and D.; Given S. S.

Anton Kordek, of South Second street, was arrested for drunkeness last night and was allowed to go under a suspended sentence by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning upon promise to leave liquor alone in the future. William Kerwick, of South Plainfield, was given the same chance on the same promise. He was arrested for the same offence.

CHARLES C. COKEFAIR DIES IN DULUTH, MINN.

Word was received by friends here this afternoon of the death of Charles C. Cokefair in Duluth, Minn., where he has been a resident since removing from Crescent avenue, this city, several years ago. It has been known for some time that he was in poor health, but was able to be about each day until a week ago when his condition made it necessary for him to remain at home. Even then it was not thought that his illness was of a serious nature. Death occurred early this morning.

Since removing from Plainfield Mr. Cokefair has made a number of trips east and on each of them made it a point to spend some time with his friends in this city. Surviving are his widow and one son, Francis A. Cokefair.

STATE BOARD HEARING ON OUR SEWAGE PLANS

Before the Common Council can go ahead with its plans for any extension or improvement to the sewage disposal beds, the proposed changes will have to receive the approval of the State Board of Health and for that purpose a public hearing will be held at the State House, Trenton, on Wednesday morning, Dec. 27, at 11 o'clock. It is supposed that some remonstrance has been filed and that Dunellenites are back of it.

When Mayor G. W. V. Moy was asked today what prompted the State Board of Health to order a hearing, he declared that the only information he had was a notice sent to him by that body that the hearing would be held at the time mentioned. "I have no knowledge as to who has made any formal objection to the State Board," he asserted.

The Mayor stated that he had also received a notice from Bruce S. Keater, secretary of the State Board of Health, that the plans for Cedar Brook terrace extension to the sewage system were approved by the Board yesterday subject to conditions as to construction and operation to be made from time to time by that body.

Mrs. Paul Ackerly.

Friends here of Paul Ackerly, at one time a reporter on The Daily Press, received word today of the death of his wife. Mr. Ackerly is at present residing in Rockville, Conn., going to that place shortly after leaving Plainfield. His wife died Thanksgiving Day, after an illness of a week with pneumonia. Mrs. Ackerly was a daughter of the late Congressman Henry, of Connecticut and made the acquaintance of her husband while he was secretary to her father. A daughter two years old survives beside her husband.

Robert Edeson Coming.

The offering at the Plainfield theatre Saturday, matinee and evening, will be Robert Edeson, who will appear in "The Arab," the Edgar Selwyn play dealing with life in the Orient. Believing that the picturesque minarets and towers of Constantinople and far-famed Damascus held much that was romantic Mr. Selwyn went to that distant and quaint land and evolved the stirring story in which Mr. Edeson will hold forth as the hero.

Incorporated In Union.

The Suburban Homes Development Company has filed papers of incorporation with the county clerk at Elizabeth. The concern will carry on a general real estate business and have offices at Fanwood. The incorporators are William H. Cooper, Walter Brown and Ten Eyck R. Beardsley. The capital stock is $100,000, of which $2,000 is paid in. The shares number 2,000 at a par value of $50 per share.

Injuries Not Serious.

The extent of the injuries to Edward Martin, the young man hurt yesterday while at work at the Saurer Motor Truck works, proved to be not nearly as serious as at first thought. While his left hand was badly lacerated and some of the bones broken, it was not necessary to amputate any of the digits or part of the palm.

Resigns Office.

Hyman Adelberg today sent his resignation as a special deputy sheriff to Sheriff Wright. The reason stated for relinquishing the office several weeks after appointment is a press of other business.

Want Basketball Games.

The Neptune A. C. basketball team of South Amboy wishes to book games with teams in Plainfield and vicinity. All teams desiring games should address John W. Manhattan, Box 48, South Amboy, N. J.

COAL MEN DINED

Members of Dealers Credit Association Gather at the Waldorf.

THE FIRST ANNUAL AFFAIR.

Threatened Strike of Miners Principal Topic Discussed—Local Officials Were Guests.

Members of the local Coal Dealers' Credit Association and a number of invited guests gathered round the festive board at the Hotel Waldorf, last night, for the first of what is to be an annual dinner. All the firms in this city and others in Westfield, Elizabeth, Dunellen, New Market and Somerville were represented. Hugh A. Todd, of the Boice, Runyon Company, presided as toastmaster during the speechmaking period after coffee and cigars had completed the excellent menu.

While nearly everyone present had something to say about the association and its purposes, the trend of discussion centered about the threatened coal strike in the anthracite fields. The miners are steadily getting in shape for a long siege and even at this time are better prepared than ever before to tie up the output for a long time. When the big strike of 1900 was declared, only ten per cent of the men were allied with the unions, now it is ninety per cent. The operators realize what this means and are doing everything possible to bring about an offset. At the same time they are erecting stockades about the shafts and collieries in preparation for violence that will follow the importation of non-union men. The miners are asking for an increase of five cents per ton over the present rate while the operators have given notice of a five cent decrease, making a difference of ten cents to the men.

It was the general opinion at the dinner, last night, that the strike would come early next year. The dealers agreed that the only thing they could do to protect themselves was to lay in capacity supplies and fill all large orders as speedily as possible. The operators have given notice that cancellation of impending shipments are apt to be made soon after the strike is declared.

The invited guests at the gathering were Judge Isaac P. Runyon, counsel for the association; former City Judge William N. Runyon, Chief P. S. Kiely, Chief T. O. Doane, P. J. Zeiger, of Bethlehem, Pa., and John Morris, of New York.

The coal firms represented were the following: Joseph Harrigan, Ten Eyck & Kelly, Nathan Morris & Son, Wadley & Goodenough, McDonough Brothers, Manning & Line, Harris, Robert Klein, Walter Temple, George O. Stevens, VanZandt & Voorhees and Richard Parrott, of Plainfield; Michael Moynihan and Garretson & Gray, of Dunellen; C. E. Kelley, of New Market; Hand & Hetfield, of Fanwood; Harry Wilson and John Lance, of Elizabeth.

Joseph Harrigan, of this city, was general chairman of the committee of arrangements.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB ELECTS NEW STEWARDS.

The following were elected to the Board of Stewards at the annual meeting of the Watchung Hunt Club: H. Stewart Hollis, T. R. VanBoskerck, one year; J. J. O'Donohue, two years; William P. Smith, Jr., and Rufus C. Finch, R. H. Towner and H. P. Coombe, three years.

The board now consists of the following in addition: Edwin S. Hooley, H. E. Butler, C. W. Holland and Henry L. Finch. Those who retired were W. J. BButtfield, R. A. Fairbairn, J. Hartley Mellick, H. S. Farley and C. E. S. Bellows

Second Crop of Blooms.

Ephraim Carman, of Plainfield avenue, came into the Press office this morning proudly displaying a number of dandelions he had gathered in a field near Harrison avenue. The blooms are the second crop this season and good specimens, aside from being much more potent for the purpose to which they are put, Eph said.

CELEBRATED TENTH YEAR OF MARRIAGE

Seventy friends joined with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, of West Fifth street, last night, in celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary. During the few short hours of sociability, Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano, and Mrs. C. T. Hutcheson, contralto, both of Trinity Reformed church choir, of which Mr. Titsworth has been director for years, sang and neither has ever been in better voice. They were accompanied by Mrs. F. J. Hubbard, Miss Violet Truell-Johnston and Miss Lillian A. Force.

Mr. and Mrs. Titsworth received many useful gifts in addition to a purse containing bright silver dollars of the date of their marriage. During the evening's festivities, refreshments were served.

The couple were married at the home of Mrs. Titsworth's parents at Tenth and Walnut streets, Philadelphia, on December 12, 1901. She was Miss Nellie S. Runner. Rev. Dr. Charles H. Thomas, a Baptist minister, officiated.

MINISTER DESCRIBES TOUR AROUND WORLD.

Rev. C. S. Wyckoff, for many years pastor of the Dutch Reformed church of Brooklyn, addressed the Men's Club of the Congregational church, last night, on his recent tour around the world, especially his impressions of the Far East and the conditions causing the Chinese Revolution. His talk was not at all of a formal nature but rather of the chatty kind and very much enjoyed by the members.

Prior to the address the club held a business meeting at which E. H. Morgan was elected to membership. It was decided to have the January meeting a "ladies' night."

Hebrews Visit Martine.

As the representatives of a large number of Jewish citizens of Newark, Rabbi Solomon Foster, of Congregation B'Nai Jeshurun, Rabbi H. Brodsky, of Congregation Anshe Russia, and Rabbi Julius Silberfeld, of Congregation B'Nai Abraham, called on Senator Martine, of New Jersey, at Washington, Monday afternoon and laid before him the demands of the member of their congregations for the abrogation of the treaty with Russia on account of the passport question.

WEDDED AT HOME

Miss Emily Runyon the Bride of Albert J. Horton, of White Plains, N. Y.

FIFTY FRIENDS WERE PRESENT.

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire Officiates—Miss Brainard Maid-of-Honor—Lester Acker Was Best Man.

Miss Emily Sandford Runyon, daughter of Mrs. Theodore I. Runyon, of Putnam avenue, and Albert J. Horton, of White Plains, N. Y., were married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's mother in the presence of about fifty guests, including relatives and friends from Brooklyn, White Plains and this city. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which the bride is a member, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine over white satin, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Natalie Brainard, of Westfield, as maid of honor, who wore a gown of pink marquisette over pink messaline, and carried Kilarney roses. The best man was Lester Acker, of White Plains, N. Y.

The wedding march was played on the piano by Mrs. John McLoughlin, of Westfield. After the ceremony a reception was held, during which the couple received congratulations and supper was served. The parlor, dining room and hall were attractively decorated for the affair with the season's flowers. Mrs. Horton received a large collection of handsome and useful gifts. Later in the evening the couple left on a southern trip. Upon their return they will reside at White Plains.

Mrs. Horton is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and she has been active in the work at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Mr. Horton is connected with the Cutler Hammer Manufacturing Company, of New York, and has been a resident of White Plains for a number of years.

A Slight Fire.

A line of clothes left drying over a range at the home of Peter Blaich on Westervelt avenue, caught fire at 7:30 last night, and dropped to the floor. The flames ate their way through to an apartment below occupied by Peter Blaich. The borough department responded to an alarm from box 134 and put out the blaze with chemicals. The damage is placed at about $25.

COUPLES GOING AWAY SUGGESTS ELOPEMENT

Harry Mowrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mowrey, of Duer street, left the home of his parents Saturday last, without saying where he was going. Shortly after he had gone, Miss Annie May Ross, who has been boarding at the Mowrey home, also went away. Since then nothing has been seen or heard of either and it is presumed the young couple have eloped. Neither is of age.

Mrs. Mowrey, the mother of the young man, said today she had absolutely no idea of the whereabouts of her son or Miss Ross. She entertained the belief that they might possibly have gone to the home of her relatives in Easton, Pa., and had written to find out. She expressed little doubt but what they had been married.

MAYOR MOY STOPS 'RELIGIOUS' SCHEME

Mayor Moy yesterday stopped the operation of a scheme which under the alleged guise of a religious enterprise had interested a number of children in the sale of postal cards for the purpose of winning prizes. In order to make sales easy and add an extra inducement to children to take up the work, J. H. Titus, of Westfield, the originator of the plan, announced that each child laying in a stock of the cards for selling purposes immediately became a worker in "Jesus Message of Love Army, the All and in All Powerful Army of Workers of the Lord."

Between this high sounding phraseology in the literature he furnished each child when the cards were bought, and the actual sale of the cards there was absolutely no connection except the thinly veiled implication to prospective purchasers that they were assisting some religious movement in buying the cards from the children, who themselves were violating the vending ordinance of the city.

In stopping the sale, Mayor Moy informed the local manager for Mr. Titus that if he was not satisfied that the scheme was illegal, he could bring the case to court for the purpose of a test.

Woman Sent to Jail.

Lottie Copeland, colored, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 or serve 20 days in the county jail when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning for drunkenness. She did not have the money so will be sent to Elizabeth.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

HELD AS BURGLARS

Three Youths Arrested in City to be Arraigned in Borough Court Tomorrow.

CONFESSIONS BY PRISONERS.

Edward Murphy, Albert Vail and Edward Hamilton in Toils—Police Seek James Coleman.

Suspected of being the burglars who entered the tailoring shop of Benjamin Estrin, on Somerset street, last Friday night, when more than a hundred dollars worth of clothing was stolen, Edward Murphy, of Arlington avenue, Albert Vail, of East Second street, and Edward Hamilton, of Watchung avenue, were arrested last night by the city police and this morning turned over to the borough authorities. They will be arraigned for a hearing before Recorder Dolliver tomorrow morning. James Coleman, colored, who also figures in the burglary has not been apprehended, having fled when he learned of the arrest of the others. It is expected that he will be taken into custody during the day.

Coleman is the ringleader of the gang, the police say, and he gave the plans for committing the crime, according to the stories told by Murphy, Vail and Hamilton to Chief Kiely when being put through the third degree. Murphy was arrested first and gave information that led up to the arrest of the others. The boys' stories agree and differ but little in the details.

According to their plan a boy named Cole who has not been arrested, but who had an overcoat being repaired in the tailor shop, was to go into the store and keep the proprietor engaged in conversation while Coleman and Vail should steal what goods they could. This plan fell through and Coleman took Murphy and Hamilton into the scheme and while they acted as lookouts, the colored boy and Vail went through the store.

Entrance was gained by cutting away a wooden shutter from a rear window, the sash of which was also removed. The goods were stowed in a dressuit case and taken to Coleman's home on Berckmen street. Later they were taken to Elizabeth and disposed of in a second hand clothing store. The boys also admitted that several jobs in Westfield stores had been planned under the leadership of Coleman. These jobs were to be done during this week or before Christmas to provide some holiday money.

Coleman is an old offender although less than twenty-five years old. His two years' parole from the Rahway Reformatory recently expired. Chief Kiely feels sure that a number of the burglaries committed on vacant houses here during the summer was his work but has been unable to get evidence enough against him to warrant his arrest. All of the other boys have been in the hands of the police before on different charges. None of them is yet out of his teens, but show indifference as to his fate even when visited in the cells by mother and sisters.

BOROUGHITES HOLD AN INFORMAL DINNER.

A party of sixteen borough men enjoyed an informal dinner at the Chatham Hotel, last night. The affair was in the nature of a "get-together" and will be followed by a number of others. Proprietor Blatz furnished a splendid menu, after which speeches were in order. It is declared emphatically that none of them touched on politics.

Guests of honor at the dinner were Councilman J. J. Stahl, former Freeholder Andrew Lutkins and Chief William McCullough. The arrangements were made by Edwin Gaub and Howard Woolston.

Watchung Council Elects.

Watchung council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, elected the following officers at its meeting last night: Grand Knight, Joseph F. O'Keefe; deputy grand knight, David B. Doyle; chancellor, Calvin E. Broadhead; warden, A. R. Martell; financial secretary, W. H. Schaefer; treasurer, J. J. Carty; recorder, J. J. Varley; inside guard, G. A. Keating; outside guard, James Hurley; delegates to State convention, Joseph F. O'Keefe and H. P. Greenwood. The installation will take place in January.

Classis Meeting.

The Classis of Newark, will meet in special session Saturday at 3 o'clock in the North Reformed church for the purpose of hearing the report of the church extension committee on the work at Ampere, N. J., and attending to any other business that may come up in regular order.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Commencing next Friday evening, December 15, this store will keep open until Christmas. We would kindly ask customers to take small parcels, it will make it easier for our drivers.

POLICE DOUBT GIRL'S STORY OF ODD ATTACK.

Unable to verify in the slightest detail the story of an odd assault told by Loretta Mortimer, the police declare the story an invention. The girl, who is sixteen years old, says that a man, well dressed and good looking, entered her home on the fourth floor of 248 Pacific avenue, Jersey City, and tied her to a chair. He knotted a veil about her neck, a towel about her wrists and scarf around her legs.

For an hour he walked about the apartment. She managed to get her feet loose. He threatened to kill her if she made an outcry, but did not prevent her from leaving the room. He walked across the hall, entered a room and closed the door. She looked through the keyhole and saw him sitting at a table. She went downstairs and summoned friends, and when they arrived the man had disappeared.

The police theory is that the girl's mind has been weakened by too frequent attendance on moving picture shows.

MATRON PREVENTED NIGHT JAIL DELIVERY.

The keen ear of the matron of the Hudson County Jail probably prevented several prisoners from escaping from that lock-up early yesterday morning. Mrs. Murray heard saws at work on the corridor bars and when an investigation was made a hole more than a foot square was found in one of the windows where the bars had been sawed through.

The tools with which the job was done lay on the floor under the window. All the prisoners are accounted for and the efforts of Sheriff Wedin are being directed to learn who was the attempted jail-breaker.

Mrs. Murray is a light sleeper and it was shortly after 12 o'clock that she heard a rasping sound and alarmed the keeper, James Moody, who was in the office at the time. The two went to the corridor on the third floor and Moody went inside, after locking the door behind him and asking Mrs. Murray to remain on guard outside the door.

Put Stop to Truancy.

The Westfield plan of dealing with truants has succeeded in making the practise of playing hookey so unpopular there that there is no more of it in town. The plan is that when a regular offender is absent from school, the truant officer reports to the chief of police and the patrolmen are notified to pick the truant up if he is seen on the street and take him to the lockup, where he is detained until school would close and then he is turned loose.

Prisoner Declared Insane.

New Brunswick, Dec. 13.—County Physician Edgar Carroll, of Dayton, and Dr. J. Warren Rice, of this city, have examined Frank Smith, a prisoner at the county jail, and have declared that he is insane. Smith was found wandering about Franklin Park demanding work and threatening those who would not listen to his appeals. Prosecutor Booraem placed the man under arrest.

INTERURBAN CAR LINE URGED FOR RAHWAY

A committee was appointed by the Elizabeth Broad Street Improvement Association at a meeting last night to investigate the advisability of the organization placing itself on record as favoring the building of a new trolley line on Rahway avenue to connect that city and Rahway. Rahway avenue recently was taken over to the county by the Board of Freeholders and it is the desire of those in favor of the proposed trolley line to have steps taken for its erection before the thoroughfare is repaved.

Resolutions regarding the proposed line were submitted to the association at its last meeting by John W. Whelan. He advised the association to forward the resolutions to City Council. Objections were made last night to sending Council the resolutions until the matter is thoroughly understood.

Frank L. Devine, secretary of the Board of Trade, was voted $100 as acknowledgement for his services in connection with the celebration of Broad's street's "white way" and the procuring of the lights.

Albert C. Stein, president of the association, in answer to criticisms of the alleged weak light, said that the association and city are getting what they are paying for. He said that other styles of globes will be placed over the lights for experiments.

HEALTH BOARD DENIES CAUSING DEATH OF FISH.

The State Board of Health issued a statement to the people of Trenton yesterday relative to the typhoid epidemic threatening the city.

The appearance of dead fish in the reservoir had been attributed in some quarters to the presence of calcium hypochlorite, placed in the water by the board's order for the purposes of sterilization. The board says the chemical is not responsible for killing the fish. The statement says:

"The amount of hypochlorite now being added has apparently made itself perceptible in the water in certain sections of the city. The slight taste created is not an indication of the existence of materials injurious to the human stomach.

"It is a fact that numbers of dead fish have appeared on the suface of the reservoir during the last two weeks. As evidence that the hypochlorite has not been responsible for the death of these fish, we would present the testimony of the reservoir attendants and members of the city water department, who report that dead fish occur in the reservoir each year at this season, the number noted this year being less than usual.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel, will hold its monthly meeting Friday afternoon at the usual hour and at 2 o'clock the exutive committee will meet. The officers request a full attendance of members.

THIRD ARREST IN ARSON INQUIRY AT OLD BRIDGE.

Coincident with exoneration of Ellis Appleby, a third arrest was made Monday afternoon in connection with incendiary fires at Old Bridge. Frederick Smith, nineteen years old, was jailed in New Brunswick on the charge of firing the vacant house of Edward and William Culver at Old Bridge.

This house was discovered on fire on the day prior to the grand jury starting the investigation of the charge of arson against Mr. Appleby. The jurors exonerated Mr. Appleby by their failure to indict and by the statement of Prosecutor T. B. Booraem that the evidence produced in the case was insufficient to warrant an indictment.

Smith has made a confession to Detective Richard Peltier and will be examined as to his sanity. Smith declares he fired the building to see the firemen run to the fire.

Before the arrest of Smith, four indictments were handed up by the jury against Leonard Rivers and George Reed for the alleged firing of the Selover & Stonaker building at Old Bridge last August, for which Appleby was arrested.

WOMAN'S LOVE FOR PETS MAY SNARE HER.

Mrs Joseph Saducky, of 20 Morton street, Newark, charged with setting fire to her home last Thursday afternoon, was arrested Tuesday by Patrolman Sebold, of the Fourth Precinct; Fireman Koppe, of the Bureau of Combustibles and Fire Risks, and Detective Slutzky, of the prosecutor's staff.

One of the strongest points in the case against Mrs. Saducky is due to her love of animals. Before the fire she had in the house a canary bird, a turtle, a pair of rabbits and a dog. All of the pets but the dog disappeared before the fire, and the dog Mrs. Saducky took on a trip to Irvington with her on the day of the blaze. When arrested she told the police they must have been stolen.

When the blaze was discovered there were three distinct fires in the place, and after they were extinguished Mrs. Saducky returned home and told the police that a dress, two suits of her husband's clothes and some linen had been stolen.

WOLTER MUST DIE IN CHAIR FOR HIS CRIME.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Albert W. Wolter, convicted of the murder of Ruth Wheeler, a fifteen-year-old stenographer, in New York city on March 24, 1910, must pay the death penalty. The Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the judgment of conviction of murder in the first degree.

Wolter will have to be resentenced by the criminal branch of the Supreme Court, and it is possible that he will be called upon to expiate his crime in the electric chair in about six weeks' time.

Has Daughter Sent to Jail.

Helen Wilson, sixteen years old, of 56 Geneva street, Elizabeth, was sent to jail for thirty days yesterday on a charge of incorrigibility brought by her father, John H. Wilson.

FORT AND HARDIN TO FIGHT THE RAILROADS

Trenton, Dec. 13.—The difficulty over the designation by Attorney-General Wilson of former Governor Fort as one of the special counsel to represent the State in sustaining the increased assessments on railroad properties was straightened out late yesterday afternoon, State Comptroller Edwards withdrawing his opposition. Mr. Edwards had a talk with Governor Wilson and they agreed to approve the designation by the attorney-general of both former Governor Fort and John R. Hardin, of Newark.

The law requires that the designation by the attorney-general of special counsel to serve the State must be approved by the Governor and comptroller. The original announcement that Mr. Fort, Mr. Hardin and Merritt Lane, of Jersey City, had been designated to defend the increased railroad assessments was made without either the Governor or Mr. Edwards being consulted. It now develops that the attorney-general did not select Mr. Lane at all, but that the State Board of Assessors included his name in the announcement from that office at the instance of State Assessor George L. Record. Mr. Record wanted Mr. Lane chosen because he would represent Mr. Record's ideas as to these assessments. As matters now stand former Governor Fort and Mr. Hardin will be the only special counsel and Mr. Lane will not act in such capacity.

SAW BOYS DROWNING, SISTER SUMMONS AID.

Returning from school Monday, Mary Scherrer heard the screams of two boys who had broken through the ice on a small pond on the J. C. Conover property, near the Lackawanna Railroad at Chatham. One of them was her brother. She shouted a word of encouragement and then ran for help. She summoned several men, who after a hard fight, rescued the boys, Martin Callahan, seven years old, and Paul Scherrer, eight years old.

The lads were on their way home from St. Patrick's Parochial School, when a slide on the Conover Pond tempted them. The ice gave way when they were near the middle of the pond.

William H. Miller, John Phipps, William Carter, William Brennan and George Locke answered the Scherrer girl's cries for aid. They formed a chain, but couldn't reach the boys.

Callahan was floundering about in the water, but Scherrer clung to the ice. He kept his head and waited, while Miller and Phipps broke their way through the ice and dived for Callahan. "I'll hold on," he answered to the men's cries of encouragement. As soon as Callahan was got out, the men brought the plucky Scherrer youngster to shore. He soon recovered, but Callahan was unconscious and was resuscitated only after twenty minutes' work. Brennan then carried him to his home, where he was given medical attention.

HOLD UP FAST TRAIN, ROB MAILS, ESCAPE.

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 13.—The first section of the fast Atlantic Coast Line passenger train No. 80, bound from Florida points for New York, was held up by two masked bandits at Hardeeville, South Carolina, near this city, early yesterday. Persuaded by revolvers, members of the train crew cut the mail car loose from the rest of the train, ran it some distance up the track, and permitted the robbers to get away with all the registered mail, the value of which is not known. The passengers were not molested.

A special train with detectives, police officers and officials of the line which left soon after the news reached here, was wrecked in a collision about half way to its destination. This delayed the officers until the bandits had a start of more than six hours and the chance of picking up their trail is remote.

Train No. 80 is one of the three important Atlantic Coast Line trains between Florida and New York. It was run in two sections. Part of its equipment is an express car carrying an exteremely valuable lot of goods.

It is supposed that the bandits contemplated robbing the express car. They did not know that the car happened to be in the second section, so they contented themselves with robbing the mails.

Birds and Dog Save Family.

The parrot called, the canary twittered and the dog barked Monday night in the home of L. J. Maguire, 59 Maple avenue, Rahway. The disturbance probably saved the family from asphyxiation by coal gas. The members, finally being aroused, opened the house. The parrot and canary were both dead today and the dog was able to wag its tail just a little and moan.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will elect officers tomorrow night and receive a visitation from District Deputy Amerman.

WEALTHY WOMAN MUST SERVE PRISON TERM

Mrs. E. Virginia Evers, whose husband, Frederick E. Evers, is rated in commercial agencies at more than $500,000, and whose real wealth is said to be far above that sum, yesterday was sentenced to serve three months in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island on the charge of cruelly beating Alice Elizabeth Randolph, her psuedo ward. Prison officials say Mrs. Evers is one of the wealthiest women ever sent to the "pen" from New York.

With many of her society friends at her side, Mrs. Evers collapsed in court when sentence was pronounced and had to be carried back to the Tombs by three attendants. It is hardly likely an appeal can be taken, in view of her plea of guilty.

At the same time the district attorney filed with the court an affidavit setting forth the parentage of the little child Mrs. Evers so cruelly beat, but this will be kept secret, as the child's mother is happily married. The child was remanded to the Gerry Society as a ward of the State.

Mrs. Evers was arrested two weeks ago, at the instance of the Children's Society, which charged that she had cruelly beaten the eleven-year-old child with a riding crop. The girl's body was covered with welts and bruises. Mrs. Evers, handsomely gowned and wearing diamonds, declined positively to tell the police anything about the child's parentage, but claimed she was her ward.

The mystery of the child's parentage was not cleared up until Tuesday when its grandfather told the story to District Attorney Whitman, begging that the mother's name be withheld. The real mother gave the child to Mrs. Evers when the girl was three weeks old.

Mrs. Evers, when arraigned, threw herself on the mercy of the court.

"I would rather die," she said, "than tell anything about this child's parentage. My arrest is due to spite work on the part of jealous neighbors."

Letters from neighbors of the Everses to officials of the Children's Society and the lawyers figured in the case.

TOURS WORLD TO FIND PARASITE TO KILL FLIES.

Washington, Dec. 13.—After traveling around the world for eighteen months in search of a parasite which would attack the white fly, which infests the orange groves of the United States, R. S. Woglum, of the Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, has reached Washington with the prize. He brought back from India six orange trees covered with the coveted parasites, which he found in the hills of India. The parasites were in fine condition after their 12,000-mile trip.

Will Hear Tax Appeals.

The Union County Board of Taxation will visit Westfield Friday at 9 a. m. to investigate the recent appeals filed with them. Twenty-one appeals aggregating a desired reduction of $6,400 in valuations will be looked over by the tax assessors.

OPENING OF ASTOR PLACE.

The undersigned, commissioners heretofore appointed by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, to make an estimate and assessment of damages that any owner or owners of land will sustain by the laying out and opening of Astor Place from the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, pursuant to the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to lay out and opening Astor Place from the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue," approved October 27, 1910, and also to ascertain the amount of damages that shall be assessed as aforesaid, and of all necessary expenses incident to such laying out and opening and to make a just and equitable assessment thereof among the owners and occupants of the lands, tenements and real estate benefited thereby, in proportion to the benefits each shall be deemed to acquire said assessments to be made pursuant to the amended charter of the City as amended or modified by general statutes of the State, and particularly by the act entitled, "An Act respecting assessments in Cities," approved April 21, 1876, hereby give notice that they have this day filed their report and assessment in the office of the City Clerk, and that the same is open to inspection of the public, and will be presented to the Common Council, at the meeting of that body to be held at the Council Chambers, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., on the twenty-first day of December, 1911, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The character of the work and improvement is the laying out and opening of Astor Place between the points stated in the above mentioned title of said ordinance.

The lands taken are designated on a map and schedule accompanying said report and assessment, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, entitled, "Assessment Map for the laying out and opening of Astor Place from the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue to the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, City of Plainfield, N. J." to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

The lands assessed for benefits are the lands fronting on Astor Place as ordered, laid out and opened by said ordinance, and other lands fronting on Astor Place between the Southwesterly side line of Clinton Avenue and the Northeasterly side line of Hunter Avenue, also other lands fronting on Hunter Avenue, between the Northerly side line of West Fourth Street and the Southerly side line of Evona Avenue, and lands fronting on Lyman Place to a line distance about 150' from the Northerly side line of Astor Place, and are shown on and designated on said Map and schedule to which reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

HUGH FOX'S VIEWS ON LIQUOIR PROBLEM

The Newark Evening News Monday made the following editorial reference to the contention of Hugh F. Fox, of this city, that prohibition will not solve the liquor problem:

"Mr. Hugh F. Fox does not regard prohibition as the solution of the liquor problem. This is natural in the secretary of the United States Brewers' Association. It is also reasonable, according, as it does, with the dominant opinion of the country.

"Standing for license and strict regulation, he makes many interesting suggestions, that are all the more noteworthy, perhaps, because of their source.

"He argues vigorously, for instance, that the number of saloons should be restricted to 'the actual requirements of the public.' His reasoning is sound, even if uncomplimentary to the saloon-keeper, who, he avers, instead of going out of business when competition begins to pinch, is likely 'to relax a little, and gradually disorderly practises may be permitted, even encouraged, with a view of bringing a new class of trade.'

"This is not true of the butcher, the baker, the grocer of any other tradesman. Why?

"Restriction in the number of saloons is not urged on the ground that it will decrease drinking. The thought is that the business, thus relieved of undue competition, will pay well enough to be honest, law-abiding, respectable. Mr. Fox therefore urges upon his readers something more than a strict compliance with the law. He would have the saloon sanitary and sightly. In his mind, the interior should be in view of the street, just as is any other business.

"All this is going far in the right direction, but not far enough. It leaves the saloon still the saloon, a place whose one aim is to sell the largest amount of intoxicating liquor to the greatest number of people.

"True, Mr. Fox speaks of it as 'unquestionably the most popular and the most democratic social center that we have.' 'If it did not really fill a most important place in the social structure,' he affirms, 'it could not have survived the hundred years' war that has been waged against it.' In short, it is the poor man's club.

"The phrases are familiar. They are also incorrect. The American saloon as an institution is a barbarism peculiar to the hard-drinking Anglo-Saxon. In communities where a foreign-born population predominates there are exceptions, but they are only numerous enough to prove the rule. Generally speaking, the saloon is without chairs, tables, literature, pictures, games, music and all other club essentials. The central and usually the only feature is the bar, where men must stand as they drink, and women are disgraced if they even approach.

"Mr. Fox tacitly admits this not only in pleading for 'plain and comfortable furniture in the saloon,' but in approving words for the continental cafe. It is a pity that he does not hew to the line, and instead of calling it a club insist that it be made a club.

"A drinking place is a drinking place, but it can be so equipped and conducted as to encourage moderation and sanity. It can be made respectable, a 'social centre,' if you please. This has been demonstrated in Europe from time immemorial.

"Remove the bar. Open up the doors and windows. Install tables, comfortable chairs and other accessories to social communion. Make a place to which self-respecting men may go with their families, just as they now go to restaurants where liquor is sold. In a word, transform the saloon into a cafe.

"This is a club for any who cares to enter, a democratic social centre. Its every surrounding and appointment puts a premium upon the lighter and more harmless beverages. There is nothing in its atmosphere to encourage the bestiality and crime which so often find harbor if they do not originate in the saloon. Its whole tendency is toward temperance.

"One hesitates to be dogmatic in such a case, but it is reasonable to suppose that the institution thus outlined will more nearly solve the liquor problem in America than anything that has hitherto been suggested. At any rate its merits should be sufficiently obvious to justify at least a trial."

BOY PUPIL, WITH GUN, HOLDS UP TEACHER.

Hightstown, Dec. 13.—Little Ray Musseness, fourteen, is in the village lockup today, while Miss Elsie Neuman, his school teacher, is prostrated as the result of her experience when the boy held her up on a lonely road and, with pointed pistol, told her she must die.

The boy, for failing to do "his home work" properly, had been made to write 500 additional words on the blackboard. He threatened to get "hunk."

When the teacher started home the boy leaped from behind a tree, pointed the pistol at her and shouted: "Now you are goin' to die for makin' a fool out er me!"

The teacher managed to take the pistol away from him. The boy was an inmate in the Charities Home Mission of Philadelphia, before being "farmed out" to a family here.

STATE WILL BRING DENTISTS TO TRIAL

For more than a year detectives have been employed by the State Board of Dental Examiners to watch members of the profession who were alleged to be practicing in violation of the act governing dentistry.

Evidence has been obtained and it is planned by the State Board of Dental Examiners to bring some of these men to trial. This is set out in the report of the board just made to Governor Wilson and it is further stated that if dentists of New Jersey were aware that violations of the dental law and convictions under a criminal prosecution meant the disbarment from practicing in every State in the Union there would be few offenses of this kind committed.

The report shows that at the examinations held in December of last year twelve of the thirty-six candidates failed to pass. Eighteen of the sixty-six candidates who took the June examinations also failed. The secretary of the association, meeting the requirements of the law, made 1,019 registry blanks to practicing dentists and a month ago sent out second notices to those who failed to respond. There were 180 of these delinquents and the board has received a number of rather impertinent letters criticising the work of the secretary and asserting that the first notices had been filled out and mailed to the board.

A careful examination of the blanks on the part of the board found that the only one of these delinquents had forwarded was marked "second notice." This was accompanied by a slip calling attention to the requirements of the law relative to registration. The report states that the board will turn over the names of twenty delinquents, who failed to register, to the Attorney General for collection of the fine of $10 which the law provides in such cases.

During the year the receipts of the board amounted to $2,305.22 and the disbursements $2,292.92.

WORKS 100 YEARS, RETIRES WITH $80,000.

Grand Junction, Col., Dec. 13.—The oldest man in the United States announced yesterday that after having worked for 100 years he is now going to retire.

He is Cherokee Bill, an Indian negro. The United States census recognizes him as 114 years old, and Bill himself—there is nobody to dispute him—says he has worked steadily ever since he was 14.

"It seems to me," said Bill, "that an even 100 years of work is enough for any man."

Cherokee Bill's fortune is reported to be somewhere between $70,000 and $80,000. It is in the shape of gold, cached in the hills near his shack.

WESTFIELD DELIVERIES WEDNESDAY AND SATURDAY

KILLED IN A QUARREL OVER SHORTAGE IN PAY

Hoboken, Dec. 13.—A quarrel over an alleged shortage in a pay envelope resulted in a killing here yesterday. George Lecari, thirty years old, of 611 First street, this city, is dead from a bullet wound in his abdomen, and Sydney Solomon, twenty-eight years old, of 62 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street, New York, is locked up in police headquarters charged with his death.

Lecari and Solomon were employed by Feinstein & Co., poultry dealers in the "chicken yards" of the Lackawanna Railroad, near the western boundary of the city.

According to a statement by Solomon he and Lecari first quarreled about three weeks ago. Lecari was a driver and Solomon a bookkeeper. Lecari asserted his pay envelope was short and, taking the matter up with Solomon, was unable to convince him of the fact. From that day on there was an almost constant bickering between them. Yesterday, when Solomon was about to leave for luncheon, Lecari accosted him, and another quarrel ensued, which resulted in Lecari punching Solomon, and, according to the latter, threatening his life.

While at lunch Solomon determined to purchase a revolver, and carried out his intention. Returning to business he reached Garden and First streets when he saw Lecari on a truck coming up First street. When Lecari saw him he dismounted and started to attack Solomon.

The two men clinched and Solomon says that while he and Lecari were struggling he drew his revolver with the intention of shooting his opponent in the leg. Simultaneously with the shot from Solomon's revolver Lecari dropped to the sidewalk with a wound in his abodmen. The automobile ambulance carried the injured man to St. Mary's Hospital. The victim lived half an hour.

SIMPLE FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR J. J. F. RANDOLPH.

The funeral service of John Joseph Fitz Randolph was held at the late home on Madison avenue at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There was a large gathering of relatives, friends and neighbors, and a great many floral tributes. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Randolph was a member for many years, conducted a simple service, in accordance with the wish of the family.

During the service, Miss Grace Carroll, contralto soloist of the Crescent Avenue church, sang two selections impressively. The burial took place in Hillside cemetery, porters acting as pall-bearers.

Convention Choir Meeting.

The Convention Choir met for organization and rehearsal last night in the Seventh-Day Baptist church. It was decided to meet the first and third Tuesday of each month hereafter and there was some discussion on a proposed cantata, but no definite plans were made. William C. Hubbard presided at the business meeting. The rehearsal was conducted by D. E. Titsworth. Mrs. William C. Hubbard assisted at the organ and Miss C. C. Dewey at the piano.

Heard State Secretary.

The Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church was addressed last night by William C. Smallwood, executive secretary of the New Jersey Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis. His subject was "The Management of Tuberculosis Camps" and in the course of it he gave a number of simple and practical suggestions for preventing the disease and caring for those who are afflicted with it.

Cure for Swearing.

For using profane and indecent language, John Henry, of West Second street, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 or serve 20 days in the county jail when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. The complaint was made by Mrs. Sarah Thomas, colored, a neighbor, to whom Henry had applied the epithets in the course of a neighborhood jar.

Stole Shattle's Hens.

Chicken thieves invaded the West End again, last inght, and broke into Frank Shattle's hennery on West Fourth street. Four of his choicest Plymouth Rocks were appropriated and the Democratic leader was madder than hops when he discovered his loss this morning. He offers a reward for the return of the fowls or information leading to the arrest of the purloiners.

Bishop Vincent Here Yesterday.

Bishop John H. Vincent, of the M. E. church, formerly of this city, was the guest yesterday of Rev. Dr. G. H. Whitney, of First place. The prelate is to officiate at the dedication of a church in Bloomfield and called on Dr. Whitney while here. The bishop at one time was pastor of the First M. E. church.

Death of Young Man.

Following an operation for appendicitis, Thomas R. Brown, sixteen years old, son of James E. and Ella M. Brown, of Summit avenue, died this morning at Muhlenberg Hospital. The funeral will be held from the home of his parents Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. A. M. Runyon Critically Ill.

Mrs. A. M. Runyon, of Madison avenue, who has been ill for the past three months, is today in a critical condition. She is sinking rapidly and is unable to recognize the members of her family.

NINETY-FIVE RECRUITS IN GOOD FELLOW ARMY

Ninety-five recruits are already in the Army of Good Fellows which will campaign to make the Christmas morn of the poor little tots a joyous one. This number includes eleven enlistments today. As the Christmas day draws nearer the proportion of gains will be considerably greater, for whose heart could not be touched by the appeal of Good Fellow published again today in these columns.

One year ago, over 600 poor little youngsters were made happy by the Army of Good Fellows. "Human nature," as one good fellow says, "is the same the world over." There are always red-blooded men and women having the means to do so who are only too glad to know that they have been able to have some child know the real meaning of Christmas. If you have not done so, read the appeal in this issue. And then govern yourself accordingly.

TO BOX LEACH CROSS.

Knockout Brown Starts Training for Bout December 20.

Knockout Brown started his training yesterday at the Boys' Club, New York, for his contest on December 20 with Leach Cross at the Empire A. C. in Manhattan.

Not until last night were all the arrangements completed for this battle. The men have posted their forfeits to weigh in at 133 pounds at 6 o'clock and have selected Dan Tone, the official referee of the club, to act as third man in the ring.

Cross will lay off for a couple of days. He was trained up to the minute for his contest with Cy Smith Monday night and will need a rest, and will then start strenuous training for his contest with Brown, which he knows will be the hardest and most important one of his career.

Leased Four Flats.

Frank H. Smith and Charles H. Hand, who recently erected a building on East Second street near Watchung avenue, have already leased four of the flats in the building, possession being given January 1. Two of the new tenants will be Ira Vail and John F. Dunn.

Acquires Crescent Ave. Property.

Clifford D. Manning, real estate dealer, has purchased the valuable residential property on Crescent avenue now occupied by E. W. Eoff. The Easton, Pa., National Bank formerly owned the property. Mr. Manning will make extensive improvements.

Netherwood Church Fair.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Netherwood Reformed church will open a fair in the church tomorrow night. It will be continued Friday afternoon and night and will be replete with interestting features.

HERE AND THERE

Dr. Frank Clawson, one the guests at the Runyon-Hortan wedding last night, devised a scheme whereby he intended to follow the newly-weds to the train. They had planned to leave the house undetected and thus escape the shower of rice, old shoes, etc. The physician's plan was to follow the bridal coach in his automobile, but he made the mistake of divulging his secret to another guest who slipped out of the house unnoticed and let the air out of the machine's tires. Yes, "Doc" took the joke good naturedly!

NIGHT CUSTODIAN OF STATE HOUSE RESIGNS.

Trenton, Dec. 13.—Simon Gerson who has been night custodian of the State House, resigned yesterday, and the place, which pays $1,500 a year, will be abolished. Gerson's resignation is attributed to poor health. It is a fact that he has not been well for a long time. Gerson is the first and only night custodian the State House ever had. Previously the position was only that of a night watchman.

Gerson came to Trenton from Cumberland county as night watchman at the capitol. He was appointed through the influence of former Governor Stokes, then a State Senator. Subsequently he was placed in charge of the night force at the State House and given the title of night custodian. Gerson has much influence in the Hebrew colonies in Cumberland county and always has been an ardent supporter of Governor Stokes.

PITTSBURG WANTS BIG TIM JORDAN.

Tim Jordan is out to buy his release from Toronto if he can get it. It is learned on good authority that Jordan has an offer from the Pittsburg Club and that Manager Fred Clarke, of the Buccaneers, is willing to pay a good price for the heavy-hitting Maple Leaf.

Unless Toronto can get Wagner in exchange there is little likelihood of the deal going through, according to Manager Joe Kelley.

CUT AT HIS THROAT REVEALS WIFE'S JEWELS.

Atlantic City, Dec. 13.—Arrested by his wife, charged with larceny of two diamond rings valued at $500, Horace Thompson, of Ventnor, demanded immediate trial and was taken before Magistrate Jagmetty.

While waiting in the courtroom with his wife on one side and the constable on the other, Thompson drew a knife and stuck the blade up to his neck.

While the officer sat stupefied Thompson slashed at his neck, but the point of the knife cut into his linen collar and out tumbled the two diamond rings.

Malcolm Van Arsdale is confined to his home on Grove street with an attack of typhoid fever.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

At such a big reduction in prices

That no one either in town or out of town can beat us.

If there is any gift to be given in the fur line, why not buy at a place where you are positively sure you are getting a guarantee for your money. We always give you the best satisfaction in quality, style and prices, because we are manufacturers and can save you the profits that you would otherwise have to pay the middleman. When we offer a reduction it means that the prices are cut to one-half the figure quoted elsewhere.

We, the CHARLES KURTZMAN FUR STORE, were the first fur store established here in town and have leased our premises for many years. No other can say the same and speak the truth in doing so.

NOTICE—We will refund the purchase price to any customer who will prove that they can get the same goods elsewhere at a lower figure. Alterations and remodelling are specialties. Remember the place.

WILL TRY ENGINEER FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Charged with manslaughter in connection with the killing of three persons at the Elizabeth avenue crossing of the Long Branch Railroad on Easter Sunday last, William F. Hartman, engineer of the train that struck the victims, will be placed on trial in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Elizabeth next Monday.

Those killed were Edward Saunders, baggagemaster of a train that was standing at the station at the time of the tragedy, who made an effort to save the lives of the other two: Mrs. Hannah Colyer Cosgrove and Mrs. Ann Eliza Stone, the mother and grandmother of Christopher J. Cosgrive, an Elizabeth Socialist leader.

Hartman, who was engineer of the Atlantic City express, was found guilty by a coroner's jury of violating the rules of the railroad company by running over the crossing while another train was standing there. A crowd was boarding the train that was at a standstill and the express ploughed through them, killing the three instantly.

A special panel of forty-eight jurors was drawn yesterday by Sheriff William H. Wright for Hartman's trial. The list is as follows:

Elizabeth—William Lang, William C. Tubbs, Robert A. Littell, Otto Roggenkamp, Edwin R. Curtiss, Raymond Foster, Herbert Van Doren, John Fountain, Jr., John C. Serena, Thomas A. Sheridan, Abraham Kreilscheimer, William T. Rath, John F. Rogge, Harry Miller, Andrew F. Devine, Joseph Miron, Joseph Schoen, Joseph Sauer, William Reinhart, Frank Holand, William H. Hastings, Dominick Martin and Frederick Mayer.

Plainfield—John Clacy, Albert F. Baker, Thomas C. Bodine, Nathan Lewis, Hamilton Gutman, Percy Terry and Frederick S. Cutter.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The funeral of Robert H. Pierson was held yesterday afternoon at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lisbon Pierson, on New Market road. It was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The service was in charge of Rev. A. S. Phelps, of Bound Brook, assisted by Rev. H. N. Jordan, of Dunellen, and Rev. G. S. Bailey, of Plainfield. Eight members of the Calvary Baptist church choir, of Plainfield, sang five selections. There were a large number of handsome floral tributes. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, Plainfield, the following acting as pall-bearers: Lisbon Pierson, Jr., Ernest Pierson, Frank Kelso and Arthur Henison.

Michael Tombori, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Tombori, of Samptown, died yesterday. The funeral was held this morning and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

CHANGES ITS NAME TO 'BIBLE SCHOOL'

The annual meeting of the officers and teachers of the Trinity Reformed church Bible school was held in the parlor of the church last night, when it was decided to hold the Christmas entertainment on Friday evening, December 29, and at that time a cantata will be presented.

An amendment to the constitution providing that the name be changed from Sabbath School to Bible School was approved.

These officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Superintendent, F. E. Smith; first assistant superintendent, H. J. Martin; second assistant superintendent, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff; superintendent of junior department, Miss Mabel Wilson; superintendent of primary department, Mrs. J. M. Tier; superintendent of beginners' department and cradle roll, Mrs. H. E. Gayle; secretary, C. F. Colthar; assistant secretary, C. Rittenhouse; treasurer, C. M. Dolliver; superintendent home department, Mrs. H. VanName; secretary home department, Mrs. Julius Williams; librarian, H. C. VanEmburgh; assistant librarians, Leroy Woodhull, William J. Trembath, William Wyman, Sydney Frazee and Harry Kenyon; executive committee, William F. Oliver, E. F. Sheppard, Miss Mabel Wilson; library committee, Henry P. Seader, Mrs. L. S. Smith, Mrs. L. R. Schofield; music committee, Miss S. Etta Raybert, Miss May Randolph, H. J. Martin, E. D. Young, P. A. Vroom and Miss Eliza Dufford; committee on teachers, Mrs. F. E. Woodruff, Mrs. D. Rapalje, Mrs. M. F. Gano.

E. D. Young was appointed precenter and Miss May Randolph, pianist. The assistants in the different departments are appointed by the superintendents of the departments. Superintendent Smith presided at the meeting.

CHRISTMAS TREES BY THE THOUSAND

Within the last few days one of the familiar sights to those who have watched the string of freight cars hauled along the line of the Jersey Central Railroad has been carload after carload of Christmas trees. Some of them are snow tufted, bringing with them the breeze of the far northland, for most of them come from the forest reaches of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, with a few from the lake regions of New York. The majority, however, come from Maine, and hundreds of thousands of firs and spruces are cut annually, with now and then a hemlock, particularly if it be well formed.

Some of the trees have gone to Philadelphia, others to more southern points, while many of them have stopped in Plainfield, and in less than two weeks will be found laden with much of that cheer which Santa Claus is supposed to bring down the chimney with him. According to an estimate of a leading florist here today, the number of trees sold annually in Plainfield and the surrounding cities and towns is approximately 5,000, ranging in size from the tiny family tree for the year-old, to those of large dimensions which sweep the ceilings of many a lighted church on Christmas night. His firm handles two carloads of trees, Maine cut, and each carload contains between 800 and 900 bundles, averaging from four to seven trees in a bunch. This is one firm. There are many others who sell trees, and countless numbers are brought in from the country towns roundabout; those which come from Newark, and those which come independently of all these sources, namely, through means of a hatchet and a handy thicket with a five-mile "tote" across country.

The price of the trees this year is a hard question to answer, for the Christmas tree market depends upon supply and demand. Both are good this year and advance orders to producers and from consumers show no shortage. The price of the smaller trees, those about two to three feet high, will be about twenty-five cents, and from this price upward trees can be secured at varying rates. The price also depends on the symmetry of the limbs of the tree, of its foliage, and other features.

The highest price is $10, and this is for the mammoth affair found usually in church. It would not be Christmas to many without a Christmas tree, although this part is mainly for children, or family gatherings. The news that they are plentiful and reasonable in price will be received with pleasure.

W. G. DE LEMATER, OLD WESTFIELD RESIDENT, DEAD.

Apoplexy is believed to have caused the death of Wm. G. De Lemater, aged seventy-three years, who died Monday night at his home, 304 East Dudley street, Westfield. He was born in Binghamton, N. NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were dull and firm in New York yesterday.

The House of Lords rejected the naval prize bill by a vote of 145 to 53.

It was announced that Delhi henceforth would supersede Calcutta as the capital of India.

Russia abandoned her claim to raise the limits of her territorial waters from three to twelve miles.

The federal investigators at Indianapolis conducted an inquiry into the alleged illegal shipment of dynamite.

The Court of Appeals confirmed the conviction of Albert W. Wolter, murderer of Ruth Wheeler, fifteen years old.

Twenty-two suffragettes convicted of smashing windows in London were each sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

Robbers held up an Atlantic Coast Line train near Hardeeville, S. C., and stole fifty-five packages of registered mail.

The British steamer Baron Polwarth reported having been fired on by an Italian cruiser; her bows were badly damaged.

It was reported that an Anglo-Russian agreement not to attempt to restore the ex-Shah of Persia has been arrived at.

Profits of the Steel Corporation through the lease of a long railroad by a short one, were shown by the Stanley committee.

A Berlin report said that Russia would not insist on the dismissal of W. Morgan Shuster and would not ask for an indemnity.

Efforts of counsel for the defence failed to shake the evidence of girl witnesses regarding the locked door at the time of the Triangle fire in New York.

The disappearance of her will and doubt as to the manner of her husband's death complicated the mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Nellie Burrelle in New York.

King George of Great Britain was proclaimed Emperor of India in the great durbar camp on the plain outside Delhi; more than 100,000 persons witnessed the ceremonies.

Postmaster Morgan reported that $4,250,000 in money orders has already been sent to Europe for Christmas by residents of New York, and that probably as much again will follow by Saturday.

Action was begun by the United States Attorney in Boston against the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, its subsidiaries and twenty-three individuals; the court was asked to dissolve the alleged trust.

The Republican National Committee decided to hold the national convention in Chicago, beginning June 18; the meeting was harmonious, the program of Mr. Taft's friends being adopted without opposition.

Congress—Senate: Mr. Percy, of Mississippi, on a question of personal privilege, denounced William R. Heart and ex-Governor Vardaman. House: The Sherwood service pension bill was passed by a vote of 229 to 92.

Charley Boston, of New York, pleaded guilty to smuggling opium, thus shutting off disclosures as to his relations with the police, and was sentenced to eighteen months in prison, and his assistant to a nine months' term.

Thirty-four bodies have been removed from Cross Mountain mine, and it was believed that more than eighty are yet to be recovered; two crazed miners were discovered by the rescuers, but they fled back into the inner workings, and it was feared had succumbed to the noxious gases.

Miss Ethel Conrad, co-defendant with Miss Lillian Graham for shooting W. E. D. Stokes, said on the witness stand that she used a revolver on a man once before, compelling him under threat of death to write a retraction of statements he had made concerning an automobile trip which she had once taken with him.

HAHNE & CO.'S CHRISTMAS CLUB CONDITIONS.

You can't go wrong joining this club when we sell the pianos on such conditions as these:

1. Every instrument is guaranteed without reserve for five years. There isn't an "if this" or an "and that" in the guarantee—just a straightout guarantee as strong as we know how to make it in writing.

2. If, after thirty days' trial, you find the piano to be unsatisfactory we will give you your money back.

3. If the piano is satisfactory after 30 days' use, the Club Member has eleven more months in which to satisfy himself as to the character of the piano. If it does not then prove to be everything that he expects he has the privilege of exchanging it without one penny's loss for any other instrument of equal or greater value that we sell (and we sell many different representative makes).

5. A beautiful stool to match the piano and cover is included without extra cost.

6. There will be no charge for drayage.

7. The piano will be tuned the first year without charge.—Hahne & Co., Newark.

PORTABLE LAMPS MAKE VERY DESIRABLE GIFTS

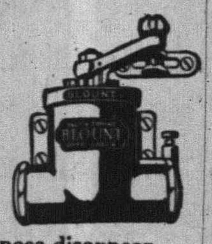
A Reliable Door Check



Doors have been in use for centuries and people have not yet learned to close them. You suffer from the effects of draughts, noises, dust odors and other outside annoyances because people forget.

With a Blount Check these unnecessary disturbances disappear.

It is a door closer that never forgets. It shuts a door positively, but quietly—no slam; no sound at all save the click of the latch.

Santa Claus Has Good News for You

We Are Going to Open Another Popular

Christmas Piano Club

In Response to the Numerous Demands That We Repeat Our Great Offer of Last Year.

A Safe Piano For Gift-Givers

Is The Splendid Instrument We Are Offering To Those Who Join

Our Christmas Club

Certainly you cannot afford to give a piano of uncertain quality to mother, to wife or to daughter. Think of the mortification that would follow the expenditure of a considerable sum of money and the failure of the piano you bought to measure up to your reasonable expectations.

The experience of many who have bought the commonplace, unknown makes of pianos leads you to beware of such instruments, no matter how attractively presented or how easy the terms of payment are made. You simply can't afford to be known as the donor of a "fake" piano. You certainly don't want to have to return the piano to the dealer after you have used it for presentation purposes.

Not One of Our Last Year's Club Pianos Came Back

Of all the hundreds that we sold thru our Christmas Club not one has been complained of, not one has been returned for any cause—and this speaks volumes for our

Christmas Club Pianos

Which We Offer You for

Only $223

$5 Down 1.50 a Week

The pianos we secured for this Christmas Club are worthy a place in any man's home—good, substantial pianos in which the real value is put on the inside rather than in fancy cases with a lot of ornamentation on them—pianos that come from one of the best factories in this country, supervised by the famous Hardman, Peck & Co., Builders of the Hardman Pianos.

Pianos made by good, sturdy German workmen, many of whom have been working in the same shop twenty to twenty-five years—pianos built on honor and sold under the strongest guarantee; such instruments as we will be proud to sell you, knowing full well that they will give you the fullest satisfaction and the utmost pleasure.

Naturally, contracting for many instruments of a kind, we secured them at a very low price, and we are going to give the members of our Christmas Piano Club the benefit of our saving.

Christmas Club Pianos Easy to Buy

Just think of it—$5 down—hardly enough to pay the cartage—one-fourth the amount that would be asked you in any piano house in the country on the purchase of an instrument of equally high character, and then only $1.50 a week to pay thereafter, with no charge for cartage, and no charge for the first year's tuning, with privilege of returning the piano within thirty days, or exchanging it within one year, if in any way you are dissatisfied with your bargain.

CHAPTER XXI.

THE LADY OF THE MANY COLORED FIRES.

THE spacious residence of the minister of marine that night was a maze of light. All social Tokyo would be at the ball in honor of the admiral and officers of the visiting squadron.

It was late when Daunt turned his steps thither through the fragrant evening. The deciphering of a voluminous telegram had kept him at the chancery till 11.

All that day he had worked with a delicious exhilaration rioting in his pulses. He had not seen Barbara, but her face had seemed always before him—quiveringly passionate as he had seen it in Ben-ten's cave, hazed with daring softness as it had turned to his on the steps of the railway carriage. Tonight he was to see her. In fancy he could feel her slim hand on his sleeve as they danced—could see himself sitting with her in some dusky alcove sweet with plum blossoms—could hear her say—

Daunt had seen many such affairs where the blending of colors and sounds, the scintillant shifting forms, had been but a maze. Tonight's, however, was wound in a glory. All these decorative people, this scented echo of laughter and music, existed only to form a kaleidoscopic setting for the one woman. He went to search for her with his handsome head erect, his shoulders square and a color in his face.

He passed through several rooms, revealing one oriental picture after another. In the last room the host stood with the visiting admiral and several ambassadors. He was a perfect type of the modern Japanese of affairs, a diplomatist as well as a seasoned admiral. He had been at Annapolis in 1875, and his wife was a graduate of Wellesley. He was one of the strongest of the powerful coterie which was shaping the destinies of new Japan. Daunt greeted him and paused to chat awhile with his own chief and Mrs. Dandridge.

Daunt turned back, threaded the hall and entered the ballroom. There through the shifting crowd, over flashing uniforms and diamonded tiaras, he saw her. Beside her stood a little countess, one of the noted court beauties, lotus pale, bamboo slender, in a kimono of Danjiro blue, with woven lilies. In the clear radiance Barbara stood almost surrounded. Her white satin gown shimmered in the light, which caught like globes of fire in the gold passion flowers with which it was embroidered. A new sense of her beauty poured over him. She had always seemed lovely, but now her loveliness was touched with something removed and spiritual. In the blaze of light she looked as delicately pale as a moon dahlia, but a spot of color was on either cheek, and her eyes were very bright. Daunt stood still, feasting his gaze. He started when Patricia's fan tapped him arm.

"You're frightfully late," she said as her partner, the German charge, bowed himself away. "Father will give you a wigging if you don't look out."

"I saw him a few moments ago," he answered. "He didn't seem very fierce."

"Was he still looking at those spooky curios? I can't see what anybody wants such things for. I always feel like saying what Mark Twain's man said when they showed him the mummy: 'If you've got any nice fresh corpse trot him out!'"

Daunt's smile was a mechanism. She knew that he had ceased to listen. As she looked at his side face with her clear, kind eyes a shadow came to her own. Her loyal heart was troubled.

After her drive that afternoon Barbara had kept her room on the plea of rest for the evening. She had not come down to dinner and had appeared only at the moment of starting. At the first glance, then, Patricia had noticed the change. The Barbara she had always known, of flashing impulses and girlish graces, was gone. The Barbara of the evening had seemed suddenly older, of even rarer beauty perhaps, but with something of detachment, of unfamiliarity. Riding beside her to the ball, Patricia had felt under the eager, brilliant gayety this chilly sense of estrangement, and it had puzzled her. Later she had come to connect it with the man of whose coming Barbara had told her, the man with handsome bearded face who had seemed since his greeting in the moment of their entrance to take unobtrusive yet assured possession of such of her moments as were not given to the great. Withal he had lent this an air of the natural and habitual which, nicely poised and completely conventional as it was, seemed to convey a subtle atmosphere of proprietorship. So now as she saw Daunt's gaze Patricia was a little sad. There had fallen a silence between them, which he broke with a sudden exclamation.

"No wonder!" he said.

"No wonder what?"

"That she is a success."

"Success! I should think so. She's danced with three ambassadors, and Prince Hojo sat out two numbers with her. Just look at the men around her now."

The music had drifted into a waltz, and the group about Barbara was dissolving. A dark face was bending near. Its owner put his arm about her, and they glided into the throng. Ware, like all heavy men, danced perfectly, and the pair seemed to skim the mirroring floor as easily as swallows, her red bronze hair, caught under a web of seed pearls, glowing like a net of fireflies. Heads turned back over white shoulders, and on the edges of the room people whispered as they passed. Floating lightly as sea foam, the shimmering gown drew near, passing so close that Daunt could have touched it. The lovely white face, over her partner's shoulder, met Daunt's. For a fraction of a second Barbara's eyes looked into his, then swept by as if he had been empty air. It was as if a clinched hand had struck him across the face.

He whitened. Patricia felt a sudden sting in her eyelids. She slipped her hand through his arm and, saying something about the heat—it was deliciously cool—drew him down the corridor. She chatted on airily, fighting a desire to cry. But when they came to the entrance of the cherry blooms he had not spoken a word.

"I see mother still in the spook room," she said. "I must go back to her—no, please don't come with me! Thank you so much for bringing me so far."

She left him with a nod and a bright smile that he did not see. He sat down on a bench in its farthest corner. What did it mean? Why, it had been like the cut direct! From her? Impossible! She had not seen him. He had been mistaken. He would go to her now. He sprang up.

A page came into the garden. He was a part of the minister's establishment. Daunt had often seen him in that house. He carried a tray with a letter on it.

"For you, sir," he said.

Puzzled, Daunt took it, and the boy withdrew. It bore no address. He tore it open. It contained some folded sheets of paper. A tense whiteness sprang to his face as he unfolded them. It was his letter, the only love letter he had ever written, torn across.

THE ONLY LOVE LETTER HE HAD EVER WRITTEN.

Now he knew. It had been true what he had imagined of the yacht. The cherry trees seemed to writhe about him, bizarre one legged dancers waving pink draperies, and a tide of resentment and grief rose in his breast as hot as lava. Had she been only playing with him, then? When she had lain panting in his arms in Ben-ten's cave, when her lips had quivered to his kisses, had it all been acting? Was this what she really was, his "Lady of the Many Colored Fires?" He, poor fool, had deemed it real when it had been only a week's amusement. He had almost guessed the truth that night at the tea house, and how cleverly she had fooled him! His jarring laugh rang out across the tinkle of the fountain. Then Austen Ware's telegram! It was he who had danced with her tonight, no doubt—Phil's brother. For her the little play was over. The curtain had to be rung down, and this was how she did it.

Barbara lay in her blue and white room, wide eyed in the dark. The smiling ballroom mask had slipped from her face and left it strained and white. She had drawn the curtain and shut out the misty glory of the garden and the small white cottage across the scented lawn.

In those few agonized hours of the afternoon while she had lain there thrilling with suffering something deep within her had seemed to fail, as though a newly lighted flame, white and pure, had fallen and died. Where it had gleamed remained only a painful twilight. It had been a different Barbara that had emerged. The fairest fabric of those Japanese days had crashed into the dust, and in the echo of its fall she stood anchorless, in terror of herself and of the future. The harbor of convention alone seemed to offer safety, and at the harbor entrance waited Austen Ware. At the ball the die had been cast.

Dentists May Be Disbarred.

Trenton, Dec. 12.—If dentists violating the laws regulating the practise of their profession more fully realized the conviction under a criminal prosecution would mean their disbarment from practising in every State in the Union, it is the belief of the State Board of Dental Examiners that there would be fewer offenses committed. This is one of the remarks emphasized by the board in its annual report to the Governor.

Theatre Changes its Policy.

Fred Thomsen, manager of the two Proctor theatres in Elizabeth, yesterday announced that a stock company will soon be placed in the Broad street playhouse. This will be the first time that any but vaudeville performers have appeared in Elizabeth for several years. Mr. Thomsen has organized a high-class company. The first play to be presented will be "Secret Service."

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

A Word to the Mothers on Christmas

At a recent meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association, a strong protest was presented against the lavish expenditure of money on expensive and useless gifts for children and a plea made for the practical present.

A bank book enclosed in an attractive Christmas envelope will make a gift that is not only practical, but is wise and educational as well.

HOPE CHAPEL TEAM DEFEATS SOCIAL FIVE

The Social Five fell easy victims to the Hope chapel basketball team last night on the Hope court and were swamped under a final score of 56 to 14. The visitors were unable to cope with the superior passing and team work of the Hope boys and showed a sad lack of these same qualities that make winning games.

Tommy and Johnny Heron were the point getters for the victors and were capably supported by their team mates, who for the most part kept the ball out of the vicinity of the opponents' basket.

The line-up:

Hope.		Social.
T. Heron		Bailey
J. Heron		Coyle
	forwards
Doig		Trotter centre
Wardrop		Casey
Dennison		Zweifel
	guards

Referee, Rimmer; timekeeper, Doig; scorer, Walls.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The girls' basketball team will meet the girls of the New Brunswick High School in Debele's hall on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Miss Mabel C. Trembath, of the Babcock building, a former teacher in the North Plainfield Grammar School who underwent an operation recently, has recovered sufficiently to be brought to her home.

Two clashes between Turks and Italians were reported at Benghazi, each side winning alternately.

BASKETBALL.

The Hope chapel basketball team will play the five made up of employes of The Plainfield Trust Company on the Hope court Saturday night. The game will be called at 8:15 o'clock.

Miss Mary McCullough, of Steiner place, has returned home from Philadelphia, Pa., where she was the guest of her brother, Lieutenant Richard P. McCullough, U. S. N., at a dinner-dance given at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. The dinner was served aboard the U. S. receiving ship, The Lancaster.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The members of the senior class of the Plainfield High School are at work perfecting a plan to "roast" the juniors at the Christmas exercises. The final arrangements will be made by a number of different committees. The following have been chosen to perfect the plan: Stage committee, Helen Ryder, chairman; Dixon Phillips, Egbert Fountain, Mildred Brownlee, Donald Webb and Gertrude Prior; sting committee, Katherine Webster, chairman; Dorothy Smith, Elmer Hunting, Bruce Conlin, Jessie Stewart and Ruth Douglas; song committee, Elmer Hunting, chairman; Helen Woolley, Katherine Smink, Madeline Noonan; ribbon committee; Janette Neighbor and Alice Van Horn; decorating committee, Madaline Strader, chairman, Raymond Manley, Anna Lee, John Denny and Effie Beckman.

The boys' basketball team of the Plainfield High School will play its first game this afternoon with the Yonkers High School at Yonkers, N. Y. A large squad has been practising regularly with Allen Doggett as coach. Jack Ricketts, who played a fast game with last year's team, is captain. A fast team should be picked. Edson Woodhull and Jack Zerega, who have also played with the P. H. S. five are candidates for this year's team. Other promising candidates are William Peacock, Arthur Grisley, Joseph Carty, Fred Mills, Arthur VanZandt, James MacNamee, James Nash, James Buckle, Herman Rosenson, James Lindzey and Joseph Sattles.

At a meeting of the freshman class of the Plainfield High School, blue and gray were chosen as class colors. The former colors were red and green, but as these colors were not popular the freshmen were given an opportunity to choose new colors.

The girls' basketball team of the Plainfield High School will play the girls' team of the South Orange High School, Friday afternoon in the local gymnasium. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

The Plainfield High School chess club, which meets regularly Friday afternoon, has chosen the following officers: President, Elmer Hunting; vice-president, Egbert Fountain, and secretary and treasurer, William Thompson.

The managers of the class basketball teams of the Plainfield High School will meet today to arrange a schedule. The juniors have elected Albert Bryniarsky captain, and William Davenport manager. The freshmen have chosen William Peacock and Alfred Day, captain and manager, respectively.

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR PROVED SUCCESSFUL

The Christmas bazaar held last night at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church was one of the most successful ever given there. The net profits from the sale of fancy articles, oyster supper and other receipts will amount to more than $100. The affair was in charge of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. Ira VanArsdale, president, acting as general chairman. The decorations were in keeping with the Christmas season. They consisted of greens and red bells.

These were in charge of the tables: Fancy table, Mrs. C. S. Kemble, Mrs. I. LaRue, Mrs. William Stein; doll table, Mrs. J. J. Praed and Mrs Nicholas Brouard; missionary table, Mrs. Wenzell, the Misses Wenzell and Mrs. Dayton; fruit table, Mrs. J. S. Higham and Miss May Pound; candy table, Mrs. J. W. Daub, Mrs. Gunzleman and Mrs. Mathews; five and ten cent table, Mrs. Robert Lee; refreshments, Mrs. Theodore VanPelt, Mrs. John McCormack, H. A. Sawyer, Mrs. W. Gunzleman, Mrs. E. Rowe and John McCormack.

The decorations were arranged by John J. Praed, John McCormack and J. W. Daub.

NOVEMBER'S WORK AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Only routine business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital held Monday night, including the receiving of reports from standing committees. The medical report for the month of November showed thirty-five regular patients on the first of the month; eighty-five admitted during the month, or a total of 120. Sixty-one were discharged cured, thirteen improved and eight died. In the dispensary there were thirty-nine patients november 1, and seventy admitted during the month, or a total of 109 treated. There were nineteen ambulance calls, and seven patients treated in the tuberculosis pavilion. The total number of patients treated in all departments 229. Average daily cost per patient $2.76.

It is interesting to note the percentage of work done in November in the free wards for patients unable to pay anything for treatment. This charitable work during the month amounted to slightly over forty-five per cent. of all the work carried on in the various departments of the hospital.

Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, who is recovering from appendicitis in Ceylon, is reported to be much better.

POLICE FOUND LOOT

Search Burglar Suspect's Home For Him and Locate Stolen Goods.

THE HEARING TOMORROW.

Edward Murphy, Albert Vail and Edward Hamilton to Be Arraigned—Police Hunting for James Coleman.

The three youths arrested by the city police Tuesday night on suspicion of being implicated in the burglary of Benjamin Estrin's tailoring shop on Somerset street last Friday night and turned over to the North Plainfield authorities yesterday will be arraigned before Justice Snape in the borough court tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. James Coleman, colored, of Berckman street, also suspected of being one of the offenders, has not yet been apprehended but an investigation by Chief Kiely gave him sufficient reason, he said to search his house. Those arrested are Edward Murphy, of Arlington avenue, Albert Vail, of East Second Watchung avenue.

Coleman was also under suspicion of complicity with a number of other burglaries committed here during the summer and Sergeant Overbaugh was instructed to look for articles taken from those places. Among the stuff found at Coleman's home were four vests, an overcoat, a pair of trousers and a suit of clothes stolen several months ago from Mrs. Robert Gardner's tailoring shop on Watchung avenue. Peter Flynn, manager for Mrs. Gardner, called at police headquarters this morning and after positively identifying the goods as those taken, swore out a warrant for Coleman's arrest. Renewed efforts will now be made to capture him as the police have evidence enough to connect him with several of the other jobs done during the past few months and expect to uncover a lot more in the course of the investigation.

Coleman was arrested here in February, 1908, for breaking and entering and after conviction was sentenced to two years in the Rahway Reformatory. Before the expiration of his term he was paroled and his parole expired some months ago. It appears that at once he began systematically a series of robberies, having been seen by neighbors taking packages home at all hours of the day and night. The fact that he was seen going home with packages in the day time indicates to the police that he burglarized some of the houses closed for the summer and knowing that they were closed was able to enter and leave them in the day time without arousing suspicion. After sentence had been pronounced on him in the court at Elizabeth, he having been found guilty principally on the testimony of Chief Kiely, Coleman threatened in the court room to kill the chief as soon as released.

DELAYS SENTENCE IN FLANAGAN CASE.

Sentence will not be passed on Joseph Flanagan, who was recently convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of John R. H. Miller, a trolley inspector, who was pushed from a car, until next week, according to an announcement made by Judge Atwater at Elizabeth yesterday.

Judge Atwater yesterday afternoon reserved decision on the application of John J. Stamler for a retrial for his client, Abraham Shankser, a saloonkeeper convicted of Sunday selling. Mr. Stamler said that he believed the jury was prejudiced against his client.

Michael Touhey, convicted of grand larceny, was sentenced to a term of from three and a half to seven years.

TODAY'S CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

Judge William Newcorn, sitting in the District court, this morning, reserved decision in the suit brought by Mrs. M. Louise Gillmore against Edward S. Zelly. The plaintiff sought to recover rent money Zelly having been a tenant and moving out before the expiration of his lease. She claims payment for the time the house was vacant. Zelly was represented by Robert Newton Crane.

During this morning's session Judge Newcorn announced his decision in the contract case of W. H. Abbott, of this city, against Charles Crickenberger, of Westfield. The plaintiff asked for $86.78 while Crickenberger filed an offset for $301.03. The court gave Abbott a verdict for $19.58.

TO HAVE NO CLERKS FOR CITY DEP'T HEADS

The heads of practically all of the city departments, upon request held a conference with several councilmen in the Council chamber last night, the purpose being to discuss probable needs for the different departments for next year. After considerable discussion, in which the heads of departments and councilmen took part, it was decided to allow matters to tsand as at present and to engage such extra help next year as may seem to be necessary.

Several department chiefs seemed to think that a clerk is needed to look after clerical work. This was true in the case of the police and fire departments, Chief Kiely and Chief Doane expressing the opinion that extra help is needed for clerical work. The idea of having a clerk at police headquarters is a new one. City Judge W. G. DeMeza is taking charge of his books this year, and one of the sergeants has been delegated to write up the cases for the blotter and private book.

That Judge DeMeza is entitled to a raise in salary in view of the increased amount of work in his official position appeared to be the opinion of several councilmen. Thus far he has collected in fines for 1911 more than $2,000, the largest amount received in one year for a long time.

The trend of all the discussion was in the direction of engaging clerical help, but at the conclusion it was decided to let matters stand as at present. Among those present at the conference were Mayor G. W. V. Moy, Councilmen R. I. Tolles, D. W. Taylor, G. S. Clay and Councilman-elect Fred Endress, Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett, City Judge W. G. DeMeza, Police Chief P. S. Kiely and Fire Chief T. O. Doane.

CAR CREWS INSTRUCTED IN XMAS COURTESIES.

Over the signature of Newton W. Bolen, superintendent of transportation, there was posted in the carhouses of the Public Service Railway Company at Dunellen yesterday suggestions to the employes for handling the holiday "rush" of passengers.

Explaining that the Christmas throngs of passengers increase the responsibilities of the company and those of the employes, and that more than usual care must be exercised by conductors, motormen and other employes in the operation of cars, Mr. Bolen urges the crews to be courteous and helpful to all patrons.

The suggestions, which are tantamount to orders, include the following:

"Do not object to shoppers carrying bundles, but assist those who need assistance in boarding or leaving cars."

That means that for the time being the rule against carrying bundles on the cars will be suspended.

The car crews are directed to have a care for the comfort of passengers, to see that the cars are properly ventilated and heated, to call out the names of the streets, stations and principal stores as they are approached, and to do all that they can to keep up the service to its highest possible efficiency.

"I feel certain," says Mr. Bolen in the notices, "that if the car crews will observe these suggestions their labors will be lightened, the public will be better satisfied and we will all be doing our part toward making the holiday season more pleasant for everybody."

LOCAL DENTAL MEN HEAR TWO ADDRESSES

The December meeting and banquet of the Plainfield Dental Society was held at The Homestead on Washington avenue last night there being a large attendance of the members from this city, Somerville, Dunellen and Westfield. After an excellent collation prepared and served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, the dentists listened to two addresses, one by Dr. Alfred R. Starr, of New York, on "Operative Dentistry," and the other by Dr. J. B. Starr, also of New York, on "The Preservation of the Pulp." A discussion followed.

In addition to the speakers the following were present: Drs. W. F. Naylor, G. V. W. Voorhees and J. G. Ogden, of Somerville; T. J. Hogan, of Dunellen; W. W. Gill and C. M. F. Egel, of Westfield; B. F. Leonard, Frank W. French, Raymond Stevens, W. E. Stelle, R. C. Meeker, Guy Hillman, Clive W. Montfort, George Moore, Charles L. Moore, Charles Davis, C. L. Crist, Elmer A. Giddes, Frank T. Clawson and O. B. Whitford.

C. E. WACK TO SUE FOR FALSE ARREST

The charge against Charles E. Wack, of this city, of collecting $5 unlawfully on behalf of the Newark Electrical Sign Co., was yesterday thrown out by the Essex county grand jury and the defendant has engaged counsel to bring a suit for damages for false arrest against J. Francis McGuire, manager of the corporation. Wack was arrested here several weeks ago for passing an alleged worthless check on Frank Linke. He was released in $50 bail for a hearing and disappeared. Several days later his arrest in Newark occurred and he was held in $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury. Now that that charge against him has failed there is nothing to prevent his being brought here for trial. His bondsman, John Brower, of East Fifth street, could not be seen today for an interview as to what course he expects to take.

JUST HOW TO USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

In connection with the Red Cross seals sale in this city by the Charity Organization Society, it must be remembered the great good accomplished by assisting in this prevention work and sending cheer into many homes at Christmas time.

The little seals can be pasted on all mail matter and private correspondence, but only on the back of letters and not on the address side of any packages that are going through the mail. They may be placed anywhere on matter going by express. As many seals may be used on the back of a letter or package as may be desired. Everyone is urged to use them liberally, since every seal is a bullet in the fight against tuberculosis.

Care should be exercised in sending merchandise through the mails not to place seals over the string with which the package is tied, since this seals the package against inspection and subjects it to first-class postage rates.

Red Cross Seals may be used also on the reverse side of mail matter sent to Austria, Germany, Great Britain and most of the British Colonies except India and Australia. Guatemala, Uruguay and Portugal refuse to admit mail bearing nonpostage stamps. Red Cross Seals may be used on the face of checks, on bills, on legal documents, and on any commercial paper.

These Christmas seals are not good for postage. They will not carry any mail matter, but any kind of mail matter will carry them. The slogan of the campaign this year is "A million for tuberculosis from Red Cross Seals." Every letter or parcel sent out during the holiday season should bear one or more seals.

These seals are to be obtained at The Daily Press office.

Crescent Company Elects.

Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, has elected these officers for the coming year: Captain, J. E. Flannery; first lieutenant, Robert Gow; second lieutenant, A. E. Causebrook; recorder, Frederick Douglas; treasurer, Samuel Robinson. The officers will be installed by Lieutenant Colonel Charles McGinley at the next meeting.

Mrs. and Mrs. Carl Steiner, of 814 Leland avenue, are the proud parents of a daughter born yesterday.

SPICER PLANT FIRE

Flames Leap From Tempering Furnace to Oil Reservoirs Threaten Shops.

DEPARTMENT'S QUICK WORK.

Chief Doane Calls Out All the Apparatus—Chemicals Effective in Preventing Spread of the Blaze.

The effectiveness of fire proof construction in buildings and the efficiency of chemicals for extinguishing oil fires was demonstrated this morning at the Spicer Universal Joint Manufacturing Co.'s plant, on Madison avenue, when the place was threatened with destruction by flames which started in one of the tempering furnaces in the blacksmith department. For a time the blaze looked so dangerous that box 41, at West Third street and Madison avenue, from which the fire department was summoned, was pulled the second time to summon the city's entire fire fighting equipment. With this added assistance, Chief Doane was able to confine the flames to the department in which the fire started and keep the loss at a minimum. He has placed the damage at $1,000, which is covered by insurance.

The blaze was first noticed by Albert Stevens, a blacksmith, who was working at a forge near the tempering furnace. His shouts attracted the other employes and while one ran to the fire box, others tried to check the flames with extinguishers. They had succeeded in keeping the fire from spreading when the extinguishers became exhausted and the fire jumped to a thin wooden partition between the old drop forge and blacksmith departments. Above this partition are the oil reservoirs that feed the tempering furnaces and the heat started them blazing.

The great clouds of black smoke pouring from all openings in the building caused alarm in the neighborhood and the business section was almost deserted as great crowds congregated at the scene of the conflagration. Patrolmen Kelley, Dobson and McGinley kept the crowd back with the assistance of a number of employes.

In a very few minutes after the arrival of the firemen, four streams of water were playing on the flames which had gotten through the corrugated iron roofing in several places. As the water would strike the blazing oil the oil would sputter and scatter in all directions until it was seen that in this manner there was danger of spreading the flames to other parts, so the chemical stream was brought into play and soon had the flaming oil under control, the water lines being used to cool the nearby exposed iron construction.

Too much cannot be given Chief Doane and his men, according to an official of the Spicer Co., who praised them for the deliberate daring shown in combating the treacherous blaze.

BOROUGH PUPILS HAD A HARD SPELLING TEST

The recent report of the State Board of Education to the effect that pupils of the normal schools are sadly deficient in rudimentary subjects, induced Principal H. C. Krebs, of the borough schools, to "spring" a spelling test on the members of the High School department today. Without any previous announcement he summoned all four classes to the assembly room and requested senior, junior, sophomore and freshman alike to write down the words he called out. Thereupon he began reeling off the same 300 that had been given the entrance class of the Montclair Normal.

The best paper that was turned in at the State test had eleven words wrong and although the marking of the borough pupil's is not yet completed, it is believed this record will be beaten. One senior missed but seventeen and some of the best spellers' efforts have not yet been marked.

The 300 words are all in common use but most of them were selected because of "catches." In the papers already examined it was found that "chrysanthemum" proved to be the greatest obstacle. Only a few came out first in a tussle with it. "Irresistible" mowed the pupils down by scores and "vocabulary" had a lot of them guessing. "Laboratory," "sacrilegious" and "rhythm" proved a stumbling block for a lot of the best spellers while many of them wished they were somewhere else when "irascible" and "separate" were pronounced.

The marking of the papers will be completed tomorrow, after which the results will be announced.

ELKS CHRISTMAS PLANS FOR CHILDREN OF POOR

With a view of bringing joy and gladness into the homes of the deserving poor and giving Christmas cheer to the hearts of the children, Plainfield lodge of Elks, following its annual custom is making preparations through the following committee to put into practise the basic principles of the order. The committee is comprised of David J. Carney, chairman; Fred G. Lynn, James R. Blair, Arthur Smith and Charles Woolston. According to the plans of the committee it is intended to distribute stockings, caps, mittens, shoes and other articles of wearing apparel where needed and would be acceptable. In addition to these substantial gifts, the little ones will be given an entertainment at Proctor's theatre and on their way out will be presented with an orange and box of candy.

Every member of the lodge will have a part in the Christmas cheer feature inasmuch as each one will contribute his mite for the cause, so that there will be no lack of financial support. In order to get all the needy children cared for, tickets that can be exchanged for the mittens, stocking, caps, etc., will be distributed according to lists already in the hands of the committee and which are expected to be furnished by persons interested in charitable work. Further announcement will be made as to the store where the tickets can be exchanged and the date of the performance.

It is estimated that Plainfield Lodge of Elks has in its membership fifty-four men who are talented sufficiently to either sing a son, dance a jig, or make an impromptu speech on most any subject. It is only natural therefore that this fact should be rocnized and when any of the sister lodges of nearby towns are putting on an entertainment that Plainfield Elks should have a part in it. Somerville lodge of Elks is giving a minstrel show tonight and tomorrow night with the assistance of John Todd, Elmer D. Cutting, Harry N. Blimm, Joseph Martin, the VanEps brothers, and Joseph Denny. Last night all mentioned attended. A large delegation from here will attend both performances.

Gift For Mr. VanEmburgh.

The members of St. Paul's Brotherhood, of Trinity Reformed church, of which George L. VanEmburgh is the president and teacher, today presented the latter with an invalid's table. The presentation was made at his home by members of the brotherhood, and was accepted in a true spirit of appreciation. The gift is a valuable one to Mr. VanEmburgh, owing to the nature of his illness, which is rheumatism.

UNDERWOOD NOT GUILTY OF CRUELTY TO HORSE

The case of the New Jersey Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals against Gerard H. Underhill came up before Justice Snape and a jury yesterday afternoon. Lewis C. Teed, of Newark, represented the prosecution and Samuel S. Swackhamer, of Codington & Swackhamer, appeared for the defendant. At the conclusion of the plaintiff's case, Mr. Swackhamer moved to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to put the defendant upon his defense. This motion was opposed by Mr. Teed, and the defendant was put upon the stand in his own defense. After his testimony was in, Mr. Swackhamer moved for a direction of a verdict in favor of the defendant. The court ordered the jury to render a verdict in his favor, which was done accordingly, without the jury leaving their seats.

The charge made was that the defendant had neglected a horse and had permitted it to suffer by being left out in a snow storm on December 3, and that it was killed by the defendant. The defendant showed that the horse had gotten out of the stable with another horse, and that almost as soon as he found the animal was down and in a critical condition he killed it. It was shown that the defendant had been guilty of no cruelty whatever.

The jury was composed of the following: Fred Hand, foreman; Andrew Love, Jr., John Ammon, J. A. Powlison, J. Worth Codington, W. C. Dunham, Lemuel Pope, J. P. Homan, Jacob Voehl, William L. Julliard, Peter Layton and Peter Hanson.

Wright Lecture Tonight.

"Algeria and Tunesia by Automobile," will be the subject of a fine illustrated lecture to be given at the Plainfield High School tonight by J. Dunbar Wright for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. Mr. Wright took this trip and the great many pictures obtained by himself were afterward colored, comprising one of the finest collection in existence. Mr. Wright is a charming talker and the lecture will be one of special interest.

WOMAN A SUICIDE

Insanity Proceedings Pending Mrs. Elizabeth V. A. Clark Hanged Herself.

WAS ONCE HELD INCOMPETENT.

Had Given Husband, From Whom She Was Separated, All Her Property and Tried to Get It Back Again.

The long drawn out court proceedings to have Mrs. Elizabeth V. A. Clarke, of White Plains, N. Y., declared insane was terminated suddenly yesterday when it was learned that the woman had committed suicide at Dr. J. H. Cooley's Brookside Sanitarium on Friday last. The case was called for the twentieth time before Justice Thompson, in the Supreme Court at White Plains, yesterday, and Mrs. Clarke's counsel announced that she was dead. They failed to state that she had hanged herself a week ago when suffering from a nervous disorder.

The stories published in the late editions of the New York newspapers yesterday gave the first intimation that Mrs. Clarke had committed suicide at Dr. Cooley's sanitarium. It was known last Friday that a death had occurred at the place, and Dr. Roger Cooley was questioned about it. At that time he declined to discuss the matter, adding that the person did not live here and her death would not be of local interest.

When Dr. Roger Cooley was interviewed today concerning the matter, he explained that he considered Mrs. Clarke a private patient and that when questioned on Friday he had not been in communication with the dead woman's family and did not feel at liberty to talk. Today he confirmed the report that Mrs. Clarke committed suicide, hanging herself with a piece of rope in the attic, after eluding her nurse. It was the opinion that Mrs. Clarke had been dead about six hours when found.

County Physician Long, of Somerville, was summoned and after an investigation he issued a permit for the removal of the body to White Plains, N. Y.

The proceeding against Mrs. Clarke was begun last autumn by Mrs. Clara Diehl, of Mount Kisco, her "nearest friend," and after a long trial the jury failed to agree. Pending another hearing she was taken to the Brookside Sanitarium, and had been there about three months. Early last Friday morning she escaped from the nurses who were watching her, climbed to an attic, and hanged herself from a rafter with a pieces of clothes line. The body was sent to the undertaking establishment of Runyon & Son, when it was taken by Mr. Clarke the following day and buried in Greenwood cemetery.

The woman lived at Chappaqua and was prominent in Westchester social circles. She was married to Arthur B. Clarke, of New York, in May, 1909.

Just previous to the marriage Mrs. Clarke deeded to her future husband property which she said was worth $100,000, most of it real estate in the vicinity of Chappaqua, N. Y. Marital difficulties started last autumn, and Mrs. Clarke sued to recover the property from her husband, but the action was dropped, and her attorney, Arthur K. Wing, of New York, dismissed.

Soon after this Mrs. Diehl began the action to have Mrs. Clarke declared insane, and Justice Thompson appointed a commission to pass on her sanity. Pending the report of this commission Mrs. Clarke was sent to the Brookside Sanitarium.

YOUNGSTERS LOST IN FOG FOUND IN ELIZABETH.

Daniel Kiely, son of Police Chief Patrick S. Kiely, of this city, and Edward Whitney, another Plainfield youngster, were found by Patrolman Leonard wandering about the downtown section of Elizabeth early yesterday. The boys said they got lost in the fog. They were taken to the Second Precinct station and sent home after daylight.

Hill—Bray.

Miss Frances M. Hill and Lawrence A. Bray, both of this city, were married Monday afternoon at St. Mary's church. Father Hogan, assistant pastor, officiated. The attendants were Miss Anna L. Bray, sister of the bride, and John McDonough, was the best man. Mr. and Mrs. Bray will reside in this city after a trip.

A Dispute Settled.

By actual measurement it is just 135 feet North West from the corner of Front Street to The Lenox Stationery Store at 12 Madison Avenue—you might go further and fare worse.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS AND THE GOOD GIRLS TOO:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not stamp to you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No. ——— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. This letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

TIZ—For Sore Feet

Tired, Aching, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty, Feet? Corns Callouses or Bunions? Use TIZ. It's Sure, Quick and Certain.

You Will Enjoy Using TIZ. The Most Pleasant Remedy You Ever Tried and Moreover It Works.

At last here is instant relief and a lasting permanent remedy for sore feet. No more tired feet. No more aching feet. No more swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more corns. No more bunions. No more callouses, no matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use TIZ.

TIZ is totally unlike anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous exudations which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleanses them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists 25 cents per box or direct if you wish from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Recommended and sold by

BETTER OBSERVANCE OF PHARMACY LAW.

In its annual report to the Governor the State Board of Pharmacy expresses the belief that the work of the past year has been instrumental in bringing about a better understanding of the provisions of the law than had previously existed and that conditions throughout the State are generally satisfactory. In only a few instances has it been necessary to prosecute offenders for violating the provisions requiring the presence of registered pharmacists in establishments where drugs are dispensed.

Unfavorable conditions were found to exist in only two sections of the State. These were the outlying districts of the larger cities in Hudson County and in the towns along the shore. George W. White made the inspections in Hudson county and discovered that in the outlying districts many clerks were not registered and in some cases were acting as managers, while some owners and proprietors were not registered. All were notified of the violations and with the exceptions of a few all complied with the orders of the board. Those who did not are slated for prosecution.

At present there are on record 2,842 registered pharmacists and 152 registered assistants, a total of 2,634 in good standing. The receipts of the board during the year were $5,564.08, and the disbursements $4,174.24, leaving a balance of $1,389.84, which was turned over to the State Treasurer.

HURT IN DITCHED AUTO.

By the ditching of an automobile in Bloomfield's Corner, New Brunswick, Tuesday, James S. Wight, former city attorney of Perth Amboy, and Chauncey C. Baldwin, superintendent of the Standard Underground Cable Company of Perth Amboy were painfully injured.

William D. V. Voorhees, alderman-at-large and Acting Mayor of Perth Amboy, who was also in the car, was unharmed.

The machine was wrecked and was left in the ditch. The injured men were able to continue.

Police Round up Trainriders.

Five trainriders were brought before Judge Van S. Roosa at Roselle yesterday by Detective J. W. Lohman, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad staff. They were captured stealing rides at Cranford Junction. When brought before Judge Roosa, they gave their names as follows: Thomas Donnelly, 28 years old, Newark; Sandy MacCloud, 25, Garrison, N. Y.; Samuel Graves, 29, Pittsburg, Pa.; E. P. Allahndo, 28, New York; Charles Johnson, 30, Allentown, Pa. After hearing their various stories of looking for work, etc., Judge Roosa suspended sentence and ordered the quintet from the borough immediately.

Deputy Bee Inspector Resigns.

Trenton, Dec. 14.—The State Board of Agriculture has received the resignation of Charles S. Sharp, deputy inspector of bees. Mr. Sharp, who lives in New Egypt, resigned to accept another position. He was appointed under the law passed by the last Legislature providing for bee inspection and for the prevention of contagious diseases among bees.

The Kansas "progressives" succeeded so well in carrying Republican primaries with Democratic votes that they want to extend the system and capture the State for La Follette—Kansas City Journal.

There are manifod indications that it is the belief of Mr. Bryan and his political satellites that if Governor Wilson shall be elected President Mr. Bryan will be the controlling influence in the ensuing administration.—Hartford Times.

CAFE SCREEN LAW DOES NOT IMPRESS RECORDER.

That Recorder Henry W. Kehoe, of Perth Amboy, classes the screen provision of the "bishops' law" with the old-time "blue laws" was indicated in his comment in disposing of an accused saloon-keeper's case Tuesday. He dismissed the defendant, Otto Hartwig, ignoring the statement of the policeman who made the arrest that Hartwig had not removed the screen from his saloon window on Sunday.

"There are laws on the State's statute books," announced Kehoe, "which would, if enforced, compel persons on the street on Sunday to prove that they were going to or from church or searching for a physician."

Patrolman William Calvin arrested Hartwig on a charge of violating the law. He could not prove that Hartwig had sold liquor on Sunday, but did testify that the screens were in the saloon window and prevented a view of the interior of Hartwig's place.

During no season of the past have we been able to assemble holiday stocks, toys and dolls which approached those of the present season in completeness or desirability. The values offered continue to demonstrate the value giving supremacy of this store and in a way which has influenced hundreds of people to patronize us who have heretofore bought elsewhere. Our toy department on the ground floor is a beehive of activity daily. The stocks of dolls and toys are intensely interesting and attractive; bring in the children; let them amuse themselves. THIS TOY BAZAAR IS OPEN FOR THEM.

Tell the little ones that Santa Claus will be here every afternoon beginning next Monday; let them come in and tell him what they want for Xmas.

We add a list of items suitable for giving; check off such as you care to inspect and visit our store, and make purchases early. It's the wisest and most profitable thing you can do.

HAVE BRIGHT PROSPECTS.

Princeton Already Planning for the 1912 Football Season.

Princeton, Dec. 14.—The fact that next season Captain Pendleton, of Princeton, and the coaches will have eight men who have already been awarded their letter in football from which to select the entire team if necessary augurs well for a successful football eleven in 1912. In addition to this material E. C. Waller, 1914, who played at fullback for the scrubs this season, should be eligible, and T. Emmons, 1914, who is considered a promising candidate for quarterback, should also be eligible.

The following are the men who will be available again, all of whom played in either the Yale or Harvard games with the exception of G. K. Wight, who was kept out on account of an injury: 1913, A. Bluethenthal, C. E. Brown, C. C. Dunlap, T. T. Pendleton, G. K. Wight; 1914, H. A. H. Baker, W. L. DeWitt, R. E. Hammond, G. F. Phillips

The forward line will be weakened by the loss of Captain Hart, S. B. White, J. M. Duff, C. McCormick, and T. A. Wilson, through graduation. On the squad also there are a number of seniors who are lost through graduation—W. G. Andrews, P. P. Chrystie, B. H. Farr, W. McLean, A. T. Ormond, H. M. Sawyer and G. E. Winants—all of whom have been kept in readiness for an emergency. The entire left wing of the line will have to be filled with new men. The men on the right side and centre, however, will all be back again—Bluethenthal, Brown, Phillips, Dunlap and Hammond. The trouble will come at this point when the coaches attempt to fill White, Hart and Duff's places, whose playing this season was sensational, to say the least.

There will be little or no material from the 1915 team which has shown up strong enough to warrant its figuring in a prediction, and there was very little on the rest of the squad.

The backfield will certainly be a fast one, for it will remain intact. Sporting experts of the Eastern newspapers give a great deal of credit to the backs of the 1911 team for the successful season.

Jersey An Apple State.

Freehold, Dec. 14.—Ninety-two varieties of apples, five specimens to a plate, the property of thirty growers were judged by a committee of experts from the State Horticultural Society in annual session here Tuesday and yesterday. The judges declared that the fruit compared favorably with the best exhibits of the kind from any State in the Union. The premium in each case was one dollar for first prize and fifty cents for second.

Court Hint to License Applicants.

In disposing of license applications in New Brunswick Tuesday, Judge Peter F. Daly declared that he looked with disfavor on the signing by women of applications. He explained that applicants ought to be able to secure the necessary twelve signatures from men.

Good Friends Again.

Colgate and Syracuse will resume athletic relations next year. The athletic governing board of Syracuse University Tuesday night ratified a football game scheduled for the Stadium in Syracuse November 16, next year.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

That this is a season of shattered traditions is finely exemplified by the forthcoming appearance of Robert Edeson at the Plainfield theatre Saturday, matinee and evening in "The Arab." Ten years ago a producer would no more thought of having taken one star out of a play and putting another in it than he would have planned to give "Uncle Tom's Cabin" without Topsy or "Little Eva." But Henry B. Harris had the temerity to take Edgar Selwyn out of "The Arab," and he seems to have been justified in putting Mr. Edeson in this piece, judging from reports that reach here of Mr. Edeson's success as Jamil Abdallah Azam, in Mr. Selwyn's play of the Orient. Mr. Edeson is said to have given the part just that romantic twang that seemed necessary to the success of the play, and while there is no way of telling, still there are recognized prophets in the profession who have witnessed both men in the roles who say that had Mr. Edeson essayed the part of Jamil from the time of the play's premier that the question of finding a suitable vehicle for Mr. Edeson would have been solved without his trying "The Cave Man." As events transpired it so happened that Mr. Edeson's attempt to make a go of "The Cave Man" terminated fortunately for Mr. Harris. Mr. Selwyn was suffering from a bad attack of "the call of the foreign clime," desiring to spend some of the royalties from "The Country Boy" in a climate where an overcoat would not interfere with the reach to the change pocket, and as Mr. Selwyn originally intended "The Arab" for Mr. Edeson the problem had a happy solution all round. No doubt many students of the play who like to make comparisons will attend the play to see how Mr. Edeson's conception of the Arabian role compares with that given the Metropolis by the author of the piece.

BOTH MEN WHO STOLE IRON SENT TO PRISON.

Hugh Brady and Richard Decker were each sentenced to six months in the county jail by Judge Mahon at Elizabeth yesterday, on the charge of stealing 2,600 pounds of scrap iron from a Central Railroad freight car. The men, it is said, tried to sell the iron to the David Kaufman Sons' Company, which had shipped it. Both men have long records, Brady having served a term in the Rahway Reformatory.

Some Fine Pictures.

For the second of a series of remarkably fine art photogravures The Philadelphia North American is offering that greatest of masterpieces by a woman painter, "Madame Le Brun and Daughter." The picture which The North American offers to its readers, unframed, at the remarkable price of 5 cents, when accompanied by a coupon from Sunday's edition, is of a quality that would sell for at least $1 in art shops. It is 16x20 inches, and is printed on high-grade art paper. An even more remarkable offer is made of the same picture, framed for 70 cents and the coupon. In case pictures are to be mailed, 5 cents extra is required. Framed pictures are sent out by express, charges collect at owner's risk, on receipt of 75 cents and the coupon.

Date Set for Elks' League Match.

The Elks' League bowling match scheduled for November 15, between the Newark and Rutherford teams, on the former's alleys, and which was postponed, will be rolled Monday night instead.

BASEBALL.

It was announced last night that Bud Sharpe, first baseman of the Buffalo club has been signed as manager of the Oakland club, of the Pacific Coast League. Sharpe succeeds Harry Wolverton, who has been engaged as manager of the New York Americans.

Toronto and Montreal put through a deal yesterday whereby Eddie Holly, of the Royals, was traded for Tony Smith. Manager John Ganzel announced that he had landed Otis Johnson and Jack Martin, from the Yankees.

Jack Coombs Robbed.

Jack Coombs, pitcher of the Philadelphia world's champions baseball team, was the victim of a sneak thief Tuesday in a Chicago store. Coombs went shopping with his wife. He had purchased a set of furs for Mrs. Coombs and the package was laid down for a few moments on a counter. When the great pitcher turned to pick up the box it was gone. The furs cost $200.

GOLF.

Leighton Calkins, of the Plainfield Country Club, succeeded in getting a resolution through calling for the association to drop its half-stroke system of computing the par in handicapping at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association at Sherry's, in New York, Tuesday night. This was done in the interest of uniformity, as the United States Golf Association had previously decided to do away with fractions in working out its national list.

ARMY OF "GOOD FELLOWS" NUMBER 113

There were eighteen more responses today from persons who want to be "Good Fellows" at Christmas time, which together with the ninety-five received up to yesterday, makes a total of 113. This will assure an abundance of good cheer and comfort for hundreds of poor children throughout the city and borough. If you want to know what real happiness is, just join the army of "Good Fellows" and you will get your answer and the returns will be 100 cents on the dollar.

One person who joined the "Good Fellows" today, writes: "I have a Sunday school class of boys who have decided to use the money collected during the year in advancing the 'Good Fellow' Movement." Others of an equally encouraging tone have been received. Christmas will soon be here and no time should be lost if you want to enroll among the hundreds of other "Good Fellows."

WILLIAM B. LARUE RECEIVES LOVING CUP

Members of Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., to the number of about one hundred visited Pioneer Council, of Bound Brook, last night, and at the same time gave Past State Councilor William B. LaRue, of that place, a pleasant surprise, by presenting him with a handsome silver loving cup. The cup, which was mounted on a pedestal, bears on one side the emblem of the order, and on the other the names of the councils.

The presentation was made by George Watts, on behalf of the visiting members. Thomas E. Currin, Jr., was appointed chairman of the gathering. Mr. LaRue was so completely taken by surprise that he was scarcely able to respond. He finally thanked the juniors for the handsome gift. Other remarks were made by I. N. Wyckoff, of Ivanhoe Council, Somerville, and R. F. P. von-Minden. Refreshments were served during a social hour and the Plainfielders reached home about 1 o'clock this morning. The trip was made by trolley.

New Trolley Connection Favored.

Resolutions were adopted favoring the granting of a limited franchise to the Public Service Railway Company for the connection of its South Broad street line with the Trenton "short line" at the monthly dinner of the Elizabeth Real Estate Board yesterday. Two ordinances granting a perpetual franchise to the trolley company will come up for final passage at the meeting of City Council tomorrow night.

$250,000 FACTORY FIRE IN NEWARK

More than a quarter of a million dollars' worth of property was destroyed early today when fire swept the New Jersey Adamant Company's plant, just outside of Newark. For a time it was feared the flames would spread to adjoining buildings, but a shift in the wind aided the firemen to check the blaze. For a time it threatened the bridge of the Lackawanna Railroad over the Passaic River, but an emergency crew from the East Newark freight yards saved the railroad property.

The fire was discovered just before daylight by a watchman of the Adamant Company plant. The building in which it started is a three story frame structure in which was stored a quantity of excelsior. This flashed up like powder and by the time the firemen arrived flames were shooting from the upper windows. More than fifty factories in the vicinity of the fire sent out alarms, and before the fire got under control at least 25,000 persons employed in the factories about were on the scene.

Property Sold at Auction.

The property at the southwest corner of Watchung avenue and East Fifth street, belonging to the estate of Joseph H. Wright, was sold at auction this afternoon to Charles H. Lyman. His bid was $19,150. Joseph P. Day, of New York, was the auctioneer.

F. O. E. ELECT OFFICERS FOR THE COMING YEAR.

The following were elected officers of Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., last night: Worthy president, P. W. Guinee; worthy vice-president, Harry H. Coddington; worthy chaplain, Harry Weirenga; secretary, Horace G. Adams; treasurer, Arthur G. Adams; inside guard, Michael J. Higgins; outside guard, J. Henry Adams; trustees for three years, Herman J. Frowery; for two years, James Mahoney; for one year, Edward J. McCann.

They will be installed by State Deputy William Mausell, of Hoboken, January 2.

Changed Plans.

A Chicago banker was dictating a letter to his stenographer:

"Tell Mr. Soandso," he ordered, "that I will meet him in Schenectady!"

"How do you spell Schenectady?"

"S-c, S-c—er—er—er— Tell him I'll meet him in Albany."—Chicago Evening Post.

Bad Judgment.

"How did you happen to lose out?"

"Some of my misguided friends got up an automobile procession for me," explained Congressman Whangdoodle. "Most of the voters, however, have no automobile."—Kansas City Journal.

The Reason Why.

The famous Jack Moakley was talking to a group of Cornell football men about an overrated player.

"Why is he overrated?" "Well. I'll tell you why. I'll tell you why by means of a parable.

"A sporting editor sat at his desk one Saturday afternoon when a little boy in spectacles entered solemnly and handed him a report, written in an unformed hand, of a game between the Harkaway Juniors and the Young Deadwoods.

"The editor glanced over the report. It ended with the words:

"'The feature of the game was Mannering's superb playing. Mannering tackled faultlessly. He kicked two magnificent goals, and the four touchdowns Mannering scored were the finest ever seen on the field.'

"'Who's Mannering?' said the editor.

"'I,' the spectacled midget answered proudly—'I am Mannering.'"

All Objectors.

Father—It's a curious thing that whenever I want you to marry a man you object, and whenever I do not want you to marry one you insist on it.

Daughter—Yes, and whenever we are agreed the man objects.—London Opinion.

THE HEELLESS SHOE.

It was to be supposed that with the advent of so many Victorian fashions the heelless slipper, with its broad toe, laced around the ankles with silk ribbon, would come back into style.

These are now the latest fancy in Paris. The shoe is exactly like the one worn decades ago. The leather is very soft and the only difference between it and its ancestor is a wide cut steel buckle which is put at the end of the vamp.

Among the smart shoes which Americans are wearing at summer resorts there are low-cut ones of patent leather which are curved in under the instep and which have an upper one inch deep of gray suede. They have two eyelets in front, which are laced with elastic to hold the shoe tightly to the foot, so that it will not slip at the heel.

This elastic is covered with a long buckle of cut steel, which is filled in with a piece of gray suede. Such shoes are worn lingerie, floral and taffeta frocks, and are considered excessively smart.

Dry Cleaning

like everything else, is cheapest when you get the best, for your garments are cleaned and pressed better—and therefore the work lasts longer and is better for your clothing or household furnishings.

Besides a saving, good cleaning is sanitary. Since this is so, get the best, for handwork in small tubs is sure to carry some dirt along from other clothing belonging to other people.

You don't experience anything of that nature in a first-class place.

FURS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS AT

Charles Kurtzman's Fur Store

178 EAST FRONT STREET, Dr. Pittis' Office Building.

At such a big reduction in prices

That no one either in town or out of town can beat us.

If there is any gift to be given in the fur line, why not buy at a place where you are positively sure you are getting a guarantee for your money. We always give you the best satisfaction in quality, style and prices, because we are manufacturers and can save you the profits that you would otherwise have to pay the middleman. When we offer a reduction it means that the prices are cut to one-half the figure quoted elsewhere.

We, the CHARLES KURTZMAN FUR STORE, were the first fur store established here in town and have leased our premises for many years. No other can say the same and speak the truth in doing so.

NOTICE—We will refund the purchase price to any customer who will prove that they can get the same goods elsewhere at a lower figure. Alterations and remodelling are specialties. Remember the place.

POSTAL DEPOSITORS MAY TAKE GOV'T BONDS

Postal Savings Bank depositors who wish to convert their savings into Postal Savings bonds must make an application on or before tomorrow.

The applications are received at the depository where the certificates were issued. The office supplies a blank form. The depositor must endorse and surrender with his application postal savings certificates covering the amount of bonds declared, for which he gets a receipt.

The act of the Postoffice Department in purchasing two postal savings bonds at the par value of $100 each is taken as evidence of the Governmental determination to hold bonds at par.

In an official circular issued by the department in October, setting forth the nature of the issue, it is stated that the bonds are to bear interest at two and one-half per cent. annually, payable semi-annually and that they are redeemable at the pleasure of the Government after one year from the date of issue. Both principal and interest are payable twenty years from the date of issue.

This action of the Postoffice Department was the result of the attempt of speculators in Wall street to depreciate the market price of the bonds which they could easily do as long as the bonds could not be redeemed at par by the Government before the end of twenty years. The fact that the bonds did not remain at par caused considerable worry on the part of the department. A consultation of the Postmaster-General, Attorney-General and Secretary of the Treasury was held and resulted in a determination that the department would maintain the bonds at par value by purchasing them at any time after they are a year old, in whatever quantities necessary. The bonds purchased Saturday were forwarded to the National Bank of New York.

Postal savings bonds can be bought only in January and July, and then only when application is made on or before the fifteenth of the previous month. The bonds cost $100 each, in postal savings certificates, and cannot be purchased with money that is not in the form of postal savings certificates.

One hundred dollars a month is the largest sum that can be deposited by one person in a postal savings bank. If one desires to save at a faster rate the department makes no objection to his depositing in the name of his wife or children.

NEW JERSEY PAINTERS DISCUSS LIABILITY ACT.

Attended by delegates from all parts of the State, the midwinter convention of the New Jersey Master Painters and Decorators' Association was held in the Master Painters and Decorators' Hall, Newark, yesterday afternoon. Benjamin F. Davis, of Jersey City, the president of the organization, presided.

The provisions of the new employers' liability law were discussed by the members and it was decided that the only way that the master painters could protect themselves against the law was for the members of the association to carry sufficient amount of liability insurance.

Plans were made for the international convention, to be held in Rochester, N. Y., on February 13-16, and Benjamin F. Davis, of Jersey City; Charles Greenhalgh, of Paterson, and H. L. Bartholomew, of New Brunswick, were elected as delegates.

The officers of the State organization are: President, Benjamin F. Davis, of Jersey City; vice president, Henry B. Brewster, of Newark; secretary, Charles Greenhalgh, of Paterson, and treasurer, H. L. Bartholomew, of New Brunswick.

At the close of the business session the delegates adjourned to Achtel-Stetter's, where a banquet was served, which was followed by a theatre party at the Gayety.

RESCUE AGED WOMAN AS FIRE NEARS BED.

Mrs. Mary Jane Whyman, 71 years old, had a narrow escape from being burned to death late yesterday afternoon when a fire, caused by a defective chimney flue, broke out in her home in Westfield avenue, Elizabeth. The woman is a cripple from rheumatism. The flames almost reached the bed on which she was lying before she could get away.

Neighbors came to her aid and she was assisted to the street. The fire department responded to an alarm from box 32 and the blaze was extinguished without difficulty.

TROLLEY EXTENSION AGAIN DISCUSSED.

The joint committee on streets and highways and railroads and street railways of the Elizabeth City Council last night went over the ordinances granting a franchise to the Public Service Railway Company to extend its tracks down South Broad street and Bayway to connect with the Trenton "short line." Frank Bergen, chief counsel for the Public Service Corporation, attended the meeting and went over with the committee the objections filed by the corporation to the two measures, which have passed two readings in Council. An attempt will be made to unravel the tangle at the meeting of Council tomorrow night.

The joint finance and street lighting committee conferred last night on the proposition of Councilman M. Morey to establish and maintain a system of Welsbach portico street lamps in place of the present system of city gas lamps. It is believed that the committee will recommend the adoption of the plan, which will cost only $3,000 more than the present system, and which will be more efficient.

The finance committee also prepared a report recommending the award of the contract for a new fire alarm system to cost $5,142.

The special committee on river improvement and the committee on municipal water supply also met last night and prepared final reports to be presented to Council tomorrow night.

STATE WILL VACCINATE ITS PRISON INMATES.

Trenton, Dec. 14.—One of the most radical steps ever taken by a public institution of this State to preserve the health of its inmates was decided upon yesterday, when the State Board of Prison Inspectors decided to have everyone of the upwards of 1,400 convicts vaccinated to prevent the further spread of typhoid fever in the institution.

A resolution was adopted by the board directing the prison physician, Dr. Thomas H. Mackenzie, to have the inmates vaccinated in accordance with the practically new method of innoculating persons in an effort to ward of the disease. The medical experts of the country will watch with great interest the result of this experiment in a large institution as this is possibly the first time that such wholesale vaccination has been ordered in a place like a prison.

The typhoid vaccine process was discovered about five years ago in India and since then has been tried with considerable success not only in this country, but in all parts of the world. In the English army it has been used most effectively, particularly among the regiments exposed to the ravages of typhoid in tropical countries. The experiment was also a success in the army of the United States during the maneuvers held last summer on the Mexican border.

BANKRUPTCY NO ESCAPE FROM TAX.

United States Judge Cross, in an opinion filed yesterday, decided a novel point by directing the trustee in the bankruptcy proceedings against Albert Brand, a printer, to pay the taxes owing to the city of Trenton out of the assets received from the sale of the establishment housing the Brand printery.

This plant was sold at public auction, and the referee held that inasmuch as taxes in this State were not personal affairs when assessed against the real estate, but followed the building, the owner of the plant now must pay them. The court held that they were a debt on the assets of Brand in bankruptcy proceedings, and they must be paid out of the estate.

TRUST CO.'S PORTER FALLS HEIR TO $40,000.

"Jim" Dundas, erstwhile porter in the Union Trust building, Jersey City, left yesterday on the steamship Carmania to take possession of a $40,000 fortune bequeathed him by a relative in Ireland.

"Jim" was startled one day recently on receipt of the following cablegram:

"You have been left a legacy. Write at once. CROSS & CROSS, "Attorneys-at-law.

"Dublin, Ireland."

The answer was written the same day. It developed that "Jim's" uncle, Dominick Connors, a wealthy hardware merchant of Dublin, had died, and through the will Dundas was to receive $40,000.

As a "Trust" the Standard Oil Company is no more, but so far no "To Let" sign has been posted on 26 Broadway.—New York Herald.

GOVERNOR APPROVES NEW PRISON RULES

Trenton, Dec. 14.—Governor Wilson yesterday gave his approval to a set of rules adopted by the State prison inspectors for carrying into effect of the indeterminate sentence law adopted at the last session of the Legislature.

The rules provide for a schedule of demerits for misconduct, and every demerit is to add one day if imprisonment to the minimum sentence.

In the case of a first escape or attempt to escape a prisoner having a minimum sentence of less than two years will receive five demerits for each month. If the minimum sentence is more than two and less than five years he will receive fifteen demerits for each month. The board will not set at large a prisoner who escapes or attempts to escape the second time.

Other provisions of the schedule of demerits are as follows: Assaulting an officer, prison employe or prisoner, not less than sixty demerits; fighting, not less than twenty demerits; disturbing cell hall, not less than fifteen demerits; having contraband articles in possession or in hiding, not less than fifteen demerits; selling or trading groceries or articles of any kind, not less than fifteen demerits; refusing to work, not less than fifteen demerits; negligence or indifference in work or studies, not less than ten demerits; insolence to prison officers or employes, not less than ten demerits. For other offenses the board will impose such penalty as it deems proper.

The board of inspectors are to meet monthly to pass upon cases and among the rules they will be guided by are the following:

"The application to be set at large must be made by the prisoner himself. Application blanks will be furnished by the principal keeper, and such prisoners as may be unable to prepare their applications will be given necessary assistance.

"Neither the prisoner's counsel nor other persons will be permitted to appear before the board, either for or against the setting at large of a prisoner.

"In considering the application for setting at large a prisoner the board will take into account the prison conduct of the applicant, his criminal record and also his habits and methods of life before conviction; his domestic relations, his prospects of employment and his ability and apparent desire to lead a correct life and maintain himself by honest labor, if set at large.

"No prisoner shall be set at large who is deemed unworthy or dangerous to the community, and when, in the judgment of the board, the prisoner should not be set at large, the board shall with the approval of the Governor, prolong the minimum term. Thereafter, his application will be reconsidered at intervals of six months, the minimum term of sentence marking the end of confinement, irrespective of prior action by the board.

"Any prisoner who fails to comply with the terms of his parole will if apprehended, be returned to the prison to serve the balance of his maximum term. In such case no application to be set at large will be considered until the expiration of one year. Time at large will not be considered as a part of sentence."

Won't Ask for Garbage Bills.

Westfield Town Council Tuesday night, by a vote of 4 to 3, refused to ask for bids for the removal of ashes and garbage under the provisions of the garbage ordinance recently passed by the Council, which went into effect immediately. The ordinance sets forth that ashes and garbage cannot be collected after June 1, 1912, excepting by the town contractors.

CONTRACT GIVEN FOR ELIZABETH HIGH SCHOOL

By the adoption of the report of its special high school committee the Elizabeth Board of Education last night awarded the contract for the construction work on a new high school, which it is now estimated will cost $425,000, to W. H. & F. W. Kean, of Jersey City, whose bid was $304,276. The contract for the heating and ventilating plant was given to the Evans-Albirall Company, of New York city, who bid $35,187.

There was one lower bid for this work, but the committee reported that it did not come up to the requirements of the specifications. The fees of the architect and engineer, the laying of sidewalks, furnishing and other details in connection with the erection of the new school are expected to bring the cost of the building to the total mentioned.

In order to have ground enough on which to build the new structure it was decided to purchase from John W. Whelan about ninety feet of ground on South Broad street, just south of the present High School, at a cost not exceeding $4,500 and the cost of removing two residences now on the property, which is estimated at $4,429, making the total $8,929.

The report made last night was read by Walter B. Timms, chairman of the committee, who in commenting on it, said that there was no doubt that the State Board of Education would require a strictly fireproof building.

He said that since the report was drawn up Monday a letter had been received from the State board saying that it would be necessary to revise the plans for the new school in some particulars. This will no doubt entail some delay in the procuring of an appropriation from the Board of School Estimate, before which the committee must now go for funds to erect the building.

SAXONY TO DISREGARD RECENT PAPAL EPISTLE.

Dresden, Saxony, Dec. 14.—The Minister of Education and Religion replied to an interpellation, yesterday, concerning a pastoral letter from the Pope on the subject of the jurisdiction of civil courts over Catholic clergy. He declared that if conflicts arise between the constitution of the church and the laws of Saxony they will be ignored, since an attempt to enforce the terms of the papal ordinance is unlikely.

The letter, which was sent to the Catholic clergy on October 9, threatened with excommunication "every private person, whether of civil or religious standing or of the masculine or feminine sex, who brings any cleric whatever before a civil court and compels him to appear there publicly, either in a criminal or civil matter."

FURNITURE BELT HAS NO FEAR OF EDISON.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 14.—Local furniture manufacturers do not accept the statement of Thomas A. Edison that he can make furniture out of concrete.

One prominent manufacturer said yesterday: 'The manufacture of furniture must be reckoned with the development of style according to character and the character of the furniture suitable to the development of the people of the present day is not a type I believe easy to reproduce by casting of concreting of any kind."

HEED FIRE CHIEF'S PROTEST.

Following the complaint by Fire Chief William D. Clark, of New Providence, that the water pressure maintained at the standpipe on Murray Hill was insufficient, the Borough Council at that place has decided to notify the Commonwealth Water and Light Company that a greater pressure must be supplied. Chief Clark protested after a house owned by him had been destroyed, the firemen being unable to use more than one line of hose. When another pipe was brought into play the force of the streams diminished, he declared.

It had been stated that the water company could not be compelled to keep more than twenty-eight feet of water in the standpipe, which is seventy-five feet high.

The chief has also protested against classrooms for younger children on the second floor of the new school.

SLAYER TO HAVE QUICK TRIAL.

Quick justice will be meted out to Charles Clayton, the huckster who shot and killed Policeman Charles Lippincott, of Asbury Park, while the latter was trying to arrest him for beating his wife, Sunday night. The grand jury will reconvene within a week and the murder case may be made the subjects of a special charge by Judge Foster. Clayton's indictment and trial will likely follow in short order.

The funeral of the slain officer who was president of the local Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, was held this afternoon.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 17, 1911.

Topic.—A missionary's journey around the world.—XII. Missions in the West Indies.—II Cor. xii, 1-15. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Protestant missionary work in the West Indies began in 1899, one of the results of the Spanish-American war. This war left as a special legacy to the Christian people of the United States the moral and spiritual care of thousands of former Spanish subjects. The Christian church responded to the call of duty and of opportunity and has ever since carried on progressive and successful missionary work in Cuba and Porto Rico, the principal islands of the West Indies group.

The first missionary work in the West Indies was begun in Porto Rico. Porto Rico is 1,400 miles from New York and 1,000 miles from Key West. Its area is 3,600 square miles, or about one-half that of New Jersey. It is one of the most thickly populated districts in the world, having a population of about 1,000,000 people. The people of Porto Rico are of very diverse characteristics and capabilities. The pure Spanish descendants are educated, chivalrous, proud and aristocratic, lovers of good music, bountiful in hospitality and happy in their domestic relations.

The Porto Ricans are lazy and shiftless. Great poverty exists among them. Their desire for amusement is great. Sunday is a gala day. The missionaries from America to Porto Rico were cordially received, and the work has been successful. Outside of San Juan and Ponce, the principal cities, the territory has been divided for missionary purposes among the Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists and Lutherans. Evangelistic, educational and medical work is being carried on in the island with ever increasing success.

Mission work in Cuba was begun in 1901. The first decade of work has been eminently satisfactory. The spiritual tone of the churches in Cuba is relatively high. The need of schools and of financial support is very great. Nine-tenths of the people in our churches belong to the poorer and humbler classes, who count their earnings by cents rather than by dollars. The spirit of self sacrifice is not wanting, but there is almost a total inability to support the cause of Christ. The necessary funds should be willingly and cheerfully supplied by the Christian people of our land.

The Presbyterian church has done an extensive work in Cuba. Today it has fifteen churches in the island, with a membership of nearly 2,000, twelve outstations and about twenty-five Sabbath schools. The Christian Endeavor societies number ten and are in a flourishing condition.

Age Limit For Endeavorers.

How long ought one to remain an active member of the Christian Endeavor society? What is the age limit? How can it be called a "young people's" society when men and women of forty, fifty and sixty are active members?

Gently, gently, one thing at a time.

First of all, there is no age limit, no hard and fast rule that automatically pushes any one outside. If such an age limit existed the ladies, bless them, never would reach it anyway.

Put it this way. One may remain an active member until one is no longer active, or until one cannot make a short speech, or until one is so perpendicularly pious that young people are overawed, or until one is in the way of the young people having their innings, or until one's presence brings an angel hush upon the meeting, or until one somehow becomes a drag and a hindrance.

At a recent conference two cases came up that demonstrate the futility of rules and regulations in matters of this color. One splendid young fellow testified that his society died because of its old members hanging on too long. They ran the whole affair. No young folks dared come in because they were afraid of the surpassing ability of the older members. Mortification set in, ending in the death of the society. Then, after a year of mourning, a new society composed entirely of young people under twenty-five years of age was started, and lo, it is flourishing gloriously.

The other case was told by the minister, a warm hearted Endeavorer. The society had placed an age limit at twenty-five. The best workers dropped out, being beyond the limit, and the society languished exceedingly. Then the pastor broke down the wall, the older folks poured in again, and the society benefited.

Both cases are perfectly conceivable, and they are instructive.

Make room at the bottom. Make the society a real training school for service. There will always be calls enough for wise and even aged heads to plan, direct, instruct and lead. That means you.

"How can the society be a young people's society when the members are middle aged or old?" Your error, brother. I know people that are younger at sixty than many are at twenty. He is young who is large hearted, sympathetic, willing and active.

Years don't count in the kingdom.—Ripple in Christian Endeavor World.

CHAPTER XXII.

THE SHADOW OF A TOMORROW.

NIKKO'S thin street, with its gigantic isle of cryptomeria, was a shimmer of gold, a flicker of crimson and mandarin blue. All the town was out of doors, for it was the matsuri, the local festival of Ieyasu, the great shogun deity, when the ancient furniture and treasures of the temple are carried in priestly processional through the streets.

Austen Ware saw the strain on Barbara's face. "You are tired," he said. "Let us go back to the hotel."

"Where is Patsy?" she asked.

"She went with the bishop to see the priestesses dance at the temple, but we can skip that."

He drew her out of the crowd, and they walked slowly down a side street to the road that skirts the brawling Alpine torrent, rushing between its steep stone banks.

As they walked Ware chatted of his trip up the China coast—an interesting recital that took Barbara insensibly out of herself. More than once he looked at her curiously. Since that fateful hour when he had stood behind the shikiri he, like Barbara, had gone through much to look so unflurried. He had known moments of bitterness that were galling and stinging and that left behind them a sense of degradation. But he held to his course. So short lived a thing as her love for Daunt must wither. "It will pass," he had told himself, "and she will turn to me."

The trip to Nikko had encouraged him. It had been the time of the bishop's regular spring visit, and Barbara had welcomed the opportunity to leave Tokyo, which was so full of painful memories. Patricia adored Japan's "Temple Town," and Ware had joined the party there with as little delay as was seemly. In the three days of the poignant mountain air Barbara had seemed to Patricia to be more like her old self. She could not guess the strength of the effort this had cost or the fierceness of the fight Barbara's pride was making.

It was sunset when they mounted the steep road to the hotel, a long, two storied modern structure whose gardens and red balconies gave it a subtle Japanese flavor. On one side of the building the ground fell in a precipitous descent to the rocky bed of the river, whose rush made a restful monotone like wind sighing through linden trees. Behind it the height rose abruptly, and up its side clambered a twisting path from which a light footbridge sprang to the upper piazzas. The path led to a shrine a hundred yards above set beside an old wistaria tree, musical with the chirp of the "silver eye" and fluttering with countless paper arrows of prayer. Before it were two wooden benches, and from this eyrie one could look down on the hotel with its graceful balconies and far below the tumbling stream with its guarded red lacquer arch.

Ware walked with Barbara up the path to the footbridge. Near its entrance a small stand had been placed, and on it was a phonograph, its ungainly trumpet pointing down toward the stretch of lawn. A heavy red bearded man in a warm frock coat, a white waistcoat and a silk hat pushed far back on his head was laboring over this, and a plump lady stood near by, fanning her beaming face with a pocket handkerchief.

They greeted Barbara heartily.

"Good afternoon," said the husband. "You can't guess what me and Martha are up to, can you?"

"The samisen concert tonight?" she hazarded.

"Right!" he said. "First crack out of the box too! I'm going to take a record of it." He tapped the cylinder. "This is a composition of my own. I leave it out here all night to harden, and then I give it a three days' acid bath that makes it as hard as steel. It'll last forever. Now, what do you suppose I'm going to do with the record? I'm going to give it to you."

The lady beside him nodded and smiled. "He's been planning it ever since he heard you say the other day that you liked samisen music," she said.

"I shall be delighted!" said Barbara warmly. "I shall value it very, very highly."

The piazza opened into a small sitting room with cool bamboo chairs and portieres of thin green silk stenciled with maple leaves.

"MY ENGAGEMENT GIFT," HE SAID.

"Will you wait a moment, Barbara?" asked Ware. "I have something to show you."

She stopped, looking at him with a trace of confusion. "Certainly," she answered. "What is it?"

He put a folded paper into her hands. "Today is the anniversary of our meeting," he said. "This is a memento."

She took it with a puzzled look and scrutinized it. Wonder filled her face. "You have made over your yacht to me!" she cried.

"My engagement gift," he said. "She is your namesake; I want her to be yours."

A flush crept over her cheek. She knew the yacht was his favorite possession, and the action touched her. At the same time it brought swiftly home to her in a concrete way a numbing reminder of the imminence of her marriage.

"The deed has been recorded," he went on, "and the sailing master and crew have signed articles under the new owner. Perhaps you will let me come aboard of her to hear that samisen record," he added whimsically. "There's a phonograph in her outfit."

As Ware walked back across the footbridge the proprietor of the phonograph called to him.

"I clean forgot to ask the young lady where to send this record," he said. "Do you know her address?"

"It will be more or less uncertain, I fancy," said Ware. "But her yacht is in Yokohama harbor. It is named the Barbara. You might send it there."

The sharp sense of imminence which had come to Barbara with Austen Ware's gift remained with her that evening. The dinner was none too merry. For the first time Patricia had failed to be enthused over the Nikko matsuri, and the bishop since Haru's disappearance had lacked his usual sallies. Barbara had told him nothing of her visit to the house in the Street-of-the-Misty-Valley. To speak of it would probe her own wound too deeply.

The after dinner piazza exhaled the bouquet of evening cigars and the chatter of tourists. Far below, across the gorge, lights twinkled in native doorways and shoji glimmered like oblong yellow lanterns. The air was heavy with balsam odors, and beneath the trees, sparkling now with incandescents, tiny black moths had replaced the sunlight flashing dragon flies. Sitting in a semicircle on straw mats, the samisen players at length mingled their outre, twittering cadences with the soft thunder of the water.

As the musicians finished their last number and trooped away Patricia yawned and rose. "Here," she observed, "is where little Patsy puts her face and hands to bed. This mountain air is perfectly demoralizing!" The two girls went upstairs together.

At her own room Patsy put her arms around the other and kissed her. "Oh, I wonder if you're sure!" she said. Then she fled inside.

Barbara threw open the window of her room and drew a low stool to the balcony. "I wonder!" she said aloud. With elbows on the railing and chin in hands, she looked long and earnestly into the dark void. Why was she no longer able to warm to all this beauty and meaning?

She started. A horse was coming up the hill, his hoofs studding softly in the loose shale. The rider dismounted at the porch. A moment later, crop in hand, he passed beneath her window. The light fell on his face. Barbara's heart bounded and then stood still, for she recognized him.

"There has never been another woman to me, Barbara!" Mocking voices seemed to shout it satirically from the emptiness, and against the dark Haru's face rose up before her.

She shivered. She went in and closed the window, drawing down the blind with a nervous haste.

But she could not shut out that face, and in spite of herself her thoughts had their will with her. What was Daunt doing there? Patsy had said that he was in Chuzenji. But that was only a handful of miles away. He looked worn and older—he had been suffering too. She hugged this knowledge to her heart. He knew, of course, why she had ended it all. Haru would have told him.

She clinched her hands and began to pace up and down the room, now stopping to peer with bright, miserable eyes into the mirror, now throwing herself into a chair. Once she put her hand into her bosom, groping

The Home Building & Loan Association

Offers Cheap Interest for a Home Builder or Buyer

It figures out about like this, as a series will run out in twelve years: If $2,000.00 is borrowed (other amounts in same proportion),

He pays $10.00 a month dues for 144 months	$1,440 00
He pays $10.00 a month interest for 144 months at 6 per cent	1,440 00
Entrance fee, search, etc., about	25 00
Total amount paid	$2,905 00
He has the use of	2,000 00
At a cost for 12 years of	$ 905 00

Which is actual net interest of only 3¾ per cent. per annum.

This is on a basis of 6 per cent. When no money is on hand, the Association will provide money for the borrower at a very slight premium.

The regular meetings of the Association are held at its rooms, 109 Park Avenue, on the third Monday evening of each month. New series are opened at each regular meeting. for her father's picture, to withdraw it with an added pang, for she had forgotten. She had lost the locket the afternoon of her drive with Patricia.

A knock came at the door, and a bellboy handed her a penciled note. She read it wonderingly, then, hastily smoothing her hair, went quickly along the hall to the sitting room.

In the dimly lighted room a figure came toward her from the shadow. It was Philip Ware.

The youth who stood before her now, however, was not the Phil Barbara had seen at Mukojima. There was no hint of spruce grooming in his attire. It was overlaid with the dust and grime of the road.

"So this is Phil. I have often heard of you from your brother. Have you seen him?"

"No," he said. "I don't want him to know I'm here yet. I—I came to see you." He paused, twisting his cloth cap in his fingers.

He was in a desperate strait. His brother's silence since his visit to the house in Aoyama (of which Phil had learned from the servant) had seemed to mean the worst. The place had contained sufficient documents in evidence as to his mode of living, and the reflection opened gloomy vistas of poverty from which he turned with abject fear and dread. There was one alternative, and this, a grisly shadow, had stalked beside him since an evening when he had dined with Bersonin. It had peopled his sleep with terrifying visions which even Haru and the brandy had been unable to banish, and his waking hours had been haunted by the expert's yellowish eyes. Between devil and deep sea, he had heard of his brother's engagement, and the wild thought of appealing to him through Barbara had come to him as a forlorn hope. Now, face to face with her, he found the words difficult to say.

"Won't you sit down?" she said, and took a chair opposite him, looking at him inquiringly.

"I ought to apologize for a rig like this," he went on, glancing at his sorry raiment, "but I came in a friend's motor, and I'm going back tonight. I thought you wouldn't mind, now—now that you are engaged to marry Austen. You are, aren't you?"

She inclined her head. "Yes," she said slowly. "I have promised to marry him."

"Then you know him pretty well, and you know that he—that he doesn't altogether approve of me?"

"I have never heard him say that," she interrupted quickly.

"It's true, though," he rejoined bitterly. "He's always been down on me. I'm not staid enough for him. He made his money by grubbing, and he thinks everybody else ought to do the same. It's—it's the matter of money I want to speak to you about."

He paused again. "Yes?" she said.

"Since I left college," he went on, "Austen has always made me an allowance. But I've been out here a year now, and I—well, you know what the east is. I've had to live as other young fellows do, and I've spent more than he gives me. I've played some, too, and then this spring I got hit hard at the races. It was just a run of bad luck when I had expected to square myself. You see, Austen never overlooks anything. He's as likely as not to cut me off entirely and leave me high and dry. I—I thought perhaps you would—you might get him to do the decent thing and help me out of the hole. If I once got straight I'd stay so, but I want a fair allowance. It isn't as if he had to work for what I spend. He ought to give it to me. I can't go on as I am; I'm in debt—in deep. I can't take up my chits at the club. I'm living in Tokyo now—in a Japanese house in Aoyama that a friend has loaned me because I have not the face to show myself in Yokohama."

He twirled his cap and looked up at her. "That reminds me," he said, with a sudden recollection. "Austen was there the other day when I was away, and afterward I found something of yours which he must have dropped. Here it is. It has your name on it." He handed her a small locket with a broken chain.

She took it, with an exclamation. She was staring at him strangely. "This house you speak of—whose is it?"

"It belongs to Mr. Daunt."

"You mean—you say—that you have been living in it?"

"Yes. Why?"

She had risen slowly to her feet, her face hotly suffused. "Then—then Haru"— She spoke in a dry whisper. He started, looking at her with quick, resentful suspicion. "What do you know about Haru?"

"Never mind—never mind that! I want to know. Haru—she is—Mr. Daunt was no"—

"He never saw her in his life so far as I know," he answered sulkily. "What has that to do with it?"

For an instant she looked at him without a word, her fingers working. Then she began to laugh in a low tone, wildly, chokingly. "Of course! Of course! What has that to do with it? What you want is more money, isn't it? That is all you came to tell me!"

He, too, was on his feet now, uncertain and mistrustful. Was she making game of him? He saw Barbara's gaze go past him to fasten on something in the background. He turned. In the doorway with its maple leaf portiere stood Austen Ware.

Barbara's laugh had fallen in a shuddering breath that was like a sob. "Here is your brother now," she said. "Austen, Phil and I have been getting acquainted. And what do you think? He has found my lost locket." She held it up toward him.

He had come toward them. In the dim light his face looked very white, and his eyes glittered like quicksilver. He held out his hand.

"Why, Phil!" he exclaimed. "This is a great surprise. When did you arrive, and are you at this hotel?"

Phil had stood shamefaced. At the tone, however, which seemed an earnest of renewed favor, he flushed with relief. "I've just come," he answered, "in a friend's motor, and I must go back at once. But I'll come up again by train tomorrow if you'd like me to."

"Very well," was Ware's reply. "We will wait till then for our talk. I'll come and see you off." Neither of the others caught the tense repression in the tone or realized that his smile was forced and unnatural as he added, "We must put a ban on late hours, Barbara, if you are to climb Nantai-Zan tomorrow."

She went to the door, her thoughts in a tumult, a wild exhilaration possessing her. She wanted to laugh and to cry. The black, cold mist that had enveloped her had broken, and the warm sunlight was looking again into her heart.

"Good night, Phil," she said. "Thank you so much for—for bringing me the locket. You can't guess how much it meant to me!"

CHAPTER XXIII.

THE SECRET THE RIVER KEPT.

AS the silk drapery fell behind her the self control dropped from Austen Ware's face and a hell of hatred sprang into it. Chance had given Phil the one card that spelled disaster and chance had prompted him to play it. In Barbara's mind Daunt stood absolved. He saw the castle he had been building tottering to its fall. He turned on his brother a countenance convulsed with a fury of passion from which Phil shrank startled.

"Come," he said in a muffled voice. "We can't talk here." He led the way through the hall and across the footbridge to the hillside, gloomy now, for the incandescents in the trees had been extinguished.

Phil followed, his face gone white. A rack stood at the outer door, and his fingers, slipping along it as he passed, closed on a riding crop.

On the shrubberied slope Ware turned. One twitching hand dropped on his brother's shoulder, the other pointed down the path.

PHIL STRUCK HIM TWO BLOWS.

"Go, curse you!" he said, "and never show your face to me again! Not one cent shall you have from me now or hereafter. I have taken care of that!"

Phil lifted the crop and struck him across the head two savage, heavy blows. Ware staggered and fell backward down the steep declivity, his weight crashing through the bushes with a dull, sickening sound.

There was a silence in which Phil did not breathe. The stars seemed suddenly very bright. From an open window came a woman's shrill, careless laugh, threading the hushed roar of the water below. The lighted shoji across the river seemed to be drifting nearer. He could see the glow of a forge in a native smithy, like an angry, red lidded eye. The crop fell from his grasp. He leaned over, staring into the dark.

"Austen!" he whispered hoarsely. "Austen!"

There was no response. As he gazed fearfully into the shadow the rising moon, peeping through a bank of cloud, deluged the landscape with a misty gossamer. The light fell on the phonograph. Phil recoiled, for its long metal trumpet seemed a rigid arm stretched to seize him. With a low cry he turned and fled.

He skirted the hill to the hotel stables, where Bersonin's huge motorcar stood silent. The Japanese chauffeur was curled up in the tonneau fast asleep.

Five minutes later Barbara heard the throb of the great mechanism speeding down the shadowy cryptomeria road.

Daunt had dined cheerlessly in the deserted dining room. Afterward, shrinking from the gay piazzas, he had struck off for a long rambling walk. Only the frail moonlight, glimpsing through a cloudy sky, lay over the landscape when, returning, worn but in no mood for sleep, he found himself at the hill shrine looking down on the white hotel with its long red balconies, brightened here and there by the lighted window of some late retiring guest.

His few days at Chuzenji had passed in a kind of stifled fever. The report of Barbara's engagement had added its poisoned barb. That morning, however, a careless remark had torn across his mood as sheet lightning tears the weaving dusk. Tokyo was talking of it—of him—making a jest of that sweet, dead thing in his heart? The thought had stung his pride, and there had grown in him a sharp sense of humiliation at his own cowardice. The afternoon had found him riding down the mountain trail to Nikko. Tomorrow he would go back to Tokyo—to the round of gayeties that would now be hateful and to his work.

He put out his hand to one of the benches in the deep pine shadow, but drew it back with a sharp breath. A sliver of the warped wood had pierced his knuckle to the bone.

Frowning, he wrapped the bleeding member in his handkerchief and sat down at the bench's other end bitterly absorbed. How long he sat there with bowed head he could not have told, but at length he rose heavily to his feet. As he did so he became aware of a sound below him—a footfall coming toward him. It crossed a bar of the moonlight.

He shrank, and a tremor ran over him, for it was Barbara.
